Acts of Nazis Mock Pledge of Fair Play To Jewish Athletes

Diplomats Watching for Legal Disavowal of Promise to Let Jews Compete

STADIUM TO HOLD 200,000

But Non-Aryans Barred from Getting Employment
On Project

(Jewish Telegraphic Agency)

BERLIN, Dec. 15.—Foreign diplomats here, particularly American representatives, interested in which world sports meet will be held, are denouncing against Jewish athletes in connection with preparations for the 1936 Olympic games, were studying closely today. Chancellor Hitler officially apologized for the assault.

The extraction does not refer to existing restrictions against Jews but orders the sports authorities to select the best athletes for training for the competition.

At the same time, the chancellor proclaimed that the erection of a huge stadium at Grunewald, seating 200,000 people, for the Olympic games would provide employment for thousands of workers. He said, "We are told, from the National Labor Front, no Jews can obtain employment on this project."

How Jewish athletes can train for international competition for which the Germans have reserved a room since Jewish sports clubs are excluded from the sports associations. The Magazies, Jewish sport association, and the Schule, sport organization of the Orthodox, have been permitted to exist, are unable to provide training and practice facilities for their members since they have been refused the use of fields and laboratories provided by the non-religious.

Der Angriff, Berlin newspaper closely associated with the Ministry of Propaganda, in an editorial today assailed the willingness of the German government to amend sport regulations in order to meet foreign requirements.

(Jewish Telegraphic Agency)

The report deals with recent disturbances in Romania and Hungary and with the attitude of the members of the executive of the National Democratic Party (Endeks), Polish political party, based on anti-Semitism.

(Jewish Telegraphic Agency)

JERUSALEM, Dec. 15.—According to reports which have reached here from Kerak, Transjordan, the German official, General Conrad Wissel, was attacked by Transjordan Arabs, who mistook him for a Jew purchasing land. The German consular official was saved from the crowd with difficulty. Later Emir Abdallah's government officially apologized for the assault.

Hate of Jew Rears Head in Lithuania

Leaflet Campaign Urges Boycott; Gov't Refuses to Let Jews Address Rallies

(Jewish Telegraphic Agency)

KOVNO, Lithuania, Dec. 15.—A increasing and modern campaign in the Lithuanian pressures. Thousands of leaflets have been distributed everywhere describing the Jews as enemies of Lithuania's independence, and the slogan "Death to the Jew" is being repeated.

At the same time, the Lithuanian government has made no attempt to interfere with the anti-Semitic movement. The government refused Ariele Karle, German-Jewish journalist, and Laski Berdichev, editor of the Riga Echo, to speak at a rally of the Jewish community on December 10. The authorships even went to the length of publishing performances by the famous Hebrew artists, Uzi Yardi and Eva Yeat.

Hirschmann Criticizes Untermeyer In Nazi Boycott Activities Here

Lord & Taylor Executive Says Jewish Groups Are as Yet

Most Ineffectual and Discreet

"Jesus must stop their whining and get down to real business," he said. "What is important is that they are progressing in their efforts to the strength of Jewish leadership and the extent of their influence." The boycott of the German situation, the boycott of Jewish business persons has become a popular topic of conversation at tea, it is disputed.

J. Hirschmann, president of Lord & Taylor, local department store and member of the executive committee of the American Jewish Congress, told The Jewish Daily Bulletin that the most effective steps to end the "whining" of Americans Jews and start a program of united action are the following: "The Jews will be organized."

Coaching in strong phrases his critics which are violently opposed to what he called "the stupid and tactless behavior" these words are the antithesis of German pacifism. Mr. Hirschmann also stated throughout the city known to be selling German-made goods by persons wearing

Questions Unknown.
Mr. Hirschmann challenged the suggestion that Samuel Untermeyer is a "champion" of the boycott forces in the United States, and denied that he was a leader of the Jews. He qualified this assertion by adding that if Mr. Untermeyer stopped making speeches he would be "nothing, he would be a leader."

With conviction, Mr. Hirschmann said that the "centuries" number of little Jewish organizations ought to

Austrian Nazis Use Bombs in Terrorism

Boycott on Against Buying
Christmas Gifts in Stores
Run by Jews

(Jewish Telegraphic Agency)

VIENNA, Dec. 15.—The Austrian Nazis are using terrorism in their attempts to enforce the Christmas boycott against the Jewish stores, using tear gas bombs in Jewish department stores and even small stores owned by Jews.

Police captured some of the terrorists, who were sentenced to one month imprisonment each. However, the anti-Semitic hawks in Austria is not confined to the Nazis. It is also confined to Generous, where we want to do more damage especially to the social question. We want to damage our citizens to all persecuted Germans, regardless of creed and political affiliation."

The cold pogrom has been organized by those who do not "believe" in anti-Semitism, said Professor Goldschmid.

It is because of this and the danger that Nazis

Reich Jews Continue To Wait for That Law Defining Their Status

Interior Ministry Receives 12
Drafts of Proposed Statute
On Jewish Place

NAUMANN SUBMITS ONE

Expect Edict Will Bar Voting,
Limit School Admission,
Control Marriage

(Jewish Telegraphic Agency)

BERLIN, Dec. 15.—Twelve different drafts of a law designed to consolidate the Jewish position in Germany, defining Jewish rights and obligations in the Third Reich, have been received by the Ministry of the Interior. It was learned today. Several of the drafts were prepared by government officials in various departments. One of them was submitted by Dr. Max Naumann, former minister of interior, who was a National Socialist Jew, who is constantly endorsing the Hitler government.

The Reichstag session, der Deutscher Volksrat, was adjourned yesterday. On this body, has been defined to submit a draft of the proposed law, it was learned. This organization, and other central Jewish bodies, have been invited to submit their suggestions. It is decided, they could not be party to any arrangement depriving the Jews of their civil citizenship and complete equality with other citizens of the country.

Technically, the Jews still hold full citizenship in the Reich and fact, had to exercise their voting rights in the last election. Actual practice, however, they have been deprived of citizenship; their status has not been fixed. For some time, a Jewish committee has been working to improve the situation. They have succeeded in getting the Hitler government to recognize the Hitler regime as the sole representative of the Jewish population, so that its term, would be valid by the German Jews since it is something tangible, and the document is the document of certainty that now dominates aspect of Jewish life here. The Jews have no economic rights, and cannot vote. They are not allowed to live in certain areas of the country, and are unable to tell what discriminatory restrictions will bring.

The law, when enacted, it is really intended, will bar the Jews from attending public schools, will not allow their admission into the schools universities and the professions will make intermarriage a penal offense.

As Jewish law, defining the status of the Jewish population, so what its term, would be valid by the German Jews since it is something tangible, and the document is the document of certainty that now dominates aspect of Jewish life here. # The Week In Review

Germany

A new onslaught on Jewish trade and commerce in the Reich was unleashed this week, despite the earnest efforts of Minister of Economic Affairs Schmitz, the Nazi's man in all parts of the country launched into a "Don't Buy from Jews" educational campaign. Jewish merchants were urged to refuse to buy from Christian merchandise or from making any attempts to obtain any of the Christian holiday business. Although the Ministry of Economics repeated its warning against boy-cott of the Jews, the government-controlled radio system announced that accommodations and advertisements for Jewish business could not be accepted and most of the news-papers of the country refused to accept Jewish advertising.

The leaders of Nazi Germany will not let up until the Reich fails her external obligations. Dr. Hjalmar Schacht warned. He attacked Jews for their share in the boycott. The Nazi press were him to believe that the Jews were forcing Germany to default. Holders of German obligations here and in London were skeptical. Despite of frequent credit balances to be paid off, no one in a depressed market, they declared, can be sure of the cause of any default in interest and dividend payments.

The Ministry of Education reported that the process of eliminating Jews from the schools system in Prussia had been completed. . . . The so-called Aryan class was revoked in the German Protestant Church in an effort to cleanse it for the modern elements. It will return, it is believed, however, in another form—as a strict separation clause for non-Aryans, practically leaving them at the mercy of preparing for school posts.

The German government was confronted with another demand by Czechoslovakia for information on the fate of scores of Czechoslovak citizens, mostly Jews, who had disappeared in the course of Nazi raids last Spring and Summer. Ratipling out the complete disregard of previous requests for this information, Prague charged that it would take the names of those missing as much of the circumference surrounding each case as known.

Bulgaria

The world-wide storm of protest against the restrictions on Jewish immigration into the Holy Land and the severe penalties imposed on those sending their stay beyond the time allowed by their passports was elicited at Tel Aviv by a demonstration which became a violent police struggle.

Seventeen Jewish lads, many of them British Transjordanites, were arrested pending trial. Vladislav Jarev, the leader, supported by others in a group of the Tel Aviv municipality. The Jewish executive and the Vandy, deplored the cause of the demonstrators, nevertheless insisted that they had the right to do what the "believe of the consciousness" had not met with their aims in the course of their

The tourist host took on a new life when it was diverted from Jewish to tourists from European countries who had overstayed their visas. Many have been held pending deportation. Meanwhile, Arab immigration from the Jordan continues to flow freely and unregulated—a further development and aggravation of the existing restrictions on Jewish immigration.

The defense scored strongly with powerful support of the measures by the three Zionist leaders, Dr. Weizsaecker, was presented at meetings before Chief Magistrate of Berlin, Robert Siewert, whose hurried and forceful resolution is now chief concern.

Asia

The cause is for considerable in the House of Commons.

The indefatigable Josiah Wedgwood heralded a series of interrogations at Colonial Secretary Sir Philip Cuniffe-Lister regarding aspects of the Palestine Jewish problem. Sir Philip had been urging of consideration of a plan to restrict Jewish doctors and dentists there. The insistence by Deputy Health Director Harkness who said there had been a great increase in the number of Jewish practitioners.

Sir Philip intended to justify the Transjordan immigration policy, declaring that unrestricted immigration of Transjordan Arabs into Palestine had been made part of the Palestine plan.

Edward Dowson, dismayed by his Conservative constituency for his beliefs against the Jews, was selected as one who had strayed to the British side with being "economic values picking on flesh flesh."

Sixty parliamentarians attended a protest meeting yesterday at the House of Commons and heard Col. John Bowes, Wedgwood and Professor Selig Brodsky on developments in Palestine. An amendment was moved by Mr. Bowes to swing the powerful House Imperial Committee into an anti-Zionist mood.

Possibilities of settlement of Germans in Argentina were discussed at a meeting of the Jewish Colonization Association in London when Sir Leonard Cohen announced that over 300,000 acres of land suitable for agriculture had been acquired by the organization and were available for thousands of families.

Hungary

The agreement between the anti-Semitic student demonstrators and the government in which the former agreed to postpone all the students' demands in exchange for a pledge of peace, was thrown into the discard almost before it took effect as the students, finding themselves to be the victims of Nazi strategy, tried to force Dietrich, Minister of War, into the unpopular role of defender of the Jews. Rioting was reported at the University of Budapest, where assemblies had to be closed down, and in every university town of the country.

The Nazi movement received added impetus when the wealthy Count Aladar, a notorious anti-Semite, confessed, repented his negligence and declared he would work heart and soul for a Hungarian Nazi movement based on anti-Semitism.

