FORD CONSIDERED JEWS ESSENTIAL TO WORLD. J. A. PALMA EXPLAINS N. Y. Head of U. S. Secret Service Throws Light on Steps Leading to Ford's Recantation

An explanation of his part in bringing about Henry Ford's apology was given by Joseph A. Palma, head of the United States Secret Service in New York, in a statement to the press.

In his statement Mr. Palma said that it was he who gave Mr. Ford the first intimation that misstatements of fact were appearing in "The Dearborn Independent". The Secret Service man went to Ford to complain about errors that had appeared in another article, and during the conference mention was made of the anti-Jewish articles. The retraction of last week, the Palma statement says, was made "without thought of personal gain, politics or anything else except to right a wrong to the very best of his ability."

The statement in part read: "Several months ago 'The Dearborn Independent' published an article in which my department was interested. At my first opportunity I took this up with Harry Bennett, chief of the Ford secret service, whom I have known for a number of years, and called his attention to a number of inaccuracies. When I questioned him as to where he got such information, he made it very plain indeed that his department had had nothing to do with gathering it; that it had been handled entirely by the organization of 'The Independent'.

"I then asked him if the same thing was true in regard to the Jewish articles, and he said that it was; that the Ford secret service had had nothing to do with them. Then he further surprised me by saying that Mr. Ford was really an admirer of the Jews.

"He regards them as an essential people," he said.

"Subsequent to my talk with Bennett we called on Mr. Ford and took

OVER 100 DEAD IN PALESTINE EARTHQUAKE, TENTATIVE SURVEY SHOWS

Hebrew University and Jerusalem Public Buildings Damaged in Earthquake; Tel Aviv, Haifa and Tiberias Unaffected; Christian Holy Site Suffers Shock; Situation Not Alarming, Zionist Executive States

(Jewish Telegraphic Agency)

Jerusalem, July 12.—Over 100 persons were killed in Palestine cities and villages during the earthquake Monday afternoon, tentative figures published here indicate.

According to the list compiled 60 persons were killed in Nablus, 12 in Ramleh, 30 in Ludd (railway junction) and two in Jerusalem.

The Mosque of Omar, the Moslem shrine erected by the followers of Mohammed on the site of Solomon's Temple on Mount Moriah, was badly damaged by the shock, as was the government house on the Mount of Olives.

In addition to the dead in the cities, there were a number of casualties in the villages. No definite information as to the number has been ascertained.

Jerusalem, July 12.—The Institute of Jewish Studies, established through the generosity of American Jews, and the Department of Chemistry, suffered most when the Hebrew University buildings and the Government House

BRITAIN SHOULD PRESERVE PALESTINE ANTIQUITIES SAYS SIR FLINDERS PETRIE

Urges Creation of Palestine Museum to House Results of Excavations
(Jewish Telegraphic Agency)

London, July 12.—The creation of a Palestine museum to preserve the antiquities of the country is the obligation of the mandatory power in the opinion of Sir Flinders Petrie, famous British archaeologist who is advocating the idea of a Palestine Museum.

Writing today in the "Times", Sir Flinders Petrie urges the establishment of a Palestine museum in London. "Britain is responsible for the management of Palestine," he writes, "therefore it is under obligation to conserve its remains and history. There is not adequate spare space in the British Museum. The Palestine Exploration Society has a valuable collection in space incapable of receiving more. The important discoveries at Gerar by the expedition of the British School of Archaeology are now being shown at the London University. But the collection must be removed in a few weeks and it has nowhere to go.

"It is a thankless task for the excavators to struggle in their searches if the results of their investigations are not properly housed," Sir Flinders declares.

on the Mount of Olives were shaken during the earthquake yesterday afternoon.

The buildings of the two institutes of the Hebrew University were badly cracked and experimental machinery in the Chemistry department was destroyed. The damage to the Hebrew University was estimated at several thousand pounds.

Research work at the Hebrew University had to be discontinued due to the serious damage to the buildings and equipment. Dr. Judah L. Magnes, formerly of New York, who is dean of the University, announced today that the lectures will have to be continued until the end of the term in a hall in the city.

Semi-official figures made known this morning place the deaths in Jerusalem and vicinity at twenty-five. Reports received today from Tel-Aviv, Haifa and Tiberias confirm the previous messages that the cities were not affected by the shock.

