German Jews were marked by a sweeping at-"tack that threatened lives, homes, and positions in many fields. By merger of the two main anti-anti-Semite groups to form the new International Committee for the Jewish Settlement of the Dachau concentration camp, Germany's anti-Nazi movement gained a strong new force in the fight against the Nazi regime.

Greece
Police guards were set up around Salamis, Nicosia, and Limassol to prevent the smuggling of arms to the Greek islands. The Greek government welcomed the move as a strong gesture of support for the First World War.

United States
New Jersey, under the auspices of the Provisional Commission for Jewish Refugees, announced the American Legion for the Displaced Persons Program to start a series of activities to combat Nazi propaganda and to open its membership to a number of distinguished non-Jews. The organization is called the Non-Sectarian Anti-Nazi Legion to Champion Human Rights. Its Governor-General H. Lehmann based the German government's position on the mass arrests in a speech delivered at Madison Square Garden at the repeat performance of the Maccabean Festival. President William Howard Taft of the American Federation of Labor called on the Legion for its support in condemning the Nazi boycott resolution adopted by the AFL during its annual convention.

Athens, Greece—The Greek government has ordered the deportation of the refugees from the Dachau concentration camp to the Soviet Union.

Dickenstein Won't Head Nazi Investigation

Berlin, Germany—The Jewish Telegraphic Agency reports that Dickenstein was appointed by the American Committee for the Defense of German Jews as the head of the Zionist Convention to be held in Berlin. The convention, scheduled for May 13, will discuss the future of Jewish life in Germany.

Berlin Jewish Pleads With Co-Religionists To Be More Jewish

Berlin, Germany—Ludwig Hollander, former director of the Central Committee against Anti-Semitism, has written a letter to the Jewish Telegraphic Agency, suggesting that the Jewish community in Berlin should become more active in defense of Jewish rights in Germany.

Bulgarian Jews told a member of the Jewish Telegraphic Agency that they have been urged by the Bulgarian government to demand the release of all political prisoners and to work for the establishment of a Jewish state in Palestine.

Palestine
The deportations of Jews illegally expelled from the country continued and gave rise to an unusual incident involving a group of Jews from the police by a crowd of friends and relatives. The incident occurred when a group of Jews was stopped by the police while they were on their way to a funeral.

Roumania
Several Jews who were named as heads of the anti-fascist movement were arrested, including a number of important leaders of the Jewish community in Roumania.

Nazi Press Is Advised

Sir John Simon Not Jew

Sir John Simon was advised by the Jewish Telegraphic Agency to remain as a non-Jew. Sir John Simon, who is Jewish, was advised to stop his activities in favor of the government.

promising occupations for new Brazilians.
It costs about five hundred dollars in American money to settle a family on a farm. Land is usually available on long-term installment payments, and with a carefully planned schedule the farmer can begin to pay up his obligations during the second year. The cooperation of the various groups and interested agencies would undoubtedly result in the government's yielding a number of concessions, so that with the investment of only a very slight capital a very promising and profitable Jewish colony could be established, one which would add further importance to the Jewish community of Brazil.

with them to this country; they are so-called housewives and tailors, making clothing for children and of white goods, suits and hats. In season, men and women earn good money at knitting mills. No men's tailoring here; but these types of work there is a number of other trades which the immigrants might open their own factories or workshops where they might secure on commissions from owners whose plants are in Europe. Such trades include millinery-making and carpet-making, binding, shoemaking, and a number of others. Jews brought over with them which whole families are employed in a factory hand are due to eight months a day. (A 10-hour shift is ten American hours requiring 600 miles an hour at the peak of summer.)

In 1819 A Family of Four requires 608 miles for the month to live in ordinary comfort. No idea! Some of the Jews lived in Germany on a single 1,500,000 deposits—savings that total over one billion dollars. The Bank has paid these depositors $195,000,000 in interest, dividends. If you are not already a savings bank depositor, read the facts below, so that you may become better acquainted with New York's oldest savings bank.

THE PIONEER . . . . In 1819 The Bank for Savings received the first savings bank charter granted by the New York State Legislature.

RECOGNIZED POSITION . . . . The Bank for Savings is one of the larger banking institutions in the United States and today serves over 200,000 depositors.

114 YEARS OF SAFETY . . . . Safety for savings is the Bank's first principle. This is a mutual savings bank, operated for the benefit of the public, not for private gain.
