Passover

ON THE Feast of Passover, commemorating Israel's liberation from the land of Egypt, we usually recall the tribulations and martyrdom that have befallen the Jewish people through the ages and the miraculous escapes recorded in the long history of the Wandering Jew. We recall on this Independence Day the great Jewish Lawgiver and Leader, Moses, who delivered our people from bondage and led them to the border of the Promised Land. We recall his great wisdom, his great humility and his great patience in dealing with the generation that has grown accustomed to slavery and to the fleshpots of Egypt. The world's history has known no equal of Moses as a national leader who brought to the world, through Israel, inspiring examples of liberty and the code of moral laws.

From time to time the Jewish people was threatened with destruction. Persecutions and martyrdoms marked their history in many lands. But the spirit of Moses has kept Israel alive, while other nations perished. Every generation of Jewry has had to face new sufferings and persecutions here and there. But Israel has survived them all. With the development and spread of civilization, came Jewish emancipation in various lands. And at last, after centuries of fervent hope, came also the realization of the historic dream of Israel—the regeneration and rehabilitation of the ancient homeland of the Jewish people.

But the sorrows of the martyrdom never cease. New Pharaohs and new Hamans rise in every generation to destroy Israel. And the latest Pharaoh and Haman combined, Hitler, has added the darkest page to the countless dark pages of Jewish history. He is striking at the Jewish people, at the Jewish spirit of liberty and justice and peace, with all the refinements of cruelty, with all the savages forms of unbridled bigotry and with all the modern fabrications of pseudo-scientific camouflage. The Spanish Inquisition and the Tzarist pogroms with all their horrors cannot be compared to the diabolical crimes against the Jews that are now being committed in the heartless "heart" of Europe, in Hitler's Germany.

This is a triple Passover in the life of Israel. But as we recall on this Feast of Liberation Israel's and the long line of persecutors' monumental record of martyrdom who tortured but failed to destroy the Jewish people, we must not fall into despair. The Pharaohs and Hamans of today are sure to meet the fate of the Pharaohs and Hamans of old.

Austria Jews Alarmed by Hatred Drive

Propaganda Campaign Is Contrary to Regime's Assurances

(Jewish Telegraphic Agency)

VIENNA, March 30.—The wild anti-Semitic propaganda campaign now in full swing all over Austria has alarmed the Jews of that country and makes certain that they will spend an unhappy, troubled Passover, Die Stimmung, organ of the Austrian Zionists, declared today.

The paper pointed out that the propaganda campaign is directly contrary to the assurances given by the Dollfuss regime that no anti-Semitic measures were contemplated by the Austrian government.

Hitler's Test of Power Is Near, Washington Observers Believe

Officials Watch Keenly Developments in Reich, In Midst of Economic Crisis—Trade Pact Being Considered, Is Talk

(Special to the J.D.B.)

WASHINGTON, March 30.—Officialdom in the Capitol of the United States is watching with keen interest the developments in Germany under the Hitler regime. Ambassador William B. Dodd's return from Germany on his first visit here since he was named Ambassador to that country last summer has caused considerable speculation in Washington as to just what is happening under the Reich government. During the same time of Ambassador Dodd's visit here, German Ambassador

Boycott In Full Swing In Nuremberg Area

Criticizes Gov't Nazis Prevent Jews, Starving as Result of the Boycott, From Buying Bread

170 Jewish Inmates to Strike if Denied Passover Food

(Special to the J.D.B.)

PHILADELPHIA, March 30.—Characterizing the action of the federal government as arbitrary, and deploring the circumstances which led to agitation by the federal prison at Lewisburg due to a decision to deny outside Passover food to Jewish prisoners, William Portv, prominent member of the Jewish community, inspector of the county prisons here and chairman of the District 8 Pnai Bnai B'rith Social Service Committee, which includes prison welfare, in a statement to the Jewish Daily Bulletin today stressed the value of religious services and observance of ceremonies in penal institutions.

