United ReliefCampaign

IN THE projects to relieve our distressed German Jewish brethren there should be coordi-nation and unity. The Jewish people are puzzled by the separate appeals for help. There is grave danger that without coordination the response to all the appeals for relief will be inade-quate. Plans are being formulated for coping with the tragedy of the German Jewish refugees and the distressed needy Jews in Germany by all the representative Jewish organizations who are co-operating with the High Com-missioner for German Refugees, appointed by the League of Na-tions. Dr. Weizmann represents the Zionists in the Council. The American Joint Distribution Committee was represented by Felix M. Warburg and James N. Ros-enberg during the recent deliberations on the subject of immediare and reconstructive relief at the conference held in London under the chairmanship of Lord Cecil and High Commissioner McDonald,
The Jews of America will soon and Jews of America will soon be called upon to make greater sacrifices than ever before to cope with the unparallelled calamity that has befallen Jewry through Nazi bigotry and cruejative. The problem of settling Centre The problem of settling German Jewish refugees in Palestine and in some other lands will be solved with the aid of Jewish solved with the aid of Jewish generosity. Vast sums will be re-quired. The Jewish people will be expected to give its proper answer to Hitlerism by saving answer to Hitlerism by saving the victims of Hitlerism. It would be a grave blunder if we were divided even in our relief and reconstruction work. At this crucial moment there should be one unified campaign for funds. The Joint Distribution Committee and the Palestine fund white reverse the Palestine fund-raising organ-ization should make a united ap-peal to American Jewry, and there will be no excuse for the failure of any American Jew to respond to the limit of his caphave a substantial share of the funds to be raised for the set-tlement of German Jewish refurees there, for Palestine is now offering the most logical and most practical solution in this crisis. The Jews of America dare not fail our persecuted people in Germany by splitting up our re-lief efforts at this tragic mo-

WE PUBLISH elsewhere in W this issue a letter from Rabbi Edward N. Calisch, of Richmond, Virginia. Dr. Calisch approves our pointing out that "while Austrian non-Jews are "while Austrian non-Jews are described as Austrians, Karl Ra-dek, who is an Austrian of Jew-ish origin, is classed as a Jew," and adds that the Jews themsain stats that the Jews inem-selves are in no small measure to blame for such a "nátional classification". ## Nazis Hurl BombsatJews Thru Austria

Shops Raided, Wrecked -Police Rushed to Scenes of Disorder

(Jewish Telegraphic Agency)
VIENNA, Feb. 6.—Nazi attacks on Jews throughout Austria continued unabated today with acts of terrorism by Austrian Hitlerites reported from a score of centers. Bands of Nazis in the smaller cities and towns raided Jewish stores and establishments, assaulted pedestrians and caused heavy damage.

At Salzburg, Nazis hurled a bomb into the retail store owned by a Jew, Ornstein, completely demolishing the establishment and causing damages estimated at 10,-000 schillings.

Austrian authorities are making a determined effort to maintain peace and check the vandalism of the Nazis but their efforts were unavailing in view, of the wide-spread disorders. Police detach-ments and other government-supporting forces were hurried back and forth throughout the country, from one scene of disorder to another, in an almost fruitless atstandard in an almost truitless at-attempt to put down insurrection. Scores of Nazis were under arrest today for participating in the at-tacks and were taken to concentration camps.

An official communique issued tonight stated that Nazi property would be used to compensate vic-tims of Nazi disturbances, but so far, no Jewish victims have received any compensation.

Jews Fear Coup

Developments in the general situation have had only a slight reuation have had only a slight re-assuring effect on the Jewish popu-lation of Austria, now deeply con-cerned over the possibility of a Nazi group. Hope is placed in the appeal to the League of Nations for protection against the German threat to Austrian sovereignty which the Dollfuss government is now drafting for delivery to Geneva later this week.

Fears that the Fascist home grard, the Helmwehr, chief sunport of the Dollfuss government, had abandoned Dollfuss to establish its own Fascist dictatorship aroused yesterday with reports of a putsch in the Tyrol, were some-what quietened today when it became apparent that the new gov-ernment set up in the Tyrol had the Dollfuss hand behind it and was not directed against the Dollfuss regime.

chant of Venice' Is Not Anti-Jewish

(Seedel to the J.D.B.)

DETROIT, Feb. 6.—An address here before a lecture forum by Louis K. Ansyacher, playwright and lecturer, has revitorista controversy as to whether or not "The Merchant of Venice" should be banned in the public schools.

Anspacher appealed to his audience to use influence with boards of education "to get "The Merchant of Venice' out of the hands of high school students." He maintained that "it's a bad play to begin with, and there's no use to begin with, and there's no use to pattern a child's mind to its prejudice. It is full of anti-Semitic prepudice and was just a bit of propaganda." He reviewed the background of "The Merchant of Venice," explaining that in England, in Shakespeare's time, the Law was the vibilation. Jew was the villain. The great dramatist wrote the play the year after the death of the Spanish Jewish doctor, Don Ruy Lopez who was hanged because he was charged with a plot to poison Queen Elizabeth

"So terrible has been the effect of this play," Anspacher declared, "that in Schleswig-Holstein there was a law that no performance of 'The Merchant of Venice' could be given unless it was preceded the vening before by a performance of Lessing's 'Nathan the Wise,' which portrays the Jew as a philosopher. This law was passed because when 'The Mer-(Centinued on Page Eight)

Jew Forbidden to Act As German Child's Guardian

(Jewith Telegraphic Agency)
BERLIN, Feb. 6 -- A Jewish wyer cannot act as guardian for a Christian child, the county court ruled today in confirming the de cision to the same effect reached by a lower court some time ago.

Immediately after the Nazi re-volution, the Jewish lawyer ap-pealed the case to the County Court, which declared in its ver-dict that it is not in accord with the spirit of the new state or with the sentiment of the German peo-ple for a German child to have a Jewish guardian.

(Jewish Telegraphic Agency)
Berlin, Feb. 6.—An official Nazi organ was suspended today for the first time in the history of Nazi

The newspaper in question the Wochenschrift, which has been forbidden to publish any issue until March 17. The action against the Wochenschrift is ascribed to its attack upon Berlin newspapers which continue to employ Jewish ex-soldiers.

The Wochenschrift made its attack in a front-page article in which it referred to the small number of Jews thus employed as "Co-ordinated R e I on Suk a new Jordinated New The Relichabanner, a republisor guard, was banned by the practically nullified by actions of Nazis immediately on thice com Nazis immediately on thice com Nazi party headquarters in four ng Continued as these larges Co-ordinated Reichsbanner

"These agencies must watch that the laws are car-ried out so long as they are in effect and should not be contradicted even if they are not perhaps fully in accordance with Nazi principles."

Frick's decree is considered a major victory for Dr. Schmitt who, actuated by fear that Nazi displacement of Jews in industry and commerce and efforts leading to suspension of Jewish commercial activities would seriously af-fect the German economic structure, has strenuously fought to prevent Jews in business and commerce from being molested.

His frequent decrees protecting the Jewish position aroused the criticism of the Nazi press which severely denounced him, and were

Rabbi Wants Congress to Exempt Victims From Quota Law

The doors of the United States "have been closed tighter than the doors of any other nation, and our principle of asylum has been conspicuous by its absence," declared Dr. Israel Goldstein in an address last night on the Jewish Daily Bulletin hour broadcast over sta-tion WEVD. Dr. Goldstein, who is rabbi of Congregation B'nai Jeshurun and president of the Jew-ish National Fund of America, was introduced by Herman Bernstein, editor of the Bulletin. He spoke on "Is America Doing Its Share for Germany's Victims?"

Discussing the new government ruling on immigration, Dr. Gold-stein declared that it was not enough. "I believe that if our counwould wish to be ranked in forefront of asylum-offering nations, it would have to do more," he said. "A real test of how much the principle of the right of asylum means to us would, it seems to me, be the passing by Congress of legislation exempting victims of political and religious oppression from the quota restriction altogether. Another test would be their exemption from the 'public charge' restriction."