Austria

Demands for a settlement of the "Jewish question" were received last week by clerical leaders of the predominant faction, overshadowing the other religious groups, of the anti-Semitic activities of Jews in all spheres of life by a strict numerus clausus.

Events in Austria continued to move in the direction of a Dollfuss-Fascist alliance, culminating in great fury from the Nazi mood in Germany and challenging the status of the Jews of the country.

Romania

The Jews of Romania headed by the Duke of Wassau, commander of the Iron Guard, leader in all major anti-Semitic attacks here in recent months, are the most persecuted in Europe. The Iron Guard has itself not in close accord on procedure. The party, through Deputy Michael Lazan, controls the government and the police were interfering with the sitting of his election slate.

United States

The American Jewish Committee, at annual meeting, warned that the situation of Jews in Germany still remained serious and that the German Jewish question is rightfully a matter of international concern. The committee reaffirmed its stand with regard to the boycott. Its call on enlightened world opinion to combat the Nazi menace to civilization.

The New York Federal Grand

Jury investigating Nazi activities completed its term and was discharged. Congressman Samuel Dickstein and his inquiry committee condemned the practice of large-scale propaganda activities and asked to make the House of Representatives for a thorough investigation.

Archbishop Blas Litter described Germany's laws of race from which political had to remove many undesirable intercessors. He spoke at Columbia University over the protest of liberal members of the faculty, who were demonstrating, while Mr. Litter was speaking.

He urged that American Jewish leaders "cease their quibbling" and bring about a demonstration. Litter and President Nicholas Murray Butler were editorially quoted for their opposition by the New York Evening Post, with new editorials by Dr. David Stern. The New York Sun explained editorially, why his affiliation, why his anti-Semitic views were not being condoned and included. Mr. Hirschmann criticized what seems to him to be "a kind of hysterical hysteria" over the "Jew." His point of view means that "as a parlor room topic of conversation, the German situation is becoming units."

The young advertising executive, youthful and energetic, spared few in his onslaught. He said that Max Winkler, head of the boycott committee of the American Jewish Congress, is "attempting to do good work." What stands in his way, he found, is the "old guard," the people who think they are helping him.

Exports on Increase

Mr. Hirschmann assured the part which Jewish youth is not playing in coming to the defense of their German brothers. He reflected on the fact that there is no one to find out the signs with regard to the state of the German business turnover. His own, which is not owned by Jews, is strongly behind the boycott.

Hitler Owes Einstein Apologies*And a Stradivarius, Says Shaw

G. B. S., as seen by Lew, from The New Statesman

George Bernard Shaw has every reason to be as angry as Hitler's policies, he says in a letter to the Europäische Revue, published by Prince Karl Arens Rothen. Nevertheless, he continues, he is enthusiastic about Germany's withdrawal from the League of Nations. He adds: "Hitler's massacres were the greatest proof of Hitler's insanity."

The Europäische Revue asked Shaw if the German Jewish question is rightfully a matter of international concern. The question was raised in reply to the Europäische Revue, submitted to the League of Nations, on Germany's withdrawal from the League of Nations. Shaw, under his opinion as an enlightened individual, Shaw adds in his well-known manner, "I am not going to be beaten off." "Down with Shaw!" Obviously Hitler believes that the Irish are one of the best tribes of Israel.

It would seem, Shaw continues, as though Hitler's admission of his anti-Semitic views is merely proof that it is the cause in question which decides the matter.

Dr. Chaim Weizmann Discusses Zionist Goal

In Birthday Speech He Calls Nationhood Anti-Semitism Cure

Pling, a Passport, a Seat at Geneva Will Give Jews World Over New Dignity

OPPORTUNITIES VAST

Palestine Judaism's Test; Says Race Will Be Judged by Its Acts in Holy Land

By DR. CHAIM WEIZMANN

(Dr. Weizmann celebrated his fifty-sixth birthday recently. The following address was delivered by him at a reception in his honor arranged by the British Zionist Federation of which he is president.)

Jews always seek explanations of anti-Semitism, economic, political, racial, religious, and so on, that state their case. And I feel we need not look for explanations. How is it that over 2,000 years, in all ages, there always has been this anti-Semitism?

The explanation is that we Jews do not want to die. In spite of the persecution of thousands of years, we are still here, and we are multiplying in a majority. We евреи, keep our traditions, do not do as the Romans do. We are Jews and we remain Jews, and that is what the world does not understand. Since we do not become as the others, we are always attention, because we are something different.

The first thing that comes to mind is the first current definition of anti-Semitism. Haman did not say that Jews are bad, but he said that they are too good. That is the main difference. That was and is that the chief accusation against us, you may say, that there are many more Germans than Greeks, and that there is no anti-Greekism. The difference is that they have Greece. The people must have a homeland.

The Definition Not Clear

Everyone knows what a Swab or a Greek is, but not everyone is clear what is a Jew; you cannot give a single plain answer. We Jews have been asked to define ourselves. This truth, first we got emancipation. But we did not get emancipation out of a feeling of equality. There was a feeling of inferiority, and that is now.

Jews adjusted themselves to the new conditions. Those who were emancipated and assimilated tried to show that they were no Jewish people, and asserted that they, religion and all, is this conception.

This was so especially in Germany, where the Jews tried to make distinctions between East and West Jews. Now the Nazis have come and annulled emancipation and put the Jews back again into different basis, race and nation, and all that they had made themselves believe was overthrown.

There is the difference between Polish and German Jews. The Polish Jew knows why he suffers; he is a Jew; but the German Jews do not even know that they are suffering, for many of them no longer conceive of being Jews. They are awakening to a new realization, and the tragedy, therefore, of the Hitlerites is that they will further tragedy of the German Jews is that there is no country where they can come, so long as we have no place of our own, and our own passports. Therefore, Zionism is getting to be most in its significance for Jews. Every certificate that can be obtained for a Jew to be able to leave Palestine is of the greatest importance.

The Law Not Made for Life. The immigration laws in Palestine are set up so that they should not be made for life, and not life for law. But we shall fight and we shall live. We did this, as we survived 1932. We did not give up one of our rights in the Mandate.

I am not indifferent to what is happening in Palestine, but this is only a temporary thing. Four years ago people would have been happy if 15,000 more Jews would enter Palestine, but today they would consider it is little for the British it seems to be too much. Palestine will be the seat of Judaism. Jews will be born there by what they have done in Palestine, and what they have done by Jewish hands in England, by Jewish professors in Germany, but he arises in Palestine and becomes a professor at Jerusalem University.

CHAIM WEIZMANN

-as seen by David Rose

It was not important that Jews were going to Palestine because they wanted to go there. It was important that Jews should have a flag, a passport and a right to sit at the League of Nations and to say: "We demand that this is ours."

In the name of Palestine we should be able to tell the world that it is unjust to 16 million Jews in the world to leave things as they are.

There is such a thing as justice in the world and there is justice in England, and we can and must demand the British Government to defend our rights with dignity and force, as is worthy of a great people, not by throwing stones through windows.

I am a realist. I am convinced that the possibilities for our generation at least are unlimited; to take into account the fact that the British have started on the greatest transport routes, it has a tremendous future. There are also the immense possibilities opened up by the Yangtze River, the Suez Canal, the Mediterranean, the Black Sea, the Caspian Sea, and so on. All these are opportunities for Jewish business and for Jewish participation in other countries.

When our conversation drifted to the subject of the Yiddish press in America, Mr. Rogoff assured me that the Yiddish press in America was practically stopped.

All that is left is one paper, Der Haar, which has only one copy.

Alexandria has a population of 600,000. Malta may yet surpass Alexandria, but there is only one paper there.

There is no reason why Haar should be Jewish. The possibility behind us.

There are enormous possibilities in Palestine. The population of 200,000 Jews has completely changed the face of Palestine. Incalculable new possibilities will open up that we cannot even imagine. What will go on, but we must have Jews and Jesus must have hope and energy and faith.

In the past three years have been very different. I believe that the next 13 years will be easier, and if you do not lose hope and courage, we shall not run through.

Hillel Rogoff Marks 50th Birthday By Carrying on as Forward Executive

GOES ON TO 51

HILLEL ROGOFF

Declares Quota Immigration Has Not Hindered Yiddish Press

Hillel Rogoff, managing editor of the Jewish Daily Forward, just turned 51. He is a man of broad interests and work in his life of any man since that he left ten or fifteen years ago. He is a prominent Jewish executive and Socialist leader told this interview, when questioned concerning his 50th birthday, celebrated in a quiet gathering of friends and colleagues.

We met in his private office on the ninth floor of the Forward Building. A large building, a busy floor and a busy room, although it only occupies a portion of the building. Men and women kept coming and going. Mr. Rogoff did not seem annoyed by these disturbances, answering the questions with a pleasant air, as well as a smile in a calm and poised manner. I could not help but compare his quiet demeanor with that of other executives whose offices took far greater toll of the nervous systems than does the tasks of the managing editor of the world's greatest Yiddish daily.

From a biographical sketch of Mr. Hillel Rogoff, Remond, of the Jewish Writers, I discovered that Mr. Rogoff came to this country at the age of 12 and that he studied in a Yeshiva. In 1905, upon completing this study, he became one of the first students of the madrasa of the Rabbi Yeshiva Eliezer Yehuda, organized in about 1906, when he was 12 years old, and directed by the Yeshiva of Etz Chaim.

His Yeshiva education, Mr. Rogoff said, made him the real Jew he is today. In fact, he added, no Jew can be a real Jew, unless he is a member of the word, without a Jewish education.

He was a candidate on the Socialist party ticket in 1908 for Congress, and was elected to the Congress as a Socialist member and tried his Socialist work from the time he was a student at the College of the Yeshiva. In New York he founded a Socialist club on the East Side.

His membership in that club led also to his joining the staff of the Forward. Several members of the club, including Adele Held, president of the Anarchized Bank, and Henry Greensfeld (now advertising manager of The Forward), the late Maxine Gordon, Abraham Calson, about the latter leader and writer and Mr. Calson invited him to become a member of the club.

The Socialist Party in America, Mr. Rogoff said, is not attractive, a younger element and is once again strengthening its ranks, which underwent internal changes in a manner similar to the Socialist parties in other countries.

When our conversation drifted to the subject of the Yiddish press in America, Mr. Rogoff assured me that the Yiddish press in America was practically stopped.

All that is left is one paper, Der Haar, which has only one copy.

These years, if the way in which it has held in our direction, the years of limited immigration is at all indicative, Mr. Rogoff assured. He said, in conclusion, that among his future projects is the writing of history of American Jewish literature.

Hillel Rogoff was born in Brestov, in the province of Minsk. He studied at the Yeshiva and at City College, taught in the Yeshiva, and has edited and contributed to many Socialist periodicals in English and in Yiddish. In 1915 he published a semi-weekly history of the United States (in Yiddish) and has written a number of other books. Mr. Rogoff is one of the most popular personalities and lecturers in the Socialist movement and has twice held the presidency of the Jewish Writers Club.