His comment was evoked by the decision of some 170 Jewish inmates at Lewisburg to go on a voluntary forty-eight hour fast at the outset of the Passover celebration. The action was determined on as a protest against Gentile prisoners' charges of discrimination favoring Jews in the matter (Continued on Page Twelve)

Polish Police Prohibit Anti-Nazi Meeting

(Jewish Telegraphic Agency)

WARSAW, March 30.—A meeting called by the United Polish Jewish Committee for Combating German Jewish Persecution was prohibited here at the last moment by Polish police.

The authorities prohibited the meeting on the ground that it might give rise to disorders.

Many Outbreaks Occur in Disregard of Hitler's Orders—Streicher Continues Agitation—Jews' Shops Forced to Display Anti-Semitic Cross

(Jewish Telegraphic Agency)

PRAGUE, March 30.—The anti-Jewish boycott, which the Nazi leaders in Germany prohibited recently, is in full swing in the whole of Middle Franconia, it was revealed today when a special correspondent of the Jewish Telegraphic Agency returned from a tour of investigation through Bavaria.

In the Franconian region centered around Nuremberg, shops are prohibited by the Nazis from selling bread to Jews, who are starving as a result of the intense boycott and agitation against them. Jewish shops in the region have been compelled to display prominently signs reading, "Julius Streicher is right. The Jews are our misfortune."

Anti-Jewish outbreaks similar to the pogrom in Guntzenhausen are occurring in the towns and villages of Middle Franconia. The outbreaks are attributed to the disappointment of the local Nazi leaders over the weakening of the anti-Jewish boycott campaign by the orders issued from Berlin.

At the same time Streicher, notorious anti-Semite and editor of Der Stuermer, most violent of anti-Jewish newspapers continues his heated agitation against the Jews. Thanks to the influence of Streicher, Nuremberg has become notorious for its anti-Jewish excesses in Hitler's Third Reich.

Guntzenhausen Details
The Jewish Telegraphic Agency correspondent also learned the full story of the Guntzenhausen pogrom.

The affair began when Jews at the local inn were ejected. This seemed to have been a signal for the beginning of the pogrom. Attacks were immediately made on all the Jewish houses. The men were beaten and even the Jewish women were dragged out on the streets and mercilessly maltreated.

Jacob Rosenfeld, twenty years of age, was found hanging to a garden fence, apparently murdered, not a suicide as previously reported. Max Rosenau, a man of sixty, was found with four knife (Continued on Page Twelve)

The division assured the speakers that they would bend every effort to meet and even increase the $100,000 goal.

The following are officers in the Restaurant Division:

HIAS Reunites Mother and Son After 26 Years

Finds Missing Parent in Vienna Working as Dressmaker

The story of how a son who could not remember ever having seen his mother at last found her was revealed here when the Hebrew Sheltering and Immigrant Aid Society announced that Samuel Klein, 26, of 119 West Eighty-eighth street, had located his mother, Yetta Klein, in Vienna.

Mrs. Klein came to America thirty years ago and was married in New York. Samuel was born in 1907, and in the same year Mrs. Klein was deported because she was not a citizen and was, immigration authorities asserted, mentally deficient. A report was received that she had fallen overboard. Samuel came to the offices that he had heard his mother was still living. She was located in Vienna, where she was earning a living as a dressmaker. Mother and son will be reunited soon.

Nazis Suffer From Inferiority Complex, Holds Dr. Paul Radin

Northern Races Last to Be Civilized—Russians, Americans and Jews Leaders in Coming Struggle for Power, He Writes in 'The Racial Myth'

Nazi claims of "Aryan" superiority are the outcome of an inferiority complex, Paul Radin, professor of anthropology at the University of California, asserts in his book, "The Racial Myth," which will be issued tomorrow by Whittey House.

Dr. Radin holds that the Northern races, which are the last to be civilized, invented the legend of their greatness as a compensation for their shortcomings. "The California scholar's thesis is that no race is essentially superior to any other race, and he adduces definite evidence to this effect."

The claims of some German writers that Dante, Voltaire and other great personages were of German origin are likewise blasted by Dr. Radin, who endeavors to show that all the peoples of the earth had their share in the upbuilding of modern culture.

