"This attempt to make a fundamental change in the selection of immigrants to the United States has already caused considerable excitement:.... While the proposal does not violate the letter of our treaties, which guarantee to other nations equal treatment of their Nationals, it violates the spirit of those agreements... A tremendous strain will be placed on our relations with many foreign governments if the bill is brought near a vote while still containing the provision recently adopted by the committee....

"When a large view is taken of the contributions to human progress made by representatives of the various European stocks, it is impossible to avoid very general distribution of the honors....
