EXPECT BENTWICH'S RETURN TO DUTIES AS ATTORNEY-GENERAL BY END OF WEEK

Attack Subject of Inquiry in House of Commons

(Jewish Telegraphic Agency)

London, Nov. 26—Capt. Josiah Wedgwood asked yesterday in the House of Commons for the latest information about the attempted assassination of Norman Bentwich, Attorney-General of Palestine, by an Arab civilian messenger in the Department of Police and Prisons. Assistant Secretary for the Colonies Lunn, after giving the requested details, added that he was glad to say that Bentwich was expected to return to duty at the end of the week.

Wedgwood continued his inquiry by asking why police protection had not been afforded to Bentwich and his wife in view of the many threats against them, and whether steps had been taken to purge the Palestine police force of those who thought it their duty to murder Jews or to allow them to be murdered by others. This brought cries of "Order, order!"

Wedgwood went on, however, and asked what steps had been taken to bring to justice the instigators of the attacks and not merely those who car-

4 HAIFA JEWS IN COURT FOR ALLEGED FIRING IN RIOTS

(Jewish Telegraphic Agency)

Haifa, Nov. 26—Four Jews of Haifa, including the aged engineer-contractor, Miller, were summoned to court yesterday on charges of having fired upon the Arabs from the Miller house during the riots in Haifa.

The arrest of Miller, following the riots, his parade through the streets handcuffed, and his final release on bail, had a wide repercussion in Palestine and aroused considerable indignation, as Mr. Miller is one of the most prominent inhabitants of Palestine. Together with his sons, he conducts the most famous port contracting firm in Palestine and has frequently carried out work for both the Palestine and the Transjordan governments.

MERRIMAN CHALLENGES CREDIBILITY OF BRITISH OFFICIAL TESTIFYING MOSLEM NOTABLES TRIED TO CALM ARABS

Discloses Lees Was Removed from District Commissioner's Office and Secretariat Because of Pro-Arab Stand; Chief Secretary Luke Questioned in Camera by Commission

By GERSHON AGRONSKY

(Staff Correspondent, Jewish Telegraphic Agency)

Jerusalem, Nov. 26—The Arab Executive yesterday summoned three British officials as witnesses before the Parliamentary Commission of Inquiry, in an effort to show that the Arab notables had done all within their power to control their people. The three witnesses who occupied the stand today were Oswald Lees, in charge of the Arab villages during the troubles, Assistant Secretary Sidney Moody and Assistant Secretary George Antonious.

The credibility of Lees was challenged by Sir Boyd Merriman, counsel for the Jewish Agency. Merriman disclosed that the witness has only recently come from Zanzibar, that he is on terms of the greatest intimacy with the Arabs, that he knows the Arab language, has dealt only with Arab villages, and is particularly friendly with the villagers of Lifta, who have the worst reputation in Palestine, and has neither contact with nor knowledge of the Jews.

Under cross examination Lees confirmed that Sir John Chancellor had spoken to him about the one-sidedness of his reports, and that he had been removed from the District Commissioner's office, and subsequently from the Secretariat, having recently been transferred to the Immigration Department because of his outspoken pro-Arab stand.

Describing the events which transpired between August 17 and August 23, Lees recalled only what happened to or against the Arabs, but neither saw nor spoke to a single Jew, nor heard of anything happening to the Jews.

Silley, Arab junior counsel, who cross-examined Lees, sought to show that the repressive measures only increased the terror among the Arabs, who were already in a state of fear because of alleged Jewish aggression.

Lees declared he thought the Jewish crowd at the Wailing Wall on Saturday, after the Moslem counter-demonstration, behaved rather badly. He said he was especially shocked because some jeered and hooted, when the muezzin, from a building on top of

MAY LEAVE DECISION ON WALL COMMISSION TO LEAGUE COUNCIL

Mandates Commission Doubts Whether Group on Wall Question Alone is Compatible with Article 14

(Jewish Telegraphic Agency)

Geneva, Nov. 26—The Jewish Telegraphic Agency correspondent learns that the Mandates Commission of the League of Nations, at yesterday morning's meeting discussed the formulation of its attitude in regard to the British proposal for an international commission of inquiry to go to Palestine. That formulation may point out to the Council of the League doubts whether a special commission only to settle the Wailing Wall dispute is compatible with Article 14 of the Palestine Mandate, which provides for protection for all of the Holy Places. The Commission is expected to leave the decision to the Council.

COMMUNISTS ASK LESSONS AGAINST ANTI-SEMITISM IN SCHOOLS, COURTS, UNIONS

65-Year-Old Jewess Paralyzed as Result of Being Bound and Thrust Into Trunk by Anti-Semites

(Jewish Telegraphic Agency)

Moscow, Nov. 26—Simultaneously with a horrible act of anti-Semitic cruelty on an aged Jewess in Moscow, the Central Committee of the Communist Party, at a special conference to end the repeated anti-Semitic acts in White Russia, has demanded from the Commissariat of Education that special lessons against anti-Semitism be conducted in the schools, that the courts use stricter measures against anti-Semites, and that the Federation of Labor Unions organize, for their members, courses and lectures on the national minority question.