Arab Holy Day Demonstration 'False Alarm'

Only Few Hundred on Hand to Protest Against Jews .

By JULIAN MELTZER JERUSALEM, Jan. 20 - The alarms and excursions incident upon the Arab demonstrations scheduled for the country on Id Al Futr, the Moslem "Ne'ila," have subsided amid general Arab gloom. For even the most enthusiastic Arab leader has not had the courage to proclaim otherwise than that the attempt to flog the dead horse of politics was nothing but Instead of tens of thousands which the Arab newspapers confidently boasted would flock to protests hear the stereotyped protests against the Mandatory Power and the Jews, a few hundreds trickled along in every city or town, most of them idlers and bystanders who were pushed along by the processlons. There were no more than 1,000 to 1,200 each in Jerusalem, 1,000 to 1,200 eacn in Jerussacm, Jaffa and Haifa, and a few hundreds in the other towns and Arab and Arab centers. It was obvious that those who attended did so half-heartedly. Davar, the Hebrew Labor daily has a pithy comment upon the Arab excursion. "As might have been foreseen, the peaceful Arab demonstrations were a proof to the lack of spontaneity in the bloodshed on other occasions. The number of participants in this li-censed affair was far less than those who took part in the last illegal assemblies," it says. "This was a government victory as a biece of strategy. But the bitter political significance of these hostile demonstrations against the Mandate as licensed by the gov-ernment itself cannot be dismissed as lightly as our gratification that nothing untoward happened. It has created a dangerous precedent; it has given impetus to the Arab cause of enmity to the Jewish cause and a new breath of victory has entered their ranks."

The Government's Duty

The paper points out that it is a right, which the Jews will never surrender, for the Jewish people surrender, for the Jewish people to enter and settle in Palestine in the fullest accord with the absorp-tion capacity of the country. It tion capacity of the country. It is equally a duty that the government has solemnly undertaken to-wards the British people and the Jewish people to sponsor to its utmost Jewish immigration to and settlement in Palestine. No violence, no brow-beating, and no amount of opposition will make the Jews swerve from that pur-pose It winds up with a demand that demonstrations such as these will not be taken as pretexts and weapons to wield against the Jewish rights. The Palestine government issued a bald announcement of the peace-ful passage of the demonstrations. "Arab meetings have been duly licensed by the respective District Commissioners, in accordance with the law, and took place in all the towns of Palestine this morning," said the communique. "The route prescribed and the conditions laid down in the licenses granted for these meetings were faithfully observed, and the participants dis-persed quietly to their homes persed without incident in every case."

Heckled Mufti

The temper of some of the participants at least may be gauged ex-convict, just released from prison sentence in connection ith the 1929 disturbances, furi-ously heckled Sheith Assad Alwas reading the pattern-protest, and declared that the leaders had simply beguiled poor unsuspecting people into doing their fell designing and bearing the consequents of the same of Meraat Al Sherk, Christian Arab daily pub-lished in Jerusalem, declared that the Arabs ought to protest against their own leaders who sell land to the Jews, and advocated moderation too.

It is perhaps significant that few Christians participated in the processions, and that the bulk of the demonstrators were Moslems.

Rabbi Gerson B. Levi read a statement on the "Importance of a School System in the Life of a Jewish Community" in which he pointed out that the central effort of the Board of Jewish Education to create a school system would give opportunities for Jewish edu-cation to all.