Crises Determine Traits. "Racial" characteristics are not German, French, English, etc., but simply inevitable aspects of the crises under which groups develop, then, Dr. Radin maintains. Certain political and social crises determine traits of races and peoples. Certain historical and geographical considerations, the anthropologist holds, will make the Russians, Americans and Jews leaders in the coming struggle for power.

Hitler's Third Reich is on the verge of dissolution because of its "realistic and destructive romanticism," writes Radin. "There is not a single one of its junctions and precepts that is not palpably and ludicrously wrong. There never was an Aryan race; the Germans are not, to any extent, Nordic; the old system of law in which they have taken refuge for their new code was not to any appreciable degree Germanic; the small businessman class which they wish to resurrect and reconvert is unmistakably dead, and so on ad infinitum.

Jews Part Significant. "This atmosphere of the madhouse cannot possibly represent the mass of 65,000,000 people who have always been known for their middle-of-the-road sanity; it cannot represent the permanent mood of madmen. The only conceivable interpretation is that the semblance of madness, this intensification of the old Teutonic type, the berserker rage, conceals something else—the last wild attempt; it staves off the impending transformation of an economic system."

That it should assume such crude forms is the most significant indication of its transitoriness and its inherent weakness.

As for the position of the Jews in the modern world, Dr. Radin points out that their significant part in European affairs during the nineteenth and twentieth centuries "seems to many so amazing that there has been an inclination to ascribe to its explanation in terms of superior ability. Attempts have even been made to account for this ability on the theory that they are a pure race. The racial question is a very old one. The Jews are one of the most mixed races in history."

Company Files Bond to Import 'Carmel' Wines

Societe Cooperative Is Being Sued Over Name by Mizrahi Co.

A bond of $5,000 was filed in the United States District Court Friday morning for Societe Cooperative Vigneronne des Grands Caves Richon-le-Zion, thus enabling the firm to import its sacramental wines from Palestine.

The bond was ordered by Federal Judge John M. Woolley last Tuesday, following the arguments of Isaac Cohen, counsel for the Mizrahi Wine Co. which is involved in litigation with the Societe Cooperative over priority of the use of the term "Carmel" on their respective trademarks.

EAST ORANGE, N. Kashruth Ordinance In Newark Postponed

(Special to the J.D.B.)

NEWARK, March 30.—Internal conflict among local orthodox as well as rabbinical circles has again caused the City Commission to postpone action for two weeks on the proposed ordinance regulating the sale and inspection of kosher meat. The proposed law would be supplementary to a state act making it illegal for butchers to sell non-kosher meats in a store displaying Kashruth signs.

The conflict is understood to be centering over who shall do the inspecting. At present, three orthodox rabbis, Joseph Konvitz, Chaim Glazer and Louis Weiler are vested with the authority and have municipal badges signifying authority.

I. Z. Finkel Feted

NEWARK, March 30.—A reception in honor of its president, I. Z. Finkel, was held by the Congregation B'nai Zion, 543 West Market street, here, on the occasion of his wife's birthday. Dr. L. J. Wiener, spiritual leader of the congregation, presented a gift to the couple. Abraham Hirschfeld directed the arrangements. German and Austrian War Vets Support Counter Boycott Plan

(Special to the J.D.B.)

PASSAIC, N. J., March 30.—Delegates at a conference of the Federation of German and Austrian War Veterans in America held in Turn Yerein Hall here were strong in their condemnation of the anti-Nazi boycott movement and pledge unanimous support to the anti-boycott organization, the German-American Protective Alliance.

Henry O. Spiers, who commands the German Legion in New York, an affiliate of the Federation, proposed a resolution urging support of the Protective Alliance which is said to have been organized recently by the United German Societies of Greater New York "to influence and induce all American citizens of German origin and other right-thinking Americans to patronize such firms as are known to reject the boycotts."

That the veterans intend to play a role with their views in the forthcoming primary and general elections in New Jersey was evident in a resolution introduced by several poets in this state demanding that "no candidate be supported by the vote of former German or Austrian veterans who has in any way shape or form, supported the boycott on German goods or otherwise confessed anti-semitic sentiment."