Chana Karlin, a 65-year-old Jewess, is now paralyzed in the Charkov hospital as a result of a heinous attack on her by six anti-Semitic neighbors, who protested against living in the same house with Jews. When Chana's old husband had left the house, the attackers entered her quarters, tied her hands and feet, stuffed her mouth with rags and put her in a trunk which they locked.

When her husband returned, he found her missing and after a long search, heard weak groans from the trunk. He opened it and found his wife unconscious. Despite immediate medical aid, she has become paralyzed from being thrust, bound, into such tight quarters.

URGES EMERGENCY GROUP TO RESTORE CONFIDENCE SHATTERED BY MAGNES

Abraham Goldberg Suggests Plan to Restore Public's Faith in Palestine

(Jewish Daily Bulletin)

Charleston, S. C., Nov. 26— The selection of an emergency committee of seven, consisting of Lord Melchett, Lord Reading, Felix M. Warburg, Oscar Wasserman, Louis D. Brandeis, James Rothschild and Dr. Chaim Weizmann, by the General Council of the World Zionist Organization to restore public confidence and to prevent in the future the possibility of unauthorized and misleading utterances such as those of Dr. Judah L. Magnes, was advocated by Abraham Goldberg, vice-chairman of the General Council of the World Zionist Organization and a member of the administrative committee of the Zionist Organization of America, in an address to Charleston Jewry at the Community Centre Sunday night.

Speaking on the recent outbreaks in Palestine and of the proposal of Dr. Magnes to restore peace between the Jews and the Arabs, Mr. Goldberg said, "It is not yet too late to restore public confidence and to preclude in the future the possibility of unauthorized and misleading utterances similar to those of Dr. Magnes through the selection by the General Council of the World Zionist Organization of an emergency committee with Lord Melchett at its head. This committee should include Major James Rothschild, Justice Louis D. Brandeis, Felix M. Warburg, Oscar Wasserman, Lord Reading and Dr. Chaim Weizmann.

"It is clear that there now exists a lack of confidence and everyone feels called upon to come out with advice, while a committee of seven men of the calibre described, will inspire confidence in all Jewish factions and have a salutary effect on all parties concerned and may engender a just hope that it will ultimately find a real solution to this aggravated problem."

VANDALS UPROOT ORANGE AND BANANA GROVES; CAUSE GREAT DAMAGE

Area of 42 Dunams Uprooted; Katz Farm Suffered $30,000 Damage During Riots

(Jewish Telegraphic Agency)

Jerusalem, Nov. 26—At the orange and banana grove of the Roumanian Jew, Katz, near Haifa Bay, all the trees over an area of 42 dunams were uprooted, doing great damage. A number of Arbs have been arrested on suspicion. Katz's farm had already suffered $30,000 worth of damage during the August riots.

Yesterday Jewish workers ploughing land near Haifa Bay were assaulted by Arabs who arrived with Advocate Fuad Afalah. The workers were compelled to stop. Both Arabs and workers have been ordered by the police to appear for examination. In the meantime the police have ordered ploughing suspended.

Two more instigators of the Jaffa riots have been exiled to Jenin and Jericho respectively.

Both Zionists and non-Zionists have joined the Committee, among whose members is the famous novelist, Jacob Wassermann.

MAURICE BLANK'S BODY SHIPPED TO ROUMANIA

(Jewish Telegraphic Agency)

Bucharest, Nov. 26—The body of Maurice Blank, founder of the Marmorosh Bank in Roumania, who died Friday in a Vienna sanitarium, was sent yesterday to Roumania. The Roumanian government's Regent Council and the King sent condolences to his son, Aristide. The late Blank was known as Roumania's Rothschild. He was a great philanthropist and one of the founders of Roumania's industries.

It was erroneously reposted in yesterday's "Bulletin" that Aristide Blank has succumbed.

SITUATION TENSE IN JAFFA AS ARAB GENERAL PROTEST STRIKE PERSISTS

Storm Government Offices Demanding Release of Boycott Agitators

(Jewish Telegraphic Agency)

Jaffa, Nov. 26—The Arab general strike continues in Jaffa, as a protest against the arrest of eight Arabs as boycott agitators. A group of several hundred Arabs yesterday stormed the Government offices, demanding the release of the arrested. The crowd was dispersed by British police.

The situation in Jaffa is strained, and aeroplanes and armored cars are cruising in the city.

An Arab delegation is proceeding to Jerusalem to interview Sir John Chancellor, High Commissioner of Palestine.

It is believed that the Arab who was fired upon near Ramleh and seriously wounded Sunday night, was attacked in the mistaken assumption that he was a Jew.

Jaffa, Nov. 26—The strike of Arab shopkeepers here, started because of the arrest, imprisonment and exile of a number of boycott inciters, continues, but it is not spreading to other cities. The agitators apparently have not the courage to call off the shopkeepers' strike and seem terrified at having overshot their mark.

Cairo, Nov. 26—The "Moqattam" says in its yesterday's issue, that the reason that Egyptian lawyers have not gone to Palestine to undertake the defense of arrested Arabs, is because of the refusal of Attorney-General Bentwich to sanction the use of foreign lawyers as defenders of the accused in Palestine.

REPORT RUSSIAN JEW FINDS CANCER CURE

(Jewish Telegraphic Agency)

Moscow, Nov. 26—Jacob Schwartzman, a Jewish doctor from Odessa, has discovered a cure for cancer of the breast which has proven successful, according to Tass, the Soviet news agency. Experiments on animals and humans have given positive results in the most difficult cases where other known methods have been tried without success.

Schwartzman's discovery, in which the Health Commissariat is now greatly interested, will be called "Miol."

SOVIET SECRET POLICE MISTREAT JEWISH MIGRANTS

(Jewish Telegraphic Agency)

Riga, Nov. 26—Jewish emigrants who arrived in this city yesterday from the Ukraine, said that the Soviet secret police agents at the border deprived them of all their money. They also charged that in the search for money, the women of the party were undressed and roughly treated. All their jewelry, except wedding rings, was taken. The emigrants say that there is another large party of Jews waiting in Moscow for visas before they can leave.

PALESTINE LAND PROBLEMS ASSUME SERIOUS CHARACTER; ARABS CHARGE MENACE IN SYSTEM OF JEWISH LAND ACQUISITION

Interruption of Work on Area Bought by Canadian Zionists Focuses Attention on Problem; Arabs Do Not Dispute Legality of Sale; Protest Against General System by Which Jews Acquire Land

By HERBERT SOLOW

(Special Representative, Jewish Telegraphic Agency)

Jerusalem, Nov. 26—General attention has been drawn to the seriousness of land problems in Palestine by the interruption of the work of Jewish ploughmen at Wady Hawarit, the most important Jewish purchase of a continuous stretch of land since the acquisition of the land around Haifa Bay. The British Inquiry Commission was informed several days ago by the Arab Executive that the Jews were driving Arab tenants off the Wady Hawarit land, which had been bought by the Jewish National Fund with $1,000,000 of Canadian-Jewish funds.

The Arabs do not dispute the legality of the Jews' title to the land which was purchased from 13 members of a prominent land-owning family. They also grant that the purchase and the effort of the Jews to evict the Arab squatters is in perfect accord with law but they maintain that just because of its legality the purchase and the attempted eviction make it clear that the entire system of Jewish acquisition of land constitutes a standing menace to the Arab population.

The Arab leaders claim that when an owner sells his land the tenants are turned off the property without having any place to go. They also contend that the compulsory compensation to these evicted tenants under the law which has been effective only since August is insufficient. Besides, they claim that the Arab gets compensation in money but since he has been accustomed to handling only land and doesn't know how to handle money he quickly squanders it. The result of all this, according to the Arabs, is that the evicted tenants are developing into a landless and pauperous class who become bandits and anti-Jewish.

The Arabs' sentiment on this matter is summed in their question: "Will you convert all Arabs into bandits in order to build up the Jewish National Home?"

In an interview with an important official of the Jewish National Fund, he contradicted the Arab argument at all points. "The Fund buys ninety percent of its land from large holders, most of whom live abroad, in Paris, Beirut and Alexandria, and receive twenty percent of the proceeds of the crops of their lands from the fellaheen who till the soil as tenants or squatters. We purchase the land and then serve notice on the tenants, giving them a long period of removal before occupying it. When we bought the Nahal land in 1921 we gave the tenants the right to setle 3,000 dunams of it within six years and an option to purchase at the end of that period. In the case of Wady Hawarit we paid $75,000 in compensation to the tenants in addition to the purchase price. About three-quarters of the tenants had already been paid off and we were prepared to settle with the remainder when the rioting broke out. Now the tenants, including those who had already received compensation, refuse to vacate. Our position is perfectly legal and moral. We cannot be blamed if the law is unsatisfactory. Let a new one be made."

This official denied the validity of the Arab argument that dispossessed tenants become paupers and bandits. He maintains that practically all of the dispossessed tenants use their compensation money to buy land elsewhere and are satisfied with the arrangement. If land is difficult to obtain, he says, the government should give state lands to the squatters and evicted tenants, reserving, of course, a proper proportion of the state land for Jewish settlement.

The Jewish National Fund further argues that displacements are practically unknown in the Littoral orange-growing regions where the peasants who were previously unsuccessful in raising grain have sold most of their holdings, retaining ten to twenty dunams on which they have begun orange cultivation from which they have derived more than from their larger holdings on which they tried to grow grain.

The Inquiry Commission is expected to go further into the land question which some Arabs point to as the fundamental cause of Arab-Jewish conflict. It has thus far been impossible to obtain a concrete statement of the Arab demands with regard to the land question.

A regrettable fact in this connection is that neither the Jews, Arabs or the government possess statistics showing the actual number of tenants and squatters dispossessed or their fate. It is understood that the Jews are collecting such statistics which it is believed will show that the former tenants have been successfully reestablished in agriculture in other regions.

3 RELIGIOUS GROUPS MERGE THEIR BUDGETS

(Jewish Daily Bulletin)

Iowa City, Nov. 26—For the first time in the history of the University of Iowa, a financial campaign is being undertaken by a merger of three religious beliefs. The Hillel Foundation, the Y. M. and Y. W. C. A.'s and the Newman Catholic group have combined their budgets for which 400 students are waging a drive. Members of the faculty of the School of Religion associated with the joint project express the hope that religious work on the campus will be permeated with the cooperative ideals for which their school stands.