Dr. Robert Sonnenschein, president of Sinai Congregation, disdent of Sina Congregation, us-cussed the question "What the Community Can Do to Help the Schools of the Congregations." He said that the policy of the board is "to act as an educational agency to all groups of Jews here by givsome instances financial subsidy and in other instances educational help and supervision. It does not impose any one type of Judaism or any one program on all schools affiliated. It supple-ments the work of Jewish education done by Chicago Jewry through undertaking those necessary activities without which a school system is impossible, but which no single congregation can undertake, namely, teachers' training, secondary education and the improvement of texts and meth-ods. There are now affiliated with the Board thirty-six elementary schools, ten of which are orthodox Talmud Torahs; eight conserva-tive Sunday Schools, four reform Hebrew schools and six reform Sunday schools. Mrs. Moses L. Purvin, member of the Public Library Board of the of the Public Library Board of the City of Chicago, read a paper on "What Shall We Do for the Un-schooled Jewish Youth?" The board, she said, conducts Jewish Youth Leagues in eight Chicago public high schools. If also guides the educational activities of such organizations as Young Judea, Avukah, Junior Hadassah and Avukah, Junior Hadassah and other Jewish groups. The Keren Ami is a group of boys and girls from the elementary Jewish schools who gather every three months to discuss Jewish current affairs and to decide how the money which is raised among the children in the schools every week for Jewish purposes shall be distributed among various Jewish funds. The extension department of the board has helped in con-ducting large mass affairs for the Jewish youth of Chicago, such as Jewish Youth Field Day last summer and with the help of the col-lege is offering a course on "Jew-ish Movements in Modern Society." Dr. Alexander M. Dushkin, directing Jewish educational work cided that their contributions were in Chicago, discussed problems to go for Jewish education.

The Reader's Forum

Editor, The Jewish Daily Bulletin:

with pleasure and profit your daily editorial notes under the heading of "Now" in the Daily Bulletin. In the issue of the 2nd inst. you comment upon the article
"Men of Russia" by Mr. James E.
Abbe, in which Mr. Abbe writes about the men that control Russia today. You complain because Mr. Abbe catalogs a number of the men as Jews when they should have been put under some national classification. You say "while Austrian non-Jews are described Austrian non-Jews are described as Austrians Karl Radek, who is an Austrian of Jewish origin, is classed as a Jew." I agree with you that this method of putting Jews in a national classification is wrong, yet I venture to say that Jews themselves are in no small measure to blame for it.

The Zionistic movement with its nationalistic claims, the Jewish writers who speak of a Jewish na-tion, these are in no small measure responsible for the maintenance of this myth of Jewish na-

Another phase of the question is the racial egomania that afficts a great deal of the Jewish press, who are fond of emphasizing Jews who come into the public eye in one way or another, who ing as Jews all kinds and class of people who happen to rise above mediocrity. If the Jews insist upon claiming credit for Jews, who achieve fine things, they must take the burden of reproach for those Jews who misbehave.

I am as proud as may be the most ardent racial Jew of the success that some Jews have made in cess that some Jews have made in public and professional life, but it is a most serious mistake to be constantly calling attention to their Jewish affiliation or origin.

Very truly yours, Edward N. Calisch. Richmond, Va.

Saving the Psalms

Editor, The Jewish Daily Bulletin One is delighted to notice in the eports of The Associated Press reports of The Associated Press that the German sensibility, in the head that if it were not for their religion and their saving person and talent of Herr Wolhelm sense of humor the Jews would Teudt, is making a vallant effort, and the werekage of German-tures ago.

Jewish culture, to save the Psalms. Of course they are now not exact-ly Psalms, but God Songs, a thoroughly inspired name however; not Jewish, but Aryan-why not? we devoutly hope so-; not exactly monotheistic as some of the pre-exilic poets preferred, but they display some of Herr Teudt's neo-pagan worthies rescued from (very likely) undeserved oblivion: Ingo. Interly undeserved oblivion: Ingo, Istu, Ermin. . . The old Psalms are "purged" as some of those concentration camp incorrigibles were "purged." The transformation is intoxicating, health-giving, for now "The Lord leveth the height of Germany more than all the dwellings abroad," and, "The Lord loveth the yew tree of the Odenwald and the oak of the Bal-Assuming that the Lord is not above such universal affection, that the Odenwald oak is as dear to him as the Lebanon tree, but st'll with slight misgivings as to His invitation into the German foreign office, we cannot but admire Herr Teudt's rescue party in the ruins. It may turn out after all that German Semitic hatred is involuted, blushing passion.

