FORD DETECTIVES MEDDLING WITH CASE, PREJUDICE JURY, SAPIRO'S COUNSEL CHARGES

Mistrial Will Be Asked Again by Ford, His Counsel Announces

(Jewish Daily Bulletin)

Detroit, Apr. 19.—A second motion for mistrial on the ground of alleged misconduct of a juror will be made by Henry Ford's counsel in the $1,000,000 libel suit against him by Aaron Sapiro, it became known today. The motion will be made next Thursday morning, Stewart Hanley of Ford counsel told Judge Fred M. Raymond in requesting a continuance until then because of the illness of Senator James A. Reed, chief of Ford counsel.

Hanley did not state his reason for the mistrial motion in open court, but later said: "We will move for a mistrial on the grounds of misconduct of a juror."

It was understood that one of the six women on the jury was called into Judge Raymond's office last night and questioned about reports of an investigation made by detectives for the Ford organization.

William Henry Gallagher, chief of counsel for Sapiro, in an address to the court, assailed the Ford counsel and charged that Ford detectives were meddling with the case in an effort to prejudice the jury.

Gallagher referred to "fear of the

His plan, he said, is to measure the speed of light in a pipe line three miles long. The pipe line is to be filled with rarefied gas or air at one-tenth of an atmosphere in pressure. If arrangements can be made, the professor will perform this experiment in the vicinity of Chicago this summer.

"I started out with my life work with three ambitions," said the scientist.

JAMES ROSENBERG'S PLAY, "WALL STREET," TO BE PRODUCED NEXT WEEK

"Wall Street", the play by James N. Rosenberg, prominent Jewish leader, lawyer and artist, will be produced at the Hudson Theatre next week. The Stagers, Inc., are producing the play. It is directed by Edward Goodman who directed "The American Tragedy". Arthur Hohl, who played the lead in "White Cargo", is to have the chief role.

Mr. Rosenberg is the vice chairman of the American Jewish Joint Distribution Committee for which he spent over a year in Europe supervising their work there. He is known also as an artist of repute, his paintings having been exhibited at the Anderson, Rosenberg (in Philadelphia), and Arlington Galleries and at the City Club. He was the founder of the New Gallery in New York and has been instrumental in bringing to America the work of several notable modern European painters. He is the author of a short fantastic play entitled "Punchinello", which has been published by Mitchell Kennerly. "Wall Street", will have its initial performance on the evening of April 20th.

In accordance with its recent announcement, made at a protest meeting of Detroit retail merchants, the Ford Motor Company will bar the public as patrons at its commissary stores at the Dearborn, Ford and Lincoln plants. Only employees will be served. It was estimated that only about 10 per cent of the stores' patronage has been from the public.

It was denied in Detroit that this decision of the Ford Company had come about under the pressure of a boycott by the merchants.

DIGEST OF PUBLIC OPINION ON JEWISH MATTERS

[The purpose of the Digest is informative. Preference is given to papers not generally accessible to our readers. Quotation does not indicate approval.—Editor.]

Gov. Smith's Reply as Viewed by the Jewish Press

Governor Smith's reply to Mr. Chas. Marshall's letter is lauded by the Jewish press, which views the Governor's utterance as a victory in the cause of religious tolerance which is of particular interest to the Jews.

The "Jewish Daily News", drawing an analogy between the position of the Jews and the Catholics as religious minorities in this country, says:

"The Catholics in America are a religious minority, true, a much larger one than the Jews, but nevertheless a minority, and in this respect the two groups are in the same position.

Those who say that the Catholics are 'disqualified' for the office of President are employing the method that is used against the Jews wherever Jews are discriminated against. In this case the same thing was done. Mr. Chas. Marshall, in his questions sought to establish the 'evidence' that a Catholic has a divided loyalty: the state and the church, and hence, being loyal to the Pope he cannot be loyal to the state. This resembles very much the complaint that the Jews have a divided loyalty: one to the country and one as a Jew. In both cases, Catholic and Jew, this complaint is due either to viciousness or to stupidity, or to both things."

The "Jewish Morning Journal" expresses itself thus:

"In a question of discrimination, of an effort to disqualify a certain group owing to their religious convictions, we Jews cannot remain indifferent. Under the law a Jew is only he a native citizen, can be eligible to the office of the Presidency of the United States. In practice, however, people are never as free from prejudice as the best law which they themselves create. Whenever a prominent Catholic comes up for discussion, there is talk about the influence of Rome and the power of the Pope. If a Jew should emerge in such a role the ignorant fanatic would be frightened by the alleged 'Elders of Zion' and many who know better would still entertain a fear of the 'danger' of the fictitious international Jewish conspiracy."