ARABS CALL HALT ON "DOWN WITH BALFOUR PAPER" SLOGAN

Organ of Moslem Supreme Council Urges Fight for Parliament; Nothing to Fear from Balfour Paper

(Jewish Telegraphic Agency)

Jerusalem, Nov. 26—Abandonment of the slogan, "Down with the Balfour Declaration," which has been the constantly reiterated cry of the Arabs in the last few months, was advocated today by a writer in "Al Jamia Arabia," the organ of the Moslem Supreme Council.

According to this article, by Hassan Aidk Aldejani, the Arabs need not fear the Balfour Declaration. Instead, they should demand parliamentary government. Aldejani argues that the Balfour Declaration contains nothing unfavorable to the Arabs, who should completely alter their tactics and concentrate on a positive demand for a parliament.

"If we follow these tactics, we will have the sympathy of the British government, the League of Nations, and the English people," the article asserts.

(Jewish Daily Bulletin)

Pittsburgh, Pa., Nov. 26—Calling on the Jews of the world, non-Zionists as well as Zionists, to unite themselves into a more inclusive but yet compact and complete organization, and to awake and acquaint themselves with the many problems which have to be faced as world Jewry attempts to iron out the difficulties now existing in Palestine as the result of the Arab outrages and wholesale slaughterings, Louis Lipsky, national president of the Zionist Organization of America, spoke before a crowd of 1,000 people from Pittsburgh, West Virginia, and Eastern Ohio, in the Morris Kaufmann Memorial auditorium of the local Young Men's and Women's Hebrew Association here Sunday evening, climaxing the third annual Zionist regional conference.

This announcement was made at a convocation of West Virginia University students and faculty by Rabbi Samuel H. Baron, director of the West Virginia University Hillel Foundation. The winner is determined by the faculty committee on student and fraternity standings and the faculty committee on prizes and awards. Two other Jewish fraternities, Phi Sigma Delta and Pi Lambda Phi also achieve high ranking.

REPORT SHOWS JEWS AND CHRISTIANS IN UNISON

That the first stage in the activities of the Committee on Good Will Between Jews and Christians of the Federal Council of Churches has been successfully developed is evident from the annual report of the Council which will be submitted to its executive meeting in Chicago, December 4, 5 and 6. Under the auspices of the National Conference of Jews and Christians and the Conference of Younger Churchmen, a rabbi, a Protestant minister and a Catholic priest will speak on "The Problems of Understanding Among Jews, Roman Catholics and Protestants" at the Knights of Columbus Club, December 7. Among the speakers will be Rabbi Israel Goldstein. The Federal Council's report points out that the "committee has found ways in which Christians and Jews could and would cooperate on community enterprises in various cities, and in fields where they were ready to ally themselves in common tasks of social service."

"GUARDIAN" CALLS FOR MIXED INTERNATIONAL BODY TO SETTLE WALL DISPUTE

Says Britain No Longer Acceptable as Impartial Tribunal; Matter Up to League

(Jewish Telegraphic Agency)

Manchester, Nov. 26—An editorial in yesterday's "Manchester Guardian," entitled "Geneva and Palestine," says that Assistant Secretary for the Colonies, in replying to questions in the House of Commons, had described the Palestine situation "from a military point of view," as quiet. The editorial goes on to say that "from any other point of view, it obviously is not. Yesterday afternoon, Attorney-General Bentwich was wounded, while there are plenty of other such incidents, such as the stabbing of Dr. Ticho, to show that unrest is still widespread.

"It is difficult to understand why the Mandates Commission of the League of Nations refused the British Government's request for a mixed international commission to investigate the Wailing Wall dispute. It is true that the Wailing Wall question is intrinsically only a minor question, but such questions have an unfortunate habit of becoming symbols for which men will not only die, but will kill.

"It is very important that this matter, and indeed the whole problem of the Holy Places, be investigated and settled by an absolutely impartial tribunal, according to Article 14 of the Palestine Mandate. It is doubtful whether the British Government will any longer be accepted by the Arabs or the Jews as such a body. It is essentially a matter for the League of Nations.

"The British Government, which is now investigating the immediate causes of the August riots, is in quite a different position. To replace the Inquiry Commission by a League inquiry would be unjust and impolitic, because that would tacitly condemn the British authorities in advance as the cause of the unrest. But the question of the Wailing Wall is entirely different. It is a subject for historic and scientific, rather than judicial, inquiry.

"For an international body to decide these points would not detract from British authority but would rather strengthen our hands in the future administration of the country. The Mandates Commission's reasons for this curious decision will be awaited with interest. It is to be hoped that it was not timidity, for the Mandates Commission can only grow in importance by taking up the comparatively few opportunities offered it."

HADASSAH SEEKS FUND FOR PALESTINE LUNCHEONS

A campaign among the Jewish religious schools of the United States for funds to the Palestine School Luncheons Fund will be conducted during December by the Hadassah. Through this fund 1,600 Jewish school children in Palestine are supplied daily with hot meals.

