The measures are being taken because of the generally disturbed situation and in view of the Nazi attacks last year as Jews were leaving services on Kosh Hashonah.

Agent Denies M. Coty's Campaign Is Anti-Semitic

(Jewish Telegraphic Agency)

JOHANNESBURG—M. Emile Levy, Chevalier de la Legion d'Honneur, who describes himself as "the sole representative of the Coty products in this country," has written to the "Zionist Record" here that "the campaign engaged in by M. Coty in his paper is by no means an anti-Semitic campaign."

Criticism, he says, is being uttered against a certain group of international financiers, who, M. Coty feels, are a great deal to blame for the present economic situation throughout the world. The fact that in this criticism are included a few international Jewish bankers, does not mean that M. Coty is antagonistic to the Jewish people. On the contrary, a great number of people of the Jewish persuasion are associated

Anti-Religious Campaign Launched in Connection With High Holidays

To Form Brigades to Check Up on Ab- sentees During Holidays; Jewish Col- onists to Be Compelled to Work

(Jewish Telegraphic Agency)

MOSCOW, Sept. 5—An anti-religious holiday campaign is being organized in Soviet Russia today, three weeks before the Jewish High Holidays begin.

The "Emess" has issued a proclamation urging Jewish workers, whether they be artisans, colonists, employed in the factories or elsewhere, not to interrupt their labors on the Jewish New Year or on the Day of Atonement.

The paper calls upon the labor unions and the Association of the Godless to regulate the campaign to keep Jewish workers at their jobs during the holiday season.

A special consultation bureau will be opened at the offices of the "Emess" in connection with the anti-holiday campaign and also for the purpose of receiving complaints against organizations which refuse to take part in such a campaign.

According to the proclamation, Jewish Zionists will be compelled to join a special anti-religious march in which will participate all members of Jewish collectives, who will proceed to the city to sell their products in the collective markets, during the holiday season.

All co-operatives and artels as well as offices and factories will be controlled by brigades whose function it will be to establish who is absent from work either on the Jewish New Year or on the Day of Atonement. The entire campaign will be conducted under the slogan:

"Fight the Jewish Speculator! Fight the Middleman! Fight the Private Trader!"

Nazi Organs Link Walker With "Jewish Corruption"

(Jewish Telegraphic Agency)

BERLIN, Sept. 5—The resignation of James J. Walker as Mayor of New York City is the subject of jubilant comment in the Nazi press, led by "Der Angriff."

Brith Sholom and B'nai Brith Representatives Score Linking Of Immigrants with Crime

Criticize Byron Uhl, Assistant Commissioner of Immigration for Recent Charges

(Jewish Daily Bulletin)

Untermann, president of District Grand Lodge No. 3, B'nai Brith, both of whom reside in this city, severely condemn the recent remarks of Byron Uhl, assistant commissioner of immigration on Ellis Island, in which the latter linked immigrants with crime and racketeering.

"As the head of one of the great Jewish fraternal orders," said Mr. Kanengieser, "the bulk of whose membership is comprised of men and women born on foreign soil, I feel that Commissioner Uhl's statements linking our immigrant masses with crime and racketeering are totally without foundation and

Council of League of Nations Agrees on Conditions on Which Iraq May Be Admitted to League of Nations

By Our Jerusalem Correspondent

JERUSALEM—In view of the imminence of Iraq's admission to membership in the League of Nations, the conditions agreed upon by the Council of the League of Nations, on which Iraq may dispense with the mandates system and enter the League as a full member of the family of nations are of interest.

Iraq's change of status will be completed if and when the Iraq government accepts the Council's proposals, which were elaborated in consultation with the Iraq Prime Minister.

The declaration which was approved by the Council and which, if accepted by the government of Iraq becomes an international obligation that can only be changed by agreement between Iraq and the League, provides for the protection of minorities in Iraq on the lines of the minorities treaties and declarations that already bind a number of League members. There is special provision for the settlement of questions of family law and personal status for non-Moslem minorities in accordance with the customs and usages of the communities to which those minorities belong, and for the use of the Kurdish language as an official language in the Kurdish districts, and the recruitment of officials. A special article guarantees the freedom of conscience and worship and the free exercise of the religious, educational and medical activities of all religious missions, subject to the requirements of public order and morality.

The Council noted with satisfaction that "many of the constitutional and legislative provisions of Iraq are based on a very liberal conception of the rights to be accorded to racial, linguistic or religious minorities," and that the Government had explicitly and formally declared its intention "to pursue the liberal policy which has already been applied in relation to the Kurdish population and which ensures the latter's cooperation in the work of the Government and the general administration of the State."

Provisions of the Declaration

In order to give the new State time to frame its commercial policy and treaty relations, without incurring the risk of economic discrimination or pressure during the interim period, the declaration provides that:

(a) Iraq undertakes to grant most favored nation treatment to members of the League, subject to reciprocity, for ten years from the date of its admission to the League, but that

(b) Should measures taken by any League member, whether in force at this date or adopted subsequently, adversely affect Iraq's balance of trade by seriously affecting Iraq's chief exports, the

Boycott Agitation Against Jews Inaugurated in Belgium; Jews Severely Hit by Crisis

Thousands of Jews Unemployed as Jewelry and Diamond Polishing Business Forced Out of Existence

(Jewish Telegraphic Agency)

ANTWERP — Anti-Semitic agitators have posted bills in the streets of Antwerp calling upon the population to boycott Jewish businesses.

