Beginning of the End

THE economic structure of Hitler Germany is beginning to crumble. The world-wide anti-German boycott has made it self felt at last in Germany to such an alarming extent that even Hitler and his most rabid Nazi henchmen are commencing to realize the consequences of their criminal blunders. I have pointed out for some time that, despite all the boasts of the Nazis that Germany was recovering economically under the regime of "Aryan" purification and persecution, the Germany of Hitler is certain doom. I have analyzed the reasons why Hitlerism cannot last long. I wrote several weeks ago:

"The six million communists are still in Germany. The millions of unemployed await unemployment. German exports are continuing to fall, not merely because of the Jewish boycott, but also because of the boycott in our own country. Hitler's arrogance and ruthlessness and interference with the internal affairs of other nations are viewed with alarm as menacing the peace of the world."

"When the eyes of the German people are opened, and they will see that instead of bread and happiness, they are given crust, savage divisions of bigotry and hate, the Nazi adventure will be ended. When they will realize that Germany under Hitler has lost her friends abroad, and that her internal situation is growing ever more desperate, they will turn against their real enemy, and Hitlerism will be stamped out."

Now comes the news that, according to official reports to our Government in Washington, the economic consequences of the anti-Semitism of the Hitler government are slowly forcing the Nazis to modify their anti-Jewish policy. It is pointed out in these official reports that German exports have dwindled to a very small amount, and boycotts in virtually all countries, that the German government's gold reserves have shrunk each week for the past two months and that the German economy is in the grip of the severest economic crisis that Hitler and the Nazi party have had to face.

According to this Washington report, it is believed here that the commercial weight of the various boycotts on German goods has a more effect in official policy than have the protest meetings. These boycotts are supported by elements that resent persecution of labor, liberal foreign trade, and the Jews in Germany. Observers who profess to see a new deal for Jews in Germany on the immediate horizon are counseling against any further demonstrations of the kind had recommended on Page Eight.

Wanamaker Joins German Boycott

Anti-Nazi League Announces Communication From Store Yesterday

The John Wanamaker Department Store announced yesterday that it has joined the boycott of German-made products. In a communication to Ezekiel Rabinowitz, executive secretary of the Non-Sectarian Anti-Nazi League, officers of the store said that they have severed all business relations with German merchants. The statement read: "Since November, 1933, we have not imported goods from Germany. We have no offices in Germany for dealing between German merchants and ourselves. We issue this statement voluntarily at this time simply to explain our position."

Warburg Asks Donations for United Drive

Rabbis to Give Sermons on Necessity for Coordinated Effort

A stirring Passover appeal for contributions to the $3,000,000 German Jewish Relief Fund was issued yesterday by Felix M. Warburg, chairman of the United Jewish Campaign. Paul Baerwald, Louis Lipsky, Morris Rothenberg and Rabbi Jonah B. Wise, co-chairman, also joined in the appeal.

Throughout the country hundreds of rabbis will devote their sermons this week end to the situation of the Jews in Germany and for the necessity of united Jewish effort to help the victims of Nazi persecution. The appeal issued two days before Passover, is a feature in the united drive of the Joint Distribution Committee and the American Palestine Campaign, which was launched last week.

Emphasizing the point that these two organizations have joined their efforts for this fundraising campaign, the appeal called upon American Jewish unity to unite in meeting the tragedy that has befallen their brethren (Continued on Page Eight)

U.S. May Ask End Of Persecution in Reich Trade Pact

Both America and Germany Anxious to Resume Commercial Relations on Larger Basis, Is Report in Washington—Officials Confer

(Special to the J.D.B.)

WASHINGTON, March 28.—What was described by a high government official as "an important conference" was held this afternoon at the State Department, presumably to consider how Germany is to settle a bill of $51,263,000 due Saturday for costs of the United States Army of Occupation and awards of the Mixed Claims Commission. William E. Dodd, American Ambassador to Germany, attended the conference.

Hitler Gently Reprimanded By Nazi Press

Frankfurter Zeitung Asks Clarity on Position of "Non-Aryans"

(Jewish Telegraphic Agency)

BERLIN, March 28.—The Frankfurter Zeitung today published a three-column article on "Non-Aryans" in commerce. Although "non-Aryans" are allowed by law to work, they experience great difficulties owing to public confusion on the "Aryan clause," the paper said.

The Nazi coordinated newspaper suggested that the Nazi government clarify the position, since the various Nazi trade associations have adopted "Aryan clauses of their own, thus damaging "Non-Aryans" in trade, despite the official orders for equality.

The Frankfurter Zeitung also pointed out that the Nazi leaders have forbidden the boycott against the Jews, yet in the cautious language of the paper, "the local press is not ready to cooperate." Thus for the first time a German paper confirmed the reports published by the Jewish Telegraphic Agency to the effect that local Nazi leaders all over Germany disregarded orders issued by the central government to stop the boycott against Jewish business.

The conference may lead to the opening of negotiations for a more liberal exchange of trade between the United States and Germany, in view of Germany's indebtedness to this country and her own international economic distress, it was indicated today in several quarters. For the last few days, since Ambassador Dodd has returned from Germany, closed conferences have been held in the State Department and the German Ambassador, Dr. Hans Luther, has been a frequent visitor there.

From another quarter it was learned that George N. Peek, head of the newly organized Federal Import and Export Bank, has under serious consideration a trade agreement between the United States and Germany. The United States is very anxious to recapture the German pork and lard market and at the same time Germany is anxious to cast off her economic paralysis.