JEWISH PRESS HAILS RETURN OF BRANDEIS TO PALESTINE ACTIVITY

Says Brandeis Pledge Great Consolation for Tactless Statement of Dr. Magnes

The Jewish press of New York has greeted with undisguised satisfaction the speech of Justice Louis D. Brandeis at the meeting in Washington of those interested in the organization of a vast corporation to develop Palestine economically. His speech signalizes his return to participation in the work of building the Jewish National Home.

An editorial in today's issue of the "Jewish Morning Journal" by Jacob Fishman, says "We know that Brandeis in all the years that he kept away from public activity in connection with Palestine did not omit to do important work for Palestine . . . but we are glad to see that at last he has decided to come out with a speech in public. This is of great importance for us at the present moment. The greater the Jew, the greater the responsibility he carries in the present critical period in Palestine. The Jewish world will know how to appreciate the great Jewish spirit which Justice Brandeis has displayed in the national Jewish crisis. His speech is indeed a great compensation for us, because it becomes after the tactless address of Dr. Magnes. If Magnes is looking for a teacher from whom to learn, he might learn from Brandeis. . . ."

An editorial in "The Day," which had been severely critical of Dr. Magnes, tempers its criticism with the comment that his "statement to 'The Day' has clarified his attitude towards the problems which arose from the present situation in Palestine. His words are not so horrifying as previous reports made us believe and not so far out of the way. . . . We therefore make this revision and say that Dr. Magnes's words are not anti-Zionistic, not anti-National and not even new and revolutionary but merely tactless and superfluous."

"The Day" goes on to point out the tactlessness and futility of Dr. Magnes's words in the face of the present Inquiry Commission's hearings and in face of the fact that the Jews were the injured party. Commenting on the fact that words are useless, "The Day" says, "But Brandeis, he understood and clearly realized the situation. He therefore sets about creating with Warburg a great corporation which must, and will, develop the country. This is work. This is something that will accomplish tangible things in a critical moment. This is an answer to the Arabs, the agitators and the masses, will understand and properly interpret as the determination of the Jewish people to continue the work and despite all difficulties to build the Jewish National Home in Palestine."

CITES FIGURES SHOWING EXTENT OF DISCRIMINATION AGAINST JEWISH APPLICANTS TO MEDICAL SCHOOLS

Prof. Frank Gavin, of General Theological Seminary, Charges Jewish Applicants Forced to Seek Schools Abroad; States Virtually All of 600 American Students Applying to Edinburgh University Medical School Are Jews; Says Situation in New York City Particularly Hard

Figures indicating the existence and operation of discrimination against Jewish students applying for admission to medical schools in the United States were given by Prof. Frank Gavin of the General Theological Seminary, in a paper on the subject of discrimination in this field of higher education, read at a meeting of the Federal Council of Churches' Committee on Goodwill Between Jews and Christians.

Pointing out that Jewish graduates of American medical colleges and universities seeking medical training in American schools of medicine are finding it so difficult to be admitted into accredited schools that they are going abroad to study, Prof. Gavin said that almost all of the 600 Americans applying for admission to the medical school of Edinburgh University were Jews.

It is significant, said Prof. Gavin, that while the trip to Scotland is expensive and that while opportunities for good medical training in this country are plentiful, so many Jewish students should be seeking admission to a foreign medical school. He can find no other reason for this than the fact that Jewish students are being discriminated against in American medical schools.

He finds the difficulties of the Jewish students of New York City particularly hard. His figures show that in one New York college whose student body is from 75 to 80 percent Jewish, the number of graduates from this college obtaining admission into New York medical schools has shrunk from 68 to 42 in the last five years. In 1928, not a single graduate from this college was accepted by the best known medical school in New York. While the number of admissions has been shrinking, the number of applications has increased from 190 to 215.

Professor Gavin's paper contains other figures which are illuminating. "Of the applicants in 1929, there were 206 in all, of whom 16 were rated as A grade and 168, B grade, in personality and character. This group numbered 195 Jews; of the 16 others, 14 were of Italian descent. Students of this college had to file applications for admission to medical colleges in the average number of 5.2, 5.6 and 7 for the past three years, which figures, in relation to the general number of all applications throughout the country, bore the ratio: 5.2 to 2.4; 5.6 to 2.1, and 7 to 2.3. This means in plain English, that this past year it was three times as hard for a graduate of this college to be admitted into a medical school than for the average American college graduate. Another set of figures throws further light on the problem of this college's graduates. There are five well-known medical colleges in New York. The applications and acceptances by these five medical colleges were as follows:

Applications	Acceptances
170	15

"A student who entered St. Andrew's at Dundee in 1928 writes as follows: 'There are 17 Americans in the second year here . . . all are Jewish with the exception of one who is a negro.'

