Jewish Tourists Narrowly Escape Arab Mob Attack In Transjordan

Twenty-eight Travelers Are Saved from Serious Injury and Escorted
Across Palestine Border

(Jewish Telegraphic Agency)

JERUSALEM, Sept. 19—A number of Jewish tourists narrowly escaped serious injury when they were attacked by an Arab mob upon arrival in Transjordan, according to a report appearing in the local press.

The travelers were stoned by the Arabs and ten out of the twenty-eight did sustain injuries. They were saved from serious consequences when the driver of the bus in which they were traveling succeeded in getting his motor started and speedily proceeded towards Amman where the tourists obtained ample government protection.

The Hebrew press devotes considerable space to the attack and indicates that quite obviously it had been planned for the visitors found themselves surrounded by hundreds of Arabs who appeared upon the scene suddenly when a shot was fired into the air upon their arrival.

From Amman the tourists were escorted by a police guard and were brought safely into Palestine territory. Most of the tourists were from Tel Aviv. Immediately upon their return they lodged a complaint with the High Commissioner.

Immigrant Movement to Spain Is Planned for Carpatho-Russian Jews

Settlement Possibilities Will Be Tried
Out and If Successful Will Be Furthered

(Jewish Telegraphic Agency)

PRAGUE, Sept. 19 — Five Jewish families from Carpatho-Russia have just emigrated to Spain where they hope to find the necessary means to settle.

The "Prager Tageblatt" discussing the movement of these families makes the statement that Spanish government officials have agreed to admit these immigrants by way of experiment and should their settlement prove satisfactory the possibility of admitting many other Jewish immigrants would be created.

Because of the difficult conditions under which Jews today exist in Carpatho-Russia, there are any number of Jewish families that are prepared to depart for Spain willing and ready to do the hardest labor in order to secure a livelihood.

DELEGATES TO 18th ANNUAL HADASSAH CONVENTION HEAR DR. YASSKY'S REPORT ON RECENT ACHIEVEMENTS IN PALESTINE

Professor Kaplan, Dr. Wise, Morris Rothenberg, Judge Mack, and Other Leaders Praise Efforts of Women's Zionist Organization
at Annual Sessions Concluding Today

The progress of Hadassah work in Palestine was fully reported upon and discussed at great length at the 18th Annual Convention of the women's Zionist organization of America, which opened Sunday morning at the Hotel Commodore.

At the same time Zionist leaders of all groups emphasized the far-reaching importance of Hadassah's efforts and praised those responsible for its achievements in Palestine.

Mrs. Edward Jacobs, National President of Hadassah, opened the convention in the presence of more than 1,500 women and in her report indicated what had been accomplished during the past twelve months.

"There is real hope," stated Mrs. Jacobs, "at last of having executed the first steps in erecting proper buildings and facilities in Jerusalem toward a Medical Center that shall be connected with the Hebrew University. The first unit, a maternity pavilion, will be made possible through the personal efforts of Dr. Nathan Ratnof, Chairman of the American Jewish Physicians' Committee."

Mrs. Jacobs also reported further progress with regard to the plans for hospital work outside of Jerusalem. The same program which was worked out for Tel Aviv has been worked out for Haifa, Mrs. Jacobs stated. The Kupat Holim Ammit (General Kupat Holim) operated for the benefit of the rural population initiated the year before has been well established during the last year and has a promising future.

A feature of the convention was a special luncheon during which a symposium on Jewish educational problems was carried out. One of the chief speakers at the luncheon was Dr. Mordecai M. Kaplan, head of the Society

Unite in Fight Against "Mushroom Synagogues"

(Jewish Daily Bulletin)

NEWARK, Sept. 19—A Vaad Ha'Kehillah or federation of local orthodox synagogues has been organized and its initial project is to awaken community sentiment against further inroads here by "mushroom synagogues."

The Vaad is comprised of thirty synagogues and its expressed purpose is to "effect unity among the orthodox element and to safeguard their interests." Gedaliah Convissor, local Hebrew educator, who is identified with the Agudath Israel Congregation, has already coined a slogan: "Don't Substitute the Dance Hall for the Synagogue."