In order to meet her obligations to the United States and make gain for her international recovery Germany would have to be given a favorable balance of trade in any agreement with the United States.

During the last year German goods have been boycotted in the United States by such organizations as the powerful American Federation of Labor and other groups because of Germany's persecution of the Jews and the destruction of the labor movement.

This boycott has resulted in a serious decline in her trade with the United States. It generally recognized by those interested in furthering trade with Germany that the boycott of her goods in this country must stop. The only way for the boycott to cease, they say, will be for Germany to do (Continued on Page Eight)

Anti-Racketeering Poultry Code Ready for President's Approval

(Special to the J.D.B.)

WASHINGTON, March 28.—Racketeering and other unfair trade practices in the New York poultry industry would be eliminated under a code of fair competition drafted by the Agricultural Adjustment Administration which is about ready for submission to President Roosevelt for final approval. The code would cover every person in the metropolitan area of New York who is engaged in the business of selling, purchasing for resale, transporting, handling, or slaughtering live poultry from the time the poultry comes into metropolitan New York to the time it is first sold in slaughtered form. Related branches of the industry may be included under the code through an amendment.

As tentatively drawn, the code contains language which unmistakably indicates that its purpose is to wipe-out all forms of graft and racketeering now existing in the New York wholesale and retail poultry trades. One of the main purposes of the code will be to prevent the collection of so-called "fees" and "dues" and the forcing of members of the industry, through threats of violence or (Continued on Page Eight)

Kunstmann, German Jewish Shipper, Dies

(Jewish Telegraphic Agency) BERLIN, March 28.—Counselor Wilhelm Kunstmann, minister, dean of German shippers and responsible for developing the German Baltic commercial fleet, died today in Stettin. The German press praised Kunstmann highly without mentioning the fact that he was a devout Jew who was extremely interested in Jewish affairs.

Rabbi Nathan Rosen, at 27, Leads Brooklyn Congregation

Is Also Ardent Worker in Jewish Youth Movements

At twenty-seven Nathan N. Rosen is not only the youngest active rabbi in New York City, as far as the records go, but has also crammed into his life a variety of activities and achievements that would do credit and honor to a man twice his age.

An hour or two in his company made possible the discovery of a personality that is a combination of Talmudic wisdom and engaging boyishness, profound scholarship and normal interests common to his generation.

When presented for an answer defining his favorite hobby, Rabbi Rosen said: "My hobby is making friends, my habit is keeping them." Then suddenly stricken with the thought of any presumptions, he pleaded that the remark be stricken of the record. But he is not the least presumptuous in this matter of making and keeping friends, as was evidenced when several hundred persons from all walks of life gathered last Sunday night when he was inaugurating the new Temple Petach Tikvah, Rochester avenue and Lincoln place, Brooklyn.

Pay Him His Tribute
There Municipal Court Justice Nathan Swoyer, Congressman Andrew L. Somers, Assemblyman Irwin Steingut, Rear Admiral McGovern and a host of other men tried to pay tribute to their friend.

Rabbi Nathan took charge of the congregation some six months ago, coming all the way from Savannah, where he was minister in a temple for three years. For two years before that he acted as a rabbi. In fact, while still a senior in college, he led a congregation in Valley Stream.

Georgia Activities
Not only is this young man a thirty-second degree Mason but also an honorary life member of the Clinton Lodge No. 64, in Valley Stream, which he joined in 1931. He is also active in local Masonic circles. In Georgia he was on the State Board for the Advancement of Education among Negroes, a former chairman of education for Young Judea, he is now on its national governing board. He is a past national vice-president of Masada and a member of the executive of the Southeastern Rabbinic Association.

At the age of twelve the future rabbi made numerous appearances in Brooklyn synagogues. When he was five years old he entered Yeshiva "Beit Haim" in Brooklyn.

Last Rites for Cohen, Welfare Work Leader

600 at the Final Services for Manufacturer, Dead at 69

More than 600 persons paid final tribute to Joseph H. Cohen, retired clothing manufacturer and welfare work leader, at funeral services in the New York Jewish Center, 131 West Eighty-sixth street, yesterday morning.

Mr. Cohen died Tuesday in the Beth Israel Hospital, following a three days' illness. He was sixty-nine years old.

Rabbi Leo Jung conducted the service and delivered the eulogy. Center P. Bannan-Way participated in the ceremony.

"A real Joseph, he dreamt for all the poor, all the forlorn, all the sick and ailing," Rabbi Jung had all the grace of an orthodox Jew, his prayerful attitude, his devotion, his beautiful worship. Deeply anchored to his faith, he derived from it, not only sustenance in years of sickness and every kind of disappointment, but also the breadth of prophetic universalism."

Directors of the Beth Israel Hospital and officers and trustees of the Jewish Center acted as hosts and honorary pallbearers. Among those attending the services were:

Borough President Samuel Levy, Judge Otto A. Rosalysky, Morris Anson, director Beth Israel Hospital; William Feinberg, president Jewish Center; Gustavus A. Rogers; Reuben Sadowsky; Dr. Nathan Rainoff, Beth Israel Hospital, and William Weiss, president Union of Orthodox Jewish Congregations.

Interment was in the New Mount Carmel Cemetery in Cypress Hills. The funeral procession of more than sixty automobiles had police escort.

Mr. Cohen is survived by his widow, two sons, Abraham and Simon, and a daughter, Mrs. Jeanette Silberstein.

