PRESIDENT OF WARSAW DISCIPLINARY COURT REPLACED FOR FAVORITISM TO ANTI-SEMITES; STUDENT PROTEST DEMONSTRATION IN NEAR RIOT

Dismissed Because Student Participants in Anti-Semitic Excesses Escaped With Reprimands Only, While Jews Who Were the Victims Were Disciplined; Throng of Three Thousand Students and Sympathizers Demonstrates in Protest; Mounted Police Drive Into Demonstration, Seeking to Prevent Presentation of Resolution to Polish Consulate; Resolution Declares Polish Government Could Have Prevented Outbreaks If It Were Sincere; Set Precedent by Economic Discrimination

(Jewish Telegraphic Agency)

WARSAW, Dec. 22.—The president of the University Court was recalled from office by the Senate of the University of Warsaw because of the partiality evinced by him to the students on trial for attacking the Jews during the recent anti-Semitic excesses, the Yiddish press reports today.

Professor Waszutinski, the presiding officer recalled, showed his favoritism to such an extent that Jewish students who suffered at the hands of anti-Semites were expelled as disciplinary measures, while their attackers escaped with minor reprimands.

The dean of the Evangelical College of the University of Warsaw, a clerical, Bursz, was appointed to replace Waszutinski.

Subsidy to Jewish Schools in Tangiers Debated in Cortes; Supported by Minister

Objections Raised to Subventioning Jewish Schools While Other Religious Schools Excluded

(Jewish Telegraphic Agency)

MADRID, Dec. 22.—A heated debate developed in the Cortes last night in connection with the subvention to Jewish schools in Tangiers which the Minister of Education de los Rios included in his budget.

A priest Gomez Roji pointed out that since subsidies to religious schools are prohibited by constitution, no exception could be made for Jewish schools.

The Minister of Education defended the subsidy asserting that it is necessary for political reasons. The subvention aims to stimulate the Sephardi Jewish schools because they preserve Spanish traditions among emigrants. He also stated that the Jewish School subsidy is smaller than that allotted for Spanish institutions in Jerusalem which are also religious in character but maintained for political reasons.

The Yiddish press expresses the hope that Bursz will conduct the trials impartially and will not evince the provocative methods displayed by his predecessor.

A protest demonstration against the recent anti-Jewish excesses in Poland participated in by three thousand students of New York colleges yesterday afternoon ended in a near riot when mounted police sought to prevent the demonstrators from presenting a resolution of protest to the Polish Consulate in New York.

The melee occurred when mounted police drove into the crowd and sought to prevent their approach to the offices of the consulate. One of the marchers was arrested and a half dozen clubbed. The arrested man is James Strafino, a non-Jew, of 709 W. 176th street.

Participating in the demonstration were members of the Social Problems Clubs of City College, New York University, Columbia University, Hunter College, Long Island University, the National Student League, the Menorah Society and the Young Poale Zion Organization.

(Jewish Telegraphic Agency)

JERUSALEM, Dec. 22.—Two Jews were seriously injured and an Arab killed in the Pardess Hana colony near Hedera in a clash which ensued when Bedouins with their cattle invaded a field being ploughed by Jews.

The Jews, who were injured, sought to drive off the Bedouin trespassers. Thereupon the Bedouins attempted to attack the colony. The police arrived in time to disperse the mob.

The injured Jews were taken to a hospital.

Charge Discrimination Against American Jewish Students At Cologne University

Jewish Organizations Protest; Rectors Condemn Action

(Jewish Telegraphic Agency)

BERLIN, Dec. 22.—Discrimination is being practiced at the University of Cologne to prevent American Jewish students who have been enrolled at the University from taking their places in the class rooms, the Jewish Telegraphic Agency was informed yesterday by an authoritative Jewish source.

American Jewish students were permitted to enroll at the University for this semester's work since the rector of the institution has no legal authority to bar them. The University head, however, informed all professors and lecturers that all American Jewish students arriving to take their places in the class rooms were to be told that there was no room left. This order was carried out at the beginning of the college term.

Cognizance of this state of affairs was taken at a recent conference of German University Rectors held in Berlin which condemned the action of the Cologne University authorities.

