ROUMANIAN COUNCIL REJECTS JEWISH PLEA AGAINST CHANGE OF RELIGIOUS LAW

Prime Minister Maniu to Submit Bill to Vote in Parliament; Press Attacks Cabinet Stand

(Jewish Telegraphic Agency)

Bucharest, July 1—The petition submitted to the government by the Jewish parties opposing the contemplated bill to change the religious law, was rejected by the Cabinet Council. Prime Minister Maniu has decided to submit the bill for vote in Parliament.

The newspapers, "Adeverul" and "Dimineata," described the government action as a "moral impossibility" and ask why the government seeks to unnecessarily aggravate the Jewish population.

Dr. Haiman Filderman, president of the Union of Roumanian Jews, and Deputies Fisher and Berkowitz stated, in an interview granted them by the Minister of Religions, that the Jewish population will use all measures to fight this bill.

The change in the religious law would have an adverse effect on the status of the Jewish community in Roumania.

CALM PROCEEDINGS MARK ZIONIST CONVENTION IN SESSION AT DETROIT

Approaching Formation of Jewish Agency Overshadows All Other Issues; Morris Rothenberg and Judge Lewis Head Convention Praesidium; Labor Government Will Speed up Palestine Reconstruction, Sokolow Hopes; Jewish Unity Prime Motive in Zionist and Non-Zionist Cooperation, President of Hebrew Union College Tells Convention

(Jewish Daily Bulletin)

Detroit, Mich., July 1—American Zionism has sailed into calmer waters, with no stirring issues or political controversies in sight, it appeared from the proceedings of the first two sessions of the thirty-second annual convention of the Zionist Organization of America, which opened Sunday afternoon at the Cass Theatre here. Three hundred and fifty delegates, mainly from mid-western cities, are in attendance. In contrast to previous years, Hadassah, women's Zionist organization, is represented by no more than ten delegates. The opposition group, which was responsible for the bitter fight at the last convention in Pittsburgh, was absent.

Two issues which seemingly aroused some interest among the delegates concerned the demand voiced that American Zionists be secured with a larger representation on the Council of the Jewish Agency than is at present contemplated under the Congress distribution key. The second issue, which has already been squelched, was a demand to nullify the result of the popular Congress delegates elections, held for the first time in the history of Zionism in the United States. This question was taken up at Saturday night's session of the National Executive Committee, presided over by Elihu Stone.

Delegates from New England asserted that among the names placed on the administration ticket by the Hadassah were several young girls recently graduated from high school. A proposal was put forward that the result of the elections be declared illegal.

The entire reserve of flour was mobilized and local cooperatives are providing the victims with bread. The government has rushed relief to the scene.

legal and that the slate be resubmitted to the convention which may, as the supreme body, vote again to select from the entire list the twenty Congress delegates to which the Zionist Organization of America is entitled. This proposal was defeated.

Will Ask More Representation for U. S. Zionists on Agency

CENTRAL CONFERENCE OF RABBIS ENDORSES EX- TENDED JEWISH AGENCY

Unreserved Support Pledged; Vote to Revise Prayer Book

(Jewish Daily Bulletin)

Detroit, Mich., July 1—Unreserved endorsement of the Jewish Agency was voted at Sunday's session of the fortieth annual convention of the Central Conference of American Rabbis, meeting at Temple Beth-El here. The Committee on the president's message unanimously went on record favoring the recommendation for the endorsement of the Agency but removed from the adopted resolution that part of the president's message which favored approval of the Agency with the understanding that it be free from political entanglements.

The conference also went on record favoring a revision of the prayerbook in use at present by more than 400 Reform congregations in this country. The resolution calls for a thorough revision of the prayerbook and for such studies as will facilitate the revisions. Dr. David Philipson of Cincinnati, Dr. Edgar F. Magnin of Los Angeles and Dr. Abba Hillel Silver of Cleveland took up the fight against a drastic change in the prayerbook. Rabbi Samuel Goldenson of Pittsburgh and Rabbi James G. Heller of Cincinnati supported the resolution which was adopted.

Rabbi David Lefkowitz of Dallas, Texas, was elected president of the Central Conference of American Rabbis. Rabbi Morris Newfield of Birmingham, Alabama, vice-president, Rabbi Felix A. Levy of Chicago, treasurer, Rabbi James Heller of Cincinnati, corresponding secretary, and Rabbi Isaac E. Marcuson of Macon, Ga., recording secretary.

A report filed with the Conference contained a recommendation of the Social Justice Committee, of which Rabbi Edward L. Israel of Baltimore is chairman, that birth control be recognized as a method of coping with social problems. It was recommended to the conference that the question of control of parenthood be made the subject of papers to be discussed at future conferences.

That the Reform rabbi has come in for a great deal of criticism from the laity was pointed out. The reasons were given by Dr. David Philipson to be the turning by certain rabbis of their pulpits into book reviewing agencies, while other Reform Jews objected to the discussion of popular plays from the pulpit.

Eight former presidents of the Conference in their addresses pleaded for a more dignified pulpit and called on the rabbis to devote their activities to matters Jewish. The former presidents were Rabbi Joseph Stolz, Rabbi Joseph Silverman, Dr. Philipson, Rabbi Edwin Calisch, Rabbi William Rosenau, Rabbi Leo M. Franklin, Rabbi Abram Simon and Rabbi Louis Wolsey. Dr. Silverman declared that many Reform rabbis have strayed afar from the objects of their organization in taking part in political and industrial affairs. Declaring that the rabbi's place is in the pulpit and religious school and not in the shop and coal mine to solve labor disputes, Dr. Silverman said that rabbis "have fallen into the devious and evil ways of the Council of Churches of Christ," and have emulated them to the rabbis' detriment.

Dr. Rosenau joined with Dr. Silverman in insisting that as rabbis they should stress things that are Jewishly relevant and that un-Jewish things should be removed. The good-will movement had its beginning in his administration, Dr. Franklin recalled, and it developed during the administration of Dr. Simon as president of the Central Conference.

The Hebrew Union College Alumni Association held its annual meeting Saturday evening.

(Jewish Telegraphic Agency)

Jerusalem, July 1—A sentence of seven days in jail and the forfeiting of fourteen days pay was imposed upon an Arab police officer. The punishment was imposed because the officer was absent from his post without leave during the preparations for an anti-Jewish demonstration in Jaffa.

It was said that his absence clearly indicated his intention to participate in the demonstration while armed.

COMMUNICATION TO THE EDITOR

Dear Sir:

I notice that in your report in your issue of June 5th of the Berlin meeting of the Zionist General Council, it is stated that "the majority of the members of the General Council expressed appreciation of the masterly work of the Marshall document," the reference being to the draft constitution of the Jewish Agency.

I think it is right that I should point out that, as a matter of fact, the document in question was not drafted in New York, but in London, and that its author was not Mr. Marshall, but myself. I feel sure that Mr. Marshall would be the first to agree that the draft constitution was incorrectly described as "the Marshall document," and that the credit for its drafting should be given where it is due.

Yours faithfully,

LEONARD STEIN.

400,000 JEWS IN THE UKRAINE REQUIRE MEANS OF EARNING LIVELIHOOD

One Fourth of Jewish Population in Need; 122,000 Entirely Deceased
(Jewish Telegraphic Agency)

Moscow, July 1—Approximately 400,000 Jews in the Ukraine are in need of a means of livelihood, declared the "Emes," Communist Yiddish daily, in discussing the five year plan for economic work in Jewish centers. This number constitutes one-quarter of the total Jewish population in the Ukraine, 122,000 being entirely deceased. Some among the rest are employed as artisans, many are unemployed and without a definite trade.

Before 1933, it is expected that Jewish employees in government enterprises will have dwindled to 10%, leading to an increase in Jewish unemployment, the paper states.

the National Conference of Jewish Social Service held in Atlantic City in the early part of June, Dr. Bogen was elected president of that body.

His first post in 1894 was as instructor in the Baron de Hirsch Trade School, New York. In 1896 he became a teacher in the Hebrew Technical Institute and in 1900 was named principal of the Baron de Hirsch Agricultural School at Woodbine, N. J.

It was during his activities there that he succeeded in persuading the New Jersey State Legislature to recognize Woodbine as a municipality. Four years later, he was named Executive Director of the Federation of Jewish Charities of Cincinnati. Subsequently he was field secretary of the National Conference of Jewish Social Service, until his entry into the J.D.C. relief work in 1917.

On his return to America in 1924 he became Executive Director of the Los Angeles Federation of Jewish Charities, where he served for three years before assuming the post of Executive Secretary of the Independent Order B'nai B'rith.

The degree of Doctor of Hebrew Law was conferred upon Dr. Bogen three years ago by the Hebrew Union College in recognition of his social service work.

Dr. Bogen was born in Russia in 1869, the son of David and Leah Bogen. His parents came to the United States when he was still a child. He attended the University of New York, majoring in pedagogy. In 1890 he married Miss Elizabeth Scholtz. Dr. Bogen is survived by his widow and six children.

Felix M. Warburg, Chairman of the American Jewish Joint Distribution Committee, in a statement declared: "It seems incredible that his wonderfully useful life has come to such an untimely close. There were so many things he wanted to do. I feel his going as the sad loss of one of my warmest personal friends. Jewry is deprived of one of the most courageous, self-sacrificing and understanding pioneers not only in organized charity, but in the relief work in which he achieved such extraordinary success. He was an inspiration to many, and surely to me. We will miss his ever cheerful counsel and friendship."

A statement issued by the Joint Distribution Committee read: "The officers and members of the Joint Distribution Committee learn with profound grief of the sudden death of our good friend and associate, Dr. Bogen who, since the inception of our relief activities abroad and as one of the pioneers of this work, has given so liberally of himself to the cause of our unfortunate people abroad. His rare courage and devotion and self-sacrificing during the most difficult and hazardous era of the activities of this Committee constitute an outstanding record in the history of American Jewry's relief activities overseas."

His loss will be mourned not only by his co-workers in the Joint Distri-

CALM PROCEEDINGS MARK ZIONIST CONVENTION IN SESSIONS AT DETROIT

Council to consist of 220, American Zionists will be entitled to only 16. This may cause a lack of balance in the general American representation and create possibilities of friction. American non-Zionists are likewise concerned that the American Zionist representation be allocated in adequate measure, so that the fund raising responsibility may be evenly distributed.

With regard to the general situation, Mr. Rothenberg reported that on almost all points agreement has been reached with the exception of the manner of dissolution of the Jewish Agency in case this question arises, and on the composition of the Zionist Executive in Palestine. The essential point is that during the negotiations American non-Zionists displayed a spirit of cooperation and willingness to help put the Agency in final shape.

Discussion on readjusting the Zionist movement to the new conditions when the Agency begins to function was raised by Dr. A. Coranik and Abraham Goldberg. There are no issues before the convention, the delegates complain, said Dr. Coranik, but the real issue now has an opportunity to be considered and decided upon—the issue of Zionism. The Agency formation creates in the movement a mood which is both optimistic and pessimistic, optimists believing superficially that the task is becoming easier and there is no further need for the Zionist Organization to work energetically or even to exist. This optimism causes, in thinking Zionist circles, a discouraging pessimism, since it indicates that the union between Zionists and non-Zionists may lead to Zionists assuming the point of view of the non-Zionists. The deepening of Zionist ideology now has an unprecedented opportunity, which is likewise the greatest need of the hour, he said.

Dr. I. M. Rubinow reported on administrative economies attempted during the past year. The Zionist Organization is still laboring under a deficit. Financial reform to eliminate deficits, in order to provide for a normal conduct of the work and its expansion is urgently needed. This may be effected by increased membership dues, a recommendation which will be submitted to the convention.

The leadership of the convention was constituted by the election of a presidium of six consisting of Morris Rothenberg, Judge William Lewis, Max Shulman of Chicago, Elihu D. Stone of Boston, Mrs. Archibald Silverman and Mrs. Robert Szold. Secretaries chosen were Dr. S. Marzoshes, Yiddish; Ephraim Lisicki, Hebrew and Philip Slomowitz, English. Colonel Benjamin Everts, Holyoke, Mass., was named chairman of the Committee on Committees and Moses Slonim, St. Louis, chairman, Credentials Committee.