He was a founder of the Jewish Center, the first of its kind in this country; a former president of the Beth Israel Hospital, a trustee of Rabbi Isaac Elchanan Theological Seminary, and a former president of the Pennsylvania Exchange Bank.

Rosenbush Spurns Jewish Youth in Hitlerism Battle

"We are confident that in the end we shall prevail in the war against Hitlerism and make the world safe for humanity." Rabbi at the rally of the Staten Island youth division of the American Jewish Congress, held at the Temple Emanuel, Fort Richmond.

"The Jews have realized that the fight is waging against Hitlerism is no longer an individual battle, no longer a selfish struggle for self-preservation. Circumstances have now wedded him the champion of civilization against barbarism."

"The world's Jewish today is like David of old battling against Goliath. In the historic struggle of ancient Israel against the Philistines the victory of little David over the apparently colossal Goliath settled the issue between the two peoples and David slew the giant with his own sword."

"Today the Jews of the world are representatives of all peoples in the war against a system of tyranny and cruelty that has no place in our lives."

Altro Workshop for Tuberculars Thrills Visiting Female Students

A battalion of female students from fourteen colleges in the East trooped into the Altro Workshop in the Bronx yesterday morning (an institution for Jewish tuberculars) and surveyed the field of practical sociology for themselves.

At the head of the little army marched Mrs. Carol Rouse, secretary of the Association of Volunteers, and her assistant, Ruth Weinberg. One lonely male, Effret Marten, of the Welfare Council (tuberculars) and surveyed the field of practical sociology for themselves.

This personal appearance under the auspices of Manhattan-Washington B'nai B'rith at the B'NAI BRITH CLUB, 36 WEST 69th STREET, at 8-45, is in answer to requests since the appearance of "Yehibber Israel," a pamphlet which Prof. Goldschmidt recently wrote.

him to the United States from Western Russia, where he was born.

Today he is busy in youth movements of various kinds, and it seems natural that his congregation boasts the largest young folks' league in the borough, with between 300 and 400 members.

Still Single—But Willing
Strangely, the handsome young rabbi is still single but willing. He lives with his parents. His married sister lives in Palestine (he, incidentally, is an ardent Zionist). An older brother, Herman L., is rabbi in Brighton Beach Center. Henry, the youngest of the family, is studying law.

There is more to the youthful, versatile and accomplished Nathan N. Rosen. A few years ago the Chief Rabbi of Cleveland put him "in a nutshell" thus:

"A shining example of the great traditions of Judaism and of our college of higher Jewish learning in particular."

Rabbi Favors Easing of State Divorce Laws

Goldstein Talks Before Codes Committee Hearing

(Special to the J.D.B.)
ALBANY, March 28.—The present divorce law in New York State is unethical and should be changed, asserted Rabbi Sidney E. Goldstein, associate rabbi of the First Synagogue, New York, and chairman of the social justice commission of the Central Conference of American Rabbis, when he spoke today at a hearing on proposed amendments to the divorce law before the codes committee of the New York State Assembly.

"Because of reaction on the part of those who would be free, because it forces others to live together in a painful and unnatural union, because it leads to immoral and illegal associations between men and women, because it breeds disrespect and irreverence for law itself, the divorce law of the State of New York stands indicted as an unethical statute," Rabbi Goldstein declared. "For no law can be ethical unless it is in accordance with the principles and enactments in absolute justice for those it is designed to punish or protect."

Dr. Goldstein spoke of the plight of couples who find themselves unloved to each other, and declared that infidelity is not the most important source of domestic trouble. He quoted statistics revealing that divorce is granted for infidelity in only 11.5 per cent of all the cases in the United States and that with increasing divorce and drunkenness are common causes for divorce action.

The New Proposals
The hearing was under the chairmanship of Assemblyman I. Arnold Ross. The divorce law changes under discussion are those which would create "desertion grounds for divorce, and strengthening the law against perjury and collusion."

"This community there are many couples who find themselves utterly unloved for each other and who cannot or will not, because of conscience, escape through the one door the law allows," Rabbi Goldstein said. "Let me ask you to picture to yourself what this forced association must mean to a man and woman who have no affection for each other, who become a source of irritation to each other and who have come to regard each other with distaste and with hate. This legal but detested, and one might say almost immoral, intimacy is a source of irresponsible misery and torture to any woman and it means little less to the man."

Where Is Herr Walter, Head Of 'Friends of New Germany'?

Inquiries at Travel Bureau Reveal Anti-Boycott Movement by 'German-American Protective Alliance'—Literature Displayed

While the pro-Hiliterite element among the German-American is plotting its plan for the boycott against the boycotters of goods made in Nazi Germany, inquiries yesterday at 308 East Eighty-sixth street, given as the address of Reinhold Walter, newly-elected head of the League of the Friends of the New Germany, revealed that it was only his mailing address. A young man at the Eighty-sixth street address, where Yorkville Kanelle, a travel bureau, is located, declining to give his name, explained to the Jewish Daily Bulletin reporter that the letter addressed to "Walter come there" "once in a while."

The young man was wearing a button inscribed with the legend, "D. A. W. A." The initials being those of the German words standing for the "German-American Protective Alliance," of the United German Societies of Greater New York, which has launched a movement "with a view to bring about the collapse of the boycott" against German-made goods, as one of the several English and French leaflets jettisoned on the counter of the travel bureau stated. The name of Anton Hugel also appears on the window of Yorkville Kanelle.

"We Have Our Own Ways"

The anonymous young man said that Walter had no regular office but could be found in that office, nor would he be particularly interested in publicity in the English-language newspapers as he has our own ways of reaching the people who are interested in it.