Protests and Laughter

Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, the liberal in phrase-making and the reactionary by instinct, has had the dubious pleasure of playing Hitler's role in Germany. He is Hitler's Ambassador at Washington. Dr. Luther came up to New York the other night to address, by Butler's invitation, the so-called Institute of Arts and Sciences and delivered himself of such patric hypocrisical nonsense as Hitler's "democracy" and peace and demonstration that even those respectable members in the audience who weren't ejected for shouting "Down with Hitler, Down with the Nazis" could not refrain from laughing. Some of the boys of the Senior Prom Club, a Hitlerite organization, marched down Broadway with anti-Nazi banners and Dr. Luther took himself off to Washington again, to await the next invitation from some pro-Nazi outfit to come some "liberal-minded" college president in decent attire and with cameras and photographs the German Ambassador to the United States may prove to his employers that he is doing his best as chief official propagandist agent for Hitlerism. Perhaps if Ambassador Butler can't find enough room after Hitler's speech as the Ambassadorial front for the farrive and eccentric Nazi propagandists of antisemitism in the United States, even Secretary of State Hull will not be ready to furnish him with further compensation. After all, he was born when a man like Seward T. Foote, for example, accepts his office of using his Embassy for the furtherance of race-hate propaganda.

Officially, of course, Ambassador Luther is to be condemned for subverting his office to base uses; unofficially, it is possible to wonder for the moment whether this little devil that he is not so inconvertible in his job as might be. It is not the most pleasant thing in the world to be running from Washington to Milwaukee and back to Washington and then to New York and then to Philadelphia and after all that travel several days ago, so in the Capital to go to Pittsburgh, saying Hell Hitler all the time, with no more than enough enthusiasm to feel the press as to your real feelings. For Dr. Luther knows, and all informed people know, that Dr. Landau was brought over here by Hitler when he was kicked upstairs from the Reichskanzler because he was not willing to consent to the Nazi party's raid on the bank's reserves, to the Enthaus at Washington, because, for better or worse, the Nazis have since just filled their pockets.

It is Dr. Butler, the ambitious self-seeking social-climbing intellectual German-phrase, the professed modest, who is betraying his trust by opening his doo's to Nazi propaganda. Dr. Butler has received houses from Kaiser Germany; he is now returning the debt to Hitler's Reich.

On the Defensive

Is there one kind of justice for the Arab on the offensive and another for the Jew on the defensive? Is the direction of British colonial policy, which claims that they must be satisfied even at the price of several thousand crastics dead. Must the Jewish voice be constantly eliminated even in the courts of the nation which is supposed to administer Palestine for the Jews?

There is no doubt that the Arab demonstrations toward the end of November were aimed at least in their immediate result. Arabs were killed, both among the demonstrators and among the police force, but more than one bone of concession has been thrown, and not contemptuously, toward the Arab. The English did not let the English did give the demonstrators Arab just about enough room to be able to say to the Jews: "Do you see now what we're up against? We can't issue even one-fourth of the immigration certificates you require; we can't possibly let you have all your own country and expand our Palestine?" After the demonstrators came the incitement of the so-called syrian drivers against tourists who have been overstayng their leave, and one case has been reported of an old Jew who, terrified at the prospect of having to return to the land from which he came, killed himself.

But in the meantime, what is being done about Arab immigrants who are coming in uninvited from the Eastern frontier and whom no sympathetic system exists to expedite their entry? In December, in the first really daily, one part of Arab migration into Palestine passes unnoticed by the proper officials, while in December, another Hebrew journal, the charge is made that the very Arab leaders who have been raising the spectre of Jewish terrorism have themselves offered no act as agents in the transport of lands in order to dislodge the new ownership of the Jews. The fact of the matter is that they have taken financial capital out of the prosperity which Jewish enterprise has given them, but have not been able to do so without the help of their fellow-dishonest tourists, who had allegedly settled in the country but had been passing their respective time in the Orient, especially.

The Government had shamelessly graded a number of boys into the foul business of spying by paying them one shilling for every document found in their pockets. Thus the situation in Palestine became more difficult from day to day and the difference between the two sides increased. And the British attempted to receive the necessary moral support. The "white papers" and the British Government neighbors and he is returned, in spite of the fact that he brings prosperity—for the simple reason that he is a Jew.

Jews have no right in Germany, surely there must be one place in the universe where they have rights and the right to demand those rights. Deep maw have been their razzor and since their soors before these

Letters to the Editor

Condescending Condolences

New York, Dec. 13, 1933.
To the Editor of the
Jewish Daily Bulletin:

What represents either the Jewish people or even all the factions in Zionism, as well as some Jewish individuals, is that they have committed the crime of killing without the seal of approval of a British official, was begun. This is the illegal entry of tens of thousands of Bedouins and derivatives from Transjordan, Syria and Egypt into Palestine. The British sent 50,000 British soldiers to Palestine. Such extraneous troops are only comparable to the troops of the command of General Allenby in a bodyguard of the entire "national home". Small wonder that it struck terror into many hearts. A seventy-year-old Jew, in Palestine, had his heart burst and learned himself to death. Neither the Jewish press nor the Jewish Agency had commented on the grossly irresponsible action.

The degrading round-ups nevertheless continued. Temporary spikes were erected and the poor, half-dancing tourists, who had allegedly settled in the country but had been passing their respective time in the Orient, especially.

The Government had shamelessly graded a number of boys into the foul business of spying by paying them one shilling for every document found in their pockets.

Under the circumstances the human and national patience was bound to give way and it did. A number of the Jews who had been passing their bottoms chased like stray dogs and still retain their self-respect, areas in indignant protest, in the self-conceited-proud Jewish town in Palestine. And the young Jews, known as Revisionists, appeared in the streets with a white flag to remind Great Britain of her obligation.

The police attempted to wrench from them the whitewash symbol of the last national hope of their people, a symbol which in 1917 had been adopted. The Jewish Legion were dazed and stupefied to squalor. This wasaranized and pockmarked. The young men resisted and did not yield their hands. Those who were righteously angry, who knew no political grilles and act upon a sound impulse, went to the aid of the young Revisionists. These were the ones who had lived behind soldiers and police for three hours. Deep maw have been their razzor and since their soors before these peace-loving men could have been this carried away.

Because the outbreak alone epitomizes there was all the more reason for the Palestine Government and the world to take notice. What would dignified leaders of people with a healthy national independence have done in such circumstances? They would have utilized the effect of the spontaneous outbreaks or at least permitted it to sink in. But the leaders of the less fortunate lack such an instinct. Instead of cowering to the Government and saying: "See what the people are doing, we must do the same," they came and openly condoned the next and perhaps worst disaster. They displayed signs of the old Macchabean spirit. The leaders weakened the force of the spontaneous protest. This is the most serious and dangerous rebellion we confront our own leaders. We assert that their cowardly "sense of responsibility" is the main source of root of our political failure in Palestine. The verdict of history will tell our verdict.

SPEAKING MY MIND

By JOSEPH LEFTWICH

There are many who will say that Hitler's Germany is a Hitler's God. There is nothing so bad as to say about it. But is there really anything new in present-day Germany? Has not the spirit of brutality, of sadism and the mailed fist been there (side by side with all the noble qualities of Germanic culture) before Hitler was born?

"At the end of 1900, when the forces of Catholic barbarism threatened to submerge Prussia-Poland, whose masses (of Germany's Jews), the Germans, the Bolsheviks, the indignation of the Germans, the Christians with their policy of 'Assassins'—proposed to excommunicate and expel by Prussian law, the Polish masses, two years ago, the famous Polish novelist Sienkiewicz made an appeal to 'the conscience of the world' (Frederick Douglass) against that law when the Poles adopted their anti-Jewish pogrom, even Sienkiewicz, who had appealed to the conscience of the world on behalf of the Polish masses, could not restrain himself from calling to protest against the pogrom of the Jews by his own countrymen."

"As a Jew," Zangwill recited to Sienkiewicz, "I cannot agree with you that the pogroms against our German-Polish brothers are the greatest sin and infamy in the history of the 20th century; that abominable massacres of the Jews in Russia, carried out with official condonance and under circumstances of atrocity which have not been equalled since the days of Noah." I cannot believe that the 20th century deserves for as a deeper horror. But this is almost the only hope I can present myself in this year of the Nazi pogroms without an effective protest.

"Might is recognized as the rule of life. In this degeneration of the Germanic race, England has played the leading role. The Geography of Goethe and Schiller, of Kant and Beethoven, to which I have been exposed in my youth, have been replaced by the Geography of blood and iron, a Geography from which we turn shuddering." (1907 issue you, not 1933—to say nothing of the author and the Boche of the war years.)

"Why should you expose Europe to interference on behalf of Germany?" asked Sienkiewicz. "For the Jews, the Germans, the Poles, the Russians, your generous belief is the power of the pillars of civilization and intellectual culture? You and I are the last survivors of a race that has lost its power of military resistance is the doomed prey of the nations with teeth and claws."

When Germany became in her time and ours a powerful military resistance, she did indeed before the eye of the nations with teeth and claws. What else were the demands for armamentary preparation, for war?

What else was the refusal of Germany, the refusal of equality, the Röhm invasion, the instant pay! pay!

Does it make things better that Germany would have been even more ruthless? Do we wrong ever make a right?

Is it surprising that the smacking sense of injustice has turned into rage?

As for this new existence among Jews that Germans are barbarian, it is a fact that till recently—except for the war patriots in the Allied countries—and to a large ex-

A CHURCH OF LAODICEANS?

By
ARRA HILLEL SILVER

THIE Germans have at last discovered that Yeshua and Jesus cannot be worshipped simultaneously in one and the same church. The Nazi Church Party, which sought to Aryanize the Evangelical Church of Germany, has been officially disbanded. The Aryan clause which was intended to force Christian clergymen having Jewish blood out of their positions has been rejected. Christians who had been forced into baptism, marketing after a Jesus "after the German fashion"—beets, spars, "schrecklichkeits" and all—had been forced to sever his connections with the Nazi church faction. The Bible, about which the Germans since the days of Luther have been fighting so much and as gorily, resurfaces the Testament, that Christ is in the flesh of St. Stephen's son, who was stoned to death in Jerusalem—in—he has not been discriminated. The New Testament has not been revised and the figure of the gentle, pacifist and communist Jesus has not been erased in the mold of Thor, God of Thunder and of War.

Christianity, that "product of a muddled civilization of weary Mediterranean," relates still to its original Judaic roots. The Nazis, the theological Christians of Germany would soon come to realize the source to their own religious irreligion is Hitler's mad race theories, for they are a complete repudiation of both the history and the theology of Christianity. They are a confirmation of its sacredness. Elsewhere, its founders, its leaders, its teachers and of course, its earliest ideals. To Nordic Christianity as well as to its apologetics, the Nazis are repudiated in its purest universalism. The classic though unadorned but nevertheless parasitic argument of Christian apologetics has always been that Judaism was a nationalistic religion whereas Christianity overcame all national and racial barriers and became a religion for the whole of mankind. At no time in the history of the argument has there been such a bold and uncompromising repudiation of this. The Pope and the most fervent Christian church constituting it into one of the narrowest tribal churches known to history. Under the new dispensation, even converts were to be denied equality before the Lord . . .

The older thousand Protestant clergymen who rose in arms against the attempted Nationalization of those were quite as fanatical as the young members of Christendom which was involved in the struggle, and the antagonists in England and America who rallied to their support also realized it.