If there was any doubt before in the minds of American citizens, avers the "Day", regarding the wisdom of bestowing the highest office in the gift of the American Republic on a Catholic, those doubts must have been effectively dissipated by Governor Smith's utterance.

"The Jews of America always felt," the paper says, "that Smith is an upright, loyal American in whom his religious faith could only serve as a ground for greater tolerance rather than oppression of other religions.

UNITED JEWISH CAMPAIGN TO END IN FEW WEEKS; NEARS $25,000,000 GOAL

Within the next few weeks the United Jewish Campaign for $25,000,000 is expected to be completed, according to an announcement made today by David A. Brown, national chairman of the campaign, at the headquarters in New York.

The United Jewish Campaign while formally launched in the fall of 1925, actually got under way with the first of its community drives in the winter of 1926. In the year that has elapsed, more than 2,500 communities have participated through local and sectional drives, and it is expected that when the campaign is concluded every town of 5,000 population or more in the United States will have taken part in the effort. Reports returned to the national headquarters to date show approximately $20,000,000 pledged thus far.

The state quotas toward the fund were allocated to meet the original objective of $15,000,000 set for the United Jewish Campaign at its launching. Subsequently it was adjudged necessary to increase the goal to $25,000,000 if the relief and reconstruction operations to which the Joint Distribution Committee was committed were to be carried out on an adequate scale. While state quotas were not increased, the difference in the national objective is being made by maximum returns from all the states, and in numerous instances, by oversubscriptions of the quotas formally assigned.

Among the states that have exceeded their assigned quotas, according to Mr. Brown's report, are Alabama, Arkansas, Indiana, Kentucky, Mississippi, Michigan, Ohio, Oklahoma, Oregon, Texas, and Washington.

New York City and Chicago, which were assigned quotas independent of their states, both achieved record-breaking over-subscriptions. Among other large cities which exceeded their quotas are Philadelphia and Pittsburgh, Penn.; Cleveland, Cincinnati, Columbus, Dayton, Akron, and Toledo, Ohio; Rochester, Syracuse and Albany, N. Y.; Trenton, N. J.; Louisville, Ky.; Indianapolis, Ind.; Detroit, Mich.; Portland, Ore.; Nashville and Memphis, Tenn.; Dallas, Ft. Worth, and Houston, Tex.; New Haven, Conn.; Birmingham, Ala.; Little Rock, Ark.; Springfield and Peoria, Ill., and Montreal, Canada.

Smith's declaration is to us but a substantiation of what we knew and felt before.

"It is in the interests of all Americans and particularly of the Jewish citizens that religious fanaticism should disappear as soon as possible, and since Governor Smith's reply is an important step in this direction it must be welcomed not only as a significant document which will surely figure in the next Presidential campaign, but also as a remarkable manifestation in the inter-relations between all the religious groups in America."

DR. HERRING EXPLAINS COUNCIL'S ATTITUDE TOWARD BUDAPEST MISSIONARY CONGRESS

(Communication to the Editor)

Following is the cablegram recently sent to Dr. John C. Chabot, chairman of the World Missionary Congress at Budapest:

"In line with our recent conference we sincerely hope you will recommend that the Congress issue a call to Christians everywhere to purge the world of the curse of anti-Semitism and accord to the Jews the respected place in the brotherhood of peoples which they richly deserve on the basis of their sacred literature and history, and which is their inalienable right. We further hope that the Congress will express disapproval of any enterprise that utilizes or implies patronage, majority pressure or disrespect for a brother's faith."

The bearing of this cablegram on the missionary activity known as Hebrew-Christian Missions is obvious.

I wish to call your readers particular attention to the closing line, "We further hope that the Congress will express disapproval of any enterprise that utilizes or implies patronage, majority pressure, or disrespect for a brother's faith." Your readers will observe that there are three things against which we are protesting: patronage, majority pressure, and disrespect for a brother's faith. These three things constitute our objection to many traditional efforts to press Christianity upon Jews.