Pointing to the "D. A. W. A." button in his lapel, the young man explained that more than 10,000 have thus far been distributed to persons wishing to wear them.

He offered a variety of the movement's literature, one of the movement's literature, one of the movement's literature leaflets declaring that it "is a question of honor and self-defense" for all opposed to the anti-Hiliterite boycott to "combine all their forces in order to oppose the armies of destruction and hatred."

Hebrew Congregations Group Appeal for Funds

The Union of American Hebrew Congregations has issued an appeal for funds. The Union, founded sixty years ago by Isaac M. The services, school curricula and pulpits of many American congregations have been greatly influenced by its existence.

N. Y. U. Students to Speak at Oratorical Contest

Three Jewish students are among the four who on April 11 will participate in the final round of the oratorical contest at New York University for the tenth annual Central High School Memorial medal. They are Milford Stern, a freshman, Henry Levine, sophomore, and Jack Rapoport, senior.

eraship of the American organization. Consequently, the heads of the pro-Hiliterite movement here are being replaced with Germans who are naturalized American citizens.

League Is "Flourishing"

In his speech of acceptance of the election, which also made him the leader of the national organization of the Friends of the New Germany, Walter declared that the league is now "in a very flourishing condition."

Carl Nicolai, former acting president of the United German Societies, which at one time was controlled by Heinz Spanknoel, mysteriously missing since Oct. 27, also addressed the gathering of 2,500 who crowded the Yorkville Casino, 210 East Eighty-sixth street, on Tuesday. At a late hour yesterday a sign in front of the Casino was still proclaiming that "members must show their cards to be admitted."

Jewish influence was blamed for the boycott sentiment here and various speakers urged a boycott against all boycotting Hiliterite Germany. The D. A. W. A. is planning the publication of a "read guide" of its member firms.

Adler to Head Jewish Group's Chicago Drive

Campaign to Support Educational Work Starts in May

(Special to the J.D.B.)
CHICAGO, March 28.—In response to a long distance telephone call made by Sol Kline, president of The Jewish Charities of Chicago, to Max Adler, who has been spending part of the winter in Los Angeles, Mr. Adler has agreed to serve as chairman of the Jewish education drive which is to be made this spring by The Jewish Charities.

After a good deal of discussion and many reports by various committees, The Jewish Charities of Chicago has adopted a plan which looks toward community support of the work of the Board of Jewish Education.

"In brief," Mr. Kline stated, "this plan provides that The Jewish Charities of Chicago shall, through a special drive each year, raise the funds required for a budget, approved by The Jewish Charities, for the Board of Jewish Education. This means that The Jewish Charities assume responsibility for raising the funds for the Board of Jewish Education, but will expend only such funds as are separately raised and especially designated for this purpose."

"Mr. Max Adler, in assuming the task as chairman of the first drive, is laying the foundation for what may be the best solution to date only for the support of Jewish education here, but in other communities as well. The great public service rendered by Mr. Adler on many occasions, his philanthropy in the Jewish community, in the general community, and in the field of the arts, are all well known. He is a fine example of the cultured business man who is intensely interested in Jewish affairs in general civic affairs. The Jewish Charities of Chicago Planetarium, which adds so much to the cultural life of the city, musical affairs, general cultural and educational enterprises—these have all been beneficiaries of his keen business sense, his intelligent direction, and his generosity."

The campaign is expected to take place in May.

WILMINGTON, Del., March 28.—An informal dance and revue in the opening affairs, were given at the Y. M. and Y. W. H. A. building last night, attended by more than 500 people. All local Jewish societies and fraternities were represented.

J. Louis Simon, president of the board of governors, opened the program with a brief address in which he asked the continued support of all present for the association.

The dance chairman was George Weiner. Announcement was made by Mr. Simon that alterations to the building will require about two more weeks, and at the end of that time an active daily program is planned.

Harry G. Glazer is chairman of the athletic committee. Joseph H. Flanner is chairman of the activities and Jack Lewises of social functions.

Passaic Charitable Societies Observe 24 Years of Service

(Special to the J.D.B.)
PASSAIC, N. J., March 28.—The Hebrew Free Sheltering Society and the Hebrew Free Medical Society here are rounding out twenty-four years of outstanding public service to the Jews and non-Jews of this city.

Started in 1910 by a group of men, of whom only two are living today, both societies have been supported by Jewish organizations and special campaigns and contributions.

The Sheltering Society averages 350 men a month, who are given a bed to sleep in and from two to four meals. Strangers coming into the city are directed to the two-family home at 68 Quincy street, over which Michael and Hannah Miller preside. The police many times send men to the Sheltering Society, and here the men are fed and given a place to sleep.

The Medical Society, also a free institution, cares for about 400 persons every year. It, too, has been in existence twenty-four years and is located at the same address. The Society has several connections with New York physicians, who take care of the patients.

Choose Own Doctor

"One thing we have done for twenty-four years," said Dr. Miller, "is that when someone comes here for treatment and we find that he cannot afford to pay for it, we let him choose his own doctor from the list. If something should happen—God forbid—then he cannot say that the Hebrew Free Medical Society sent a doctor to him and the doctor was no good. We let him pick his own doctor so he cannot say that to us."

One of the proud possessions of Michael Miller is a framed set of resolutions which were presented to him on April 8, 1924. The resolutions, written in Yiddish and English, praise Miller for his sixteen years in office, for having saved many people, for having helped preserve the lives of mothers, for the benefit children have received.