Samuel Miller, president of the Vaad, declared: "Every year, about the time of the High Holy Days we are faced with the same evil. In the guise of satisfying public demand, mushroom places of worship spring up, urging the public to come to them, and our regular congregations, whose doors are open all year round and who maintain rabbis, cantors and other budgetary requirements, must suffer. We appeal to the public to attend the permanent edifices."

The Vaad also has delegated to itself power to endeavor settlement of disputes among individual Jews.

Connecticut Zionists

Form State Region

(Jewish Daily Bulletin)

NEW HAVEN, Sept. 19—The formation of a Connecticut Zionist Region, which will administer all Zionist affairs within the State, including membership and fund-raising activities, was decided upon at a conference at the Hotel Taft here, in which delegates representing twelve cities in Connecticut were present.

The guest speakers of the afternoon and morning sessions were Louis Lipsky, National Chairman of the American Palestine Campaign, and Morris Margulies, Secretary of the Administrative Committee of the Zionist Organization, who urged a more intensive membership activity. Mr. Lipsky discussed the Jewish situation in America which he regards as growing progressively worse. He contrasted it with the Jewish vitality and courage that is manifested in Palestine and declared that American Jews who associate themselves with the rebuilding of Palestine are restoring themselves intellectually and spiritually.

The following officers of the Region were elected: Abraham Goldstein, Hartford, President; Dr. Samuel Wurzel, Bridgeport, Vice-President; Samuel Umansky, Meriden, Treasurer; Manuel Sachs, New Haven, Secretary; Louis Linderman, New Haven, Chairman of Executive Committee; Rabbi Louis Greenberg, New Haven, Chairman of Cultural Committee; Samuel Roodner, S. Norwalk, Chairman for American Palestine Campaign; Harold Perry, Meriden, Chairman, Young Judea; Samuel Hoffenberg, Hartford, Chairman, National Fund.

21 Zionist Communities in Ohio Organize State Region

(Jewish Daily Bulletin)

CLEVELAND, Sept. 19—Representatives of twenty-one Jewish communities in Ohio yesterday participated in the first regional state convention held here at the Hotel Allerton and adopted measures which should considerably enhance the work of the Zionist groups in this state.

Rabbi James Heller of Cincinnati was elected Honorary President of the new Zionist body and Ezra Shapiro of this city, President. Dr. B. W. Abrams of Columbus and Oscar Altschuler were chosen vice-presidents with Herman Stein as treasurer and Isaac Carmel, Executive Secretary. The Committee consisting of 17 members and representing every district in Ohio, later decided that Mr. Carmel would direct the activities of the Zionist Region.

Morris Rothenberg, President of the Zionist Organization of America was the chief guest of the delegates at a banquet given during the course of the evening. Mr. Rothenberg took exception to the pessimistic tone used by some of the speakers and declared that there was no cause for pessimism. Pointing at length to the concrete achievements obtained in Palestine he stated that here too in the United States the trip he was just making confirmed his conviction that Zionist sentiment was as firm as ever. If there is any weakness to be deplored, he stated, it is in the organization.

Speakers at the opening session included Mayor Ray P. Miller of this city; George A. Klein, of the Cleveland Zionist District; Miss Dorothy Finkelstein and Mrs. Mary Simon of the Hadasah Organization and Mrs. M. Gardner of the Jewish National Fund. Others who participated actively in the proceedings of the Convention were Samuel Schmidt, Rabbi Lee J. Levinger, Rabbi Nowak, Rabbi Harry Davidowitz and Professor Sholom Maximov.

The closing banquet was attended by more than 500 guests and in the course of the evening a Golden Book certificate was presented to Counsellor William R. Hopkins, the only non-Jewish member of the local Zionist Organization, in recognition of his work for the movement.

