

PALESTINE GOVERNMENT WARNS POPULATION AGAINST FEAR OF QUAKE RECURRENCE.

Declares No New Shocks To Be Feared; Report On Government Survey; Moslem Grand Mufti Appeals For Relief Fund.

(Jewish Telegraphic Agency)

Jerusalem, July 19 — An official statement warning the population against panic, was issued by the Palestine Government following the slight shock of Sunday.

The statement assured the population that according to seismological advice, no new shock is to be anticipated, as only a minor tremor is possible.

An appeal to Moslems throughout the world to create a Palestine relief fund was issued by the Grand Mufti, the ecclesiastical head of the Palestine Moslems.

The Grand Mufti's appeal fixes the amount of damage caused by the earthquake at £4,000,000. The damage in Nablus alone amounts of £1,000,000, the appeal states.

The Palestine Government, it was learned today, has informed the municipality of Tel-Aviv that it does not find it necessary to accept the offer of Tel-Aviv Jewish volunteers to clear the debris. The Government workers will be in a position to handle the situation, the Government stated.

Little damage was suffered by Government buildings. Buildings of antiquarian interest have escaped lightly. The gravest casualties and the greatest damage occurred in Nablus, Lydda, Ramleh and Jerusalem. The roads in Palestine suffered little damage.

In Trans-jordan, 62 persons were killed, while 102 were injured. The survey of the damage to houses has not been completed, but the effect of the shock has been most severe in Amman, the capital of Trans-jordan, and in several other towns.

CARDINAL BARLASSINA MAKES NEW ATTACK ON PALESTINE JEWS IN REPORT TO VATICAN

(Jewish Telegraphic Agency)

Rome, July 19 — A renewed attack on Zionist policies in Palestine was made by Cardinal Barlassina, the Papal representative in Jerusalem, in a report submitted to the Vatican, it was learned here today.

Cardinal Barlassina, in reporting conditions in Palestine, complains that "seldom were conditions so bitter as they are now". In proving this contention Cardinal Barlassina alleges that "Zionism makes life impossible; the Jews have driven away their former Arab laborers, replacing them with thousands of their coreligionists from Russia".

"Unless we give the poor Arabs land they will be compelled to abandon the country, thus augmenting the exodus of the Catholic population and helping the establishment of the Jews in the Holy Land", Cardinal Barlassina writes.

PALESTINE COMMUNITIES ORDINANCE PROMULGATED

One Community Principle Victorious Despite Opposition

(Jewish Telegraphic Agency)

Jerusalem, July 19. The principle of one united Jewish community in every Palestinian town, long contested, is laid down in the Palestine Communities Ordinance promulgated today by the Palestine government.

The ordinance provides for the creation of only one Jewish community in each place, but allows the formation of autonomous congregations with their own schechita supervision and their separate cemetery within the community. The ordinance also permits the secession of individual groups from the community.

The issue was contested by the Ultra-Orthodox group in Jerusalem under the leadership of the Agudath Israel. This group has been very active in this direction, having submitted complaints and demands to the various bodies and to the Permanent Mandates Commission of the League of Nations. At its last session, the Commission decided to reserve judgment until the Communities Ordinance is put into effect and is tried by experience.

Jerusalem, July 19 — (J. T. A.)

In connection with the promulgation of the Palestine Communities Ordinance, the British Colonial Office has suggested that the title of Vaad Leumi, National Council of Palestine Jews, should be changed to General Council of the Jews of Palestine.

The Vaad Leumi and the Zionist Executive have expressed themselves against the proposed change, declaring that the name National Council, has been in use for the last seven years, since the foundation of the Council.

ANTISEMITES BLAME JEWS FOR VIENNA RIOTS

Headquarters of Antisemitic Press Propaganda Demolished.

(Jewish Telegraphic Agency)

Vienna, July 19 — The headquarters of the Vienna Antisemites, where the printing presses turned out the great volume of Antisemitic literature, was demolished, as was also the Vienna Post Office, in the riots during which 126 people were killed and thousands were wounded.

A perusal of the list of casualties shows that less than 3 percent. of the killed and wounded are Jews, who were the accidental victims of the riots.

Notwithstanding the fact that the attack on the buildings was carried out by a Christian mob, Antisemitic newspapers now raise the cry that it was "the work of the Jews".

Complete quiet prevails in the city today. Authorities give assurance that the riots will not reoccur.

RUSSIAN JEWS FIND SERIOUS PROBLEM IN LACK OF MEDICAL ASSISTANCE SAYS BROWN

Joint Distribution Committee Promotes Establishment of Relief Agencies for Health Work Among "Declassed": Brown Urges Continuation of Vital Work

Lack of adequate medical aid is one of the acute problems of the Jews in Russia, says a report issued by the headquarters of the United Jewish Campaign.

Since Jews, under the traditional restrictions in pre-war Russia, had to seek their livelihood in largest numbers in trading and peddling, they now make up the largest proportion of the "declassified" in the new Russia. They are automatically denied the prerogatives of the accepted citizen classes, such as access to hospitals and other public health and social institutions at a time, when illness is widespread and lowered vitality among the people has resulted in greater susceptibility to diseases of all sorts.

The manner in which the disqualified urban Jewry is endeavoring to devise ways of meeting this need in some sort by creating such means of its own as it can, is shown in the rapid increase in the number of Jewish "social relief societies" existing for the support of hospitals and dispensaries. According to Dr. Zinoviy M. Serebrianny, secretary of the Medical Commission of the Joint Distribution Committee in Russia, these organizations have grown from 3 societies in 1923 to 55 this year, functioning in the same number of towns which have a total Jewish population of 1,100,000 persons.

A report from Dr. Serebrianny setting forth the relation of these societies to the Jewish health situation in Russia was made public by David A. Brown, national chairman of the United Jewish Campaign.

On May 1, 1927, 36 of these societies were supporting 38 dispensaries and 4 hospitals, with a budget of 639,000 roubles ($319,950), an increase of 44 per cent over the 1926 budget of 358,000 roubles.

An average of 30 per cent of the total budget of these societies is furnished by the JDC Medical Commission, both in the form of maintenance funds and as one-time subventions for needed equipment and repair of buildings of the institutions. The remaining 70 per cent is raised from local sources, by means of membership contributions to the societies, special collections, subventions from credit societies, and fees paid for medical service of the institutions. A tabulation of the maintenance sources of the six strongest and most developed societies, those of Kiev, Ekaterinoslav, Odessa, Minsk, Gomel and Poltava, shows the proportion of such self-supporting income from the paid service of the institutions to range from 4 per cent in Ekaterinoslav to 32 per cent in Odessa.

Dr. Serebrianny points out that of the whole group of 55 "social relief" societies, 47 were organized by the initiative and with the aid of the JDC.

In this initiative, however, Russian

Jewry itself participates. The conductor of the entire J. D. C. medical program is in the hands of a committee of local Jewish medical men, all of them of eminent scientific standing, in charge respectively in the chief cities of the regions in which the work is being done. The committee includes Dr. Abraham Dramson, Leningrad; Dr. Serebrianny and Dr. Mark Gran, Moscow; Dr. Roseman, Odessa; Professor Sklovsky, Kiev; Dr. Chasin, Kherson; Dr. Kirzhner, Krivoy-Rog; Dr. Levin, Minsk; and Dr. Brois Chanvis, Ekaterinoslav, who is in charge of the work in the agricultural colonies. The annual budget of the J. D. C. for medical work in Russia, both urban and rural, is $200,000.

The capacity of the 38 dispensaries maintained jointly by the social relief societies and the J. D. C. is about 300,000 patients a year. In 1926, a total of 600,000 patients' visits is recorded and medicines given free of charge are measured in a total of 400,000 prescriptions. The four hospitals in 1926 ministered to more than 3,000 persons, with a total of more than 37,000 hospital days given for their care.

The best developed of these organizations are shown to have a large membership in their communities. The Kiev society has more than 4,500 members, that of Ekaterinoslav 2,600, Minsk 4,000, Odessa about 2,000.

Because of the limited funds at the disposal of the JDC Medical Commission, the growth of the societies, which means in the course of time an increase of local collections, brings with it the possibility of reduction and in some cases discontinuance of their subvention from the J. D. C., in order to make the funds thus released available for aid to societies in process of formation, or newly organized ones which in the initial stages require aid to the extent of 45-55 per cent of their budgets.