Dr. Max Naumann, the valiant Jewish defender of all Hitler prin-ciples—except the application of them to his Nationalist German Jews—has seen the number of his followers increase rapidly since Hitlerism came to power. Dr. Naumann, it will be recalled, is the leading spirit in the small group of German Jews who profess a Germanism rivaling that of the Nazis themselves

In recent weeks, however, Dr. Naumann has encountered competition from another group of na-tionalist Jews who preach also the doctrine of National Socialism.

Despite the growth of his move-ment and his strenuous endeavors to ingratiate himself with the Nazis, Dr. Naumann has had but little success in his efforts to be appointed Nazi commissar in chief over the Jews of Germany. The Hitlerites seem to gather that despite his protestations, acceptance of him would run counter to their theory that a Jew is not man, racially or nationally.

Lipsky Opposed to Immediate Conclave of World Congress

Says Present Foundations Would Be Fatal to Conference

Louis Lipsky, chairman of the American Palestine Campaign, op-poses the immediate convocation of a Jewish World Congress and advises leaders of the American Jewish Congress to "hold action in abeyance with regards to the in abeyance with regards to the date of elections, or the date of convening of the Congress until the idea has penetrated more deeply into the minds of the leaders of American Jewry, until the situation is clearer and the purpose of the Congress may be expressed in more definite terms."

In a statement made public yes-terday, Mr. Lipsky warned that "it would be fatal to the success of the World Jewish Congress to proceed upon the foundations that have been laid to date. The idea has not been worked out. The propaganda has been inadequate Reasonable efforts have not been made to win the consent and ap-proval of those who seem to have objections to the enterprise."

Terrible Conditions

Terrible Conditions
"It will be generally agreed that the terrible conditions of Jewish life require not merely a forum for the discussion of the Jewish problem, but an international organization equipped with power. protected by discipline and loyalty, in order that all our resources, both spiritua! and material, may be placed in the service of the Jewish nationality, now facing un-paralleled conditions of disorganization and distress. It is imporzation and distress. It is impor-tant, however, to consider with great care how such an interna-tional organization is to be cre-

"Those who believe in a World Jewish Congress regard it as a necessary step in the direction of organizing a permanent interna-tional body which is to represent and speak for the whole Jewish neonle: which shall have authority people; when small have authority to guide action for the protection of Jewish rights; and which shall be in an effective position to draw upon the resources of the Jewish people for the defense of Jewish interests and the reconstruction of Jewish life. The Congress is to be the public forum and the legislature of such a permanent body. This is a matter which requires constructive statesmanship. There constructive statesmanship. There are some things that do not lead themselves to dramatization and that must be worked out with serious thought as to how Jews are to be won and how they are to be brought together for international cooperation through the proposed international organiza-tion.

Success Vital "Before such an international body is convened, it is essential for its practical success, it is a duty which the promoters of the idea owe to the movement, that secure the cooperation and support of organized Jews, national international, not only for particiinternational, not only for partici-pation in the Congress delibera-tions, but also in all the prepara-tions that are to be made to cre-ate the permanent body. Those who are called upon to participate ought to know definitely and without equivocation, what is aimed at what are the implications of such international action on the part of the Jewish people, and their views as to the method of of the Jewish people, and procedure and as to the forms that are to be set up for the realization of the aim, should be given care-ful and earnest attention. Support is not essential on all points, but a general consent is required in order that as large a body of responsible Jewish opinion as possible may be represented, first within the World Jewish Congress and, second, within the permanent organization that is to emerge out of the Congress.

"It is therefore disconcerting, to say the least, to find that the American Jewish Congress, taking for granted the validity of a decision of a conference held in Geneva in 1932, has come to the conclusion that, without any fur-ther delay, it is in order now to force action in advance of effective preparation by agreeing to a date for the constituent meeting of the World Jewish Congress in the summer of 1934, and by setting the date for the election of delegates. The Geneva Conference of 1932 was not a body competent to decide such matters. It was not composed of representatives authorized to summon the World Jewish Congress and to decide the date of the convening of the Con-gress or its program. They had no specific mandate. Situation Not Canvassed

"They had not canvassed the situation thoroughly. The decision of the Geneva Conference of 1932 therefore open for review reconsideration and does not constitute legal or moral authority for the American Jewish Congress to proceed in so important a mat-ter. These decisions of the Ameriter. These decisions of the Ameri-can Jewish Congress, made in ad-vance of a thorough canvass of organized Jewish public opinion, marching ahead of events, without an earnest attempt to lay the out an earnest attempt to lay the foundations for the World Jewish Congress by drawing in all pos-sible forces in support of the movement, will, in effect, mean the sacrifice of the interests of the permanent organization for the sake of the easier and the ordi-nary task of convening a congress nary task of convening a congress or conference for discussion. It will mean practically that all the activity of elections and all the controversies arising out of the in-cident will resolve itself into just another international conference. It is a pity that those who are interested in promoting the idea do not seem to understand that what is proposed to be done is to build up an international Jewish organization and not merely convene a congress.

Invitation Extended "It is said that an attempt has been made to present the issue to representative Jewish bodies in America, and that they have been invited to participate. I am told that public notice has been given to representative Jewish bodies to participate in a meeting of the National Executive Committee of the American Jewish Congress. No formal attempt has really been made to elicit an official state-ment from these bodies. No discussion has been entered into with these bodies as to the content and form of the proposed World Jewish Congress, A general invitation to attend a public meeting of one of the legislative bodies of the American Jewish Congress cannot be regarded as a serious effort on the part of the American Jewish Congress to enter into reasonable dis-cussions with the bodies referred to. There are many prejudices to be removed. There are many explanations to be offered. There are possibly new ways that may be suggested as to how to achieve the desired object. The method of approach and the tone of the ap-proach is of the utmost importance. Whatever we may think of parties are free to express their views with regard not only to the ultimate aim, but also with regard to the preliminary steps taken to achieve that aim. "It is said that quite a good at is said that quite a good deal of space has been occupied in the press with regard to a World Jewish Congress. What has occupied the press on this subject is the publicity loud and excited that goes with the enterprise. It has been taken for granted that all those who may be sympathetic to the creation of a World Jewish Congress are by implication also sympathetic to the ways and means adopted for bringing it into existence. It has been taken for granted that the reading of news about a World Jewish Congress involves an understanding of the purposes of the congress. I ven-ture to say that, although many Jews have a vague idea of the meaning of a World Jewish Congress, very few of them have yet been adequately informed, through propaganda and through regional conferences, through discussions with leading representative men, of the program and implications of the World Jewish Congress and of the responsibilities that may arise out of the creation of the proposed permanent international organization.

"In other words, it is not unfair to say that the necessary founda-tions have not yet been laid for a strong, conscious, moral and fi-nancial support of the permanent international organization that is to be created by the World Jewish Congress. Summoning the con-gress before authority and sanc-tion has been created is bound to result in invalidating the ideal represented by the movement, and will prejudice all future efforts that may be made in its behalf. By its very nature, such an organization cannot be put together in haste, nor can it be created with-out careful consideration of all the steps that are taken in order that organized Jewry, once committed to the proposal may stand strongly behind it. The promoters of the idea cannot run ahead of the constituency, expecting the constitu-ency to catch up with them. Once the constituency is left behind, in ignorance and confusion, under the impress of excited slogans not understanding exactly what they are in for, they will remain back-ward for all time and will never be integrated effectively in the fixed structure which has been created for them without their conscious participation and coop-eration, The World Jewish Congress and the permanent interna-tional Jewish organization represent a revolutionary idea in Jewish life; it must be built up with patience and forethought, step by patience and forethought, step by step; Jewry must be won, in a real sense, to an allegiance to all that such an organization signi-fies in the development of Jewish

"In my judgment, it would be fatal to the success of the World ratal to the success of the world Jewish Congress to proceed upon the foundations that have been laid to this date. The idea has not been worked out. The propaganda has been inadequate. Reasonable efforts have not been made to win the consent and approval of thos who seem to have objections to the enterprise. More labor and devotion must be put into the task before such definite steps as fixing the date and the method of election are taken. It would be much better for the leaders of the American Jewish Congress to hold action in abeyance with regard to the date of elections, or the date ful and earnest attention. Support tance. Whatever we may think of action in abeyance with regard to calmly and slowly as if the seem-cannot be secured through running the views entertained by the orthogonal proposed or organizations of people or of organizations above referred to, they for the convening of the congress, the case of organizations who are entitled, under the rules of until the idea has penetrated most work are entitled, and entitled, under the rules of until the idea has penetrated most be foreign and emocrated body. It is not setting up of what is pressumed will be a democratic body to have their views heard and debated and settled in impossible, and not with regard to pose of the congress may be a roll doubt he was a lew. She can a democratic bashion. Unaminatly decisions shready fixed, but at pressed in more definite terms."

CHAPTER XV

The realization that her new was definitely settled rendered Sarah a little calmer Was she to be discouraged at the very outset of her journey, when the road which lay before her was long and unknown and perilous? Fear seemed paltry and unworthy of

On the contrary, how pleasant, how gay it was to walk along as she was doing! Freedom, the wind, the open road, and each crossroad led her nearer to her destiny.

The wind suddenly descended. A gentle and prolonged peal of thunder rumbled in the sky. Sarah hastened. From a low, rambling building with lighted windows came the noise of song. It was

A flash of lightning, a surly growl of thunder, and rain fell in torrents. Drenched in an instant, Sarah's thin dress cling to her body. She took shelter under the porch of a pretentious looking house at a short distance from the tavern. The storm_had dispersed the night mists and Sarah could see the rain dancing at her feet.

Hugging the walls along the street scurried the crouching fig-ure of a man in a long cape. Evidently realizing where the nearest shelter was, he dashed toward the porch, and in doing so ran into Sarah before she could move out of his way.

"I beg your pardon," said a cool voice in Dutch

Sarah stepped back without replying. Fright had recaptured her. Meanwhile the young man was staring at her attentively. The presence of this apparently decent young lady under this porch and young lady under this porch and fill him with astonishment. Her light dress and the little package in her hand suggested she was a discharged servant, but her beauty was not that of the lower classes. Did she realize the infamous reputation of this street, and

If she were unaware of it she must be a stranger, doubtless runaway.

He resolved to find out Sarah, though she had overcome her fear. was still disturbed. For the first time in her life, and under the strangest circumstances, she found herself close to an unknown man. She would have liked to hurry off.

Moreover, she feared that by flee-ing she might arouse him to pursue her. Although she was with-out the slightest experience, in-stinct told her that it would be wiser to remain silent and to stay where she was. At any rate the "Pardon me for having troubled you. Be quite at ease, I will not bother you again. But if you need anyone to take you where you are going, and to protect you against more venturesome people than I, be assured that I am entirely at your service.

He uttered this long sentence calmly and slowly as if the seren-

"Are you a Jew?"

The artist moved a step nearer. "Yes. My name is Emmanuel Tezkeiro."

"I am a foreigner," Sarah said.
"A Jewess from Poland." The extraordinary simplicity of her remark impressed the young man. Only a child having no sus-picion that the world is divided into those one knows and those one does not know, confides in a stranger as this young girl had

"It is holding up a little," Tez-keiro remarked. "It will soon end.
Which way are you going?"
"I do not know," Sarah thought-fully replied. "But I know where I am bound, and the particular street does not matter."

Silence followed this remark.

Tezkeiro could understand nothing. This strange young wo-man. Is she completely sane? he wondered. And who was she? "Are you staying in Amster-dam?" he asked.

"No. I am trying to find the road to the Orient."
"To the Orient? The Indies?"
"No. Smyrna, Cairo, or Jeru-salem."

"You are all alone?"

"Veg" "But how are you going to find your way there? Do you know the road?"