J. George Freedman, of Jersey City, N. J., the new commander-in-chief of the Jewish War Veterans of the United States, has designated Harry J. Jacobs, well known insurance man of Newark, to serve as quartermaster-general, a position equivalent to national treasurer, during the ensuing year. Mr. Jacobs is treasurer of the Newark post of the Jewish veterans. Active in politics, he is president of the Democratic War Veterans Association in Newark.

With the co-operation of the Mizrahi and the Order Sons of Zion, a public memorial service was held Sunday in Newark, N. J., for the late Isidor Cohn, who was active in the Orthodox community for many years. Announcement was made that the deceased's memory will be perpetuated through a Hebrew library to be established by the Rabbi Meyer Isserman Synagogue.

Poale Zion-Zeire Zion Convention Adopts Plans For Intensive Cultural Effort

Members Will Be Urged to Assist
Local Labor and Socialist Movements

(Jewish Daily Bulletin)

BALTIMORE, Sept. 19—The convention of the Poale Zion-Zeire Zion concluded here yesterday at the Lord Baltimore Hotel after devoting much time and discussion to many vital problems relating to the efforts of the Zionist labor groups in Palestine, the work of the Party in this country and conditions of labor at large.

The delegates went on record favoring unemployment insurance, a five-day working week of six hours daily, old-age insurance and an elaborate program for federal and municipal public works to meet the unemployment situation. At the same time it was decided to lend support to the candidacy of Norman Thomas and James H. Maurer, the Socialist candidates for President and Vice-President.

The report of P. Gingold, regarding the work of the Jewish schools and the Jewish Teachers' Seminary of New York, and an address by Dr. Chaim Greenberg, editor of the Party's weekly organ, "Der Kemper," called forth heated debates regarding the cultural efforts now being made by the Zionist labor elements in this country. There was some criticism on the basis of Mr. Gingold's report and a demand for greater effort was voiced.

Among those who contributed to the discussion were Dr. Judah Kaufman and Professor Chaim Fineman, leading educators, who had spent considerable time in Palestine. Dr. Kaufman urged the creation of special schools to include general and Jewish secular education as well as the establishment of trade schools. Dr. Fineman dealt particularly with the movement of the Chalutzim and its furtherance in this country. I. Mereminsky and Golda Meyerson, two leading members of the Histadruth, the Palestine Federation of Labor, who are now on a visit to this country, also addressed the Convention.

Among other resolutions adopted one expressed appreciation of the co-operative efforts being made by Sir Arthur G. Wauchope, High Commissioner of Palestine, in the upbuilding of the country, and another urged greater activity in behalf of the Jewish National Fund.

Appreciation of the work done by Baruch Zuckerman during many years past was expressed in a special resolution on the occasion of his departure for Palestine where he is making his home.

Meyer L. Brown was reelected National Secretary and David Pincus, treasurer. A Central Committee of fifteen was also chosen.

Detroit Federation Head Warns Against Danger Threatening Social Service Standards

Kurt Peiser, Executive Director, Ex-presses Fear of Relief Effort Giving Concern Only to Food and Shelter

(Jewish Daily Bulletin)

DETROIT, Sept. 19—In an address for the Jewish Radio Forum, over Station WMBC, yesterday, Kurt Peiser, executive director of the Jewish Welfare Federation, sounded a warning against the endangering of social service standards as a result of "a wave of relief-consciousness going through our groups."

Reviewing existing conditions in social service agencies, Mr. Peiser expressed opposition to the establishment of public soup kitchens and urged that as long as it is possible no kitchens should be established "if we wish to assist people in keeping a high morale during these trying times."

Discussing the manner in which the Detroit Department of Public Welfare co-operated with the Detroit Federation and prevented the so-called "cafeteria or soup kitchen" from being established in the Jewish districts, Mr. Peiser said:

"A number of these kitchens have been started in the city but out of consideration for the higher standards employed in caring for Jews by Jewish family agencies, the Department of Public Welfare has permitted those Jewish families which come to them for relief to receive assistance from them on a food check basis as heretofore. The Department, however, promised that should it become necessary to establish a kitchen, the dietary laws would be observed. Those in charge agree with us that as long as it is possible no kitchen should be established in the city if we wish to assist people in keeping a high morale during these trying days."