Societies Aid Good Work

The Passaic Hebrew Benevolent Society, which will be forty years old in December, the Joseph Spitz Organization, the Pride of Jersey, and the Jewish Odd Fellows are the major Passaic organizations which have helped to continue the charity work of the two institutions. In addition, campaigns are held and contributions are received during the year.

Today, the two-family house is going through a spring cleaning. Painters are at work throughout the entire building. Recently a fire played match havoc to the home and nearly destroyed it. But the Jewish patients are busy at work, helping to restore the home to its original form. And the work has not been curtailed during the renovation period, said Miller, and it has not been curtailed during the years of the depression.

Youngtown Jews Present Pen Set to Max Myerovich

(Special to the J.D.B.)
YOUNGSTOWN, Ohio, March 18.—Max Myerovich today is displaying a pen set presented to him recently by local Jewry in recognition of public service to Youngstown.

Jewish War Vets and CCC Men Will Be Seder Guests at Capital

(Special to the J.D.B.)
WASHINGTON, March 28.—Disbanded Jewish war veterans in nearby hospitals and Jewish workers in the CCC will be guests at a community seder commemorating the Passover holidays to be held Friday evening in the auditorium of the Jewish Community Center. The seder is being sponsored by the Jewish War Veterans of this city and the community center. Other organizations to participate are the Argo Lodge, B'nai B'rith, the Amity Club and the Brotherhood of the Washington Hebrew Congregation.

The services will be a duplication of those held for the American Expeditionary Forces in Paris in 1919 and will be led by Al Shefferman, who conducted the services in France.

In charge of the event is the following committee: Nat Silverberg, chairman; Tobias Cooper, Albert Jacobson, Jos. Barry, Dr. Meyer Ostrow, Dr. Iry Feinman and Mrs. Judith Harmel representing the Jewish War Veterans, and David Weiner, Edward Rosenblum, Maurice Bigsaver, and Abe Shefferman of the Jewish Community Center.

A. Z. A. Chapter Forming North Jersey Conference

(Special to the J.D.B.)
PATTERSON, N. J., March 28.—A.Z.A. chapters in Paterson, Montclair and Newark are banding together into a North Jersey conference. An informal meeting laid plans for the first meeting of the conference to be held in the spring or early in May. The Paterson chapter is working on a constitution to place before the conference.

The conference will meet every three months in a different city, and will outline social, religious, and educational plans for the chapters. A feature of the conferences will be the fact that every A.Z.A. member will be a delegate and will have the right to vote.

(Special to the J.D.B.)
BALTIMORE, March 28.—The Stradivarius String Quartet donated its services for a concert in the Phoenix Club, an exclusive Jewish organization, for the benefit of German scholars of all creeds who have been displaced by the Nazi regime from their university posts.

Bernard Flexner, of New York, announced that funds raised by the local concert and one in Philadelphia, together with equal grants from the Rockefeller Foundation, would provide grants to two scholars for two years each in this country. Last night's receipts were reported at $1,200.

Western Wall Repairs O.K.'d By British Gov't

MacLaren Explains New Construction on the Old Wall

(J.T.A. Special Correspondence)
 JERUSALEM, March 28.—In reply to a request by the Jewish Municipal Council here as to the significance of alleged recent structural alterations made on the Western (Wailing) Wall by the Moslem Supreme Council, Geoffrey MacLaren, deputy district commissioner, declared that a permit for certain repairs to buildings on the left side of the wall leading to the wall and reconstruction of the part of a wall had been approved by the government. He said the work was not held in suspense until the opening of the Western or Wailing Wall Order-in-Council, 1933. MacLaren added that he had inspected the work and saw no new door opening. He affirmed that there was no infringement of the "status quo."
 The commissioner denied rumors that these buildings after completion will serve as a school or playground. Had this been the case, he said, permission would have had to be sought from the government director of education.

Dr. David Yellin, 70, Awarded Honorary Chair at Hebrew Univ.

(J.T.A. Special Correspondence)
 JERUSALEM, March 10.—The grant of an honorary professorship at the Hebrew University at which he is a lecturer was made to Dr. David Yellin on the occasion of his seventieth birthday, which was celebrated here. Two hundred guests attended the banquet held in his honor at which Dr. J. L. Magnes, Chancellor of the University, made the announcement. Manachem Mendel Ussishkin, veteran Zionist leader, presided.
 Dr. Yellin was born in Jerusalem and at the outset of the British occupation was chairman of the Vaad Leumi and later vice-Mayor of Jerusalem. He was termed "ambassador of Palestine Jewry" whose cause he represented for many years. Joshua Yellin, Dr. Yellin's father, who died some years ago at the age of eighty-four, was also born in Jerusalem.

The latter group includes a small number who were married to Jewesses or whose race is doubtful.
 The number of members on February 1, 1933, was 6,203. The reduction of 355, among these, 3,823 were "Aryans," and 2,914 "non-Aryans" an increase of 154 "Aryans" and a decrease of 509 "non-Aryans."

The Berlin Sick Fund, Dr. Loelike further reports, employed in October, 1933, 3,451 Sick Fund members, 1,404 being "Aryans" and 2,047 "non-Aryans."