Mr. Brown cites the work of these societies, carrying on by volunteer devotion a tremendous and vital task in the life-and-death struggle of the Jews of the Russian cities, as one of the crucial instances of a hope implanted and a beginning of actual accomplishment which must not be suffered to lapse now in a moment when its first results give the spur to renewed initiative, and a first augury of really constructive possibilities.

"That minimum of funds must continue to be provided," he declared, "by every appeal that I can make to the Jews of America. We can only keep up the work if the support for which I have been asking from our leaders all over the country will be granted — if we can be assured of a sufficient turning in of funds in our pledge collections through the next immediate months to meet the appropriations scheduled for all the divisions of our

MANDATES COMMISSION REPORT ON PALESTINE RECEIVED BY STATE DEPT.

(Jewish Daily Bulletin)

Washington, D. C. July 19 — The British Government through its representative, Sir John Shuckburgh, at the recent session of the Permanent Mandates Commission of the League of Nations, took occasion to point out that the requirements for a Jewish National Home in Palestine do not apply to the Trans-Jordan area, and consequently a policy for the latter has been adopted similar to that applied in Iraq, rather than the policy adopted for the area east of the Jordan, according to a report received by the State Department here from Geneva.

In Trans-Jordania, special arrangements had been made on account of the engagements with the Arabs which had been entered into during the war, and that for this reason the policy of the mandatory in Trans-Jordania was somewhat similar to that adopted in Iraq.

The British representative also stated that as a result of the refusal of the Arabs to accept the policy set forth in the White Paper issued in 1922, it was eventually decided in Nov. 1923, after further offers had been made to the Arabs without success "to continue to carry on the administration on the existing lines".

Sir John Shuckburgh declared that the situation in Palestine had greatly improved in the course of the last few years. Doubtless there are still difficulties; they are due to the exceptional mixture of races and religious sects in Palestine and the importance of this country from the religious point of view to certain parties of people. The result is that incidents which in any other region would be insignificant, assume extraordinary proportions in Palestine and are abundantly commented upon by the press. Nevertheless, he thought that progress had been made and that the various groups, in particular the Jews and the Arabs, are gradually arriving at a kind of mutual tolerance.

Questions were asked by the Commission concerning the judicial organization in Trans-Jordania, the Jewish communities in Palestine, the utilization of State lands to establish Jewish settlements, the conditions of settlements, and the economic and financial crisis in Palestine in 1926 and 1927, which resulted in a considerable decrease of the immigration and an increase of Jewish emigration.

work in Europe. These "declassified" people are struggling to give themselves that merest physical succour in sickness which simple mercy, the merest decency, gives to anyone, the very lowest and neediest. Shall we "declass" them in their right to even that shall we "declass" them as claimants on our humanity?"

MUSSOLINI TREATS JEWS BETTER THAN PROTESTANTS, KLAN PAPER CRIES

(Jewish Daily Bulletin)

Washington, D. C., July 19 — "Il Duce lines up with Jewry" is the allegation made by the Fellowship Forum, said to be the Klan organ, in a despatch from Rome, quoting an interview with Dr. Angelo Sacerdoti, Chief Rabbi of Rome.

"Fascism's efforts towards approachment of the Italian state with the Catholic church have been accompanied by a spirit of tolerance toward all religious faiths, winning for it the wholehearted support of Italian Jewry," the Fellowship Forum quotes Dr. Sacerdoti.

"The march on Rome and the advent of Fascism, in no way injured the position of Jews in Italy. A vast majority of our coreligionists support enthusiastically Premier Mussolini's work of national restoration.

"The number of Jewish members of the Fascist party is quite large. Moreover, Fascism has consistently made its choices of men for important posts on the basis of ability and not of religious faith.

"During the early period—or violent period of Fascism—protestants were and are still being persecuted, but no representative of Italian Jewry and no Jewish institutions ever suffered pressure or violence. At the same time, 'according to Dr. Sacerdoti,' the Italian government has always accepted favorably requests of the Zionist organization. It was even represented by a special committee at the inauguration of the Hebrew University in Palestine in 1925."