Jew Will Rekindle Light of Civilization; Asserts Rosenbloom

(Special to the J.D.B.)

PATERSON, N. J., March 30.—Although the curtain is now descending upon the first act of a great tragedy in Germany, "the flickering light of civilization" in the end will be rekindled and held aloft by a Jew, declared Dr. William Rosenbloom, Rabbi of Temple Israel, New York, in an address before the Veritans Service Club.

Predicting his address upon the current play, "The Shattered Lamp," Rabbi Rosenbloom pointed out that down through the ages the Jew has always been a leading actor in the drama of life. "There is the danger," he said, "that the Jew, regarding himself as a 'being of destiny,' will at last confidently in the belief that destiny will take care of him."

Rabbi Rosenbloom advised that Jews be meek but strong in their fight for the preservation of justice and declared that the Jews can do this without resort to "colored shirts" or "nightgowns."

She declared the Home will sponsor the memorial service in April, at a date as yet undetermined.

Mrs. Aronson for many years was devoted to the Home and to the 150 aged men and women whom it houses, paying periodic visits and co-operating in the annual charity ball as well as linen showers and benefit bridge parties. Mrs. Tepper said that steps will be taken to perpetuate her memory with the dedication of a dormitory in the name of Gertrude D. Aronson.

Welfare Fed'n Asks Agencies As Affiliates

Recommends National and International Groups to Join

(J.D.B. Special Correspondence)
DETROIT, March 29.—The budget committee of the Jewish Welfare Federation recommended to the board of the Federation at a meeting, that local, national and international agencies should be included in the 1934 Allied Jewish Campaign.

"We recommend that the 1934 Allied Jewish campaign include the following local agencies," said Mrs. Joseph H. Ehrlich, chairman of the Budget Committee: "The Jewish Unemployment Emergency Council of the Jewish Social Service Bureau, Fresh Air Society, H-brew Free Loan Association, House of Shelter, Jewish Community Center, Jewish Old Folks' Home, Hospitalization Fund of the North Chicago, and the United Hebrew School."

"In all its deliberations, the Budget Committee has kept nearly in mind the fact that, last year because of the emergency that faced us at home, the national and international agencies which Fed'n always supported in the past, were not so much on our committees to them. This was a decisive factor in our decisions as to the non-local agencies which should be included in our 1934 objectives."

"As a result, we are recommending to the board of the Jewish Welfare Federation the following national and international agencies which we feel should be included in our forthcoming campaign:

- American Jewish Committee.
- Bureau of Jewish Social Research.
- Cleveland Jewish Orphan Home.
- Ex-Patients' Tubercular Home, Denver.
- Graduate School for Jewish Social Work.
- Hebrew Immigrant Aid Society.
- Hillside Foundation of Final Birth.
- Jewish Welfare Board.
- Leo N. Levin Memorial Hospital, Hot Springs, Ark.
- Miracchi.
- Montefiore Home, Cleveland.
- National Conference of Jewish Social Work.
- National Federation of Jewish Welfare Federations.
- National Federation Bureau.
- National Jewish Hospital, Denver.
- United Jewish Appeal (American Palestine Campaign, and Joint Distribution Committee).

The Allied Jewish Campaign, sponsored by the Jewish Welfare Federation, will be conducted this year from May 27 to June 7.

Canadian Deputy Deplores Anti-Semitism in Quebec

(Special to the J.D.B.)
OTTAWA, Ont., March 30.—A voice against the anti-semitic incitement which has been carried on in the Province of Quebec by certain French language newspapers was again heard in Ottawa and Parliament when the veteran deputy, Henri Bourassa, openly deplored the vogue of anti-Semitism prevailing in the province.

Jewish Inmates Will Observe Pesach in Atlanta and Illinois

(Special to the J.D.B.)
ATLANTA, Ga., March 29.—Passover among the Jewish inmates of the Federal Penitentiary this year will be observed on a more elaborate scale than ever before.