"Now the problem of the New York Jewish college graduate whose ambition it is to study medicine has become increasingly acute in recent years. He is usually precluded from admission to medical colleges outside the city, for one reason or another (though there are notable exceptions). One elastic category of classifying the applications is "personality." A personal interview will often be the means of an unfavorable verdict upon an applicant whose academic record may be quite satisfactory. It has been alleged, in individual cases related to the speaker, that the proper and honest filling in of the questionnaire supplied to applicants furnishes just the sort of information on which the Jewish applicant is refused. A sample application blank (in use by a well-known New York medical college) requests a passport-size photograph, among other questions as to birthplace, religion naturalization, birthplace of parents, etc. Jewish graduates of New York colleges desiring to enter mednicne, have applied sometimes to as many as forty colleges before securing admission. An analysis by Dean Burton D. Myers of the Indiana University School of Medicine for the year 1928-29, shows that of the 195 'multiple applicants' for admission to medical colleges, New York, Pennsylvania and New Jersey furnish 160. Of the 160, New York City supplies 119.

"In an interesting paper read recently to the Association of American Medical Colleges by Dr. A. M. Schwitalla, Dean of St. Louis University Medical College, on 'The Scholastic Achievements of Multi-Applicants,' there are several sentences worthy of remark: 'application to one institution only . . . can hardly be considered a safe criterion of scholarship.'. 'The relative frequency of those who have received more than the minimum of collegiate preparation increases among the multi-applicants. Among the highest ten averages in the class are to be found three who applied to St. Louis University, two who applied to one other institution besides, one who applied to two other institutions, one

The Community Fund contributes $49,548 annually to the Jewish Federation of Indianapolis, which in turn supports the Jewish Community Center, the Jewish Family Welfare Society, and the Jewish Shelter House and Old Home.

A Jewish Community Credit Union, the first undertaking of its kind in Indianapolis, was recently organized. The purpose of the Credit Union will be twofold; first, to stimulate thrift and savings among its members, and second, to provide loans at a low rate of interest. The movement is entirely cooperative; no officers can receive pay for their services; the earnings which accrue are divided among the stockholders after 20% of net earnings is placed in the reserve fund.

Officers of the Credit Union are: Leo Kaminsky, president; Jacob Soltken, vice-president; Philip Kraft, treasurer, and H. Joseph Hyman, secretary.

Denver, Colo., Nov. 25—Jewish activities in Denver this fall have been philanthropic for the most part. The most recent event of national importance was the opening of the Louis Heineman Building for Tuberculous Children, at the National Jewish Hospital.

Formal dedication ceremonies will be held later. Rabbi William S. Friedman, president and founder of the institution, opened the building with a simple dedicatory prayer, surrounded by the 22 children already being cared for in the building, and by the hospital staff, the children and other patients of the hospital who were able to attend.

The sixteenth building on the hospital grounds, this new building was erected as a cost of $150,000, through the legacy of the late Louis Heineman of Jamestown, N. Y.

It is to be devoted exclusively to the care of children suffering from tuberculosis of the bones, joints, glands, and pulmonary tuberculosis, the only service of its kind for children in any national Jewish tubercular charity institution.

Although the total capacity of the building is 44, only one floor will be in operation until increased subscriptions made possible maintenance of the entire building. That would bring the capacity of the hospital to 350.

the Wailing Wall, called the Arabs to prayer.

Lees described the terror of an Arab family in Machnayim, whom he had arranged to have removed from a Jewish neighborhood. He stated hat he had been sent by Acting Governor of Jerusalem Cust to the Arab villages to calm the villagers. Finding them anxious about their families in Jerusalem, he reassured them that the government would protect them. The people of Lifta and other villages, he stated, complained that the Jews had assaulted them, and demanded that the government should search Jewish houses for arms. With apparent regret he stated that more Arabs were arrested than Jews, adding, however, that some were soon after discharged for lack of evidence.

He told of visiting a Jewish suburb several days before the riots broke out on August 23, and stated that although he received no complaints, he was given a cold reception. Speaking deprecatingly of the Polish, Russian and "that kind of Jews," Lees told of seeing them hanging about Zion Hall, the evening of August 22, the night before the riots broke out. On August 24, he said, he attended a meeting in the office of Keith-Roach, District Commissioner of Palestine, and heard the Grand Mufti of Jerusalem angrily demand why the District Commissioner had failed to call the Jewish notables to lecture them about keeping peace. Some mukhtars, he related, with evident sympathy, delivered very angry speeches at this meeting.

He told the Commissioners that while accompanying certain Mukhtars, the car in which he was riding was stoned by the Jews and that the Mukhtars turned to him, saying: "Here are you, a British official, being stoned."

He was tripped up by Merriman when he told only part of the story concerning one of the Arabs killed while escorting Jews whom he had sheltered at Surbahr. Asked who had killed the Arab, Lees said he did not know, until Merriman reminded him that the Arab had been killed by British troops, who mistook him for a bandit.

The witness also detailed the alleged Jewish looting of three Arab houses, one of which belongs to a relative of Mayor Nashishibi of Jerusalem. Merriman made Lees admit his insinuation that the Jews had anything to do with the killing of their Arab protector from Surbahr was unjust. He forced from Lees the admission that the Arab Executive's accusation of Jewish treachery was a malicious slander.

Assistant Secretary Moody was the next witness called. How the Arab crowd poured out of the Damascus gate and began breaking up building material with which to make sticks was described by Moody. The crowd, suspecting him of being a Jew, he said, attacked him as he was enroute to the office of the Grand Mufti to ask him to disperse the mob.

The Mufti, he declared, told the mob: "The government will be responsible for the blood of the Arabs. Return to your homes." The Mufti repeatedly warned him, Moody stated, that the police must not fire upon the crowd, lest there be a very grave reaction. The crowd was quite frantic, Moody asserted, and the Mufti could not make himself heard. Only with great difficulty did he escort the Mufti back to his office.

George Antonious, Assistant Secretary of the Palestine Government, in charge of Arab affairs, told the Commissioners that the Moslems welcomed the White Paper of 1928, concerning the Wailing Wall, and had urged its immediate implementing. The delay, he said, had increased their anxiety and transformed it into grave concern. The Mufti had warned him that serious consequences would ensue if there were further delay in carrying out the terms of the White Paper concerning the regulations at the Wailing Wall.

When the rioting broke out on August 23, he, too, went to see the Mufti, Antonious asserted, and urged him to quiet the mob. The Mufti did his utmost, but the Arabs alleged, "we are being fired upon," and demanded arms. The Mufti addressed the frantic crowd of Arabs in the Haram area, he said, urging them to return quietly to their villages, but they refused and persisted in their demand for arms. When alarming reports came from the districts, alleging that Arabs had been massacred, the Mufti, at his suggestion, sent responsible leaders to restore confidence in the government's ability to protect the Arabs.

H. C. Luke, Chief Secretary of the Palestine Government, and Acting High Commissioner during the riots, who has just completed his testimony in public hearings before the Commission, was examined in camera by the Commissioners yesterday afternoon.

(Jewish Telegraphic Agency)

Jerusalem, Nov. 26—Only twelve arrests have been made, with but a single conviction, in connection with the fifty-eight attacks against Jews in Jerusalem since September 1.

Details have only now become available, disclosing that there were eleven shootings in that period and forty-seven cases of individual assault.

The records show that on September 5, immediately following the period of open rioting, an Arab fired upon a 70-year-old Jew standing nearby an Arab policeman. From that time on, attacks were recorded on the dates as follows:

Sept. 7 there was shooting in Givat Shaul, a Jewish quarter of Jerusalem, in which several houses were damaged by the bullets.

Oct. 10, an Arab knifed and wounded a Jew in the Old City. The suit brought by the Jew has been thrice postponed because Arab witnesses and the policeman have failed to make an appearance. No decision has as yet been handed down in the case. The same day, a Jew was stoned near the Damascus Gate, while an Arab policeman, wearing no badge number, failed to go to his aid.

Oct. 11, shooting occurred in Nachlat Zadok.

Not only did the Arab policeman, who wore no badge number, fail to come to their succor, but he took a hand in the beating, in which two were wounded. Although the attackers were identified, they remain unpunished.

Oct. 28, M. Chamika was beaten in the Old City, while the Arab policemen, No. 16 and 27, looked on. The Jewish Corporal Charlik arrested one of the assailants, who have not yet gone on trial.

RALPH JONAS PRESENTS $1,000,000 FUND TO MERGED CHARITY GROUPS

New York Federation and Brooklyn Jewish Charities to Combine

As the result of an unconditional gift of $1,000,000 by Ralph Jonas, Brooklyn philanthropist, to the proposed city-wide Jewish charity federation, the New York Federation for the Support of Jewish Philanthropic Societies has approved the proposed merger with the Brooklyn Federation of Jewish Charities. The Brooklyn Federation will vote on the merger on December 5. Mr. Jonas will turn over his gift to the combined federations one month after the merger goes into effect, which he hopes will be on January 1, 1931.

The plan to unify the two federations into one city-wide body has been discussed for ten years. The recent publication of the Jewish communal survey of New York which indicated that while there are more Jews in Brooklyn than there are in Manhattan and the Bronx combined, the Brooklyn federation raised only about a sixth of what the New York federation did.

As most of the Jewish wealth is said to be concentrated in Manhattan, it was felt that the problem of charity support should be treated from the point of view of the city as a whole.

Mr. Jonas's gift makes the amalgamation possible at this time by offering, in effect, to ease the financial burden of the union in the first period of its existence. Moreover, according to a report made to the New York Federation trustees by Justice Joseph M. Proskauer of the Appellate Division of the State Supreme Court, a group of supporters of the merger movement is making an effort to raise a second $1,000,000 to assure the success of the merged federation. That money is to be raised over and above the sums collected during annual federation campaigns.

The Federation for the Support of Jewish Philanthropic Societies announced the receipt of $1,010,000 in contributions toward its deficit of 1929. The deficit represents the sum required by the ninety-one constituent charities of the federation for current operating expenses this year, beyond the funds available from the $3,584,000 on the Jewish community chest's books from regular annual subscriptions.

Since the opening of its membership extension campaign, 3,674 members have been enrolled in the Federation for the Support of Jewish Philanthropic Societies, according to an announcement by Sol Stroock, former president.

ried them out. Lunn replied that the High Commissioner had provided protection for Bentwich weeks ago and he does not doubt that an inquiry will be made as to the instigators, if there are any.

In view of the continued attacks on members of the Jewish community Boothby asked whether the government would not reconsider the policy of forcibly disarming the Jews while leaving the Arabs armed. Lunn replied that he thought that that matter might be left to the Inquiry Commission, which is going into the matter there.

Jerusalem, Nov. 26—In many synagogues of Palestine today, there were said prayers for the recovery of Bentwich.

Jerusalem, Nov. 26—The Bentwich outrage seems to have had a sobering effect on the Arabs in addition to their emphatic dissociation from the crime as announced by their counsel before the Inquiry Commission. Many similar expressions of abhorrence and sympathy have been forthcoming from Arab quarters.

Signs are not wanting that the Arabs are repenting their intransigeance and incitement.

Jerusalem, Nov. 26—The theory that the attack upon Norman Bentwich, Attorney-General of Palestine, who was shot Saturday night by an Arab, was organized by some Zionist agency, was advanced yesterday by some Arab papers in Palestine.

The papers argue that since the Arabs are not in the habit of becoming involved in political disturbances, some Zionists must have engineered the assault.

president of the local Community Chest, including more than 50 charity organizations of all types and for all creeds.

The annual campaign is now on. Another member of the Jewish community, Isadore Samuels, a vice-chairman of the organization, is also one of the leaders.

This year more than seven per cent of the funds collected by this body is scheduled for the several Jewish charities under its support.

The fate of the Beth Israel Hospital and Home for the Aged, a local institution now entering into the seventh year of service, was decided recently when the board of directors determined to continue operation despite the financial deficit which had resulted in a motion for disbanding the work.

One of the most active workers, Adolph Kiesler, was re-elected president. A new wing for the old folks' home is being planned, and through his generosity in the project one of the rooms will be dedicated to honor the memory of his wife, the late Sarah Kiesler.

The memory of another Colorado woman was perpetuated this week when the dining room in the hospital building of the Denver National Home for Jewish Children was dedicated to the late Ida B. Livermore, wife of Oscar Livermore of Colorado Springs. Mr. Livermore endowed the room in his wife's name.

Two national Jewish organizations, the Council of Jewish Women and the B'nai B'rith, are responsible for making Denver a gathering place for Jewry of the state this month.

Last week women from Pueblo and Colorado Springs came here to attend a luncheon given by the Denver Council of Jewish Women.

Bangor, Me., Nov. 25—The Jewish community of Bangor has for the past few years boasted of two service clubs, one for the men, called The Veritans, and the other for the women, known as the Szold Club. Through these instruments they have been able to share in the activities of the general community and have been given prominent and equal representation in the affairs of the city. The president of the local Red Cross is a Jew, James Cahners. The Jews are likewise represented on the directorate of the Chamber of Commerce by Myer Segal of the Veritans Club. The otheer service clubs, like the Rotary, Kiwanis and Lions, likewise have Jewish members. On stated occasions, all the service clubs come together and mingle socially.

As for things specifically Jewish, the Jews are quite active when it comes to fund gathering, so that their contributions to the United Palestine Appeal are quite considerable. For the last Emergency Relief Fund, Bangor sent almost $1,000.

Religiously, the Bangor community is as good as dead, although there are four synagogues, a foreign rabbi, a Talmud Torah and other necessary Orthodox appurtenances. For the last three years a small group has been having services for the High Holidays at a hall, with a student of the Jewish Theological Seminary at the head. But their Jewish interests end with the Day of Atonement.

accompanied an Arab who had purman brutally beat a Jewish youth who chased Jewish goods and who feared attack by the Arab boycott pickets.

Nov. 9, shooting occurred in the Kehavia quarter, and the watchman at the Diskin orphanage was fired upon.

Nov. 10, an Arab auto tried to run down three orphans of the Diskin orphanage, at whom they also fired. One of the Arabs told the police that he was merely trying out a revolver. There were no arrests.

Nov. 11, the Arab boycott agitators beat Moshe Elbas as he walked out of a Jewish soy, mistaking him for a Christian.

Nov. 12, Dr. Ticho was stabbed. An Arab was arrested and released on bail.

Nov. 24, Attorney-General Norman Bentwich was shot in the corridor of the government offices. His assailant was immediately arrested.

This list does not include attacks outside of Jerusalem of which there were scores, including the murder of a woman at Hedera and many shootings from automobiles on lonely roads.

who applied to 7, one who applied to 8 and one who applied to 15 other institutions besides.' He concludes with the words: 'The impression one gathers after reviewing case after case is this: that in admitting students possibly Committees on Admission are inclined too readily to refuse students for the reason stated on the Association's card as 'Personality and poor Scholarship.' It may be that a student is undesirable for extraneous reasons, but it seems to me that a sense of fairness might well dictate increasing caution in the employment of this classification.'

"The learned Dean's remarks have peculiar relevance to the case of Jewish students who, it would seem, constitute a large section of the multi-applicants. Successive restrictions of the opportunity to study medicine will produce—as they have already tended to do—a very iniquitous situation for liberty-loving Americans, namely, the shutting-off of the possibility for Jewish students to study medicine and the presenting of such disproportionate obstacles as to create and maintain a resentment and bitterness which, if ever, might be justified in this instance."

The Federal Council of the Churches' Committee on Good-Will between Jews and Christians, have decided to publish Professor Gavin's report.