Jewish Population Large in Jaffa

Heavy Rents in Tel Aviv Lead to Large Exodus to the Sister City

(J.T.A. Special Correspondence)
 JAFFA, March 17.—One-third of the total population of this important port town is said to be Jewish. The heavy increase during the past two years is due to the shortage of dwellings and high rents in Tel Aviv, according to an estimate preceding a census of the Jaffa Jewish inhabitants taken for the purpose of the forthcoming municipal corporation elections.
 The Jewish community of Jaffa and Tel Aviv has decided to hold a census to ascertain the number of eligible voters. At least three members on the municipal council are to be asked by the Jewish community, and two additional Jewish representatives on the electoral committee which will conduct the polling.

Krakau Jews Protest Ban on Funds for Palestine and JNF

(Jewish Telegraphic Agency)
 KRAKAU, Poland, March 28.—The Jewish community here today appealed to the Polish Minister of Worship to nullify a decision of the Krakau authorities who demanded that the Jewish community cancel subsidies to the Jewish National Fund, the Palestine Foundation Fund and the Keren Hayishuv.
 All the speakers at the meeting of the Jewish community council protested vigorously against the ban on Palestine funds. The Agudath Israel members of the council were particularly indignant over the order, since, they said, their religious obligations included support for Palestine.

Traders With Jews Marked on Blackboard

(J.T.A. Special Correspondence)
 BERLIN, March 17.—The official Darmstadt Zeitung reports that a local group of the National Socialist Party set up a blackboard in Town Hall in the farming district, Lehelim im Rieg, on which the names of all persons doing business with Jews will be inscribed.
 "All the news concerning Jews" is faithfully and promptly reported in the Jewish Daily Bulletin—the only Jewish daily newspaper printed in English.

Tel Aviv Launches Nazi Boycott Week

Goods Brought by Reich Jews Raise Figures of German Imports

(J.T.A. Special Correspondence)
 TEL AVIV, March 10.—"Hitler boycott week" was launched here as a measure aimed at stimulating the boycott of German made products by the Jewish Socialist Youth Federation.
 Rabbis delivered sermons calling for the boycott during the pause in the services on Saturday, February 17. At the Jascha Heifetz Hall here, addresses were delivered calling for a removal of the stigma on Palestine Jewry (but it was pointed out that German imports into Palestine had increased of late and were mounting.
 It may be mentioned, incidentally, that the reason for this increase is that German Jewish newcomers are bringing considerable property and effects into the country, and the rise therefore may not be attributed to higher purchases by residents.
 Other measures in the campaign include the flashing of "boycott the goods of the evil country" on the screens of talkie houses, white tags and streamers bearing upon the blockade, such as "give an honorable exit to Nazi evil," were distributed and worn.
 The promoters of "Hitler boycott week" hope to increase the blockade considerably during their campaign.

Erection of Airport At Tel-Aviv Denied By Cunliffe-Lister

(Jewish Telegraphic Agency)
 LONDON, March 28.—Sir Philip Cunliffe-Lister, secretary of State for Colonies, replying to a query in the House of Commons made by Barnett Janner, Jewish member of Parliament, declared that he was not aware of any suggestion that an airport be laid out near Tel Aviv in connection with the forthcoming Levant Fair.
 The whole question of civil aviation in Palestine, the Colonial Minister said, is now receiving the attention of High Commissioner Sir Arthur Grenfell Wauchop, who, it is understood, hopes to submit proposals in the near future for the establishment of an airport more conveniently located in regard to Jerusalem, Jaffa and Tel Aviv, than the present airport at Gaza.

Emir Abdullah To Seek British Treaty Change

Leader to Visit London in June to Discuss the Transjordan Problem

(J.T.A. Special Correspondence)
 AMMAN, Transjordan, March 15.—The objects of the Emir Abdullah's visit to London this June are said to be in connection with changes in the British-Transjordan treaty so as to increase the independent sovereignty of Transjordan; to seek a loan for agricultural relief in view of the famine-stricken position of farmers; and to endeavor to reverse the British Government's decision for disarmament of the Bedouin tribes who are afraid of incursions from neighboring desert territories where disarming would not be enforced, and to conclude negotiations in connection with boundary demarcation.

As for Palestine, it is learned that the Emir will use the opportunity to present Palestinian Arab demands on the present British policy, notably Jewish immigration and Jewish land purchases.

The Pan-Arab Federation, an organization embracing all Arabian countries, is said to have been discussed at the recent meeting of the Emir Abdullah with the Palestine Arab leaders, when Husayn Bey Jabari, Syrian leader living at Geneva, was also present.

The Bulletin's Day Book

With French Fascism during the last few days again on the front page, we find it timely to announce that a sister group to perhaps the strongest nationalist group in Paris has been formed in New York. The New Yorkers, as its title indicates, are under the group title, Croix de feu, "Cross of fire."

We are told by a Jewish member of the group that it is in no wise anti-Semitic. He says that Jews among other transplants and Frenchmen are lending the movement in their native land considerable support.

Some years ago when America was irritated with its own fiery crosses we happened to be out on the Pacific Coast. Because the Jews were sparsely settled in that region, the brunt of responsibility of warding off the KKK, bearers of the crosses, fell mainly on the shoulders of Catholics.

A priest in a little Oregon town one Sunday attempted to psycho-analyze those who had been knocking over sacred statues on parish grounds and burning crosses and hanging them on telephone poles, and generally deporting themselves in the manner of Hallow'een vandals. "Well," the priest said at mass, "these pranks are being perpetrated by men with nothing else to do, men who have never quite grown up. Now there is only one way to handle bad boys, and that is to give them a good tanning and put them to work. This I shall do if I ever lay my hands on members of the KKK."