The agitation follows on the heels of the worst economic crisis in Belgian history, in which the Jewish population is particularly hard hit, since the Jews of Belgium have been almost entirely concentrated in two branches of industry—jewelry and diamond polishing.

Both of these branches have practically been forced out of existence by the crisis and thousands of Jews are now unemployed.

Owing to the serious general unemployment, the Jews are unable to obtain employment in other branches of industry.

Dinner to Honor De Haas On Sixtieth Birthday

The 60th birthday of Jacob de Haas, prominent figure in the American Zionist movement, and at one time secretary to Theodor Herzl, will be marked by Zionists of New York and vicinity at a dinner to be held at the Fifth Avenue Hotel on Wednesday evening, September 14, according to an announcement issued on behalf of the Committee sponsoring the celebration.

The Committee also made public a resolution of tribute to Mr. de Haas adopted by the New York Zionist Region, which reads as follows:

"The New York Zionist Region, availing itself of the opportunity of his sixtieth birthday, extends felicitations to Jacob de Haas and expresses appreciation for the many decades of service that he has rendered to the Zionist movement. Staunch exponent of our cause, Jacob de Haas has played a significant part in preserving the lustre and courage of Zionist ideals. The New York Zionist Region calls upon its members to join wholeheartedly in the dinner that is to be held on September 14 and thereby to convey to the guest of the occasion their esteem and gratitude."

The committee which is sponsoring the dinner in honor of Mr. de Haas includes Abraham Goldberg, Mrs. Edward Jacobs, Judge Julian W. Mack, Morris Margulies, Bernard G. Richards, Louis P. Rucker, Morris Rothenberg, Nelson Ruttenberg, Carl Sherman and Robert Szold.

should be combated effectively.

"The Wickersham Commission proved that in proportion to their number, aliens commit less crimes than native-born whites. This should silence Mr. Uhl. Nor is it necessary for me to cite those manifold accomplishments of our foreign-born to prove that they have been and are, among our finest citizenry.

"We are most familiar, of course, with our Jewish immigrant masses, and we know how hard they toiled and the privations they suffered to develop themselves and their families—not to become the criminals and racketeers of today—but the backbone in business and professionally, of this nation, which up to a short time ago held a beckoning hand to all of them.

"Let Mr. Uhl and others who look down upon our immigrant masses confine themselves to a more liberal interpretation of present-day immigration laws, which frequently work such hardship. I have only to cite the case of the youthful Rabbi Solowitchik, who was almost barred several days ago when trying to enter this country, to prove my point."

Mr. Untermyer asserted that he regarded such statements from a government official as "a direct slap at millions of decent, law-abiding citizens who found this nation a haven of refuge." "Why single out the bad when there are so many good?" he asked.

"B'nai Brith, as the oldest of Jewish fraternal groups, certainly resents such provocative statements, especially when without foundation. We have many foreign-born citizens in our ranks, particularly here in the East, and we have no apologies to make for their conduct or loyalties."

with him in his enterprise. I would like to quote as an example that Coty's general manager in Paris is M. Raymond Greilsamer, who has just been made a Chevalier of the Legion of Honor of France, and is also connected with the Jewish Consistory of Paris. I also happen to know that quite a number of his employees and distributors throughout the world are of the Jewish persuasion.

"In conclusion," he adds, "I would like to add my personal opinion that if there were some Jews associated with the clique of international bankers, against whom allegations have been made by M. Coty, the action of such bankers should also be criticized by the large body of Jews throughout the world."

J. D. B. NEWS LETTER

Iraq Government could ask for immediate negotiations, and, if they failed to produce agreement within three months from the time the request was made, Iraq would be free from the obligation to accord most-favored-nation treatment.

(c) The obligation is not in any case to apply to facilities accorded by Iraq to adjacent countries to facilitate frontier traffic, or to those resulting from a customs union concluded by Iraq, nor to any special advantages in customs matters which Iraq may grant to goods produced or manufactured in Turkey or in any country whose territory was wholly included in the Ottoman Empire in Asia in 1914.

The declaration confirms the abolition of the system of capitulations that was inaugurated during the mandatory period, and maintains, for a period of ten years from the date of Iraq's admission to the League, the system by which the Iraq Government appoints a certain number of foreign jurists to hold posts in its judiciary. It is provided that these foreign jurists should be nine, and should be selected without distinction of nationality. In order to give moral backing to the demarches, the British Government is to undertake to secure the consent of the fourteen Powers concerned to the abrogation of their capitulatory rights, the Council recommending these Powers to renounce the rights in question.

The declaration provides for continuity in the treaty obligations of the new State, as well as in the legal rights of whatever nature acquired before the termination of the mandatory regime by individuals, associations or juridical persons and in all financial obligations.

Rights of League Members

Any member of the Council has the right to draw the latter's attention to any infraction or danger of infraction of any of the provisions regarding minorities, and the Council may thereupon take such measures and give such direction as it may deem proper and effective in the circumstances; any member of the Council may further refer to the International Court any dispute on a question of law or fact arising out of the minority provisions.

The minority declaration forms a separate chapter of the declaration, in ten articles.

Another chapter includes all the other matters, as well as the special article concerning the rights of religious missions. Any difference of opinion regarding the provisions of this chapter may be brought before the Council by any member of the League (including Iraq herself), and any dispute as to their interpretation or execution may be referred to the International Court.