Continuing, Mr. Peiser sounded the following note of warning against endangering existing agencies as a result of the relief-consciousness of Jewish groups:

"May I sound a note of warning at this time. There is a wave of relief-consciousness sweeping our groups. This endangers the standards of social service of all of our institutions, a work which has been built up over a period of years. Can we afford merely to undertake the feeding and sheltering of people without thinking of their leisure hours and expect that over a period of time the net product will be an asset to our citizenry."

"Our recreational center, our educational departments, our personal service workers; all those social service functions included in our general social service program, rounded in order to improve living conditions and the standards of life for those in our charge, must be maintained at the highest level possible under these distressing conditions. While we think in

Latvian Government To Curtail Support To Jewish Schools

Pupils Leaving Jewish Schools for Latvian Institutions, Education Minister Declares in Effort to Justify Move

(Jewish Telegraphic Agency)

RIGA, Sept. 19—Concern has been aroused in local Jewish circles by the indication on the part of the Minister of Education that the government support now being allowed to Jewish schools will be curtailed.

The government tried to find justification for this move in the declaration that a number of Jewish pupils have left the Jewish schools more recently showing a preference for Latvian schools. In the face of this fact, the Minister of Education declares, an adjustment of the government's contribution to the Jewish schools is necessary since educational subsidies are granted to national minorities in proportion to the general population.

The Minister stated that while the matter had been discussed at recent sessions of the cabinet, no final decision had been made. Local Jewish organs discussing the situation point out that the attempt to curtail government support to the Jewish school would be contrary to present parliamentary legislation.

terms of feeding we must also think in terms of our souls and of what we shall do with the children who cannot possibly find their time occupied. Just this note of warning that our minds be not entirely occupied with a relief-consciousness."

Mr. Peiser does not predict a very bright future. "Even if by some miracle we were to get up tomorrow morning to find ourselves in a state of industrial and trade normalcy," he stated, "we in social work would continue to feel the after-effects of the depression for years to come."

"The prospects for the Jewish group that is potentially the concern of the Federation are not bright," he continued. "We must be aware of the steady squeezing out of the lower middle class, the small store and shopkeepers, the peddlers and the artisans, by the great mercantile houses and chain store combines. Apparently the tide of economic progress is against the small trader and independent shopkeeper—he is gradually undermined and left economically stranded; 'declassified' to use a phrase coined by the Soviet where this process has reached its tragic limits. And what about the sons and daughters of the immigrant Jewish parents who keep shy of the tailoring shop and clothing store and flock instead to the universities and thence into the liberal professions? Our young doctors, lawyers, dentists, and accountants are finding ever increasing difficulties in their respective for the Advancement of Judaism. Dr. Kaplan stressed the need for a Jewish adult education that must be nothing less than an adventure in nation building and he appealed to the American Jewish woman for her support.

"By helping her people to regain Palestine as a place in the sun," he said, "the Jewish woman will qualify herself to interpret Palestine as an idea or symbol of the regeneration of her people throughout the world.

"Zionism needs the Jewish woman," continued Dr. Kaplan, "if it is to carry out its purposes not only of redeeming Palestine but of regenerating the Jewish people. By learning to know and serve her people, the Jewish woman will make a place for herself where she will never have occasion to feel that she is an intruder, or that she is one of a limited quota — a feeling that no self-respecting Jewess can endure — but where her presence is greeted with acclaim and her interest with gratitude. Such is the redemption which Hadassah can bring to the Jewish womanhood of America."

Sunday evening the convention delegates were guests at a reception tendered them by the New York branch of Hadassah. The auditorium of Temple Rodeph Sholom where the reception took place was filled to capacity and Dr. Stephen S. Wise was the guest speaker.

Eloquently praising the "mighty achievement" of Hadassah, Dr. Wise, in the course of his address said, "this gathering of people betokened more than a meeting of Hadassah."