Contrary to the usual custom, the prison administration will supply the Passover food for the forty Jewish prisoners at the institution, whose entire population was recently reduced from 3,000 to 1,900 men due to overcrowding conditions. Hereafter the Jewish prisoners themselves provide the money for their Pesach observance, but this year on account of comparatively small number the government bought the matzo's and other necessary items.

Rabbi David Marx, prison dollar-a-year chaplain, will preside. The seder meals are being prepared by a Jewish chef who is an inmate of the institution. A small group of local Jewish leaders have been invited to the traditional service.

In addition to the two siders, throughout the entire Passover week Jewish prisoners will be served matzo's. Hyman S. Jacobs, who has been active in prison welfare work for the past sixteen years, was instrumental in arranging for Pesach observance.

Homer Issues Order

(Special to the J.D.B.)
CHICAGO, March 28.—Jewish inmates of Illinois state hospitals, schools for delinquents and penal institutions will have matzo's for Passover, according to an order issued in Springfield by Governor Henry Horner. He directed A. L. Bowen, director of the Department of Public Welfare, to see that provisions were made in all the institutions for the Jewish wards of the state.

"Governor Horner directed me to make sure that all Jewish wards of the state will have matzo's for the whole week of Passover," Mr. Bowen said. "I have asked the superintendent of each institution to require the amount required, and the supplies will be available in time for the observance of the holiday."

L'HITRAOT

By ABBA HILLEL SILVER

BEFORE long Professor Albert Einstein will leave our shores to return—home? In a literal sense he has no home, for the Nazi regime has made him an exile. But as the first citizen of the world his home is everywhere he chooses to live.

Rabbi Silver

The people of this country are bidding him a farewell. In a week an unusual demonstration was held in Newark, presided over by the governor of the state and the mayor of the city, which was more than a demonstration of reverence for genius. It was an overflowing measure of affection for one whom all men of good will have come to regard as their big brother, their strong kinsman and their friend. The great outpouring of tribute-bearing men and women on this occasion as well as on all other occasions when Professor Einstein makes his appearance is due only in part to the fact that common folks have been taught to regard him as the foremost scientist of our age. They know, of course, that he has been placed among the select few of all time who are the intellectual builders of the world, that his achievements have caused his name to be mentioned along with Euclid, K-Per, Copernicus, Galileo and Newton. But scientists of world renown have proclaimed that he has given mankind a new conception of the physical universe that philosophers have acknowledged the revolutionary effect of his theories upon the whole realm of human thought. They are warmly aware that a new impetus and a new direction have been given to man's eternal quest for knowledge by the scientific revelations of this man whose reality of truth borders on divinity and in whose scientific research has been blended with the charm of artistic intuition.

But surely the multitude are not scientists and Einstein's physics and mathematics and his theories of light, ether and motion are for them a closed book. Their warm admiration derives from the fact that they are not without a true understanding of the great humanity of the man and of the significance of his ethical personality to their age. They have followed gratefully the unfolding of his character in social action, the great human causes which he has championed, the high courage which he has displayed in the defense of the defenseless of the world and the light which he has given to a distraught and confused generation.

It is given for few men to become legends in their own lifetime. Legends are the tribute which men pay to their heroes, and the emblems of men's dearest wishes. Einstein has become a legend in his own life-time—the embodiment of the most precious hopes of a harassed and troubled age. Men have focused in him the cherished traditions of justice, freedom, peace and brotherhood which a resurgent barbarism threatens to overwhelm.

Albert Einstein represents for millions of men today the classic image of human life which throughout this age has stressed the sovereignty of the human spirit, the sanctity of human life, the love of freedom and the ideal of international reconciliation. Up to the World War these were still generally regarded as the noblest ideals of civilization. But the war cast a blindness and a deafness and a viciousness upon the race. New voices—strident, discordant, barbaric voices of the jungle—have made themselves heard. Chauvinism, racialism, provincialism, war and hate are being hymned and extolled. Never was the world more fragmented than it is today, more disintegrated economically, politically and, above all, spiritually. The youth of the world is being taught to eschew liberalism, democracy and internationalism as if these constituted blasphemy and treason to the human race. Everywhere youth is being indoctrinated with the belief in the imminence and the inevitability of the next war.