The recent story in the "Jewish Daily Bulletin" may perhaps need a word of clarification. The "Bulletin" story is correct in stating that several American Protestant delegates are attending the Budapest Congress, but they are doing so in a semi-official capacity, as members of the Home Missions Council, a National Protestant missionary organization. The Federal Council of the Churches of Christ of the Budapest Congress, but has aided the Congress to the extent of helping the said Congress to secure a few American delegates. The Budapest Congress was from abroad. Also, it ought to be said that there is no responsibility, either direct or indirect, resting upon the Committee on Goodwill Between Jews and Christians or the Federal Council, for the Budapest Congress. The Committee on Goodwill is cooperating with Jewish organizations on a strictly non-partisan basis, and has observed both the letter and spirit of the agreement, with scrupulous care. The reason for the discussion that has taken place thus far lies in the fact that the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ of the Budapest Congress, of which the Committee on Goodwill Between Jews and Christians is a part, expects in the near future to establish organic connection with the General Missions Group. It is therefore obvious that neither the Committee on Goodwill, nor the Federal Council itself has had any say in how the Budapest Congress is run. The Jews of America are doubtless conscious that the historic belief that Christians are called upon to try to spread their religion is an obligation resting on the conscience of Orthodox Christendom. I assume there is no quarrel with those who are sincere and earnest expositors of their faith, and who are trying to do the best kind of an advantage over those whom they hope to persuade. As I understand Jewish-Christian relations, criticism has been mainly leveled against the attitudes and methods which are the subjects of our protest in the above cablegram.

The cooperative committees of the Federal Council and of National Jewish organizations have, because of the fact of history, agreed to a mutually respecting program, in which no attempt whatsoever, be it ever so fair, should be made to persuade members of an opposite group to change their faith.

I wish particularly to make it clear that there is no quarrel with those in this work who can tolerate for a moment the accusation that we are trying to develop goodwill as a smokescreen to conceal a design to convert and to undermine and to destroy the brotherhood of a cooperative and fraternal relationship, are in an exact sense, unique and sacred. We trust that any Jew who is betrayed by any act that betrays a trust or by any suspicion that may arise from a hasty judgment of the program. The best guarantee of the fairness of the program is the fact that it is in every sense mutually planned, directed and expanded according to the best

PRUSSIAN PREMIER DEFENDS HONOR OF JEWISH STATE OFFICIAL

(Jewish Telegraphic Agency Mail Service)

Berlin, Apr. 4.—The Prussian Premier, Herr Braun, defended in the Reichstag today, the honor of a Jewish State Official, Dr. Badt, Ministerial-Director and Prussian Representative to the Reichsrat, against whom one of the Nationalist Deputies, Dr. Frick, launched an attack last week.

At the session of the Reichstag held on March 21, the Premier said, Dr. Frick sneered at Dr. Badt, alleging that during the war he had gone about peddling old clothes and begging in Galicia and now he is the man who has to decide the future of Germans who had fought at the front. Dr. Badt, the Premier declared, was in the service of the Prussian State since 1908. As soon as the war broke out he went to the front and in the first month of the war he was wounded and decorated with the Iron Cross for valor on the field. His colonel had written to him expressing his appreciation of his great bravery and fearlessness in face of the enemy fire, during the battle on August 22nd and 23rd, 1914.

If Deputy Frick came across a man in Galicia named Badt, the Premier added, who peddled old clothes, he had no right to confuse this person with Ministerial Director Badt. The Government of Prussia wants emphatically and indignantly to repudiate the absurd allegations made by Dr. Frick against its authorized representative, the Premier declared.

Deputy Frick himself, it was pointed out, did not go to the front during the war.

A plan for consolidation of Temple Emanuel and Temple Beth-El, New York City, will be voted on by the trustees of both temples the latter part of April.

Under the plan the combined religious organization will be known as Temple Emanuel-El. The name Beth-El will be perpetuated by the Chapel Beth-El, which will be erected in connection with the new Temple Emanuel-El. The combined congregation will, under the proposals, occupy and make appropriate provision for the chapel at the intersection of Seventh-sixth Street and Fifth Avenue for two years. It will then move into the new Temple Emanuel-El, which will be built at a cost of between $2,000,000 and $3,000,000 at Fifth Avenue and Sixty-fifth Street on the site of the Vincent Astor residence.

One article of agreement provides that "the consolidated corporation shall give due consideration to and make appropriate provision for the rabbis of the constituent corporations, and shall in an equitable manner adjust any moral obligations incurred by them to their rabbis."