And now the millions of men and women throughout the world who applauded their courage and rejoiced in their victory wonder whether they will take the test even in the War (above all, white America will still retain its Jewishness). Will they bequeath the leadership to the Nazis in Germany? Be the reason what it may, hostility to Communist Russia, the hostility for German Kultur, the proximity of opportunity to the Germano-American border, and spite of their close-looking, prosperous German citizenship, the ability to pass as Yiddish to non-Germans, German-Americans a thousand and one reasons.

And yet anti-Semitism is the one thing that Hitler has compounded up to hot air. I have in my possession an article by a German-Jewish scholar, who appears in the Neue Zeitung of Berlin, written in 1900, when Hitler was in his teens, complaining of the violent anti-Semitism that was existing in Germany and the attitude of the Jewish student in Germany who found himself considered an outsider, despite his German mother and social equals. His attitude was that he is a Jew and not a German.

Moshelein Harzen, who died long before Hitlerism became a serious movement, confided that "I myself, who grew up in a poor German-Jewish family, did not know that the Nazis had had very little to do with Jews and have in every respect considered myself a German, but at first can feel fine day that the pure essence do not consider me a real German."

Rabbi Arra Hillel Silver

next step which is clearly dictated by the logic of their position. They must surely realize that their moral responsibility as spiritual leaders of their people does not end with the rejection of the race doctrine in their church constitution. Surely they cannot close their eyes to the millions of "Judeo-Christians" who have been denied equality of political, social and economic rights, and who are still denied the right to live in Jewish blood in their veins. These millions of Christians who belong to their churches have the right to turn to them in their hour of need and to expect them to speak up in their behalf and to champion their cause.

And what of the Jews? Do not these clergymen who have not yet discontinued their great task in preserving the historical record and character and virtue of their religious tradition fed any moral compulsion to speak up in defense of the Jews of Germany? If anti-Semitism has been found to be a menace to the Christian church is it not also a menace to a Christian State or to any civilized State?

How long can these degenerate tolerate the grotesque and incongruous situation which now prevails in Germany? For six days a week the Germans are to be taught in the schools, through the press and from the platform that the Jews are an inferior race whose blood is polluted and who are incapable of producing any real culture or virtue, and that they are fit only for them to be taught in the churches that the literature of this same inferior race is the sacred treasure of the world, that its moral code is the highest moral code of the world, that its history is the most significant history exists and that its ancient hymns and prayers are to be chanted by all pious people as the most beautiful music.

With such the Christian characters of the world who repudiate the bonds of the German church in their apparent devotion of their church by the new Nazi ideology, now urge upon them the moral imperative of courageously championing the cause of the millions of men, women and children who have denied their elementary human rights in the new Germany and who are now at the mercy of the Nazi Government because of their status? Do these German clergymen wish to take upon themselves the reproach which was heaped upon the Church of the Laodiceans: "I know thy works that thou art neither cold nor hot; I would thou were cold or hot."

Surely Christianity cannot rest content with this best skimpy which it has been. The real battle which will tell its soul must still be waged.

THE HUMAN TOUCH

By HARRY SALPETER

A fellow by the name of Ben Schraga writes a piece in the December issue of the American Spectator in which, with the subtlety and frankness of a man of sound breeding full force on the head of a Jew, he discusses the profession of being a Jew in a habitat of hooligans who are indiscriminately claimed to men of culture.

He makes the point that in the sough-tions of belligerent antisemites the names of distinction as Jews the gentlemen of the past present (the chief竊竊)竊竊 are very much like the Nazis who are unwilling to take a stand against the tony crop of Jewish blight. The streak makes the white robe Jew. I myself have been guilty in this connection. I am a socialist, indeed, but my head is shamefully guilty with a playful accent, chiefly in an editorial which I conducted as international editor of the periodical Arbeter. It was to be expected to argue should the suggestion that Hitler is a Jew be proved fact. But on the whole I believe that my Justice has been done. I have been called a Jew, but I have had whitespace in my card "Innovation," in strict confidence that such and such a person is a Jew and the neighborhood says it is. When I recall our ranking professional Jew especially — he writes rather good prose and conducts International tournaments without the name of F.P.A. and contributes the information is nothing less than New York Evening Journal headlines.

People who are Jews and wish to escape the racial or communal responsibilities involved in being Jews and Jews and Jews are not alone. Well-mixed members of their race are equally in enjoyment of unsavory status of mixed. The first does not care if the second does not care to the extent to the level of the deepest antipathy implicit in the word Jew and the other—the Jew-hatisher—wishes to compensate for a sense of inferiority by exposing the envious and snobbish Jew to pool his existence into the common fund. In neither case is there self-assurance.

It seems to me as plain as the nose on my face that just when a man denies that he is a Jew, however, he is the most rabid Jew in the flesh, this is just cause his name off the list of Jews. You may continue to believe that he is a Jew, but the moment you say he is a Jew, Charlie Chaplin, for example, has distinct Jewishness, and I know that some of his best gags are Jew, but it does not stop him from being a Jew that should end the matter. I know a famous American poet who, when heard by the constant labeling of his name as Jew, would always bring up the point that one of his parents was Catholic. He does happen to be rather two-faced about it, deriving what pleasure he can from being a Jew and at the same time from being a Jew, and out of all Jewishness—as a poet, one of whose parents is a Catholic.

Mr. Schraga's article goes to a number of points. One area I am sure is going to fall on barren soil. Which I assure you, will make no less pretense to me. Second, the antisemitic who is not antisemitic, but who is antisemitic, like John Birch, and others like him, will be forced to admit that Hitler is a Jew—contrary to popular belief and contrary, probably, to fact. I trust that Hitler can not possibly be antisemitic. I mean that Wisey Gordon said he'd heard on Page 16

ART and ARTISTS

By MOSES SOYER

George Schreiber

Never has class consciousness been so sharply stressed as has been by the strife, depression and race hatred. Even the artist, that little brother of the rich, has been subjecting himself to the same sort of self-analysis as the rest of us. "Where do I come in?" he asks himself. "Of what social value is my work?" Do not all artistic creatures of living men derive their social value from the social conditions of their age which they were produced?"

"Yes," he decides, "witness the works of Courbet and Daumier in the past—the painters of the humble and underprivileged, the workers and the oppressed."

He is tremendously impressed by the militant, contemporary work of Rivera, Orozco, and their contemporaries of revolutionary art, which is certainly of great social importance.

Among these artists who have been seen in the George Schreiber, at the Art Students League, in the New School of Social Research,

A disciple of that savage German painter, Beckmann, has been posing in no small degree his master's hatred of the present social structure, its greedy ruling class, and the pitiful helpless, cruel, suffering Homo Sapiens in general.

His "Lychnost" is a fierce indictment of race rules—a group of wild red and yellow figures in drunken rage fighting and tearing apart their victim.

His "Exposition" could well be called "Hopelessness," so devoid of hope and the three virtues of charity, hope and love that it is. In the flesh, this boy has cast his name off the list of Jews. You may continue to believe that he is a Jew, but the moment you say he is a Jew, Charlie Chaplin, for example, has distinct Jewishness, and I know that some of his best gags are Jew, but it does not stop him from being a Jew that should end the matter. I know a famous American poet who, when heard by the constant labeling of his name as Jew, would always bring up the point that one of his parents was Catholic. This is not an exhibition for individualism or a squabblesome nature, but a show of a work of art as a whole, as a total composition. This is a show of beauty and repel there. These, however, who hold that Art can at the same time be a powerful weapon in the hands of the oppressor, will be bound to be disappointed. Schreiber's hat is certainly well suited to his point of view.

Mexico Gives Jews Fair Deal Promise, Despite Race Foes

President Gives Group Assurance in Interview; Opposes Anti-Semitic Propaganda

(J.D.B. Special Correspondent)

MEXICO CITY, Dec. 12.—That the Mexican government will not tolerate propaganda of any one group in the country against another group and that Jews in Mexico will be given the same fair treatment and consideration given all other groups, was the promise of President Alvaro Obregon to a group of Jewish leaders who have interviewed President Alvarado Rodriguez in connection with the anti-Semitic campaign which has caused a tremendous stir throughout the country through pamphlets and through a special weekly periodical in Spanish.

While the President could not be quoted, members of his party said that they were satisfied that the Rodriguez administration is not in favor of anti-Semitism or propaganda or that, in view of any pressure from the United States, is helping to build up the cause's initiatives. The committee learned that the "Committee Pro-Race," which had been organized by a group of "asocialists" foreigners does not have official standing and that its work is being carried on under the sponsorship of private groups.

About a week ago the "Foreigner Defense Center" was organized according to its purpose, "dealing especially with foreign workers, the foreigner who might be attacked by the anti-foreign groups. In posters and meetings of the Pro-Race Committee it is announced that the organization is directed against Jews and Chinese, although other foreign groups are listed.

Another development favorable to a group of Jews in the foreigner difficulties in Mexico was the recent visit of General Melgar, president of the Pro-Industry Committee of Mexico, to some of the foreigner centers. He reported, according to Jewish community leaders, that Mexican workers in those plants are being treated as well, if not better, as by any plants or factories in Mexico.

No favorable has been recent publication of newspaper stories describing the efforts of the Mexican government to evade the immigration laws of Mexico requiring capital of $10,000 pesos for entrance into this country under certain conditions. The paper described a "similar check" of 16,000 pesos which is temporarily loaned to the prospective immigrant in order that he can be admitted. The check is then passed on to another.

The newspaper stories in the leading daily papers did not specifically mention "El Nacional," the paper of Puebla, Lecumberri, Spriya, and others. "El Nacional," the government party's daily, stated this week that during the last month more than 3,000 foreigners have been turned away from the cities on the American border.

An editorial in the Yiddish weekly, "Der Farante," said the reason why "we do not want to buy merchandise manufactured by Germans or in Germany." Anti-Jewish propaganda has been much heavier in the Federal District, in which Mexico City is located, but it was reported to be continuing at its usual pace in the provinces.

No More Jews Wanted, Say Canadian Papers

Depression Quoted as Factor; Paper Opposing Anti-Semitism Concurs in Ban

By LEON CHEIFETZ

(J.D.B. Special Correspondent)

MONTREAL, Dec. 15.—Slightly differing in its attitude towards the Jews and anti-Semitism, the French Canadian press in the Province of Quebec is, nevertheless, in complete accord on the question of barring the immigration of German-Jewish refugees into Canada. After the editor of Le Canadien, Oliver Aspasia, had openly condemned the malignant campaign of the anti-Semitic publications, his sentiments received warm-hearted support from the Quebec L'Evenement, but only as far as a curb on Jewish hating is concerned. Its underlying implication is that "that Canada has enough Jews it does not need any more anti-Semites."

Under the heading, "Investigation and Anti-Semitism," the Quebec newspaper reveals its policy with the following editorial comment: "We agree with Mr. Aspasia that the sentiments expressed by Mr. Oliver Aspasia in his courageous open attack on the anti-Semitic campaign of the anti-Semitic publications in the Canadian metropolis is a violation of Christian charity..."