Dark indeed are the prospects of civilization and bitter indeed will be the struggle to save for civilization whatever can be saved of freedom, tolerance and brotherhood. In this struggle against the encroachment of the jungle upon the cultivated side of the human mind and spirit, Albert Einstein has become in the eyes of millions the standard bearer, the wise and intrepid leader.

There is the same cosmic sweep to his social views as to his physical theories. His human sympathies are not halted at the frontiers of nation, race or religion. The same reach after cosmic unity, after an inclusive, unified world view of nature characterizes also his strivings for a spiritual unity of mankind, for a vision of the oneness of all human life. In this, of course, he is decidedly within the great classic tradition of his people which long ago proclaimed the unity of God and of mankind.

Professor Einstein is a nationalist, but he refuses to make a Moloch of nationalism and to sacrifice the noblest ideals of civilization upon its consuming altars. This has brought down upon him the bitter, vindictive hatred of all Junkers, militarists and reactionaries whose interests and prestige lie in keeping their peoples in political and economic subjection through the stratagem of militant patriotism.

Einstein hates war. He has led a crusade against the institution of war. "War," he declared, "is low and despicable, and I would rather be smitten to death than participate in such darkness." Only once, when he was overwhelmed by the horrors of the Hitler regime, did his steady and steadfast vision falter for a moment. In his heroic advocacy of international peace, Albert Einstein has again demonstrated that he is a lineal descendant of the ancient prophets of Israel.

Professor Einstein, in an age of growing discontent and disillusionment with democratic government, has dared to remain loyal to the democratic dogma. He knows that there is no substitute for democracy, that men will not permanently prefer the will and whim of a despot to inalienable rights grounded in law over which neither majority or minorities have the power of veto.

Professor Einstein has been a great Jew. His scientific greatness and his world socialism did not estrange him from his people. The ominous rise of anti-Semitism after the World War and the desperate plight of his people forced him from the seclusion of his study into the arena of struggle. He understood quickly the futility of assimilation and the indignity and self-abasement involved in racial and racial self-denial. He realized the need for a physical and spiritual center for Jewish life in Palestine and he became a Zionist. He has been a bulwark of strength to the movement and an inspiring figure in the Jewish renaissance. Add to all this the humility of the man, his utter modesty bordering on self-effacement, and you have the key to the mystery of the amazing appeal of his personality to the imagination of the world.

This man, who has created for eternity, is now an exile from his home. The mad regime of the Brown Shirts would destroy him if he fell within its clutches. A country where such a man cannot find a home and an honored place stands of course, utterly convicted and shamed in the sight of the whole world. But Professor Einstein has built for himself a home in the hearts of the masses of the world, in the veneration of all seekers after truth and righteousness and in the affection of his people. His home is in the wide world of men. His abiding place is in the ages.

HIAS Runs Old-Fashioned Seder For Immigrants and Deportees

Jewish immigrants and deportees from Hungary, Czechoslovakia, Poland, Russia, Canada and Cuba—who are now being detained on Ellis Island, on Friday night had a Seder of their own, celebrated in the true orthodox fashion of the "old country" with Rabbi A. M. Holtzman officiating. All day long William Neubau, Ellis Island representative of the Hebrew Sheltering and Immigrant Aid Society of America, was busy with arrangements for the evening. Through the courtesy of Commissioner of Immigration Byron C. Uhl Jewish immigrants coming into port Friday were put through the regular examination immediately so that they might join their American relatives in time for the festivities.

The result of this promptness was that only fifteen persons, including two women, were required to remain on the island. When they gathered on "Island One," the immigrant station, for the traditional meal, they were joined by seven Jewish American seamen from the hospital section.