Wauchope Says British Consuls Abroad May Issue Palestine Visas at Discretion

Explains They Have Been Given Wide Powers of Discretion in Regard to Tourist Visas

(Jewish Telegraphic Agency)

JERUSALEM, Dec. 22.—British consuls in Europe have been granted wide powers to use their discretion in granting tourist visas for admission to Palestine, the Jewish Telegraphic Agency was informed today by the Palestine High Commissioner, Sir Arthur Grenfell Wauchope.

The explanation of the High Commissioner was offered in view of the general perturbation which has followed the tightening of immigration requirements for tourists desiring to enter Palestine from abroad.

On July 31st, the Palestine government published an immigration ordinance under which no person is permitted to enter Palestine without permission from the immigration department. (Continued on Page 4)

Dr. Lion Feuchtwanger Criticized for Views on Palestine and Judaism

Jacob Fishman Scores Omission of References to National and Practical Aspects of Palestine Work

Jacob Fishman, managing editor of the "Jewish Morning Journal," takes issue with Dr. Lion Feuchtwanger in his column on the latter's views on Palestine and Judaism, as expressed in an address delivered on Tuesday at a reception arranged by the American Friends of the Hebrew University.

Mr. Fishman refers to Dr. Feuchtwanger's statement that he envisions Jerusalem as the spiritual center of the world and objects to the latter's making the Hebrew University the centrifugal point of this center.

Mr. Fishman also derided Dr. Feuchtwanger's view that the Jews have nothing in common except their mentality.

Dr. Feuchtwanger's address was disappointing, writes Mr. Fishman. Feuchtwanger, he says, places all emphasis upon the Hebrew University and brushes aside all else in Palestine. "It is remarkable that this novelist of rich fantasy sees nothing or pretends to see nothing of the great epoch, of the great drama now being created in Palestine, known as the rebuilding of 'Alt-Neuland.'"

Non Jewish writers, Mr. Fishman continues, cannot state themselves with descriptions of what is transpiring in Palestine but Feuchtwanger, the novelist of historic themes, remains indifferent, and spurns the rebuilding work in Palestine in its national and practical aspects.

There is no such thing as a "common mentality" in the Diaspora, with College, 68th street and Lexington avenue. The expectation was that everything would proceed in orderly fashion. A resolution was read, which, it was announced, would be presented to the Polish Consulate. After voicing protest against the anti-Semitic rioting which has been recurrent in Polish Universities for a long time, the resolution declared it was the sense of American Jewish students that the Polish government, if sincere in its desire, could prevent the outbreaks. It further charged that the government itself had presented a precedent for the excesses by the discrimination which it practices against the Jews in the various fields of economic endeavor.

Following the reading of the resolution, the students, joined by sympathizers, formed in the line of march, beginning at 67th street and Lexington avenue, circling Park avenue and proceeding to 66th street and Third avenue, around the block on which the offices of the Polish Consulate are situated.

The police permitted the procession to proceed until it reached 67th street and Third avenue, as the demonstration was within three-quarters of a block from the Polish Consulate. At this point, a cordon of mounted police formed and opposed the turn of the marchers.

Police asserted that the marchers had no permission to pass the Consulate. Later, Captain Day of the 67th Street police station, told newspapermen that the marchers had obtained a permit to pass the consulate, but that it was later rescinded by Police Commissioner Mulrooney.

The mounted police were joined by thirty policemen on foot, while scores of detectives mixed with the throng.

Undismayed by the police, the marchers pushed forward into 67th street, where the police drove into them. The crowd countered with a chorus of boos which continued as one line of the marchers after another attempted to break through.

Making no headway against the drive of the police, the marchers scattered into cliques and dispersed. Dr. Arthur Kraus, an instructor in the philosophy department of City College, the hunger striker, who organized the demonstration, was in the procession and declared that the demonstration against pogroms had ended in a pogrom on American students.

its pogroms and discrimination, Mr. Fishman holds. The only Jewish "mentality" of any value, is that which carries with it a national character, he says, the mentality which seeks to provide for the Jews a place in the sun: to make the Jews a nation among nations.

Speakers at the demonstration included Herbert Solow, former contributing editor of the "Menorah Journal"; Jacob Katzman of the Young Poale Zion Organization; Julius Shapiro, and representatives of the Brooklyn College Menorah and the National Student League.