Now, some nights later, the priest saw a group of ten or twelve white-robed men stealing through the Jewish neighborhood. He called the housekeeper to give him a sheet from the linen closet, which he hastily cut into a hood. He joined the gang without being detected, following along until they began mutilating one of the statues in the yard, and promptly let loose—"Be scrupulously spalpeen!" he shouted to the bewildered KKK Kluxers turned in astonishment. "I'll teach you some manners," he urged, and forthwith he sailed into the white-robed mass with both fists flying.

Being stalwart, athletic, and altogether skillful with his hands, he felled two of the marauders, while the remainder sought cover. The now stunned KKK Kluxers dragged into the house, looked them over, and addressed them as follows: "Both of you look as though you've had enough chastisement for one night. Now get yourselves up to my spare room and get to bed, because early in the morning you've got a little job to do."

The townspeople were surprised on the following day when upon passing the church grounds they saw two white robed figures, each with a towel, repairing the damaged statues. And near them at the priest calmly smoking a pipe, a strap across his lap. He was never again molested, as far as we know.

We are not frequently given to moralizing, but it seems to us that if vandals were generally treated in this manner, there would be more tolerance and less trouble in the world.

It is true that not every man is capable of taking a number of roughnecks by the seat of the trousers and knaps of the neck, but we do believe that man's indignity could derive some way to handle vandals properly.

To recognize their activities as awful crimes against civilization, to hold public demonstrations against them and thereby advertise a group that is unworthy of notice, and then to allow them to run rampant until they do something really harmful, is to nourish mischief. We would recommend an immediate and informal trowling for an individual ill-doer before counter-demonstrations can be mustered to formulate their activities. This raised to ridicule or lowered in their own estimation, they may behave themselves, if rights thinking people are willing to let bygones be bygones.

Passover Gefulte Fish Assured As Retailers Call Off Strike Here

Jewish housewives in the New York area will be able to prepare their gefulte fish in peace for the Passover holiday, which begins Friday evening. The strike of the retail fish dealers has been called off for the three-day festival, at least.

Fish dealers from all over the city were down at Pack Slip early this morning, when they began their supply of whitefish, pike, perch and carp from the wholesale firms at Fulton Fish Market. The retailers arrived at their decision to accept the terms of the agreement with wholesalers arranged by intermediaries after a long and stormy meeting at Astor Theatre, 42 East Fourth street, on Tuesday night. The meeting broke up after midnight, when it was voted to consent to the terms which were offered. The signing of a petition demanding of the federal government the right to collective bargaining, this was forbidden by a court order in 1924.

The meeting reached its dramatic climax when Stanley Orsanman, counsel for the wholesalers, made a plea for the "Fished loser!" All of the wholesalers' demands, however, were agreed upon. The compromise rate scale sets the price of the various types of fish at from two to fifteen cents less than the previous prices. It is expected that these rates will come down lower after the holiday season.

'Men in White' Abroad

"Men in White," the drama by Sidney Kingsley which the Group Theatre and Sidney Harmon and Joe R. Alton are presenting at the Broadhurst Theatre in its seventh successful month in New York, recently opened with great success in Budapest.

"Men in White" is also at the El Capitan Theatre in Los Angeles. On April 2 the play will open at Ford's Theatre in Baltimore and during the same week it will have a production at the Hanna Theatre in Cleveland.

Gilbert Miller is soon to introduce the play in London.

Critical Moments

By GEORGE JOEL

Spring Must Be Here

Spring must be here, don't let the weather fool you! Some people use their carefully cultivated brains as a barometer, others rely on their rheumatism, while still others are so technical as to examine trees and bushes, or look for robins. I have an infallible method of determining the approach of Spring. I simply wait for the announcement of a Gilbert & Sullivan revival. It never fails. Next week the "Mikado" makes its annual appearance. It will be followed by "The Pirates of Penzance" and other Gilbert & Sullivan operas. As soon as the lilting airs of these compositions sweep over the footlights you can be sure that Winter has gone.

No Gilbert and Sullivan Movies

Ever since the talkies came into existence and companies have been searching for material I wondered why there was no attempt to make pictures of the various Gilbert & Sullivan operas. It is remarkable to me that here was a chance to do a series of pictures with international appeal. Recently I learned the reason for the lapse. Believe it or not, there have been no G. & S. pictures for the very good reason that the owners of the copyrights refused to sell any of them to a motion picture concern. They are too valuable!

Turned Down Movies

It is a grossly large amount of money has been made for the rights but on every occasion the picture people have been turned down flatly. The heirs of Gilbert & Sullivan realize that by retaining their rights they have a property that will bring a perpetual income. If they are sold to the movies the revival performances are made valueless and the G. & S. heirs are finished.

Four Saints Revived

The George Stokely-Virgil Thompson opera "Four Saints in a Acta," which closed two weeks ago, will be brought back to Broadway for another run, beginning next Monday at the Elmore Theatre. It was originally slated for a two week engagement. The furor caused by this strange concoction of words and beautiful music made Harry Moses keep it out of the theatre two weeks. After it closed Mr. Moses found that there were still enough people who hadn't seen it and who had expressed a desire to view it again that the opera is on for a further limited engagement. There will be no change in cast, but the cellophane costumes and settings have been refurbished for the occasion.

No 'Races'

Another Bruckner's "Races" anti-Nazi play, which the Theatre Guild has had out on the road and which was scheduled to open in New York next week, has been temporarily withdrawn. It is hoped to bring the play into New York next Fall. In its place "Jig Saw," a play by Dawn Powell, who

The "Ziegfeld Follies," now at the Winter Garden, has passed the century mark in performances. According to the producers the big show is doing very nicely and breaking box-office records. . . . About twelve thousand visitors from Jerusalem came to Tel Aviv for the festival.