Dr. Morgenstern States Attitude of Hebrew Union College

The peaceful atmosphere prevailing among the delegates is best indicated by the decision of the convention directing the Credentials Committee to recognize United Palestine Appeal delegates as full-fledged delegates to the convention. Another sign of the times was seen in the presence on the platform of Dr. Julian Morgenstern, president of the Hebrew Union College, who, in addressing the convention, explained the reasons for the action of the College in conferring the degree of Doctor of Hebrew Law on Dr. Chaim Weizmann recently. Zionists generally, he stated, had an exaggerated notion that the College was a seat of rabid anti-Zionism or, at least, that Zionist doctrines or ideals were taboo there. That this is not so is best evidenced by the fact that Dr. Magnes and Dr. Abba Hillel Silver are Hebrew Union College graduates. He added, however, that the recent action does not indicate and should not be interpreted that the College has changed its position.

The honor conferred on Dr. Weizmann was due to a desire to confer on him recognition for his work in promoting Jewish unity through the consummation of the Jewish Agency extension, in which he and Mr. Marshall had the leading roles. The College conferred a similar honor on Mr. Marshall ten years ago.

On the motion of Judge Lewis, who informed the delegates that the Central Conference of American Rabbis in session here had just adopted a warm resolution endorsing the Jewish Agency, the delegates decided to send a message of greetings to the Rabbis' conference.

The convention heard greetings from President Hoover who, in a letter to Philip Slomowitz, chairman of the Detroit Zionist District, stated: "I pray that their deliberations may be, as always, richly fruitful in that spiritual wisdom for which the Jewish race has been noteworthy in all ages."

Sokolow Greets Convention

Nahum Sokolow, president of the World Zionist Executive, who is a guest at the convention, welcomed the delegates in behalf of the Executive. The convention is meeting under influence of the fact that the Jewish Agency will soon come into existence. It is necessary, however, to abstain from exaggerating or belittling its importance. The Zionists will not only have to continue their work for their ideal, but will have to increase their activities and to strengthen their organization. The convention is in a peaceful and better mood because Palestine is in a more peaceful and better mood, he said. Mr. Sokolow expressed the hope that the new Labor cabinet in Great Britain "will now do more quickly what, in our opinion, the British government has done too slowly in Palestine in particular in regard to giving us more Crown land for Jewish colonization and creating for Jewish work greater facilities."

The absence, for the first time in thirty years, of Louis Lipsky, president of the Zionist Organization of America, was noted among the delegates. His message, written in Jerusalem before his departure for Switzerland was read to the convention by Rabbi James Heller of Cincinnati.

The proceedings were opened by Philip Slomowitz, who introduced Judge Vincent Brennan. Judge Brennan welcomed the delegates in behalf of Mayor Lodge. Charles Rubiner, Assistant Attorney General of Michigan, spoke on behalf of Governor Green. British Consul General in Detroit, John Cameron, addressed the delegates. Mrs. Robert Szold, acting president of Hadassah, welcomed the convention in behalf of the women's Zionist Organization. She expressed her regret that the Hadassah this year was not represented by a large number of delegates at the Zionist convention. This is due to the fact that the Hadassah convention, as decided, is to be held after the Congress.

Lipsky Message Read

In his message, Louis Lipsky, speaking of conditions that will face the Zionist Organization after the Agency is formed, declared "the achievement of Jewish unity with regard to Palestine will doubtless require thorough reconsideration of our methods of Zionist propaganda. It is plain that we should not be diverted to the intellectual pleasures of controversy. Our interest lies in winning for our ideals and principles, the understanding and cordial support of Jews who are not in agreement with us. We are not greatly interested merely in words and dogmas."

"The things that are to be done are a truer reflection of what may be going on in a man's mind, regardless of the words he may use. I venture to say that the day of acrimonious controversy, so far as Zionist aims are concerned, has come to an end. Such controversies at this time would lead us into blind alleys of partisanship and prejudice. They are of no practical value."

"New groups come to us with goodwill and in full accord with the chief objective of our movement. Let us meet them with the same goodwill and cordiality. We move into an era of peace and good-will. Let us make the most of it. But there are Zionists who fear that the new policy will somehow undermine the authority of the Zionist Organization. This fear is based upon the notion that the Zionist Organization is to cease to function as a corporate expression of Zionist aims and that the extended Jewish Agency is to take its place. This is an unfounded fear. A sharing of responsibility does not alter the Zionist Organization status. If anything, the acquisition of partners who are potentially capable of strengthening our position in Palestine will give added prestige and influence to the Zionist Organization both in Palestine and in Galuth," the president of the Zionist Organization of America declared.