The newspaper then refers to Dr. Weissman's speech before the Canadian Congress at Lachine, in which the latter pointed out the necessity of finding new homes for the persecuted Jews, and having them settle in the Americas. It states that they shall never again carry the stigma of a parasitic class. It states that there can be no objection to any remarks made in Canada as long as they are made in a spirit of sympathy and understanding. The paper adds: "If we have national reasons for opposing any form of immigration at the present moment such as depression, we must be prepared to oppose the encroachment of a Jewish immigration into Canada." The newspaper states at the same time that Jewish immigration provides for any country through conquest of certain countries, such as Canada, and that the Canadian authorities are not yet on the question of having Jewish immigration all French Canadian newspapers are in complete accord.

A voice in defense of the Jews was raised by Dr. George H. Tamm, head of the Protestant Church in the city, who spoke recently before an overflow audience at the Shaw Hebrew Synagogue.

"Speculation is at a low ebb in our Christian Church," Stanford stated. "We must acknowledge that some of our blunders and tragic mistakes in having animosity against the Jewish people have been paid for. We are sensible of the great debt owed to Judaism, for it is a daughter of the Mother Church."

Spengler Slaps Nazis In Uncensored Book Called Sensational

Daily News Correspondent Reports Philosopher Changing Mind About Fatherland

(J.D.B. Special Correspondent)

CHICAGO, Dec. 15.—The scandalous sonnet by Oswald Spengler in "The Decline of the West," regarding the fall of civilization, has been withdrawn by the author, according to the opinion expressed in his latest book, "Years of Decision." A New York Daily News correspondent for the Chicago Daily News, who has interviewed Spengler, asserted that the author has repudiated the views of the German philosopher by permitting themselves to be humiliated by their policies.

The new book which is described as "a masterpiece of art," "a masterpiece of a drab art of Nazi literature," is described as the literary sensation of the day in Germany. "It is a masterpiece of a drab art, a masterpiece of a writing block cover," writes Mr. Wood, "but with its title in white letters, best talked about by everyone who can read and understand it, it is a masterpiece of a book." That the censorship permits its sale alone would make it succeed after a year.

The winter continues:

"The author has repudiated that Spengler as an exponent of Caesarism and dictatorship would be wholeheartedly for Naziism, which typifies his own views. He has repudiated the Nazi revolution when it came, but now after eight months of power he absurdly avows it as more of a promise than an accomplishment."

Spengler, according to Mr. Wood, still proclaims a world ruled by force, but fails to notice "the terrible and terrible lightnings of today's Naziism as Germany's Caesar. One sees disillusionment in his eyes that the present tools of the Third Reich are not based upon the forces which brought him into the German cause to Germany."

"There were no opponents," Wood quotes Spengler as saying afterwards for his enthusiasm over the revolution. The philosopher characterizes what has materialized since the revolution as "the purest of living Germanic culture."

The writer continues: "The masses of people in Germany are described by Dr. Spengler as 'the most stupid and the most ignorant of the lower classes.' The German author believes that women 'are breeding for men and for canons,' border, and takes issue with Hitler's views that later is necessary.

The writer continues concerning a plank of the Nazi party, Mr. Wood writes: "Spengler describes socialism as 'the most stupid and the most ignorant of the lower classes.' The German author believes that women 'are breeding for men and for canons,' border, and takes issue with Hitler's views that later is necessary.

Deles Polonia Won't Make Scheduled Trip to Haifa

Roman Katskyloski, president of the Galicia-American Zion, denied reports that the S.S. Polonia would be abandoned, sailing from Constanta, Rumania, to Haifa, Palestine, because of restrictions against Jewish immigration now in force in Palestine, he said.

In his report, Mr. Katskyloski said, had their origin in a misinterpretation of the latest rulings of the British authorities to the port of Haifa, which prohibit Jewish immigration to Palestine.

Jewish High School Near For Mexican City Community

(J.D.B. Special Correspondent)

MEXICO CITY, Dec. 15.—The community in Mexico City is soon to have a high school as the result of a donation of $100,000 pesos by the Mexican Bank, which will be used for the purchase of a plot of ground in the suburb known as "Colonia del Valle." The Jewish colony has given a portion of the land for the school, and the high school will be completed, it is expected, about the middle of next year. Money for the building is being raised through contributions from Jewish families with children who will eventually use the institution.

Anti-Nazis Continue Drive in Milwaukee

Pro-Hitler Units Quiescent; German Anti-Fascist Rally Scheduled Today

(J.D.B. Special Correspondent)

MILWAUKEE, Dec. 15.—While local Nazi organizations are still keeping more or less under cover, anti-Nazi groups and individuals have been displaying the lecture platform and the newspaper headlined by the former.

The Friends of New Germany and the German Legion of Hitler, both described as pro-Hitler organizations, have made but slow headway lately and still continue to support the established German societies in Milwaukee.

On the other hand, the Socialists have held several anti-Fascist rallies recently. These have been followed by a virulent attack on Hitler before the Women's Club of Wisconsin; a physician, Dr. Samuel Plaibner, denounced Hitler, "a fanatic with Napoleonic fixation."

All this was duly reported in the press, keeping alive in Milwaukee a spirit of opposition to Hitlerism.

John Shulman, Green Americans of Milwaukee, are to join in the onslaught on Hitlerism with an anti-Fascist mass meeting under the auspices of the Anti-Nazi Society.

The program will include a parody of the Reichstag fire trial; a representation of the concentration camp and other anti-Nazi features.

Milwaukee Jewish defenseless citizens, striking at the Nazi government, have cleaned their shelves of all imported German delicacies and reduce to a minimum the consumption of German beer, coffee, fish, pastrami, matzah and candies were among the imported German articles which Hitler's views had been sold by the Jewish shops.

Newark's Synagogue Marks 85th Birthday

(J.D.B. Special Correspondent)

NEWARK, N. J., Dec. 16.—This morning marks the 85th anniversary of New Jersey's oldest Jewish congregation, Temple Emanuel of this city. The celebration started with a dinner and will continue with a fellowship service this afternoon.

Originally founded in 1848, the congregation, now enlarged, remains the same for its 85th year and established its first home of worship in 1850, according to a history added to the Union Prayer Book. In 1915, it dedicated its present edifice at High Street and Waverley Avenue and later added a spacious belfry containing a massive bell.

The late Rabbi Joseph Leinhardt served the congregation as spiritual leader for many years. In 1905 he was succeeded by Rabbi Leibach Leinhardt, his associate, later succeeding him and has served the congregation continuously. Among members of the congregation are the late Senator Alvin L. Smith, Sen. Felix Field and Preischler Philip Feldman, former president. The present head is former County Freeholder Jacob L. Newmark. His father also was in congregational affairs for many years.

At Friday night's services, the services were conducted by Rabbi William H. Foerster of Philadelphia and greetings were exchanged by Governor Edward F. Murphy and Mayor Eddie Cahn. The sermon at the service was delivered by Rabbi Abraham J. Hoffman of Hartford, Conn.

Greek Anti-Semites Build Case on Lies; Government Friendly

Officials Seek to Suppress Campaign Against Jewry; "E.E.E." Soldiers Jailed

G.T.A. Special Correspondent
SALONIKA, Greece, Dec. 8.—The Government Decree making it mandatory for all shops in the city to close on Yom Kippur has been accepted by the anti-Semitic campaign in the nationalist press of Greece. The campaign, as usual, is led by the nationalists "Makedonia," and the Government was forced to issue a second proclamation, saying that the decree was meant to apply only to Jewish shops, which it of course means not.

But neither this explanation nor the pro-Jewish attitude of the Government seems to bring the anti-Semitic campaign to a standstill. On the contrary, it is galvanizing in violence, and the most unfriendly language is directed against the Jews. The Jews are depicted as the State, the Communists, and the "international匪类." The paper goes on to accuse the Jews of having been in favor of placing Yugoslavia under Jugoslavia.

The most harmful incidents are taken up by the anti-Semitic press and made no secret of Jewish crimes against Slavs.

At the top of this is the story published in the "Makedonia" of a Jewish soldier who is alleged to have struck a Macedonian soldier. The soldier had devoted many columns to this affair and asserted that the Jews struck the Greeks because the Jews are the magicians of the Greeks. The story was repeated and was passed to be a complete fabrication. The Governor-General of Macedonia also declared publicly that all the incidents in the Balkans were anti-Semitic and that he strongly disapproved of this paper.

The Government has taken early steps to combat its friendlessness to the Jews. Members of the Army, both soldiers and officers, have been forbidden to remain in become members of the anti-Semitic and anti-Semitic organization, the "E.E.E.," and two Greek soldiers have been sentenced to 30 days imprisonment for being members of the E.E.E. and participating in anti-Semitic demonstrations.

Another presentation of present-day Greek anti-Semitism was made by all sections of the Y with population in the development of Palestine. The news of the massacre of the anti-Semitic Germans against Jewish immigration caused great excitement. A conference was convened in which all Jewish bodies in Greece, both anti-Semitic and pro-Semitic, expressed and a resolution was unanimously passed stating that these measures were a breach of the Mandate and a flagrant disregard of the principle that Jews return to Palestine of right, and not by tolerance, and demanded that the Government rescind these measures "which endanger the whole work of Palestine reconstruction and development."

Many Greek Jews have been preparing to emigrate to Palestine, but have now had to change their plans owing to these restrictive measures. These measures have resulted in a considerable emigration of Greek Jews to France. These emigres would under normal circumstances have gone to Palestine, but are now prevented from doing so.

Mr. Dold, in So. Africa, Says "Heil" to Hitler

G.T.A. Special Correspondent
CAPE TOWN, South Africa, Nov. 18.—There is a movement on foot here which is strongly reminiscent of the Nazi movement in Germany, although no Nazi party exists. Mr. Dold, a Nazi sympathizer with Hitler's political policies. Nevertheless Mr. Dold concluded that he is bound to the Nazi cause, he said.

Mr. Dold offers his members to wear gray shirts and the Springbok badge, a symbol of young South Africa, and to form a similar Nazi Union election is using his legumees to back him in the elections.

He is exacting a member of the association to sing what Mr. Dold's name is with regard to the Jewish question. He said he is hostile to the Jewish people, and that Jews should be exterminated "for the sake of South Africans" and that proposed to segment it in other countries, "would be stopped."

been accused of casting votes in the elections.

Jewish Group Raises Holdings in Argentine To 1,525,813 Acres

London Colonizing Association Working to Settle Refugees in So. American Haven

Jewish Telegraph Agency
LONDON, Dec. 15.—Proposed settlement of German Jewish refugees in the Argentine Republic was discussed in the Argentine Colonizing Association, at the annual meeting of the association.

Sir Lazard revealed that the association purchased 38,138 acres of Argentine land this year, bringing the total held by the Argentine Colonizing Association to 1,525,813 acres. Of this total, 347,368 acres are already owned by Jewish colonists, while 1,178,445 acres are held by the association for the benefit of agriculturally skilled Jewish families, including German Jewish refugees.

The president of the Jewish Colonizing Association declared that Palestine also affords increased possibilities for Jewish settlement, resulting from the recent agreement reached between the association and the American Emergency Committee.

Describing the activities and achievements of the association, in Canada and Brazil as well as various other parts of Europe, and the progress of the Colonizing Association, the American Joint Reconstruction Foundation, Sir Lazard praised the HICOM, combined Jewish immigration organization, for the important contributions it has made to agriculture in various parts of the world was invited.

Sir Lazard finished his speech with a story of the late Emilie Meinger, director of the Jewish Colonizing Association, and well-known philosopher and writer on Paris in the weeks ago.

Egyptian Jews Resent "Grab" of Vacated Land

G.T.A. Special Correspondent

TEL AVIV, Palestine, Nov. 26.—Two days ago a number of Egyptian Jews vacated a house named Krikil Joseph, and a group of home owners residents of the neighborhood, who had been occupying it, "Sekhem El Khader," complained.

The latter claim that the land shortage forced them to take temporary possession.

German Schools in Chile Purged by Nazi Orders Of Discordant Teachers

G.T.A. Special Correspondent

SANTIAGO, Chile, Dec. 2—Thirty-six teachers in German schools did not see fit to be enough, have been dismissed from their posts and their places taken by thirty others who are being imported from Germany.

The new searches are being sent by the foreign division of the N.S.D.A., the Nazi "League of Education," which was organized last August. The German Foreign Office will pay the travelling expenses for the imported pedagogues, and the Chilean government will pay at least a part of their salaries.

The action is in keeping with the decisions made at the Darmstadt convention of German Foreign teachers, who in German schools outside of Germany were dismissed in N.S.D.A. and Dr. Schenck was placed in charge of foreign schools.

The Displaced Persons' association also decided to use such schools as bases of Nazi propaganda in the German colonies of the various countries and as sources of information concerning the Nazis and their schools.

For this purpose an N.S.D.A. chapter was to be established in every foreign school.

A DELAYED but lusty cheer for "Mary of Scotland," Maxwell Anderson's historical drama which is responsible for the swallows appearance, nighly of the sizeable Alvin Theatre. As the ill-fated but light-headed Mary, Helen Hayes gives a performance that makes even her Cleopatra role shrink in comparison. Supported only by Philip Merivale as the Earl of Bothwell and Helen Menken as Elizabeth, the trio have added a bit and glory to the singing lines of the author. There are a score or so of "seable" shows now current but "Mary of Scotland" deserves the nod.

The fashionable opening of "Candida" with Miriam Hopkins in the leading role, it will have its first official showing this coming Tuesday evening at the Ethel Barrymore Theatre. Queen Davies, who returns as Mrs. Quine, is at present the most popular tennis champion in the country. Gothic McClure is the producer and Donald O'Connor has designed the settings and the costumes. With its last production and a large cast, it will be Miss Hopkins' first appearance on the legitimate stage in two years. As the title does no injustice, "Candida" is a remembrance of life in England in the eighteen-fifties, ease of the man of means in American history.

Yvette Kahn in English

The opening of the English version of the very successful Yiddish "Tevye the Milkman" is set for Friday night, December 25, at the National Theatre. The venerable but astute Daniel Francais, who is presenting the production, has over seen success. Miriam Schwartz, who acted and directed the Yiddish play, is staging the English version. In the cast will be Frize Leibes, Mrs. O'Brien Moore, Horace Ladd, Ethel Wilson and John Wesley.

The Theatre Guild, which was in more or less of a goiter over production costs and the like, "Blood on the Moon," has changed its collective mind. Instead of "Blood on the Moon," as the next production, the boys and girls will now call it "They Shall Not Die." By John Wexley, author of the "Last Mile," it is not that the play is based on the Suez Canal case. "They Shall Not Die" will open sometime in February.

More About Birds

With full realization that we may be becoming something of a bore, it is to inform you again that "My Fair Lady," the first real English play, will open at the Selwyn next Friday night. A gentlewoman known as Eliza Doolittle, with whom we have been in Mexico, Lee Tracy, plays another newspaper reporter role in "Advice to the Lovelorn," the screen's idea of the private life of the wife of a duchess.

The "Farewell" things look promising, as Ben Birns and his band of entertainers supply the stage atmosphere for the new musical comedy "Broadway," which Roland Young directs the horrors in a picture named "His Double Life." Arthur Hopkins, who has produced many stage successes, directs this musical comedy. Al Jolson, Eddie Brady and crackhitting Lionel Barrymore are the featured players in "Sheed Ladies Behave," now at the Capitol. . . . And by the way, there is a new musical comedy at the Astor. You should take the children. . . . If you care for the more arty pictures, "Velvet Volga" is your dish. It is at the Cameo, very British and historical, if you know what I mean.

Actors in "Jew Suss" Threatened
At the Shepherd's Bush studio in London where the German Stringer film company is shooting "Jew Suss," adapted from the novel of the same name by Louis Feuchtwanger, comes word that Conrad Veidt, the leading man, and Lothar Mendes, the producer, are rightfully worried over the possibilities of being persecuted by the Hitlerites if and when they return to Germany. Herr Hitler does not like the picture, pictures, and has especially advised all German artists to return to Germany immediately. Veidt and Mendes have decided to finish work on the picture, regardless of the consequences.

On December 22 at the St. James, when the Monte Carlo Ballet Russe opens its American tour the program will consist of Delteil's La Comedie (Continued on page 2), the Tchaikovsky's "Les Sylphides" (Continued), and "Le Beau Danube" (The Beautiful Danube). Three ballets will be presented every evening, including Saturday evenings. When it is expected to last well into the winter, the Monte Carlo company will make a tour of America's larger cities which will return to Europe in April.

is positively not Jewish. So that is how it can be unimpeachable that the author of a great deal of anti-Jewish bloodshed doesn't know just how much in the late Arnold Rothstein. Counter the rumour that Maxine Leyman, King Carol's mistress, is, or was, a Jewess. Of course, the game can be played according to varying personal predilection, but the point is that excluding the distinguished writer, while another would play it to exclude the gentile. And the point is that while the game is that it takes all kinds of Jews to win the kingdom and that it is about as futile to exclude Jews of the type that discredit the race as it is to include those who are not Jews or do not wish to be known as such. We are not a race of talents and we are not a race of savants, and if the gentiles of the Anglo-Jewish press emphasize, they ought to make some distinction between tree eminence and a talent for successful racketeering.

been enough to warm the cockles of any sentimental heart. Replete with virtuosity, the earnestness of an individualistic art, this Carnegie Hall concert made negligible Elman's occasional lack of precision, and even his lack of musicality. His playing was impeccable English assessment that "by popular request, we will sing 'Black Eyes.'

Thus do we go a-glimmering to sing "Black Eyes" ought to be encouraged. With high hopes, then I attended the Diets Classical Recital Male Chorus's concert. It looked for a while that history was to be made that evening. The program contained no mention of "Black Eyes."

But just before the third group, a particularly ungainly Czech, a pianist, could not manage to sustain his tone, and the audience, with a groan, gave up the ghost.

Jacob Wassermann's First Novel

THIS process is inevitable. When a novelist has become great, some publisher in some part of the world is sure to call to our attention some early specimen of the Titan's labors and we discover the process by which the great one struggled up from uncertainty to certainty. "The Dark Pilgrimage," which is the title under which the Liveright people have brought out Jacob Wassermann's first novel, "Die Jäger Von Zirndorf," is interesting not so much in itself, though it has its moments—as for the marvelous chain of stories which it was the first. It is difficult to realize while reading it, although not improbable, that the man who wrote "The Jews of Izmar" wrote also "The World's Harp" and "Cage Hand."

The story is full of scattered feeble and sketchy mystifications, a very large cast of characters and a pretty thick slice of mystery, history and general muddle. It is a curious example of a story which outruns the knowledge of life of the story-teller. There is a definite ratio between the sources of the material and the story-teller's own youth, as revealed in the recently published "My Life as a German and as a Jew." A reading of "The Dark Pilgrimage" is like a visit to the past, when the world was still a medieval German town, when the Jews of Salzburg, the anti-semitic Pope Meissel, was waiting for Jews of the world at Salzburg. The chapter describes the setting out of the Jews of Salzburg to their homes to meet the Massai and their hordes upon with a tortured account of the misery of a group of German people, Jews mainly. It is clear that the separate themes of the story are not drawn tightly together.

Perhaps the best realized, part of the book is the Prelude, wherein we learn of the mystical impact made upon a medieval German town by the Jews of Salzburg. Zeph, the anti-semitic Pope Meissel, was waiting for Jews of the world at Salzburg. The chapter describes the setting out of the Jews of Salzburg to their homes to meet the Massai and their hordes upon with a tortured account of the misery of a group of German people, Jews mainly. It is clear that the separate themes of the story are not drawn tightly together.

Bright, plump, dynamic Dave Stern is destined to move New York City into a period of municipal reform. Last night he bought himself the New York Evening Post, a newspaper which he has long wanted in his own hands. He has announced that the policy of the paper, which heretofore had always looked toward, will be militant, social, and progressive. Stern, however, does warn you must realize that he will what he says.

He entrance into the New York market is a great gratifying surprise. The Post could not have been more successful and it looked very much as though another group of newspapermen were going to do the headlines.

Miss Stern's purchase has changed the entire picture.

David Stern is a Jew. Born Philadelphia in 1892, he attended the High School and then the University of Pennsylvania where he earned degrees in arts and law. After a session at the University of Berlin he became a reporter on the Philadelphia Public Ledger. His first permanent position was as general manager of a bought-out newspaper, the Standard. A few years later he founded the Philadelphia Record. It was with this paper that he made the valuable contacts which led him to take over the Record it is definitely a second string sheet.

Stern looked around and decided that there was something seriously amiss in the corrupt political machine that had ready access to Philadelphia's money boxes. It was with this paper that he made the valuable contacts which led him to take over the Record it is definitely a second string sheet.

The early tomes in America where "My Earth" made the best seller list was New Orleans. First edition was still available and well illustrated to be.

After all the fuss about the impending publication of the memoirs of General George Washington, Schlesinger says something that they do not think they will be able to bring the book out. It was found that Liveright had not furnished sufficient material for a full-blown expose of the literary world.

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 15—Mrs. Albert Liveright, who has been handling $40,000,000 of state funds used, was finally confirmed as Secretary of Welfare by the Pennsylvania State Legislature Wednesday night.

Belied this brief news item is a story of triumph of personality over politics; of victory for public service over petty politics. For almost three years Mrs. Liveright has been serving as Pennsylvania's Secretary of Welfare, as the Governor's appointment, despite repeated refusal of the State Senate to confirm this appointment. Tactfully, she is the first Jewess in Pennsylvania to hold the job, one of trust and responsibility. By virtue of her position she is a member of the cabinet of one of the most colorful personalities in American public life today, Governor Gifford Pinchot.

Mrs. Liveright is not a political novice who was in all likelihood, never will be. Not until the day of her appointment early in 1911 was she generally known as politically belonging to the Socialist party. Her appointment was in no sense political. In fact it came as a complete surprise to those who expected to be "in the know" in Pennsylvania politics. The politicians were annoyed and refused to give her official confirmation. Every time her name was presented action was deferred.

The Jewish community of Philadelphia is proud of her, for she is indeed their very own, a Philadel-

Hadassah Drive On For Hospital Funds

Committees are being organized in more than two hundred and fifty cities in all parts of the country to conduct local campaigns for the Hadassah-HebREW University Hospital, for which Hadassah, the American Women's Zionist Organization of America, and the American Jewish Physicians' Committee are raising $200,000 as a building fund. The institution, to be erected in Jerusalem, will be a joint hospital and graduate medical school.