Mr. Solow declared that the problem of anti-Semitism has become universal. "Jewish blood is flowing in Poland now. Only yesterday pogroms occurred in Roumania. Today on the streets of Berlin, Fascists agitate against the Jews. In America this anti-Semitism takes a milder form, but if the economic depression continues to make hopeless the young professional graduating from college, there may be attempts to translate this milder form into a more severe form of Jew baiting."

Jacob Katzman declared that had the Polish government made a bona fide attempt to suppress the anti-Jewish outbreaks, it could have done so, since "it had no difficulty in suppressing the outbreaks of Ukrainian peasants, nor does it seem to have any difficulty in suppressing the sporadic attempts of workers to secure better conditions."

Mr. Shapiro scoffed at the reports that the Polish government is taking disciplinary measures against the student rioters. He pointed out that at the Polytechnic Institute in Warsaw, a Jewish student who acted in self-defense was the one most severely punished.

After the demonstration had dispersed, Zygfried Englich, acting Polish Consul General, received a delegation of newspapermen. He informed the press that Dr. Arthur Kraus had on several occasions received the aid, financial and otherwise, of the Polish Consulate.

He denied that any written request for a hearing had been received from the students, declaring that an appointment would have been made, had such a request been received.

Asked concerning the reports that the Polish authorities had made no genuine effort to prevent the anti-Jewish outbreaks, the Consul stated that it was extremely difficult for the Polish government to do anything in matters of this nature since the Polish universities where the outbreaks originated enjoy autonomy. The Polish government did act, notwithstanding, and prevented a recurrence of the outbreaks, he asserted.

Trial of Torturers of Samson Bronstein Now Set for February 14th

Illness of Captain Panisoara and Absence of Important Witnesses Reasons Given for Delay

(Jewish Telegraphic Agency)

BUCHAREST, Dec. 22.—The trial of Captain Panisoara and three gendarmes for the torture of Samson Bronstein, Zionist leader of Yedinez, Bessarabia, last May, has now been set for February 14, 1933.

The reasons given for the third postponement of the trial, scheduled for December 20th, are the illness of Captain Panisoara and the absence of important witnesses.

The trial will be held in Bronstein's home town, Yedinez, the scene of the torture which confined him to a hospital for months and threatened to cripple him for life.

This is the fourth time a date has been set for the trial of his torturers. The case was scheduled to be heard in Czernowitz last summer; was later set for October 18th; deferred to December 20th, and now again postponed until February 14th.

The governor-elect will work on his inaugural address which he is scheduled to deliver before the Illinois Legislature on January 9th.

500,000 Aliens Excluded From United States Under Government's Restriction Policy

Stimson in Report to President
Hoover

(Jewish Daily Bulletin)

WASHINGTON, Dec. 22.—President Hoover has been informed by Henry L. Stimson, Secretary of State, that as a result of the continued enforcement of the Government's policy of restrictive immigration during the economic depression a total of more than 500,000 aliens who normally would have emigrated to the United States have been denied immigration visas.

This result, Mr. Stimson points out in a report to the President, made public yesterday, has been accomplished through enforcement of the immigration laws, particularly the provision of the act affecting those likely to become a "public charge."

Secretary Stimson reported further that during the last fiscal year, a total of only 12,697 quota immigration visas were issued as compared with annual quotas of 153,831.

"I refer to my statement to you of Sept. 17, 1931, concerning the results accomplished in restricting immigration into the United States during the present economic depression," the report says. "Upon the basis of reports received from consular officers since the date of my previous statement it is possible to estimate further the results which have been realized through the continued enforcement by consular officers of those provisions of the immigration laws which are particularly applicable in times of widespread unemployment in this country."

"It may be estimated that as the result of restricting immigration into the United States during the economic depression in this country, over 500,000 aliens who normally would have immigrated into the United States have not received immigration visas. This result has been accomplished through the enforcement of existing provisions of law."

"As we pointed out in your announcement of Sept. 8, 1930, the provision of section 3 of the Immigration Act of 1917, which excludes from the United States persons likely to become a public charge is of particular significance at this time."

"Accordingly if there be subtracted from the 36,373 quota and non-quota immigration visas issued to all aliens, the 7,007 non-quota immigrants referred to who did not add to the population of the United States, there remains 29,730. Of this number, 18,490 or over 62 per cent were the alien members of the immediate family group of American citizens and of lawfully admitted alien residents of the United States."