The Human Touch

By HARRY SALTPEER

"Sacred Service" in Berlin FERNST BLOCH has produced his "Sacred Service" in Turin and soon he will conduct the American premiere of that work in Carnegie Hall, with the Schola Cantorum, the Philadelphia Symphony Orchestra, the choir of the Pious X School and Friedrich Schorr, baritone soloist of the Metropolitan. Late next month he sails for Milan where, at La Scala, he will conduct two additional performances. But the most astonishing bit of news the composer brought back with him from Europe Monday was that the Hebrew Sacred Service would be given some time this Summer in Berlin, under the direction of Alexander Weisbaum of the Jewish Kulturbund.

To those reporters who expressed astonishment at the director, or the improbability of giving a musical work in Hebrew in Berlin, the elderly, but virile, composer replied:

"I believe any 'Sacred Service' may be an answer to the accusations of Chamberlain (the philosophical font of anti-Semitism in Germany) as to the danger of a 'chosen people' seeking to usurp the world; a challenge, too, to those Jews who would limit their faith to their race. For if Judaism is not that of the Ghetto, but that of the prophets—messianic and universal. The faith it embodies, though inspired by the ancient service, transcends racial boundaries; the appeal it voices, though rooted in one religion, is to brotherhood. It addresses not Jews alone, but mankind."

Ernie Bombardment
When Radest Bloch came back from Europe a little less than a year ago with the manuscript of his "Sacred Service," he expressed the seed of a thought, a wish, a desire, of which the projected Berlin performance is the fruit. It was his idea that Hitlerism was so deeply embedded in the German people, and Hitlerism in its anti-Semitic import especially, that it was a fatal thing to argue, but his reason against it. Anti-Semitism was not susceptible to anything but a counter-feeling, an opposing sentiment. And he then expressed the idea that Germany ought to be invaded, via the radio, by the Sacred Service, which was the expression of Jewish feeling at its noblest and most intense. Perhaps in saying this, Mr. Bloch was speaking not only as a Jew, but also as a composer with the natural vanity of any composer.

What the effect of a Berlin performance of the Sacred Service will be it is difficult to imagine. The German reviewers will be free to say only that the Dictator of Nazi Culture will allow them to say. Perhaps the greatest service of the Sacred Service will be in fortifying the Jews who hear it, in making them realize that they are tied by bonds to a prophetic and a poetic heritage, that they are still the people of The Book, sons of the David who wrote the Psalms. If the Berlin performance of the Sacred Service does that much it will have done enough.

In the meantime, New York has a unique experience before it.

"The Shatter'd Lamp"
I think I may say without fear of successful contradiction that Leslie Radest's "The Shatter'd Lamp," now current at the Maxine Elliott, is the best anti-Nazi play that has come to New York. The actors are intense but not overdrawn. The actors are in character and the Nazi inspector looks and acts like a Nazi. An actor performing the part of a villain can have no greater affirmation of his capacity than that of being hissed. The other evening John Buckley, who takes the part of the Nazi, Johannes Von Rentzau, had the pleasure of hearing himself thoroughly hissed. Mr. Brooker, it seems to me, did a lot to make the whole drama of Hitlerism come true on the stage of the Maxine Elliott. He acted the embodiment of Young Ruthlessness.

The evening at "The Shatter'd Lamp" reminds me of the performance of the Oseip Dymow play, "German Adams," produced in Yiddish at the Second Avenue Theatre. Several Nazi Storm

Troopers were supposed to be imprisoned in that drama. Theatre-goers had the pleasure of hearing actors impersonating Nazis speak in Yiddish. With the exception of one blond and lean Jew, all the others looked like anything but Nazis, and if their language and appearance weren't sufficient to destroy the illusion of their being Nazis, their uniforms would have given them away. The hooked crosses on their armlets, for example, seemed to have been designed by guesswork. The hooked crosses worn on the uniforms of the "Shatter'd Lamp" storm troopers were authentic, and had they not been, a good deal of the force and of the reality of the play would have been lost, which leads to the probable conclusion that reality is made up of a hundred little touches of reality. By which conclusion are justified those producers who use diamonds when they want to give the illusion of diamonds.

A Propaganda Play
"The Shatter'd Lamp" is cursed with the classification of "propaganda play" and of course it is. But it is also a play, and that is what matters. As to its effectiveness of its propaganda I had a curious illustration. Behind me were seated two women, one of whom was discussing the itinerary of her projected Summer trip through Europe. During the intermission between the first and the second act, the Summer tripper was saying that she would visit Germany, Norway, Austria and Canada.

"I'd stay out of Germany if I were you," said her chum. "Oh, no, why should I?" was the retort. "Things aren't as bad as they're made out." "Still, I'd stay out," insisted the second woman. Came the second act, and the second intermission. Things had become considerably worse with the Opals, with whose home life "The Shatter'd Lamp" is chiefly concerned. "The Frau Professor," it appears, was a Jewess, and her son was so little aware of the Jewishness in his veins that he had slain the Storm Troopers and had even invited his Nazi chum—the aforesaid Von Renzau—to tell his folks about the ideals of Young Germany. "Well, by the second intermission, the Summer tourist had made up her mind: "No, I guess I won't go to Germany after all!" "You're right," said her friend approvingly.