The country-wide campaign is being conducted from the national headquarters of Hadassah in New York. Mr. Edward Jacobs, former national president of Hadassah, according to George C. Liss, chairman of the national board, Dr. Emanuel Libman, outstanding pathologist and chairman of the executive committee of the American Jewish Physicians' Committee, and Dr. Nathan Rothoff, president of the American Jewish Physicians' Committee, constitute the building fund committee. Divisional committees will be organized by all of the two hundred and fifty chapters throughout the country, in cooperation with groups of organized physicians interested in this new development in Palestine.

At the early tomes in America where "My Earth" made the best seller list was New Orleans. First edition was still available and well illustrated to be.

Since I wrote that piece about the 27 books on drinking I found eight right away. The most popular publication in the next two months. If you really want to know where wine can get a very fine book on the subject for nothing. Simply write the Mousetrap Company for a free copy.

After all the fuss about the impending publication of the memoirs of General George Washington, Schlesinger says something that they do not think they will be able to bring the book out. It was found that Liveright had not furnished sufficient material for a full-blown expose of the literary world.

The sponsors of the project believe that this is a most appropriate time to call attention to the campaign. There are available today in Palestine a number of distinguished scientists and medical specialists whose services to the national administration will avail itself of the opportunity to gather to the hospital men of prominence in their respective fields.

Canadian Hadassah In Membership Drive

(Jewish Daily Bulletin)

Montreal, Canada, Dec. 15.—The Canadian Hadassah drive for members will be continued until January 15, it was decided at a meeting of the executive committee of the organization held here recently. Mrs. A. J. Freiman, head of Ottawa, regional president of the Hadassah Organization of Canada, presided. Mrs. Rady of Windsor, vice-president of Canadian Hadassah and chairman of the membership campaign committee, was among those present.

The campaign is directed by Mrs. Freiman and Mrs. Rady. One of the members enrolled during the period of the drive will be chosen to visit Palestine as the guest of the organization.

During the few months that the campaign has been in progress many new members have been added to the Hadassah rolls and many new chapters organized. In such cities as Montreal, Winnipeg, St. John, Sudbury, Kingston, Toronto, and Victoria, the campaign drive has made fine headway; it was declared.

Mrs. Hartley Will Direct Hadassah School of Woman

Mrs. S. H. Hartley has been named director of the New York Hadassah School of the Jewish Woman to succeed Dr. Trude Rosenthal, who has relinquished the post because of the fundamental divergence of policy between Dr. Rosenthal and Hadassah, and because of Dr. T. Mrs. Hartley also holds the position as external chairman of the New York chapter.

The classes of the Hadassah School for the Jewish Woman will convene to meet as scheduled in the Central Jewish Institute Building, 125 East 52nd Street. Classes are free.

Sons Fill Gap Left by Death of Chassid Rebbe

Czortkower Rabbi's Passing Is Cause of World-Wide Mourning

Rabbi Israel Friedman Was Direct Descendant of Ba'al Shem Tov's Pupil

SON, NAHUM, RETURNS

52-Year-Old Rabbi Goes Back To Town to Carry on the Work of His Father

The recent death in Vienna of the noted Czortkower Rebbe, Rabbi Israel Friedman, of the famous Chassidic dynasty of rabbis founded by Rabbi Baruch Ber Schneerson, pupil and successor of the founder of Chassidism, the Ba'al Shem Tov, has brought sorrow to his numerous followers in the United States, most of whom was always eager to secure his passing as a major catastrophe for the Chassidic world. However, his 52-year-old son, Rabbi Nahum Mordechai Friedman, who had been an associate of his father and the line of Chassidic rabbis began in the latter part of the eighteenth century will continue in an unbroken line. He has succeeded his father, the 60-year-old Rabbi David. Rabbi Nahum, it is said, will return to Czortkow, where he will rebuild his father's home, destroyed during the holocaust.

American followers of the Czortkower Rebbe are said to number thousands here in New York and throughout the rest of the country. They are reluctant to discuss the miracles attributed to him although they were willing enough to talk of his greatness, his remarkable personality, his versatility, and the respect shown for him by Gentiles. Rabbi Israel never opened a similar book after his father died, but according to them, he could discuss the most recent scientific developments, astronomy, physics and other subjects as easily as in his father's day. His followers are said to be numerous and famous, and once unceasingly recalled the names of one of his followers, the great Rebbe Nachman of Breslov, who was also known as the "rebbe ha'atzma'ut," the master of all the names and ages of his children in the proper order.

Redeemed from Devils

An aged New York rabbi told of an episode to which his friend had been a party. A young Jewish man in America who was lost with devils. Every time he said his prayers, images of devils, who took various forms, appeared to him. Once, to the Czortkower Rebbe, in Vienna, he said. Following Chassidic custom, Rabbi Israel sent him a reply in the letter of a letter, without delay. For a time the evil stopped, only to return later. A second appeal to Rabbi Israel for help brought the reply that you must now be a first-class son and not a fourth-rate property, referenced according to Jewish law. When the young man investigated, he found that it was a son of Rabbi Nachman who had performed the redemptive ceremony. The rabbi called in three Cohens, descendants of the priestly tribe, and carried out the ceremony. The young man, at that time, the plow young man has been able to realize his prayers undisturbed.

Rabbi Israel, according to his followers, was an ardent Zionist received from his followers all over the world. So great was his generosity to the poor and indigent, that he was constantly in debt. From the Ukraine, where he was born, he said, he received an annual income of some twenty thousand dollars. Every year his followers made it a point to increase the sum, so as to strengthen their belief and obtain his blessing. It was customary for each pilgrim to leave a contribution for the upkeep of the rabbi's establishment.

When Rabbi Israel died in Czortkow, it was a common occurrence for him to be lost on the Sabbath night by the benevolent grooms who escorted famous Chassidic rabbis, men prominent in the business world and scholars with all of whom he enjoyed discussions.

The establishment at Czortkow included the immediate followers of the rabbi, many who were rabbis themselves and others a group of singers including a Cantor who sang the prayers on Sabbath. Many of the famous European cities came to Czortkow to inquire for a purpose of singers before the rabbi. Music and the love of music are integral parts of Chassidism, and the services were conducted in accordance with this, as was the assembly, was deeply devoted to it.

Although Chassidic customs forbids rabbis from writing the work of their fathers, the Czortkower Rebbe followed this rule, and his followers published in two volumes, "Tikkunei Tzadik" and "Tikkunei Yeshua," the works of his father in his view, was very much concerned with world affairs, on which he kept well-informed, and very much interested in the United States, about which he was always eager to acquire information.

Friend of Lubbitz Rebbe

Rabbi Israel was a close friend of the Lubbitz Rebbe, who, with his son, Meir Shalom, the Lubbitz Rebbe Shalom founded the Yeshiva "Chachmei Lublin". Rabbi Israel appeared in

The Czortkower Rebbe is also credited with the foundation of an orthodox organization in Czortkow, the Agudath Charedim. It was later transformed into the ultra-Orthodox Agudath Israel.

the greatest and most remarkable

Rabbi Nachum was born in 1796, and died in 1860, at the age of sixteen. Possessed of a brilliant mind and a handsome appearance, Israel the Rebbe was soon the most popular member of influence throughout Russia. He lived in great pomp and luxury, almost as a king, surrounded by diverse accomplishments of every kind. Polish nobility flocked to him for advice and counsel along with the thousands of his students in all walks of life.

In Prison, a Martyr

His great wealth, however, was the cause of his downfall, as his lavish and bearing became legendary. He lived in a beautiful home, kept a carriage drawn by four horses and maintained a private orchestra to play for his guests.

Stern, Post Owner, Journalism Leader

in-chief of "The Review." This publication, originally a review of the literary aspirations of the group, it was here that J. David Stern received his first editorial training.

Published Camden Paper

Upon his graduation from the law school of the West End and Little was board of him until his return to Camden (N.J.) as editor and publisher of the Camden Courier and the Morning Call.

Through his newspapers and by generous personal contributions he supported the various local Jewish activities.

To suddenly that occurred in 1919, when he became chairman of the United Jewish Appeal in Philadelphia, which he served for many years, was the time by the three newspapers preceded activity in other directions.

A contributor to the various Jewish funds, he remained chairman of the local Jewish Committee, till he became a public figure, he made a similar attitude to giving space to publicity in the Philadelphia Record which he viewed as a newspaper of record.

In all the Jewish institutions were no exception.

At times there was the feeling in Jewish circles that The Record was "bending backward" in the vicinity of space given to Jewish activity.

Aggressive Anti-Nazi

Then came the German aspect. The effect on Stern was extraordinary.

Overnight The Record became one of the most militant, if not of the most aggressive anti-Nazi newspapers in America. Vigorous anti-Nazi editorials were placed on the front page. The boycott of Germany was the first line of Stern's of its strongest advocates.

When Sigmund Untermeyer called the one-day conference in New York City to the founders of the Congress of Jewish Leaders for the Defense of Human Rights, Stern came emphatically among the very first arrivals and stayed late. Together with several other prominent leaders in the community, he pledged a considerable sum for Philadelphia and made a substantial contribution of his own. At the intercessional dinner, Stern was the first man to sit at the head table. Since then his interest in Jewish affairs has increased considerably.

Since then a large number of friends in Philadelphia. A number of these friends helped him to acquire the Philadelphia Record. These and many other friends and admirers of Zionism and the cause of the country—now rated in wishing him success in his newest and greatest venture.

build a temple but a stately mansion built the size of a palace. Here he lived and died, surrounded by thousands of pilgrims from among his devotees every year. He died in 1933.

The Succession

Two of his sons survived him at Safedora. Two others went to Israels' followers there, and the two younger to Courtown (now David Moser), who died. One son was succeeded by the latter's son, Israel, who has just died, at the courtown rabbi. And now the dynasty is confirmed by Rabbi Imd's two sons.

The roots of Chassidism, which produced such dynasties as the Friedman's, in which the Chassidic rabbis represented the spiritual life of Chassidic schools, and which has survived the ridicule of its opponents for more than a century, may, perhaps, be found in the singularity that the Bal Shem Tov, founder of Chassidism, brought into the world.

The Bal Shem Tov, a dry and austere formalism was the rule in Jewish religious observance, with the ignorant masses of Jews far removed from the elaborate knowledge required for holy site. The Bal Shem Tov introduced worship in which the male features were simple and the entire ceremony was conducted by means of physical gestures. He also taught that it was not necessary for a man to be versed in the interpretation of learned works in order to be a good Jew. To become a "righteous man," he declared, was the essence of true religion.

The Dualities Spread

When the Bal Shem Tov died, the dualities of "Chassidism" and "Zaddikim," spread until it became the essence of Chassidism. The pupils of the Bal Shem Tov maintained their positions in the towns of the Ukraine, in which Chassidim immediately secured a great hold. The Zaddikim, their spiritual leaders, healed the sick and interceded with God in the interest of followers. They devoted their whole time to holy work. Gradually, however, the Zaddikim, whose lives were now considered as being fanatically and turned to him for advice and help in all the problems of life, began to grow fat. In due time, his son took his place, and the virtues of the father were transferred to the son.

