Outlines the Plea

Defines Jews' War on Hitler In Radio Talk
Rabbi Newman Discusses Jewish Self-Defense Statesmanship
The world will be grateful to the Jews for their war on the Hitler peril, declared Rabbi Louis I. Newman of Congregation Rodeph Shalom, speaking over Station WEPD last evening on the weekly Jewish Daily Bulletin broadcast. "The Statesmanship of Jewish Self-Defense," warned American Jewry against the conciliatory propaganda of the Nazis.

"The statesmanship of Jewish self-defense is not to be understood in the language of armies and navies," declared Dr. Newman. "It does not even depend on diplomatic negotiations, inasmuch as Jewry has no accredited representatives in the chancelleries of the world. Our self-defense rests entirely upon the justice of our cause, upon its appeal to the best and reasonable sentiments of humanity; upon our ability to awaken public opinion in our behalf, and upon our power to use the practical instrument of economic pressure, a means of defense approved by the League of Nations, and useful to every oppressed minority folk."

Dr. Newman was introduced by Herman Bernstein, editor of the Jewish Daily Bulletin.

Will Be Introduced at Albany Soon; Relief Food Discussed

A state-wide bill permitting the observance of the Jewish Sabbath by Jewish businessmen in non-Jewish as well as Jewish neighborhoods, to be introduced shortly at Albany, has the approval of Mayor Fiorello LaGuardia.

Jewish businessmen who wish to observe the Sabbath and conduct their business on Sundays were advised by Mayor LaGuardia Monday to display signs stating that they were Sabbath observers and, should they be served police summonses for keeping their places of business open on Sunday, to accept such summonses without question.

The mayor expressed his views on Sabbath observance to a committee representing the Union of Orthodox Rabbis, which called upon him to protest against continued police interference with Jewish businessmen. The mayor said that he respected the desire on the part of Jewish storekeepers and others to observe the Jewish Sabbath, and promised that he would confer with Police Commissioner O'Ryan on the subject.

The rabbinical delegation, which included Rabbi Jacob Levinson, Rabbi E. Predemsky, Rabbi Joseph Konrat, Rabbi I. Idelson and Judge Jonah J. Goldstein, also took up with the mayor the question of non-kosher food, which is distributed by the home relief offices to the Jewish needy. Washington Talk By Reiss on Radio

Founder Is Impressed With Jews' Attitude During Revolt, He Says

Discussing "George Washington and the Jews" in a radio talk over Station WBNX, under the auspices of the Young Peoples League of the United Synagogue of America, Sidney H. Reiss declared that "there could not be lost on a mind so keen as Washington's the realization of the similarity of experience and of purpose of the American people and their Jewish brothers."

"During the course of the revolution," Reiss continued, "he was to observe further what the American Jew would do to defend the cause of liberty and religious freedom. No doubt, he was impressed with the example of such as Chaim Salomon, who gave his time, his energy and his entire fortune of $300,000 to preserve for his co-religionists that home where there was set up no state religion in derogation of all others and where all might worship as they saw fit."

Theatre & Cinema

By FREDERICK V. SEANE

"Bolero"—Paramount
"BOLERO," a screen drama by Borzage Jackson, Carol Wilson and Rubie Glasman, based on an idea by Ruth Ridman, directed by Walter Pidgeon and presented by Paramount at the Paramount Theatre.
You could imagine that by casting the sleek, sinister-looking George Raft in the role of a cabaret dancer the result would be a striking and effective picture, but, alas, "Bolero," which is now grinding out a week at the Paramount, just fails to fulfill its promise.

It is not entirely Mr. Raft's fault. The picture which deals with the life and career of a dancer in pre-war Europe, begins with the hero starting out as a gigolo in a Paris night club. An ambitious fellow, determined that nothing shall stand in his way to success, his only interest is dancing and he is shown chasing heartlessly aside his various female partners because he does not share his almost insane love for that art. Finally he meets a woman (Carole Lombard) who is as ruthless as himself and he falls in love with her. The war interrupts his career and when he returns years later he finds that she has married another, but he dances the last Bolero together and our hero then conveniently dies of heart failure.

When I mentioned above that the weakness of the picture was not Mr. Raft's I meant that the producers cast him in a role that required a wider talent than Mr. Raft possesses. His is limited to a stunt. When he acts "hard boiled" he is in his element but to make him run the gauntlet of human emotions is expecting too much. As a dancer he is more than adequate but as an actor he fails because he can play on but one note. It is really too bad. Raft has done some good things for Leo Films but to try and make another Paul Muni or Edward Robinson out of him will result in nothing but a loss of popularity.

However, "Bolero" is still better than the average picture picture. You are disappointed only because you expected so much more.

"When in Rome"
"When in Rome," a satirical comedy by Austin J. Major, will be off at the Astor Theatre this night next Thursday night. The cast is headed by Kenneth Dalgarno and Alney Alba.

Shayne Added to Cast
Robert Shayne has been added to the cast of "Yellow Jack," which Guthrie McClintic is preparing for an early production. . . . Jo Mielziner is preparing the production which will facilitate the rapid changes on the stage required by the twenty-nine scenes in the play . . .

The Bulletin's Day Book

A most complete exposure of the Jewish situation in Germany during 1933 is to be found in "Das Schwarzbuch, Tatsachen und Dokumente," ("The Black Book Facts and Documents"), issued by the Committee of Jewish Delegates in Paris. The volume, which contains 536 pages, gives a well-authenticated survey, largely based on German sources—German newspapers, governmental decrees, etc. The elimination of Jews from the German economic system, officialdom, professions, universities, theatre, films, and newspapers, is described in detail. It is by far the best documented and most valuable publication to appear so far, and will prove of interest to all those who are following the developments in Germany.

The book was initiated by Leo Motzkin, the founder of the Committee of Jewish Delegations and with his death on November 6, 1933, its indefatigable leader. Dr. Nahum Goldman is Mr. Motzkin's successor and president of the Committee, and deserves credit for the early publication of this invaluable compilation.

Germany does not seem to be interested to do away with Christian religion because of its Jewish origin, but must also make "The Pure in Heart," scheduled for an early opening. Mr. Powers will be co-featuring with Dorothy Hall and James Bell.

an attack on monogamy. A supplement of the Goettliche Zeitung entitled "Die Frau in Heim und Beruf" (The Woman in Home and Profession), quotes in its issue number 42 the following sentences from the book of the German philosopher, Professor Ernst Bergmann, "Erkenntnisstages und Mutterrecht":
"Monogamy for lifetime is against nature and harmful to the race. Wherever it is really carried out—and among human beings it is unfortunately always the case—the race must suffer. In a well-organized State, the woman who has not given birth is dishonored. There are willing and zealous men and boys to take care of the existing women and girls, and fortunately one energetic fellow would be enough for ten to twenty girls who have not yet yielded their desire for children, if an unnatural cultural nonsense about monogamy and permanent marriage does not exist."

Those who attended the reception in honor of Ely Eliot Palmer, American Consul General at Jerusalem, Monday were particularly impressed by the remarks of the British Consul General at New York, Mr. Gerald Campbell. Fine wit, thoughtful observance of the world's events and a sympathetic spirit towards Jewish efforts in Palestine, were evident from Mr. Campbell's statements. Mr. Campbell's words wishing Consul General Palmer godspeed, denoting the plight of the men in the diplomatic service who are transferred from place to place, and his sincere expressions with

Stamping Foreign Goods
Editor, The Jewish Daily Bulletin:

While the Jewish War Veterans of the United States have no desire to enter into controversy with any other organization, yet I cannot help but call the attention of the public to an article published in the press on Monday, February 19, alleged to have been released by the Non-Sectarian Anti-Nazi League.

This statement is a gross misrepresentation and is inexcusable in that the League claimed credit for a recent ruling of the Treasury Department in reference to the proper stamping of foreign goods coming into this country.

The truth of the matter is that the United States War Veterans of the United States was the organization that succeeded in effecting this favorable ruling from the Treasury Department. We have documentary proof of this in our possession and will be glad to show it to any one who cares to see it.

regard to developments in Palestine, were heard with interest by his audience. Mr. Palmer's simple statements were also appreciated by every one present, who felt that the new Consul General will be a genuinely conscientious representative of American interests in Jerusalem.

According to Achim Goerke, head of the Racial Department of the German government, there are three million Jews and persons of Jewish origin in Germany. The Racial Department recently announced an archive has been created and containing the names and genealogy of about three million persons. Every Jew, and everybody of Jewish origin, is listed on an index card system. Another archive contains the names of thousands names which sound German and are used by Jews. A staff of 870 officials investigates the birth records of the various towns in order to discover those Jews who became converted to Christianity, and to investigate the origin of "Aryans" who have Jewish blood. The index card is not one in a position to prove his purely "Aryan" origin as far back as January 1, 1930, is considered non-Aryan. His date was chosen, because, before 1930, the Jews lived in ghettos and mixed marriages did not take place.

The American broadcasting companies are jumping quite out of their skins in their anxiety for foreign "attractions." Hitler and Dollfus have become their "stars" and are permitted to tell the most outrageous lies and to use the radio, no effort being made to label the lies as such on the spot," declares Jacob Fishman in the New York Journal, commenting on a situation calling for attention.

"Sunday, for example, the new 'bachelor' had the range of America's air thanks to the boot-licking policies of the twenty great chain broadcasting companies. Each word uttered by Dollfus was a deadly lie. No workers were attacked, but a government did not begin the massacre, but the government was attacked . . .

"Why do these sinister spirits of the world desire the hospitality of the American broadcasting companies in any case? Would Hitler or Dollfus have permitted

Toward a 'New Heart' in Jewish Education

By DR. BERNARD REVEL
President, the Yeshiva College

Closely linked with the call for a "new deal" the basis, indeed, of its permanence, is the urge that recently has been gathering strength, toward a new emphasis on the spirit, toward a "new heart." It has long been evident, even to the most friendly critics of American civilization, that the spiritual life of our people has often suffered at the expense of the cultural; that Americans by and large have not found (as they may soon find) nearly as many of their leaders; that the very tests of learning, the sources of cultural enlightenment, have tended to grow into professional and "pre-professional" living grounds, preparing our youth to "make a living," not to live.

The recognition of this misplaced emphasis has for the past few years been the basis of our need for the small liberal arts college, where the things of the spirit will not be least sign of its rush for the things of the flesh. In a life, and where a background of culture may be provided, so that, whatever his field of later endeavor, the graduate may be equipped with those qualities and traits of character, broad human sympathies and understanding, that more than financial success determine the true quality of our citizenry. In the drive of this spiritual need, all the forces, all the creeds, of the land, are united. Its impulsion, indeed, has brought to the fore a new generation of education that marks the entry of American Jewry into the stream of American higher education and the flow of culture through our college youth.

A New Vista

Five years ago, when Yeshiva College began its work in its new buildings on Amsterdam avenue at 186th street, New York, it opened a new vista for the Jewish people in this land. The only college of liberal arts and science under Jewish auspices in the country, authorized by the State of New York to offer courses leading to the baccalaureate degrees, it brought to its students the opportunity of attending a liberal arts college in an atmosphere where the sciences and the fruits of modern knowledge may be coordinated and compatibly absorbed. Its student body is made up of students from all parts of the United States and Canada and tests conducted by experts from other institutions indicate a high level of attainment and a truly scholarly attitude. The faculty consists of scholars chosen without regard to religion, and includes a number of non-Jews. All qualified may enroll as students, but most value spirit in the education, and believe that in the shifting values and conflicting philosophies of the troubled world, in the harmonization of science and religion, the Jewish people have knowledge, that is essential for a proper readjustment of man to the conditions of life, the basic Jewish ideals and moral virtues supplied by the traditions of those who settled and of those who freed this land—are valuable and needed today.

Hebraic motto is demanded the foundation of American democracy," said the historian Lecky; and Calvin Coolidge, quoted this remark with approval, emphasizing as the strongest force of the Jewish people the sense of colonial civilization, "this very influence of the Bible in drawing together the feelings and sympathies of the people, and the religious life of this race, that has been a binding influence is still the great need of civilization, is the credo of Yeshiva College.

It is the conviction of Yeshiva College that Jewish studies, in the widest connotation, are an integral phase of the humanistic discipline and that the intellectual resources traditions and heritage of Judaism, in its millennial history, its interweaving with and influence upon general history, are essential for the full understanding of the fulfillment of mankind and man's history. Yeshiva College aims at the transformation of these aspects and values of Judaism, its teachings concerning God, man and nature, fused and harmoniously blended with the knowledge of the age, with the other currents of creative reality for the enrichment of the life of the Jewish communities and the advancement of America.

Since the verity first grew to be what the "Yeshiva" had been for Jewish studies for over a millennium—the home of the inquiring spirit of unfettered study and research, Jewish youth, whenever and wherever permitted, shared enthusiastically in the study and the intellectual advancement offered at these sanctuaries of the spirit, ever endeavoring to add their contribution to the sum total of the knowledge of the age. Most of these institutions, in this land as well, and their origin in religious foundations. It is the hope of Yeshiva College that through its work this great debt of gratitude will come to be in some small measure repaid.

Integrating Learning

Jewish learning, furthermore, has been studied until now as an isolated field, a sort of "Jewish antiquities," almost as a former culture; in the subject, almost as mathematics, for example, are a little ignored or studied as a special abstract subject, but become part of the study of the history and development of that science. The influence of the Bible upon English literature and the English language, its diction, its imagery, its subject-matter, are an integral part of the college work in English. The Greek of the Septuagint is a phase in the field of Greek literature. The judgments and the judgments, the understandings and misunderstandings, the general integration of Hellenistic and Jewish thought and history are subjects of study, as are Jewish and classical culture, so that the whole becomes, beyond mere archeological interest, subject for the Yeshiva College student. The faculty considers it an integral part of the college work in life and thought today—so that in time Yeshiva studies will come to be, not the isolated survey of a subject, but a study of the attitudes and the attitudes, but the consideration of a dynamic spirit and a point of view in the various fields of human understanding. No friend of the Jewish people can deny that humanity could view with any faith but great apprehension the possibility of the submerging of the Jewish spirit in the modern world, and the loss of those qualities that have characterized Israel through the ages—its steadfastness and devotion to its ideals, and its sense of mission. It is for this reason that he considers today, for the higher values of the spirit.

In America the Jewish community, for some time the most thriving of any Jewish community in the world, and until recently a haven for the oppressed Jews of other lands, have begun to recognize its responsibility for the continuance of the Jewish people, the high values of faith and culture, for the maintaining of the Jewish spiritual standards as one of the contributing factors in the development of the American life. It is in this direction, and with this aim, that the work of Yeshiva College was inaugurated, and is now widened, to extend to a closer bond

Anti-Semitic Demonstration In Hungary

Calls for Boycott Against Jews; Leaflets Distributed

(Jewish Telegraphic Agency)

BUDAPEST, Feb. 20.—Hungarian anti-Semites and Nazis today carried out a series of demonstrations here with posters and leaflets calling for a boycott of the Jews. Simultaneously university students, who are Nazi adherents, also began anti-Semitic disturbances.

The government, intervened immediately and ordered the suppression of the campaign. Police removed the posters and leaflets and arrested a number of the distributors of leaflets and a group of demonstrators.

Hungary was recently the scene of a violent anti-Semitic strike organized by university students under Nazi leadership. The demonstrators carried out a series of anti-Semitic demonstrations, and struck to force the government to accept them. The strike was ended only after prolonged negotiations between the government and the students.

Latvian Gov't Rejects Anti-Semitic Bill

Refuse Measure to Destroy Jews' Cultural Autonomy

(Jewish Telegraphic Agency)

RIGA, Feb. 20.—The Latvian parliament today rejected a motion made by Latvian anti-Semites to destroy the cultural autonomy enjoyed by Latvian minorities under the Latvian constitution. The measure was obviously aimed against the Jews.

Parliament also rejected a subsequent measure proposed by anti-Semites to end government subsidies for secondary and artisan schools maintained by Latvian minorities.

Latvian anti-Semites, stimulated by Hitlerite agents, have been exceedingly active in that country in recent months. New anti-Semitic papers, whose income is derived from mysterious sources, are busy attacking the Jews. At the same time the Latvian government, anxious to maintain trade with Germany, recently arrested the executive committee of the Jewish Latvian anti-Nazi boycott committee, contacted all their books.

ANSWERS

By L. G. MONTEFIORE

Nazis are never tired of repeating that the German press speak habitually of "Judenpresse" (Jewish Press).

The Nazis describe the papers of the German Government, as Jewish. It is worth noting that, according to the "Handbook of the German Daily Press" of 1929, 170,000 German daily newspapers in 1922 only 378 were of the Left, 603 were Catholic, 1,266 were of the Right and 4,565 were of the Jewish press. The overwhelming majority of them followed the policy of the Right. The papers of the Right were mostly not friendly towards the Jews and had only in exceptional cases Jewish editors; the Catholic papers were entirely non-Jewish. Even the majority of the left papers were non-Jewish editors. Only ten of the eighty-five most prominent German newspapers had a Jewish editor-in-chief.

A number of Jewish journalists were to be found in provincial towns there were few if any Jewish editors. At the time of the creation of a Jewish press is absurd. It is only another instance of the general Nazi method of describing its opponents as "Jewish."

New Envoy to Jerusalem
Guest of Honor at Bulletin Reception

American Jewish leaders and representatives of the diplomatic corps in New York City attended the reception and tea given by the Jewish Daily Bulletin yesterday in honor of Ely E. Palmer, newly-appointed American Consul General in Jerusalem. The reception for Mr. Palmer took place in the Hotel Pennsylvania. Mr. Palmer, who by virtue of his post, is the ranking American representative in Palestine, departs for his new post today on the liner Excalibur of the American Mail Line.

Introduced by Jacob Landau, publisher of the Bulletin who declared that he was certain that Mr. Palmer would like his work in Jerusalem, Mr. Palmer made a brief but most interesting contribution. "In making Palestine a happy and prosperous country," the new Consul General, in acknowledging the introduction, declared that he had found widespread interest manifested in his appointment to the Jerusalem post.

"Not only are my friends interested in the Palestine situation, even strangers in all parts of the country have written me telling of the opportunity I now have for real service in Palestine."

"I am now going to a community where the government is British. I know from my experience in Vancouver that British officials are very friendly and frankness make the discussion of problems in the open much simpler."

Cultivate Understanding
The American diplomat stated that he hoped that his coming to Vancouver, his eight years in Rumania and his experience in helping American citizens would make his path in Palestine easier.

General Campbell, British Consul General in New York, who congratulated Mr. Palmer said: "The Jews want to make the land of their fathers fit for themselves and I have the feeling that you, I am certain that the issues between the Jews and the Arabs in Palestine can be settled only on an economic basis."

Zionist Greetings
Morris Rothberg, president of the Zionist Organization of America, greeted Mr. Palmer in the name of the organization.

"But I hope that his entire intention will be in aiding the establishment of a Jewish national home in Palestine," Mr. Rothberg declared. "If he can help in the realization of the dream of the Jewish national home, then world Jewry will be truly thankful to him."

Rabbi Louis I. Newman of Temple Beth Shalom, called attention to the fact that Jews all over the world were turning their eyes to Palestine "as their only hope." The American editor of the Jewish Daily Bulletin and former American Minister to Albania, visited Consul General Palmer, wished him good luck and declared that he was certain that Mr. Palmer would carry out his work impressively judging by his achievements in other posts.

Seeks Joint Investigation
Against Committee

(Special to the J.D.B.)
ALBANY, Feb. 19.—A resolution calling for an investigation of Nazi activities in New York State by a joint committee composed of four members of the State Senate and five Assemblymen was introduced in the Assembly tonight by Samson Insulbryn, Republican-Fusion, of Brooklyn.

The resolution, which was introduced as an original measure, will be read tomorrow. It declares that:

"Whereas, it is common knowledge that many persons in the State of New York are now engaged in circulating propaganda calculated to promote sympathy with the Nazi regime now dominant in Germany, thereby promoting the dissemination of the principles of government contemplated by such a regime to the detriment of and tending to the possible overthrow of the American system of government."

"Whereas, it is the duty of the Legislature of the State of New York to learn the whole truth regarding these pernicious activities and to pass such laws as may be necessary to protect the government of the State and to enforce the maintenance of the rights of its citizens."

"Therefore, be it resolved that such a committee be constituted to report to the Legislature on or before March, 1935."

The resolution carries with it a request for appropriation of $25,000 for the expenses of the committee, and empowers that body to subpoena witnesses, force the production of documents and records, and punish recalcitrant witnesses. It also provides that the President of the State Senate and the Speaker of the Assembly shall be ex-officio members of the committee.

In a statement to the Jewish Daily Bulletin, Assemblyman Insulbryn declared that while the bill is in the legislative process, two of the great American Presidents is celebrated is hardly appropriate for the introduction of such a measure, "it is because we believe in the political principles which they exemplified in their lives that it becomes necessary to make a thorough and sweeping investigation of the activities of Nazi propagandists in our State."

"Hitlerism is the very antithesis of Americanism. It is common knowledge that the Nazis have been spreading Hitlerite doctrines in this country, and that the New York City, in Long Island, Queens County and in Sullivan County. Let us stop this poisonous propaganda and let us stop it before it is too late."

The Assemblyman stated that he counted fully on the support of an aroused public opinion aware of the danger inherent in the Nazi activities, and that the various organizations as the American Federation of Labor, which was cognizant of the danger of Nazism.

the present. The joint warning was a very mild document. But the Italian press, directed by Mussolini, is frank and blunt in its denunciation of Hitler's interference in Austrian affairs. The Giornale d'Italia, commenting on the latest events in Austria, points out that the Austrian Nazi movement is in its infancy and arms which have claimed many victims in Austria were partly of German origin, and that the Nazis were preparing for a political union of Austria and Germany, or rather a subjugation of Austria by Germany.

The Italian press reminds Germany that Italy had given to Germany on various occasions, and that Italy and Germany now find themselves in opposite camps as a result of the events in Austria. The rift between Italy and Germany is rapidly widening. The irritation between Mussolini and Hitler is growing more acute, and it is hoped that, as a result of this conflict between the two dictators, Hitlerian Nazism will soon be curbed at last.

from the seventeen to carry the foreword of the pamphlet. "The United States has been built largely by such refugees, and the policy of our government regarding such harbor and asylum for refugees suffering under persecution of other countries is set down in the preamble of our constitution. A considerable number of political and religious refugees can be cared for here without injury to our economic situation. Quite the contrary, they will be a source of an asset and a benefit to our progress and civilization."

Letter Sent to President
The pamphlet makes public a letter from Harry H. Truman, U. S. Senator, to President Roosevelt on January 24, urging that American consuls in Europe be instructed to give religious and political refugees sympathetic treatment.

The letter calls President Roosevelt's attention to an executive order issued by the President which authorized the State Department to warn American consular officers to refuse to issue visas to immigrants who will not become public charges here and thus add to an unemployment problem.

The letter, signed "Committee of Ten" included the following names: Mrs. Catt, chairman; Miss Mary Dreier, Miss Elizabeth Eastman, Mrs. Isaacson, Mrs. F. H. Huley, Mrs. Alexander Kohut, Mrs. James Lees Laidlaw, Mrs. Jacob A. Rills, Mrs. Charles Cary Rumsey and Mrs. F. L. Young.

Since the letter was sent, the Department of Labor has made provision to accept bonds to guarantee that immigrants admitted will not become public charges. American consular officers in European countries have been ordered to give sympathetic consideration to such appeals and were sure to come to the United States to seek asylum.