"No. But I will ask those who

"No. But I will ask those who do. I will ask in the ports."
"Do you want me to help you?"
Sarah did not know what to answer. Had she not already said too much? The fact that the young man was a Jew reassured her, but suddenly she thought that perhaps he was not, that perhaps he had been lying to her. But no sooner had the suspicion arisen than she became ashamed of it Where would she ever end if, with her voyage hardly begun, she was already full of distrust. No, it was necessary to believe and have

"I shall be very grateful if you

The rain had ended. In a neigh-

"Three o'clock," said T zkeiro.
"Morning is still far off. You must "Morning is still far off. You must have some sleep. I will take you wherever you wish to go, and to-morrow, if you will permit me, I shall help you to find your road." I' will go my way," said Sarah. "And perhaps tomorrow." She paused, undecided. How could she find him tomorrow?

Jews Adopt 35 Reich Children In Milwaukee

Orphan Home Pledges Itself to Care for Additional Fifteen

(Special to the J.D.B.)

Milwaukee, Feb. 6.—Thirty-five local families pledged themselves to adopt at least one German-Jewish child at the annual meeting here vesterday of the members of the Milwaukee Jewish Orphan home association.

The Home itself has already voted to take in 15 such children between the ages of five and ten, and a committee is now negotiating with federal government officials for permission to bring these youngsters into the country.

All told, Milwaukee will thus be accepting at least 50 children of the victims of the Nazi terror, with the possibility that even more local families may volunteer later to receive and care for such "orphans."

Reich Cabinet Is Won Over

Since the decree issued tonight is in the name of Frick, one of the chiefs of the Nazi movement, and carries the weight of the Reich cabinet behind it, it is ex-pected that it will carry far more weight than Schmitt's unsupport-ed commands and may, therefore, prove a measure affording some relief to Jews still remaining in German commerce and trade.

Significance is attached to the decree in that its issuance may mean that Schmitt has brought the rest of the cabinet around to his belief that continued discrim-ination against the Jews in commerce was harmful not only to the victims, but to Germany's economic situation as well, since the ening of the position of socalled Jewish firms reacted on the unemployment situation and eco-nomic conditions in general.

There's going to be another an-niversary next week. "Liberation," niversary next week. "Liberation," the magazine published by Wil-liam Dudley Pelley, Silver Shirt extraordinary and chief tuner-in on the Psychic Antennae, will be "In one week from today," as the magazine itself announces, "there will be 52 issues of continu-ous expose of the traitorous control of our Government and American institutions by the enemies of our country."

And, describing his horrendous struggle against the forces of Evil (meaning the Jews who "fill every (meaning the Jews wao 'nil every important office in the Washington government," in case you didn't know), Pelley announces "that every inch of this Silver Legion program has been under the counselling of Magnificent Wisdom—that though these nares whime an through these pages shines an All-Pervading Presence which, to recognize, comprises an attune-ment with the Soul of the Aryan

And Pelley, ex-scenario writer that he is, almost slipped in a "Came the dawn" there. But he remembered he was in a different business now, in a racket that must be getting a little tough. For the last lines on the last page of "Liberation" announce that it will "sweep forward" in exactly the tempo that those thousands of

There are in the current issue, for instance, the usual revelations of the inner workings of the gov-ernment at Washington. Postmasernment at Washington. Postmas-ter James J. CHATTANOOGA, Feb. 6—Nazi treatment of Jews was denounced as "cowardly and stupid" by Dr. Ethan Colton, world traveler and lecturer, in an address here be-fore the Rotary club.

"I have read and seen the play most of my life," Bingay writes, "and it never arouses within me anything but the deepest sympa-thy for Shylock and the Jewish people."

Declaring his doubt that Shake Declaring his doubt that Shake-speare had written the play in the spirit of anti-Semitism, he said, "The theme is as old as literature. It had been played as a crude and vicious comedy. Shakespeare took it and with his divine genius made of a comedy one of the world's most poignant tragedies. He called it a comedy because it had always been accepted as a comedy, but the Master knew that the dividing line between comedy and tragedy is invisible."

Quoting Shylock's plea in the play, Bingay continued, "There spoke a man! Combine it with the spoke a man: Combine it with the plea of Scott in Ivanhoe and the answer to the Sultan in "Nathan the Wise" and you have a com-plete protest against bigotry."