The Jewish population does not seem to have suffered casualties.

(The Institute of Jewish Studies is conducted on the income of a $500,000 fund established by Felix M. Warburg and administered by the New York Community Trust. A fund of $250,000 was created by the late Sol Rosenbloom of Pittsburgh. Upon his death Mrs. Rosenbloom donated the amount of $500,000 to erect a building to house the Institute).

Jerusalem, July 12.—A scientific record of the earthquake which shook Palestine yesterday, made by a seismographic apparatus in Tel Aviv, shows that the quake moved from north to south.

This morning the Old City looked as if after a military siege. The streets were crowded, the people hesitating to enter the houses in fear of a recurrence of the quake and possible collapse caused by a weakening of the foundations of the houses. As the hours

BOSTON ADVOCATE LAUDS J. T. A. WORK

Praise for the work of the Jewish Telegraphic Agency is voiced by the Jewish Advocate of Boston in a recent editorial.

"The service the Agency renders is invaluable and cannot be over-estimated," the paper writes. It is a service important and vital—important, because it is the only medium throughout the world which secures and furnishes a daily record of the outstanding Jewish events and activities; vital, because through it the Jewish and Anglo-Jewish press are able to keep their readers informed of the progress of their people. Its service is unequalled, because it is the only way in which Jewish history is being written.

"The Jewish Telegraphic Agency maintains a staff of correspondents at all important news centers in this country as well as in Europe, who gather the news as fast as it happens. It is then relayed, as quickly as is possible, for publication. It is a recognized, laudable fact that their effort is absolutely impartial, that no opinion is vouchsafed, and that the news is neither colored or exaggerated; it is never sensational or vulgar to the slightest degree. The statements are entirely actual happenings. The Agency has no other purpose but to act as a news disseminating bureau, and its policy is to confine itself strictly and appropriately to this duty.

"Through the efforts of the Agency, news pertaining to Jewish religion, culture, philanthropy, learning, science, and music is spread throughout the world. We read of great Jewish leaders in art, science, and culture—we hear of the contributions some of our people are making towards the progress and enlightenment of the age—we know that perhaps through learning of their accomplishments, others may have an incentive and inspiration to lead them on also—and equally as important, the average layman—non-Jew as well as Jew—is given the opportunity to learn of all these activities.

"Jacob Landau, guiding spirit and managing director of the Jewish Telegraphic Agency, was recently honored at a dinner given him in New York on his return from Europe. We are glad to pay tribute to Mr. Landau also, and to the service which he represents. It is a distinct and definite service to Jewry!" the paper declares.

COMMUNICATION TO THE EDITOR

Sir: In your "Bulletin" of Tuesday, July 5th, there is an article headed "Baltimore to Raise $100,000 for Yeshiva," which appears to have been improperly reported, and I respectfully request that you make the following correction:

Mr. Harris L. Selig, Executive Director of the Yeshiva College Building Fund, requested me to act as Chairman of a committee to institute a campaign in aid of the Yeshiva College, which I declined to do, but the meeting was called at our office.

While a number of those present expressed themselves as favoring a campaign at a suitable time to aid in this worthy undertaking, no amount was pledged and nothing done to bind the people of Baltimore to raise any sum of money, nor did I consent to act as Chairman of any committee.

WILLIAM LEVY.

Baltimore, Md., July 10, 1927.

In many cases their stock-in-trade has been confiscated.

up with him the article in which I was interested. He promptly called in one of the editors of the magazine—he seemed to be much put out that more misinformation had been published—and told him that in the future nothing was to be printed unless the paper had full proof in its possession. "You know my policy is to print only the truth; that this paper is to be a medium of instruction and not of destruction," he said.

"After some further conversation, mention was made of the articles on the Jews. Mr. Ford said that for several months he had been making a quiet investigation and was really surprised at some of the statements that had been made in 'The Independent'. He said that he was for the Jew; that he had thousands of Jews in his employ, and that he would employ thousands of others if men of the right type and character could be found.

"The Jew is essential not only to America but to the world in general," he said.

"I wish this thing could be stopped and the wrong righted," he exclaimed.

"I was so pleased that I really was stunned, so cannot say whether Bennett or I made the suggestion that he take steps to stop it. I remember I promised to help him all I could.

"Go to it," he said. "I know you can do it. It's a fair and honorable thing to do. When my real views are explained to the proper people they will know that I'm prepared to act honorably in this matter, and that so far as I am able to repair any damage that has been done."

"With Mr. Ford's permission, we got in touch with Earl J. Davis. Mr. Davis was United States District Attorney in Detroit when I was stationed there; he was former Assistant Attorney General of the United States. Mr. Bennett and I called on Mr. Davis, and we had another meeting with Mr. Ford, wherein Mr. Ford expressed his sentiments and his wishes as he had to me.

"Mr. Davis and I came to New York. Knowing that George Nordlinger, deputy field chief of the Internal Revenue Department, had a large acquaintance with influential Jewish people, we took the matter up with him, and with him met Nathan D. Perlman, former Representative, who is connected with numerous influential Jewish organizations. He arranged a meeting with Louis Marshall, which was held a few days later, and the negotiations started. Several days later Mr. Ford's statement was prepared and signed and sent by air mail to Mr. Marshall after advising him by telephone that it had been mailed.

"There has been some comment on the fact that this retraction did not come until so late. Most people look on Mr. Ford merely as a builder of automobiles. But he has hundreds of other interests in addition to the motor cars; he is on the sea, in the

BUILDING IN JERUSALEM AND HAIFA INCREASES

(Jewish Telegraphic Agency Mail Service)

Jerusalem, July 5.—According to the Official Commercial Bulletin, 4,678 building permits were granted in Palestine in 1926 of a value of £E.112,241. Municipalities expended a further £E.217,528 on public works. The Government spent nearly £E.160,000 and the military forces £E.42,542 on construction and repairs.

In Jerusalem new buildings costing £E.393,449 were sanctioned, as compared with £E.226,936 in 1925, and in Haifa for £E.156,030, as compared with £E.111,100 in 1925.

ACHAD HA'AM MANUSCRIPTS TO HEBREW UNIVERSITY

(Jewish Telegraphic Agency Mail Service)

Jerusalem, July 5.—The manuscripts and letters of Achad Ha'am, the famous Hebrew philosopher and author who died at Tel-Aviv in January, have been handed over to the Jewish National and Hebrew University Library in accordance with his will. A large collection of his books has also been placed in the Library.

air, he's a miner, a glass manufacturer and at heart he's an inventor. He detaches himself from the world in his inventions. Therefore it is reasonable to believe that he did not give attention to what was going on in his paper. But when he did find out, he acted characteristically. I might say that he went all the way.

"I want to make it clear that the action he took was entirely of his own free will and accord. He did it without thought of personal gain, politics or anything else except to right a wrong to the very best of his ability.

"I want to say also that my part in this matter was merely that of a private citizen and a personal friend. I was in a position to be of service and I availed myself of the opportunity."

"The American Hebrew" will publish an article in its issue of July 15th, by E. G. Pipp, of Detroit, former editor of Ford's paper, which declares without equivocation that Ford knew of the articles and that they were printed to further his ambition to become President of the United States.

The alien population of the United States increased by 29,592 persons in May, the Immigration Service announced, this being a balance left by the departure of 23,126 alien residents and the admission of 52,718 as new-comers.

Mexico furnished 6,856 immigrants during May and Canada 5,259. Germany accounted for 4,944, the Irish Free State 3,534, Great Britain 2,659 and Italy 2,507.

LOUIS MARSHALL WARNS AGAINST EXAGGERATION IN FORD RECENTATION

Publicity Seekers Scored; Yiddish Press Supports Leader's Opinion

Criticism of certain Jewish individuals who rushed into print in the metropolitan press, commenting on the Ford apology and praising him, was expressed by Louis Marshall, president of the American Jewish Committee, according to interviews with him published in the "Jewish Morning Journal" and in the "Jewish Daily Forward."

"I cannot understand why some of our brethren go from one extreme to the other. Only last week Henry Ford was regarded by them as a Hamen and now they are almost willing to declare him a Mordecai," Mr. Marshall is quoted as saying.