The present rabbis of Temple Emanuel-El are the Rev. Dr. Nathan Krass and the Rev. Dr. H. G. Easton. The present rabbi of Temple Beth-El is Rabbi Emeritus. The rabbi of Temple Beth-El are the Rev. Dr. Samuel Schulman and the Rev. Dr. Simon Cohen.

A meeting of the congregation of Temple Beth-El has been called by Ben Altheimer for April 27 to vote on the proposed merger. Louis Marshall, president of Temple Emanuel-El, has called a meeting of April 25 for the same purpose.

Secretary, Committee on Goodwill Between Jews and Christians of Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America.

collapse of the Ford case," asserted that Ford detectives had lined the corridors of the Federal building since the inception of the trial and frequently had been seen in conference with jurors, and stated also that twice Judge Raymond had received members of Ford counsel in his private chambers while Sapiro's counsel was excluded.

Mrs. William Hoffman, the eleventh juror to be chosen, was brought before Judge Raymond last night by George H. Beamer, Deputy United States Marshal, acting as chief officer of the court during the trial. She was interrogated by the Judge for forty-five minutes upon reports made to him by Ford counsel, who in turn had them from Ford detectives.

In explaining his refusal to agree to some other of Ford counsel continuing with the cross-examination of Sapiro, which Senator Reed had conducted fourteen days, Gallagher said to the court:

"We do not want the defense to have any pretense or claim that they were injured in the defense of this case through the untimely illness of Senator Reed. We prefer to have the case stand over until the man in charge of the matter may himself be upon the ground so there will be no alibi or excuse for the collapse of the defense just because the man in charge could not carry on."

C. B. Longley, head of legal counsel for the Ford Motor Company, objected strenuously to Gallagher's reference to "collapse of the defense," and the jury was hurriedly dismissed for continuation of the argument.

Longley contended for striking the objectionable phrase from the record and Gallagher said:

"Perhaps the defense cannot collapse, when it never has been maintained, so I may be wrong in that respect."

"Now if the Court please, as your Honor has no doubt been aware, as everybody else has been aware, since this case has been in progress, the intelligence department of the Ford Motor Company has been very greatly represented in the court room and the corridors of this building," resumed Gallagher. "They have had a large number of their representatives circulating not merely among the spectators but among the jury, and instances have been reported to us where these men were talking with the jury, whether to learn the jury's attitude or to influence the jury's attitude we don't know; but we do feel that it is the duty of the court to instruct the counsel for defendants that they instruct all of their detectives to scrupulously refrain from contact with these jurors, either for the purpose of demanding their state of mind or influencing their state of mind, in conversations with them. That is a matter that is nothing short of contempt of court."

Judge Raymond denied any misconduct on the court's part. As regards Gallagher's charge that Ford detectives

MICHELSON TO MAKE NEW TESTS OF LIGHT SPEED

"To test the Einstein theory, to measure the stars and to test the velocity of light. I've done them all, but I still keep on checking and trying to get more accurate results."

Describing his apparatus, he told of an arrangement of mirrors which will enable him to get results as satisfactory as those obtained over a much longer distance outdoor, such as the eighty-two miles distance which he used in his latest efforts at Mount Wilson.

"Considering the extraordinary accuracy obtained in the experiments of July, 1925, it is dubious whether results obtained with an increased distance, as I attempted to do this winter, can be better," he said. "There is always a little 'boiling' because of disturbance of the atmosphere, and the greater the distance the greater the disturbance."

"By using the pipe line, and with only a slightly modified arrangement of the mirrors, a sharp image can be obtained independent of weather conditions. If we can arrange for the loan of that much pipe, ten to twenty inches in diameter, the experiment will be undertaken shortly."

expelled from France at the request of the Czaristic government. When the Republic of Poland was resurrected, Perl, Pilsudski and other Polish labor leaders, returned to Poland and took an active part in the shaping of the policy of the Polish Socialist Party. He was editor-in-chief of the "Robotnik," the organ of the party. He had been a member of the Polish Sejm since 1919 and played an important part in the councils of the Polish Socialist Club.

With regard to the Jewish question in Poland, he subscribed to the assimilationist view and was opposed to the existence of separate Jewish parties.

The funeral of Dr. Felix Perl will take place Tuesday at the Warsaw Jewish cemetery.

A goal of $50,000 for the Camden, N. J., Jewish Community Chest drive was set by representatives of 18 Jewish welfare and social organizations in the city.

were meddling with the case in an effort to influence the jurors, Judge Raymond said:
