NAZIS BEGIN BOYCOTT DRIVE AGAINST JEWS IN GERMANY

NOW—

Editorial Notes

By

HERMAN BERNSTEIN

"The Internal Affair"

THE petition signed by a quarter of a million Americans, Gentiles and Jews, addressed to the President of the United States and presented at the White House by Alfred M. Cohen, president of the B'nai B'rith, is an effective expression of public opinion regarding the outrages perpetrated upon the Jewish people in Hitler's Germany during the past year. Even though this petition is somewhat belated, it will help to crystallize public feeling toward the happenings in Germany which are depicted with restraint, dignity and care.

"Speech and press, wherever free, unite in condemning this blot on the civilization of our time," declares the petition. "It may be forwarded to a quickened public conscience manifesting itself so unmistakably that the German people, themselves grossly wronged, may come to realize the injustices done in their name not alone to Jews but, in their government's treatment, of the Jews, to all mankind."

And the B'nai B'rith requests that the petitions be presented to President Roosevelt "so that with an accompanying review in the spirit of fairness and with the vision for which our President is so worthily distinguished, they may be forwarded to the German government."

When the petition, signed by distinguished American Christian clergymen protesting against the Berlin ritual murder case staged by the Tzarist government, was presented to Secretary of State William Jennings Bryan with a request to have it transmitted to the Tzar, Secretary Bryan suggested that the document be presented direct to the Russian Ambassador. That was done. The memorandum was delivered to the Russian Ambassador, who returned it to Bishop Grier, whose name headed the list of the eminent signers of that powerful protest. The Russian Ambassador refused to accept the petition to be forwarded to the Tzar. But the press of the United States devoted much attention to the protest and denounced the Tzarist attempt to justify the ritual policy by the Berlin ritual murder affair. The Russian Ambassador undoubtedly felt the control of the petition to his government, even though officially he declined to accept it. Our Government did not transmit that protest through diplomatic channels, but Tzarist Russia knew what representative Ame-

John Bennett Thriving On Eric Kaestner's Poetry

The Center German Jewish Club, Inc., with headquarters at 210 West Ninety-first street, was host the other night to one John Bennett, who said he is Eric Kaestner, poet and essayist.

The reason for the pseudonym, according to Mr. Bennett's proclaimed testimony, is that he is a German refugee, the victim of Nazi persecution. "The obvious reason" was the answer he gave to a query as to why he calls himself Bennett, although no one questioned his true identity.

Mr. Bennett read from "his" book of poetry and was rewarded with much applause. The club was flattered, the men were respectful, the women worshipful. Of late Bennett has been the guest of a number of other German organizations and guests of honor at testimonial dinners. He spoke freely on political questions, but assailed all the Jewish bodies for their "weak-kneed" attitude in the fight against Nazism. The audience was enthused by "Eric Kaestner" the poet, but disillusioned by "Eric Kaestner's" political dissertations.

John Bennett is still at large but one of the Centre Club members who happened to be a close personal friend to the real poet, could hardly believe his eyes when he was told that Bennett was Kaestner. The poet is spare, short and has a heavy crop of hair. Bennett is heavy, round and bald and many inches taller than Kaestner. "Kaestner's" typewriter will probably come to a sudden halt.

Soviet Godless Order German Drive Against Schools Closed Passover On In Brazil Cities

Coming Holiday Occasion for Anti-Religion Campaign There

(Jewish Telegraphic Agency) MOSCOW, March 15.—An anti-Passover campaign, carried out each year by the Jewish Communist organization, and militant atheist groups, began today. A number of articles appeared in today's Jewish press. Local party groups all over Russia were ordered to take part.

Government Order Given Because They Were Under Nazi Control

(Jewish Telegraphic Agency) RIO DE JANEIRO, March 15.—German schools in Montenegro and Brasao Forte have been ordered closed by the government. The schools have been under the control of Nazis, the teachers having been specially imported from Germany. Of late the

Betrothal of Jewish Youth To Afghan Princess Reported

(Jewish Telegraphic Agency) WARSAW, March 15.—The daughter of former king Amanullah of Afghanistan, has become engaged to a Jewish medical student, Edward Wolman, in Rome, according to reports which reached here today.

Wolman, formerly a student at the University of Berlin, was driven out by the Nazis and went to Rome where he made a living by teaching German to the family of the former Afghan monarch. Amanullah's daughter fell in love with the Jewish student, and according to the story, the ronance was opposed at first by her father, who later relented and gave his consent.

Amanullah and his daughter are expected here shortly, since Wolman's parents live here. The Wolman family refused to make any comments.

ROME, March 15.—The reported engagement of his daughter to Edward Wolman, a Jewish student, was denied here today by the exiled Afghan king, Amanullah. "My daughter is too young to marry," he declared.

Terroristic Acts Accompany Campaign in Communities—Widespread Propaganda Rife

Regarded as Attempt to Segregate Jewish Commerce, Hitherto Theoretically Exempt—Drive Originally Set for March 23

(Jewish Telegraphic Agency)

BERLIN, March 15.—The new boycott campaign against Jews in German trade and commerce, proclaimed by the Nazi Trade and Artisans Association to commence on March 23, has already begun with a well-organized and widespread propaganda drive accompanied in several communities by terroristic measures against the Jewish population.

A survey today revealed that in a score of German centers a full-fledged boycott campaign is in progress and brought to light many hitherto unreported cases of violence.

Vladeck Quits Jewish Body On Labor Clause

Resigns from Committee In Friendly Way—Asks Action

B. C. Vladeck, general manager of the Jewish Daily Forward, yesterday offered his resignation to the American Jewish Committee. In a letter he explained that his action was motivated by a clause in the constitution of the recently formed Jewish Labor Committee on Labor Affairs, the executive of which he heads, forbidding those affiliated with it to retain their connections with other groups dealing with general Jewish affairs.

At the Forward office yesterday Mr. Vladeck explained that he is parting with the American Jewish Committee.

Tel Aviv Strikes Against Rentals

Exorbitant Prices Evoke Protest by the Mass of Workers

(Jewish Telegraphic Agency) TEL AVIV, March 15.—A two-hour strike was carried out here this afternoon in which shopkeepers, clerks, laborers and artisans joined as a protest against high rentals in the city.

The strike was also a protest against the sharp practices of the landlords in connection with the Moharrem, the end of a Mohammedan holiday, which is the traditional moving day in Palestine. The end of the Moharrem in mid-April is the customary period here for the renewal of leases.

A mass meeting was held here demanding the abolition of the Moharrem period in Tel Aviv and also legislative curbs against exorbitant rentals.

Trade Segregation Sought The new boycott drive is regarded by German Jewry as a definite attempt to fasten on Jews in trade and commerce, hitherto theoretically exempt by virtue of their utility to the general German economic structure, the yellow badge of segregation which the Nazis are forcing on Jews in all other walks of life.

The new economic drive on the Jews is reported looked upon with disfavor by the Reich cabinet, which only recently went on record as opposed to interference with Jews in fields where such interference would react on the German economic structure as a whole. The cabinet, however, has taken no stand to prevent the carrying out of the boycott.

Nazi Picket Strokes In Nuremberg, placards were posted in all the main streets today reading "Don't Buy From Jews." Nazi pickets are standing guard at the entrance of Jewish stores warning prospective customers not to buy from Jews. Thousands of leaflets have been distributed all over Nuremberg, which read, "Whoever patronizes Jews is a traitor."

The Nuremberg Frankische Kurier today published an announcement from the leadership of the Nazi Labor Front of Middle Franconia, which declared in open

Cohen Is Gratified By Walter's Release

Alfred M. Cohen, international president of B'nai B'rith, in a statement yesterday to the Jewish Daily Bulletin, expressed gratification at the release from prison of Dr. Benno Walter, German vice-president of the fraternal order. Dr. Walter had been held by the secret police in Berlin for more than a year.

"I am gratified to learn," Senator Cohen declared, "that a distinguished German Jew, who could not possibly be guilty of disloyalty to his native land, was released from imprisonment."

Russia Presses Fight to Crush Anti-Semitic Spirit

Heritage of Tzarism Still Flourishes Among Popu- lation But Government Uses All- Means to Suppress It

(This is the sixth of a series of articles on the situation of the Jews in Europe today by Eugene Lyons, well known correspondent, author and editor of the Washington Post and under conditions in Europe for the Jewish Telegraphic Agency. In the following article, Mr. Lyons describes anti-Semitism in the Soviet Republic and the progress of the anti-Semitic propaganda in the Soviet Union. The final article in this series will appear in the week-end edition of the Jewish Daily Bulletin.)

By EUGENE LYONS
MOSCOW.

The official instructions for the nationwide "political" purges of the Communist Party membership, recently completed, listed anti-Semitism among the major ideological lapses, punishable by instant expulsion from the ranks. Thousands of Communists, indeed, were thrown out of the ruling Party for this reason.

There is no doubt that anti-Semitic sentiments prevail among Communists. The very fact that measures to combat it in the ranks are found necessary is an open admission of the existence of the disease. Since only about one and one-half per cent of the Soviet population is Jewish, it is clear that the influence of Jews in the country of the nation is larger than an arithmetic distribution of power by race would warrant. For that matter, even non-Russian races, especially the Georgians, exercise power far out of proportion to their numbers. As persecuted minorities the Jews, the Georgians and other non-Russian groups naturally took leading roles in the revolutionary movements.

The spectacle of Jews in important places, the large number of Jews at the head or second in command of many of the revolutionary undertakings, inflame anti-Semitic feelings where these still persist. Even in the seventeenth year of the revolution one hears bitter remarks about the Jews, where it might be reported, of course, to "this Jewish government." Reason and prejudice were never on speaking terms and are never likely to be.

If ever there was a movement against the Soviet government—against at present is not only impossible, but unthinkable—Jews would be the first victims of the reaction. Even the most bitter anti-Soviet Jews know this to be a fact, and their political thinking is consequently badly soured. The Jews are the first victims of the economic policies and dictatorial methods of the Communist State, they realize that it stands between them and old-fashioned Jew baiting.

In Self Defense
I have asked Jews hostile to the Soviet idea what they would do if faced with a choice of sides in a counter-revolution. They said without exception they declared that they would be obliged, in sheer self-defense, to fight with the Whites against the counter-revolutionaries. The exception was an aged rabbi, to whom the Bolsheviks are merely enemies of religion. He admitted that the pogroms, persecution and ghetto restrictions for the Jews.

"But we shall only be raking our bodies then," he said, "and the Whites are taking our Jewish souls." He chose unhesitatingly the ghetto and religion as against atheist equality.

A leading Jewish Communist with whom I discussed the problem was purely along ideological lines, but it happened that many of the leaders on Trotsky's side because of their moral outlook and personal histories, were Jews.

If anything, the triumph of Stalin at that juncture represented the defeat and outliving of the Party "intellectuals." Since so many of the Party intellectuals were Jews, their expulsion and exile did have a false appearance of being anti-Jewish. Reactionaries, the remnants of the old world, in their nooks and crannies, chuckled with satisfaction and shined up their rusty black-hundreded emotions.

But they were wrong. Jews are still in positions of paramount importance and their numerical strength in the ruling Party is far greater than the population as a whole. According to an authoritative estimate nearly ten per cent of the delegates to Party conferences and congresses in the last few years have been Jews.

Since only about one and one-half per cent of the Soviet population is Jewish, it is clear that the influence of Jews in the country of the nation is larger than an arithmetic distribution of power by race would warrant. For that matter, even non-Russian races, especially the Georgians, exercise power far out of proportion to their numbers. Protest Letter on Nazi Goods Will Be Sent C. C. N. Y. President

The first major step in the campaign to bar all Nazi-made goods from City College was taken yesterday afternoon when Israel Shon, president of the Menorah-Avukah Conference, announced that an open letter of protest will be sent to President Frederick B. Robinson immediately.

At its regular weekly meeting yesterday the Menorah group made official the petition requesting President Robinson to use his influence to prevent the school from buying German goods and passing them on to an unwilling student body.

On the streets of Leningrad not long ago I met a man whom I knew from Moscow. He was an official in a certain trust, carries a portfolio importantly and seems a typical Soviet bureaucrat. It happens that I was aware of his personal story. His family had lost a fortune in the revolution, which made him a "former." He had done too well under Nep, which made him a "Nepman."

In short, he was a fit target for official hatred, and experienced more than his share. He had "set" many times, had been deprived of vote and bread card and had been held for months by the "valuta section" of the G.P.U. In the end he managed, despite his record, to obtain a respectable Soviet job. But certainly he could

PURE FOOD SECTION

Our Pure Food section accepts for publication only advertisements of such products and food establishments as have furnished satisfactory proof regarding their statements of standard and quality.

With reference to Kashruth (observance of the Jewish Dietary Laws) we believe it justified, since a large number of our people adhere to these Dietary Laws, to publish the facts made known to us when an article is advertised as being Kosher. The number of the authority vouching for the accuracy of the advertiser's statement, therefore, will be published in each individual case. The organizations whose endorsements are given are abbreviated as follows:

AGUDAH—(Agudath Ha-Rabanim)
DEGEL—(Degel Ha-Rabanim)
O.K.—(O.K. Laboratories—a rabbinically acknowledged laboratory)

UNION—(Union of Orthodox Jewish Congregations of America)
VAAD—(VAAD Ha-Rabanim)

Modern Pure Food Theories And Jewish Dietary Laws

Pure food as a topic has always received undivided attention. Modern food experts and authoritative dieticians emphasize the importance of foods that are manufactured in accordance with the Pure Food Laws.

In olden times, food habits were chiefly determined by what a country was able to produce in the way of animal or vegetable foods. The question of health in relationship to food had to be taken into serious consideration, since the climate and organization of the various foods had a great bearing on the element and process of health.

Moses Anticipated Modernists
Theories advanced by modern experts can easily be traced back to the Jewish Dietary Laws. The Mosaic Law is considered as a religious institution and the basis of it was to be found in the fact that in certain foods there is a natural element of health which the Lord's consecrated people had to be kept. The great teacher, Moses, far ahead of time, visualized the necessity of instituting sanitary measures with regard to food and habits.

The term Kashruth (Dietary Laws), more frequently expressed as "Kosher," stands in its particular sense for cleanliness, purity, and wholesomeness. Food described as "Trefa" (unclean) and unfit for Jewish consumption, mentioned in the Bible, is from animals which do not chew their cud and which have no split hoofs, fish without fins or scales and birds, chiefly those called "birds of prey" and "marsh birds."

An analysis of these prohibitions shows that the underlying reason for the restriction of such food was that it was detrimental to the health of the human body. The United States Pure Food Law demands that only the purest ingredients be used and that the place of manufacture be kept sanitary. The Jewish Dietary Laws not only advocate these principles but add certain restrictions as to the use of ingredients of animal origin.

Kosher Violation Case Postponed

Kaufmann, Neboh Co. Head,
Accused by Inspectors,
Who Testify

Action against Abraham Kaufmann, president of the Neboh Kosher Provision Company of 488 Broadway, Brooklyn, was undertaken in the Fifth Magistrate's Court in Brooklyn yesterday, when he was charged by inspectors of the Health Department with exposing for sale non-kosher meat in his kosher establishment.

Magistrate William F. O'Dwyer adjourned the case until March 26, when it will be resumed in his court.

In his complaint, Sidney Rosenwasser, an inspector for the health department, stated that on March 13 he served the defendant with a summons, alleging that Kaufmann had violated Section 483A of the Penal Law by exposing for sale eight barrels of beef, which the inspector contended were not kosher.

On the stand Rosenwasser testified that on March 13 he followed a truck which, he claimed, was loaded with the meat from the nearby Certified Provision Company, a non-kosher establishment, and delivered to the Neboh Kosher Provision Company.

According to the testimony of Arthur Simon, a superior officer in the Health Department, who said he had accompanied Rosenwasser and another inspector to the defendant's office in quest of non-kosher meat, the authorities entered the establishment without search warrants and upon investigation served the defendant with a summons.

Inspectors Rebuked

Under questioning by the magistrate, two of the inspectors admitted that they did not know from their own knowledge" whether or not the meat was kosher or non-kosher, but the third, Rosenwasser, refused to give a yes or no answer. He pleads for time to introduce evidence which he said he expected would prove that the meat was non-kosher.

Explaining that his grievance was not against the Health Department generally or the purpose it performs but rather against practices, which he indicated might be general, the magistrate declared:

"I object to terrorizing merchants, running into their establishments and tearing up their desks without search warrants, and having them call policemen for protection. Too many businessmen have headaches without this."

Question Box

The Question Box will appear in conjunction with the Pure Food Section. Address all questions to Pure Food Editor.

Question:

May aluminum trays for ice-cubes be used for Passover?—Mrs. J. Bernhard.

Answer:

Yes, after Kashering them in the usual way as any other metal is Kashered.

Stella Adler in Stellar Role

The active and shrewd Group Theatre, which has to its credit "Men in White," announces that its next venture will be John Howard Lawson's play "Gentleman," scheduled to open next week tonight at the Cort Theatre. Of special interest to Jewish followers of the theatre is the fact that the author of the piece is Jewish and that Stella Adler will play the leading role.

First Appeared When But Five

This Jewish actress, daughter of Jacob P. Adler, famous Yiddish tragedian in fast becoming one of the leading players of the legitimate stage. Acting is almost second nature to the attractive Stella. When she was but five years old she made her first stage appearance, in the role of the child prince in "Richard III" and since then she has been a consistent performer. For ten years she was seen in a succession of juvenile roles. It was as Launcelot Gobbo to her father's Shylock in "The Merchant of Venice" that she reached her stage majority. Her first role in English was in Karl Kapka's "The World We Live In" and she was followed by a number of Broadway appearances.

Joined Bolshevsky

Disaffected with the progress she was making, Miss Adler deserted Broadway and joined the experimental American Laboratory Theatre of Bolshevsky. In 1931 she became connected with the Group Theatre and has been with them ever since.

During the season of 1933 Miss Adler was unusually active. She appeared in three Broadway plays: "Success Story," John Howard Lawson's hit which ran for about five months, and two short-lived productions—Dawn Powell's "Big Game" and "Hilda Cassidy" by Henry and Sylvia Liferant.

"Gentleman"

Sounds Promising

"Gentleman" sounds as though it might do some business. It is a love story concerning a woman of culture and wealth, who loses her money but not her poise, and the inevitable young radical poet who wants the lady to live in his carefree, reckless fashion. Stella Adler is the lady and Lloyd Nolan the poet. Mordecai Gorelik has designed the settings which I am told are striking. Lee Strasberg is responsible for the staging and directing. Others in the cast of ten are Claudia Morris, Morris Carnovsky, Lewis Leverett, Roman Bohnen, Russell Collins, Zannah Cunningham, Neil O'Malley and Frances Williams.

The Bulletin's Day Book

A persistent little fellow kept the office telephone operator working overtime the other day with a request that he be allowed to see this department on a matter of "vital importance." At length, when he was shown, he hung his umbrella over a cabinet, draped his rain coat over a chair, looked us sternly in the eye, and in the manner of one offering a choice of weapons, announced, "I speak five languages fluently, including English."

"I'll take English," we said, and at ten paces we re-fought the battle.

ties of history from the establishment of democratic independence in America in 1776 to the creation of the French Fascist state in 1935.

He is a French Jew with a remarkable memory for names, dates and theories, so remarkable and so accurate, in fact, that we were licked from Waterloo on. Once a member of the French Embassy and now prominent in French social circles in New York, he spoke with authority.

"The American Jew," he said, "must meet the coming crisis with dignity and with courage. He must meet it reasonably."

"The crisis, it developed, is twofold: Fascism in France, and Fascism in the United States. To meet it with dignity, he revealed, Jews must waste no time in climbing on the nationalist bandwagon and this country. This done, demands upon their courage will be so great when the Fascist flag is hoisted, side by side with the Stars and Stripes, over the national Capitol. With regard to meeting the situation reasonably, he said, "This is the only way to do so."

Forecasts French Fascist State

He asks that Jews in New York show no great consternation when the French Fascists came into power, a development he has marked on his calendar for the near future. He believes that Doumergues' fall will not be broken by foreign demonstrations and denunciations. "It will only create international difficulties in a purely national problem," he said.

The gentleman, whose name can not be identified with these facts, says that Fascism in France does not imply persecution of the Jews. And he believes that it will serve only to bind the Jew closer into the French nation, unless mediators outside the country precipitate a now non-existent distinction between the French "native type" (he could not call them "Aryans") and French Jews.

"Thus far," he explained, "due to the admirable foresight of the French Jews, racial and religious barriers have been wiped out. French Jews have made an effort to contribute men to the army and to every national cause magnificent sums of money."

Will Support Zionism

Himself a Zionist, he believes that Zionism will be given favorable support under the French Fascist government, and he says that the synagogue will be carefully preserved as one of the national religions of the New France.

French Fascism, in his account made clear, would retain the essential requirements of Jewry, its religion, its history, and its customs, but it would throw off all Jewish dogmas which have forever brought on persecution. Unlike German Fascism, where all but Aryans are cast from the fold of the national belief, French Fascism would not wipe out the Russian Communism where racial purity is perfect, what with Stalin's ordinances against discrimination, French Fascism would be mounded.

The upshot of his discourse, as we understood it, was that French Jewry would no longer be regarded as a race but rather as a religion under Fascism.

"And," he looked back as he adjusted his raincoat and removed his umbrella from the cabinet, "we'll have to do the same here in America. We'll have to find a decent Fascist leader with a rational viewpoint and support him."

Personally, we prefer to continue to march with democracy.

We have yet failed to find that autocratic regime have ever been very favorable to Jews and even where this was the case, the favor was just as easily replaced by persecution and terror. There was only to think of the Jews and the medieval kings and princes.

Besides the very essence of Jewish life and history has been the everlasting struggle of the Jew for democracy, so much so that the enemies of Jews chose to use the innate democracy of the Jew as an argument against him.

No, we do not believe the Jew will take kindly even to a French Fascism. —P. . .

With the Leather Pusters

Can the Jewish boys take it? Well, everything but the cold. It seems that all our friends at William's gym over on Eighth avenue have gone south for the winter season. There they will be in the thick of it, getting a little, indulge in a match or two.

Boxing Circuit Flashes

Masie Rosenblum, perennial night club rouser and one who likes the hot life, is knocking them out than February 9 down below the Mason-Dixon line. According to dispatches he's picking them off in non-title bouts at the rate of two a week. His latest victim at Orlando beach, Florida, was Gordon Fortenberry. Masie says that he'll train for his next New York fight at the Ha Ha club, one of Manhattan's dizzier training camps.

Southern Special

From New Orleans we learn that Harry Dubinsky, formerly of Chicago and points east, is rated as Public Enemy No. 1 by the Jewish fight fans there. Dubinsky k.o'd Erwin Berliner, local hope and pride, in the fifth round of a thrilling bout.

But Philadelphia!

Don't expect anything better from Philadelphia where nothing ever happens. The Benny Bass-Cleo Locatelli fight was called a draw. Perhaps the boys should have been fought at the Garden. There would have been a decision—even if it would have been raw.

Golden Gloves

Bob Pastor, one of the best amateur punch traders we've seen at the Garden during the Golden Gloves length barrage, is still keeping in fighting form. This Jewish long jumper at New York University, is rated as Chicago's chief difficulty in its obstacle race to the intercity championships. Pastor intends to enter the professional ring after his graduation from N. Y. U.

Though Bob met with success, Gus Lesnevich met with Mark Hough and after a minor or two of his fight began. Yet no matter whether these fights are serious matters, as the amateurs take their bouts, or whether they are held just for the sake of the Philadelphia tussles, the referees at the Garden Golden Gloves contest take the palm for decisions. The crowd boos the victors aplenty and their jeers are still ringing in my ears.

The 'Merit Award'

Barney Ross, lightweight champion of the world, was chosen recently as "the man who did most for boxing in 1933." A gold boxing belt will be awarded him when he fights next month in New York City in the Milk Fund benefit.

"The Merit Award" is given each year by the publishers of Ring, a boxing magazine, to the boxer who, in the estimation of experts, is the outstanding attraction, fighters, and the one who helps the game most during the year.

In a poll conducted among the boxing men of the country, including United Press and Associated Press experts, referees and judges, Barney received a total of 565 votes. Tony Cassano, whom Ross has already defeated twice, tied with him in the number of votes polled. However, Ross won on the grounds that he beat Tony twice in one year.

'Did Boxing for Most'

Tonny Loughran, in the heavyweight division, which usually scoops all honors, placed third. He got 350 votes. One who noted is that Tony is not nearly as colorful a fighter as our own Barney Ross.

If we were to cast a vote for "the man who did boxing for most" during the year, we'd give one for our good friend, Primo Carnera.

Indoor Sports

Not content with packing them in at the New York Coliseum by offering good boxing and wrestling cards, the management there is trying something new in the form of indoor soccer.

About a year ago this game was first conceived and a trial match held at the Garden. Since then nothing has been done about it until Wednesday night, when the Brookhattan club and the N. Y. American outfit kicked each other in the shins all evening long.

The Brookhattan group won by a score of 14-8. There were 7 Jewish players on the winning team: Grover, Glover, Gross, Wortman and Aitken.

Before we saw the game we wondered why there should have been a change from the eleven men on an outdoor soccer team to six in an indoor arena. Having seen one exhibition we're convinced that it was the wish of the promoters to force at least five lives from the slaughter heap. Played on a smaller court, with fewer men, and taking less time out, this game provides thrills and excitement to match.

A crowd of 2,000 saw the game. The proceeds will go for the benefit of the ORT Toot fund.

The Dead Street Y'ud

Bagmen who have played on former teams at this institution are returning this Sunday night to play the "Y" variety outfit.

The regular member of this year's City College team; Al Greenberg, Temple University freshman star; Joe Davidson, 1931-32 C. C. N. Y. captain; Manny Bernstein and Lester T. Greenberg, United Temple quintet, will form the Alumni basketball team that thican Christian spiritual leaders thought of its cruel machinery.

The Russian autocracy, resorting to falsehoods and violence, had greater respect for foreign public opinion than Nazi Germany has today. The Cossacks, brutal and ruthless at home, nevertheless displayed a certain sense of shame when his acts of violence were being carried out abroad. The government of Hitler, on the other hand, in its public opinion, denying undeniable facts, and keeping its own people in ignorance as to the world's reaction to the Nazi crimes and blunders.

The Bells affair, by which the Tsarist government endeavored to discredit the Jews and justify itself in the eyes of the world, was regarded by autocratic Russia as an internal affair. But the civilized world did not treat it merely as an internal Russian affair. Enlightened public opinion everywhere was aroused. The press and the church joined in the vigorous protest against Tsarist Russia.

The Nazi reign of terror directed against Jews, Catholics, Protestants, liberals, radicals and pacifists cannot be viewed merely as a German internal affair. The effects of the Hitler regime are widespread, extending far beyond the borders of the Nazi Reich. The Nazi propaganda in foreign lands is conducted for the purpose of inciting race hatred and undermining democratic institutions. The German government of today is violating international good-will, committing at the same time any criticism aimed at it in other lands.

In 1908 I met Leonid Andreyev, the great Russian writer, author of "The Seven Who Were Hanged," and discussed with him the "internal affairs" of Tsarist Russia. He lived in Russia and this is what he said for publication.

"How it is the European and the American press has ceased to interest itself in our struggle for emancipation." Is it possible that the reaction in Russia appeals to them more than our people's yearnings for freedom, simply because reaction happens to be stronger at the present time? Russia today is a lunatic asylum. The people who are being hanged are not the people who should be hanged. In Russia the honest people are in prison while the criminals are at large. The Russian government is composed of a bunch of scoundrels, but I do not hold that the Russian government alone is guilty of the horrors committed in Russia. The German nations are just as much to blame, for they look on in silence while the most despicable crimes are committed. Perhaps I am not speaking as a diplomat. I know that one nation must not interfere with the internal affairs of another nation, according to the national law. But if they interfere with our movement for freedom? France helped the Russian government in its war against the people by loaning money to the Tsar. Germany also helped secretly. When an individual murders, robs, distorts women, he is brought to trial. But when the Russian government is murdering or torturing helpless men and women and children, the other governments look on indifferently. And yet they speak of God. If this had happened in the Middle Ages, a crusade would have been started by civilized people who would have marched to Russia to liberate the women and the children from the claws of the government."

This statement by Andreyev was published in America and attracted widespread attention, and yet he was permitted by the Tsarist government to remain in Russia and to continue his literary work. The Russian government dared not imprison him even as it dared not show its anger to Leo Tolstoy. The Tsarist government dared not do what Hitler is doing today.

Is it conceivable that a German writer of the standing of Leonid Andreyev could stay about Germany what Andreyev said about Russia, without being tortured in a concentration camp?

What Andreyev said about Tsarist Russia applies today even more to Nazified Germany. For the men of Hitlerism to the rest of the world is more far-reaching than that of Tsarist Russia ever was.