"This meeting," he said, "is a sign, a symbol of the awakening of the Jewish race. Although we may be loyal to our different viewpoints on liberalism or conservatism, we are all obsessed by a passion, an ideal, and that is, that the Jewish people shall live and that they shall once again live to bless the peoples of the earth.

"Zionism," continued Dr. Wise, "is one of the superior aims of Jewish life, ennobling the ideas of the Jewish people and one for which the Hadassah has rendered mighty service. Zionism is the greatest Jewish enterprise of the country and in its common enterprise it is an affirmation of the Jewish soul.

"Hadassah," Dr. Wise concluded, "has done the greatest Jewish work performed by any group in all Jewish history."

The Women's Branch of the Union of Jewish Orthodox Congregations, National Federation of the Temple Sisterhood of America, and the Stuyvesant

Group of the New York Branch of the Hadassah were among the organizations whose representatives pledged their support for the work of Hadassah.

Yesterday's sessions were chiefly devoted to the reports of Dr. Chaim Yassky, director of the Hadassah Medical Organization in Palestine.

"The importance of health welfare work is greater in Palestine than in any other country," Dr. Yassky declared. "This is due to the fact that immigrants come from all over the world and there is extraordinary difficulty encountered in their adaptation and adjustment because of the entirely different climatic and social conditions to which they have been subject.

"One must also bear in mind," Dr. Yassky stated, "that with the prevalent specific conditions of pioneering a normal development is not possible. We realized that the principal cause for the very bad hygienic conditions in Palestine was ignorance and that the best weapon for changing the conditions would naturally be health education. So health education became the axis of our welfare program."

Dealing with the problem of nutrition which proved to be a vital one, Dr. Yassky said:

"The nutrition department supervised the school luncheons of Hadassah which fed 3,600 children daily during the past year and there is undoubtedly a marked improvement. Although the scope of curative work was reduced to a certain extent, the preventive work was carried on intact along two main lines: the child hygiene program, including pre-natal care, outside obstetrical service, infant welfare work, pre-school and school hygiene, and health education; and a general program of prevention and combatting of infectious diseases, such as trachoma, and tuberculosis."

Another prominent speaker at yesterday's sessions was Israel B. Brodie, chairman of the American Economic Committee for Palestine.

Discussing the economic needs of Palestine, Mr. Brodie told the Hadassah delegates that there is great need of hastening and enlarging the stream of Jewish immigration to Palestine.

"Is it essential," Mr. Brodie said, "to populate Palestine within a comparatively short time with a preponderant body of manly self-supporting Jews who will develop into a homogeneous people with high Jewish ideals, so that they will ultimately become a self-governing commonwealth.

"A major problem in accelerating immigration to Palestine is that of providing immigrants with a means of being self-supporting. Capital for Palestine must continue to be provided in the main by the immigrating and non-immigrating investors.

"The New York and Tel Aviv 'Economic Bureau' facilitates business contact and is a service extended to those who wish information concerning the business possibilities of Palestine. For the present this service is extended free fields on account of competition and over-crowding. The university graduate, frequently with a degree of Doctor of Philosophy, who cannot make satisfactory economic adjustments, is even today a not unfamiliar figure to many of us."

"There is one silver lining in the clouds of the present depression. There is more intelligent thinking being done now on the subject of unemployment than ever before in the history of the country. We no longer regard it as a visitation from heaven. We no longer look upon the unemployed as shiftless, lazy vagabonds who are looking for a chance to escape work," Mr. Peiser stated.

of charge but it is to be hoped that eventually it will be put on a paying basis."

Last night Morris Rothenberg, President of the Zionist Organization of America, and Judge Julian W. Mack, were the chief speakers at a dinner given the delegates at the Commodore Hotel.

Messages of greeting were received by the Hadassah leaders while in session from Sir Arthur Grenfell Wauchope, Palestine High Commissioner; Nahum Sokolow, President of the Zionist World Organization; Acting Governor Herbert H. Lehman and the leaders of the National Council of Jewish Women, Young Judea and many other groups.