However, as Chassidism, with its marked dualities, spread to other parts of the East European Jewish world, it encountered much opposition. The great rabbi of Lubavitch, the leader of all Chassidim, even received the help of the Russian authorities in their fight. Chassidism was attacked by the conservative Jews, the scholars, and by the Russian authorities, who regarded it as a subversive movement, which denied spirituality.

At this time, the conflict between the Chassidim and their opponents, known as "Mitnagdim," ended and the two groups began to intermarry. Today, regular social and friendly intercourse with Chassidim. Today, the ridicule which Chassidim once inspired has given way to a recognition of its contributions to Judaism. In its present form, Chassidism is a way of life in many of its complex phases is revealed in Jewish literature.

Chassidism itself is by no means dead. It is not a movement of the past. In the main, it has held its own in Europe. The Chassidic dynasties continue. Neither religious nor social, the descendants of modern life have succeeded in diverting thousands from the teachings of the Bal Shem Tov and his successors.

Viereck Called Chief Nazi Propagandist in U. S.

Helmut Von Gerlach Asserts Pro-German Agent of War Days Is Enacting Same Role for Hitler

Helmut von Gerlach, prominent Nazi writer, is using his article published in the Weltjahr der Wissenschaften, a Possus publication, charges George Sylvester Viereck with being a propagandist for the Hitler government.

Here was Gerlach's charge that Viereck is the soul of Hitler propagandists in the United States, that he is the agent of Dr. Paul Joseph Goebbels, Nazi minister of propaganda, that he has the Nazi propaganda ministry formulated plan for the Nazi propaganda efforts in the United States with Viereck as the jester.

By HELMUT VON GERLACH
In less than two years after the war that Mr. (George) Sylvester Viereck was introduced to me, he had only just come from Duenes and declared with an incomparable enthusiasm: "I have a definite plan for the German recovery of our country." My consternation I suppose must have expressed some slight doubt, for Viereck added: "I am the man!"

(George) Sylvester Viereck can be inspired in these cases where the object of the enthusiasm fails with the scope of propaganda activities he has been engaged in. This enthusiasm for the Hohenzollerns there is also no element of family consideration. His father, Louis, the second son of King Frederick Douglass of Prussia, died in the Heidelberg war, earned a son of William I and the actress Viereck. Besides, certain scholars believe that in the recent past the Hohenzollern family were dropped. But the mother of the actress Viereck—she is an actress and indeed a Jewish actress, daughter of the Hebrew daughter, as the (George) Sylvester Viereck would in a sense be a Hohenzollern of the second power. The set of the simple grandfather of Louis I is, or may rate, unassociated.

The "Spiritual" Department
During the World War (George) Sylvester Viereck was the soul of anti-Semitic propaganda in the United States. With Goebbels and Captain Boyd as military and marine attachés, headed the purely spiritual department in the form of acts of subversion, in the form of acts of sedition, in the form of acts of rood, straitened fanatics—Viereck was to mitigate the so-called spiritual depression, to spread such antisemitism as were rampant, in the spirit of the war of the Wilhelmian Germany against the decadence of the Allies. The money placed at his disposal from the Goebbel's department paid for him to instill a mentality of his own in these purposes. America's entry into the war against Germany did not help. Pape, Bayld and Viereck, but rather accelerated these sentiments.

There was a time after the war, when Viereck was very well-to-do. The great war cost him his complete fortune.

Today (George) Sylvester Viereck is the soul of Hitler propaganda in the United States.

During the Summer and Fall, at the invitation of Goebbels and at the expense of the Minister of Propaganda of the Empire, His old love for the Hitler government continued, but he knows how to combine it with his new love for Hitler in an advantageous fashion.

While in New York he appears at the end of September, Viereck announced to the American people:

"The Kaiser Is So Sorry"

"The former Kaiser is very sorry that he has not found his way of fate, is ordered to sit part in the preservation of his people. He feels that Hitler has completed the work which began when Hitler had left Germany and the world from Hohenzollern. Whether U. S. declares Hitler has removed the yellow stripes from the German flag,"

Viereck attempts to bring the enthusiasm for Hitler to the Americans by means of his own words, the extension of the ex-Kaiser's words. He, who naturally knows the American mentality to some extent, adds nothing of his own thoughts. He follows his source. He knows that the Americans have no appreciation of Hitler's anti-Semitism. Therefore he declares in his interview what he has heard from his source:

"Hitler will come to an understanding with the German Jews, by making an agreement with them, to make up for the German Church."

The Report of Germany by foreign Jews hints the interests of the German Jews. This applies particularly to the procedure of the American Jews.

At this Faurer would exclaim: "That you should hide your nose in your own face! A treaty between Hitler and the Jews is similar to his concordat with the Catholic.

His native is noticeable. He knows how deeply the white American people, by whom religious tolerance is a religion, are shocked by Hitler's crusade against the Jews. He therefore attempts to tell American public opinion by speaking of the possibility of a concordat, a pact of peace between Church? Mr. Viereck knows very well that Hitler is separating the Jews not because of their religion but an account of their alleged sins, but that the Jewish wife is just as guilty in her eyes as the child is of Christian parents. He knows that the few he has been raised of his equality as a citizen and what respects are to be made to him in the Hitler program. If Hitler had learned the Catholics as such in their citizenship rights, and then had done something to offend the Pope, he could easily well imagine what answer he would have received from Rome.

Maple It Is "Chutzpa"

If Herr Viereck were a Hitlerist, he would never make "Chutzpa" to say that he must have "change" to make up tables for the Americans about Hitler's intention of making a concordat with the Pope.

His native is noticeable. He knows how deeply the white American people, by whom religious tolerance is a religion, are shocked by Hitler's crusade against the Jews.

At this Faurer would exclaim: "That you should hide your nose in your own face! A treaty between Hitler and the Jews is similar to his concordat with the Catholic.

George Sylvester Viereck in a statement to the Jewish Daily Bulletin, here as follows, before he was interdicted from the Nazi Weltbewerb's article in Hohenzollern Gefecht:

1. "Today, Sylvester Viereck is the soul of the Hitler propaganda in the United States."

2. "I never received an invasion from the German Ministry of Propaganda, nor did they pay the expense of my trip to Europe."

3. That he and Dr. Goebbels have a definite propaganda plan for the United States.

I do not know if Dr. Goebbels has a definite propaganda campaign for the United States. That is the point which you must address yourself to the German Minister of Public Relations himself. I fancy that he is too busy with the task of coordinating sixty-five million Germans to make any effort in another direction.

As a student of propaganda, I could, no doubt, suggest numerous methods for the German government to use in Germany, which would like to cultivate once more as a national pastime. Certain extremists in your own ranks have done more for the Nazis than any German propaganda could possibly achieve. As a dominant factor in Germany, Hitler has already begun to show in Peier's writing publications in his daily paper, Beobachter, were famous now when a Jewish boy, son when he had taken his "good king henry."

Was Bested by Brother

At the same time, Krasnau learned that his sister had become infatuated with Charles Borenstein, a wealthy, ugly, balding, boorish Jew.

A jealous friend of Anatolias's told Krasnau of the affair and he, like his parents, best advised him to drive her from their home.

The two lovers slept, separated, finding ways to see each other, in the dead of night, to daily attacks upon the couple, and accused the Jews of hating Anatolia, whose name means "the rose" in Hebrew, cover.

Finally Krasnau sent a reward of five hundred rubles to anyone who would find his sister again.

Hearers of the reward visited the young couple and they changed their hiding place. Then Krasnau threatened Anatolias. When they heard of the threats and Anatolia decided to leave Russia and emigrate to the United States.

Thus their plans were delayed and they were still in Saratovsk when Borenstein, a brother of Anatolias, first met his wife, Viskash, near Krasnau.

Only a sister was saved, but before the hooligans had eat off one of her arms.

An Official Escort

Thereupon later the Krasnau parents began, on the first day of Passover, 1920.

Anatolias officially converted to Judaism with a priest. Sarah and Borenstein were married by a rabbi. Later they managed to stem across the Russian border and sailed for the United States, arriving here in September, 1920.

To help his wife acquire Jewish tradition, speech and character, he brought her to a rabbi in New York.

However, the suspicion that Sarah was a convert began to gain ground and the Borensteins moved to a house where they were unknown. Mrs. Borenstein told the Forward:

Mr. Viereck knows very well that Hitler is separating the Jews not because of their religion but an account of their alleged sins, but that the Jewish wife is just as guilty in her eyes as the child is of Christian parents. He knows that the few he has been raised of his equality as a citizen and what respects are to be made to him in the Hitler program. If Hitler had learned

Hitler and the Jerry of Germany, Hitler and the Jerry of Germany, he is not dangerous, his counterparts much too weak. Most Americans know little about Europe, but they know enough about Hitler. Germans to be scared than to go to Germany's and his son's sacrifice. They are not quite so dumb as M. Viereck would like to have them.

Mr. Viereck-Paper-Ho-Ea

propaganda was the best means, during the War, of bringing the overwhelming majority of the American public on the side of Hitler.

It can Germanize the inopportune amount of money and yet only harm Germany. The Nazi propagandists have been established cohorta will have the very same effect.

Dickstein, the chairman of the House of Representatives Immigration Committee, has already announced that he would like to speak to the German Ambassador to the United States, in regard to his arrival and indecision in America as well.

Obviously Goebbels and Viereck have drawn up quite a program for the United States. An official National Socialist party bureau has been established in New York.

They settled in a modest neighborhood, Mr. (George) Sylvester Viereck's sister, Lea, who had been living in a sheltered lands claimed, lives with Sarah Borenstein, who, like her, was born Anatolias Krasnau, but is called Anatolia, a name given her by Peter Krasnau, prime mover and organizer in that tragedy in the history of the Jews in Czarist Russia.

Lea, who has been living in the United States for thirty years, told her grim story to H. A. Ackerman, author of the book, "A Life in Letters," which features the Auntie in this Sunday's issue.

Ackerman is the Forward reporter. He, like his mother, is tall, thin, bare, Maykish, and is pieced like many Jewish women. She was born in Krasnau, 1893, the daughter of a wealthy俄国犹太人. Her husband, Peter Krasnau, her half-brother, was twenty years old at the time. The stickers of anti-Semitism, when he was born, were very bad. Peter Krasnau had already begun to show in Peier's writing publications in his daily paper, Beobachter, were famous now when a Jewish boy, son when he had taken his "good king henry."

"Mrs. Borenstein among those who are at present least influence American opinion are the agents of Adolf Hitler."

For the last eight weeks our committee has been investigating the operations of certain German organizations and German individuals in the United States. Although we are greatly hampered in our investigation by lack of funds necessary to pay the expenses of our agents, we have succeeded in securing sufficient evidence to define the Nazi government's role as the most dangerous threat to our democracy that ever exists."

Mr. Dickstein said: "We are at last getting to the bottom of the fox-skin political machine, whose activities will prove of startling interest when the full scope for cognizance."

Has Evidence on File

Mr. Dickstein said that he had no evidence to show that the German Government

had offered his investigation.

He said that the American Fascist movement had grown to formidable proportions, and that the strongest direct financing of German Nazis was operating here.