"In connection with the decrease in

Palestine Government Scored For Failing to Complete Jewish Agricultural School

Colonial Secretary Says School, Made Possible by Kadoorie Bequest, Will Be Opened in September of 1933

(Jewish Telegraphic Agency)

LONDON, December 22.—The Palestine government is guilty of a grave injustice to the Jews, declared Barnett Janner in the House of Commons today, owing to its failure to complete the Jewish agricultural school for which funds were made available eight years ago in the will of the late Sir E. Kadoorie of Shanghai, while an Arab agricultural school was established some time ago under the terms of the same bequest.

Sir Philip Cunliffe-Lister, Minister of State for the Colonies, explained that the delay is due to the difficulties experienced in finding a suitable site for the school and an adequate water supply. The school is partially completed and will open in September of 1933, the Colonial Secretary stated.

Some controversy has existed around the Kadoorie bequest. The terms of the will, which entrusted to the Palestine government a sum for the establishing of an agricultural training school, did not make it clear whether there were to be one or two such schools. The government therefore decided to establish two schools, one for Arabs and one for Jews.

The Arab Agricultural School has been functioning since January of 1931. It is maintained by the funds of the Kadoorie bequest and is under the supervision of the Palestine government. Forty students are enrolled.

including the Central Union of German Citizens of the Jewish Faith, the Zionist Federation and the Ostjuden Student Union have protested to the rector of Cologne University. They pointed out that the treatment accorded American Jewish students is most unfair particularly in view of the support given German Universities by such outstanding American Jews as Felix M. Warburg, the late Mortimer Schiff and other members of the firm of Kuhn, Loeb and Company.

Jewish Scout Committee Merges With National Council

Announcement is made by Dr. Cyrus Adler, the Chairman, that the Jewish Committee on Scouting has been merged with the National Council, Boy Scouts of America, and now becomes an advisory Jewish committee of the National Scout Council.

"The step was taken," Dr. Adler said, "for the coordination of all the forces engaged in the larger program of the Jewish Committee which consists mainly of promoting Scouting among the American youth." The activities of the Jewish Committee which consist mainly of promoting scouting among Jewish people in their communal organizations in the United States are being continued under the auspices of the Committee on Relationships of the Boy Scout National Council. Similar coordination of work among the Protestant and Catholic groups is being arranged for through the Boy Scout Committee on Relationships so that all of this work will be directed from the headquarters of the Boy Scouts of America.

The Jewish Committee on Scouting was organized four years ago largely at the instance of the late Mortimer L. Schiff, a charter member of the National Executive Board of the Boy Scouts of America, and at the time of his demise a year and a half ago, the President of the Boy Scouts of America.

Philip W. Russ, who was the executive director of the Jewish Committee on Scouting, has become Assistant Director of Relationships of the Boy Scouts of America and will continue in the service of promoting Scouting among Jewish boys and with the various co-operating Jewish organizations.

Wauchop Says British Consuls Abroad May Issue Palestine Visas at Discretion

On October 11th, this was supplemented with the issuance of instructions to all British consulates in Europe to require of tourists seeking visas evidence that they leave businesses or properties and that they have return tickets. The strictures were introduced as a guarantee that those entering Palestine as tourists would not remain permanently in the country.

On December 10th, it was learned that the British consulate in Poland, whence came the largest number of tourists to Palestine, has discontinued granting third class tourist visas. Tourists travelling first and second class are required to deposit sixty pounds as security for their return to Poland.

Mrs. Sternberger Conducts Poll on Leading Jewish Women

In the first appearance of "The Woman's Review," a monthly department inaugurated in the B'nai B'rith Magazine," under the editorship of Estelle M. Sternberger, in its December issue, attention is called to the contest that has been conducted by the Ladies' Home Journal to determine the twelve women who have made the greatest contribution to the United States in the past one-hundred years. Mrs. Sternberger calls attention to the fact that not a Jewish woman is listed among the twelve proposed by the National Council of Women of the United States. She therefore asks the Jewish women of America the following question: Are there any women hailing from the tents of American Israel in the period of these last hundred years who are greater than some of these twelve and so deserve to be enrolled among them?

The women of the country have been invited to submit their nominations to Mrs. Sternberger.