Asked for his opinion as to the attempts at interpreting the motives of Henry Ford in making his public apology, Mr. Marshall refused to subscribe to any of the speculations put forward. "I am not a bit interested in what Mr. Ford's motives were. I view the facts only and the results as we have them before us. Whatever Mr. Ford's motives were or could have been, business, politics, sincere recantation or whatnot, he publicly recanted and that's all. Ford has done much damage to Jewry, particularly to the Jewish communities in Eastern Europe. His recantation will in a measure right the wrong and we can be satisfied with that."

The president of the American Jewish Committee, the interviewers report, warned against exaggerated expressions of felicity.

A similar view is taken by editorial writers in the Yiddish press. "The Day," in an editorial entitled: "Wanted—A Little Tact," takes to task certain Jewish leaders of Far Rockaway who invited Henry Ford to attend a banquet to be given in honor of Charles A. Levine and the East Side Chamber of Commerce, which announced it intends to arrange a "harmony meeting" at which Louis Marshall, Nathan Straus and Henry Ford are to be invited to speak. "There is a limit to every manifestation of joy and simple tact demands that the feelings over Ford's recantation should not assume the form of an hysterical outbreak," the paper writes.

The "Jewish Daily News," Orthodox organ, treats the subject similarly. The paper terms the invitations referred to as tactless and states: "Whatever their intention was, it is clear that they should not have done this. Ford said whatever he had to say and it is not proper that anyone should commit follies in connection with Ford's last step. Not everybody is obligated to deal with this subject. The entire matter ought to be left alone. There is no more Ford question, so far as public opinion is concerned. The Ford case is ended," the paper writes.

A group of relatives of Charles A. Levine, who expect to join him in Paris before the take-off of his prospective return flight across the Atlantic, sailed last night on the George Washington. They are Isaac Levine, his father; Mrs. Pauline Nova, his mother-in-law; and his two children, Phillip and Eloyse.

pass a calm atmosphere is returning to the "City of Peace."

A tentative survey made by government officials discloses the approximate extent of the damage. The Allenby bridge was damaged at both ends. The Greek Catholic Church of the Holy Sepulchre was declared unsafe because of the cracks in the walls. The roof of the Chemical Laboratory of the Hebrew University on the Mount of Olives collapsed.

The Government House located on the same Mount was badly damaged. The private rooms of the High Commissioner, Lord Plumer, and Lady Plumer, who are now on vacation in England, were wrecked. This building was also declared unsafe by the authorities.

The three women from India who were killed in the Palace Hotel at Jericho were identified today. They are the wife of Sir Said Abdul Raouf, her companion and the wife of Mohamed Massaan.

Jerusalem, July 12.—The earth tremor here yesterday afternoon lasted seven seconds. The building where the Zionist Executive is housed was one of the many in the Old City damaged. Many houses on the Mount of Olives collapsed. Four persons were killed.

Concurrent with the earthquake in Palestine severe tropical storms swept over European cities and earthquakes were felt in various parts of the world.

Tremblors were reported in Euroa, Victoria and in Cairo, Egypt. In London the storm interrupted traffic. Streets and tube stations were flooded and windows were broken by hailstones. Paris was almost flooded.

A cablegram received by the Zionist Organization of America from Col. Frederick H. Kisch, political representative of the Zionist Executive in Jerusalem, stated:

"Discount alarmist's report. Slight casualties. Some damages houses Old City, Bokhara quarter. Considerable damage to University buildings and equipment. Tel Aviv, Tiberias safe. Nothing serious."

A controversy between the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation, Adolph Zukor and Jesse L. Lasky, and the Federal Trade Commission has arisen.

In an order issued by the Trade Commission the film company is directed to revise its motion picture sales policy. The Commission charges that the practice of block-booking, whereby films are leased in a group and picture houses are required to take the entire group, led to a lessening of competition and restraint of trade.

Sir Joseph Duveen, noted Anglo-Jewish art collector, purchased for $500,000 (about $2,435,000) the famous collection of pictures belonging to Robert Henry Benson, trustee of the National Gallery for many years. The collection consists chiefly of early Italian paintings.

The Maccabee team of Palestine played in Chicago on Sunday before a crowd of 5,000 against the team of the Chicago I. S. F. A. The Chicago team was victorious, gaining 6 goals to the 3 of the Palestine players.