A twenty-eight year old Canadian Jew, who had been caught entering the United States illegally and has already served the prescribed thirty-day sentence at at the festive board. Next to him was a youth who five months ago stowed away from Cuba for this country. He too will be deported,

"It took more than Luck to save my Life... it took a Safety-Steel Body"

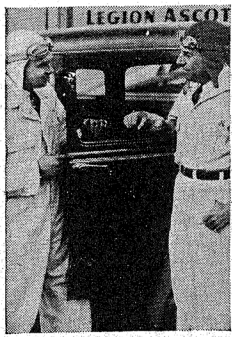

IT HAPPENED on the Bakersfield Freeway. Billy Arnold was making for Los Angeles on Road 44... but he told it in his own words:

"Suddenly another car swept the curve... coming right at me the wrong side. I had my choice... or the gully. I took the gully."

Arnold's Plymouth shot from the way and started rolling. Eye-witnesses said he turned over five times, pulled him from behind the wheel, bruised, but with no bones broken.

"I wouldn't give a plugged nickel," says Arnold, "for my chances in a priced car but a Plymouth. Its Steel Body undoubtedly saved me."

NEW PLYMOUTH

ART AND ARTISTS

By M. SOYER

A. Mark Datz

A. Mark Datz, whose first one-man show is current at the Eighth Street Gallery, is a personal, introspective artist, an inhabitant of a world all his own. His ideal landscapes, populated by semi-abstract male and female figures and graceful animals, are poetic.

There is good painting light and air in his work but occasionally the blue of the water is a bit too blue and the pink of the distant mountains a bit too pink.

Only in one instance, in his self-portrait, is the quiet contemplative quality that pervades his exhibition almost rudely broken, so different is it in spirit and approach from the rest of his work. It is Mark Datz at his most heroic, almost defiant.

Artists of Revolt

Looking at the drawings and watercolors of Anton Refregier and William Siegel, on exhibition at the New School of Social Research, there can be no doubt as to what side of the fence they belong. They are announcers of Social Revolt—direct and uncompromising.

Although of the two, Siegel seems to be the more politically conscious and experienced cartoonist, it is Refregier who often strikes the deeper, the more human, note.

His "Fourth Year of Crisis," two gaunt working women weighed down by heavy burdens struggling along a lonely road, is stark and monumental and makes one think not a little of Daumier. Siegel's "River Rouge Riot" is well composed, full of drama and movement.

The Human Touch

By HARRY SALTPEPER

Otto Kahn—Remembered

THE DEATH OF Otto Kahn recalls that hour, some time in 1928, I believe, when I interviewed the banker, art patron, philanthropist, and statesman in preparation for an article I was writing about him for the old Outlook. The interview was conducted during lunch in the dining room of the K. K. Loh offices at 52 William street.

Harry Saltpeper

I was struck by the curious contrast between the purplish face of the banker, that purplish color that denotes good living and, perhaps, a measure of self-indulgence, and the frugal meal the banker was having, for all I know, on doctor's orders. While chops and all the fixings were my dish for that lunch, the patron of art was having no more than a large bowl of warm milk with some bran-like cereal.

I recall then being struck by the slightly Germanic burr with which the banker spoke his English, and I think that after the conversation I was aware of the real motivation in the banker's patronage of art, and of music and of learning. He desired deeply to win acceptance of himself as a civilized human being rather than as a mere money-making banker. Having conquered the world of finance, as he then seemed to have conquered it, he was eager to conquer the world of art, to win a place for Otto Kahn in the circles of personal achievement, in the circles of his impersonal conversation.

Hankered for Bohemianism

I think he had somewhat of a hankering for the Bohemian side of life, for the unorthodox aspects. I think that he had a smacking admiration for the rebels, and of his chums used to be, I believe, Mike Gold, of the Masses. I know that a number of young men who were trying to do things in the world of the theatre and in the world of art who were rather more like Mike Gold than Otto Kahn drew freely upon his generosity. I know of one man who was maintained not lavishly it is true, for a whole year, while he was writing a play that would, but did not, make Broadway take notice. All this is perhaps not so strange when we bear in mind that his father was one of the 1848 revolutionaries of Germany, but most of those who knew Otto Kahn did not know that.

I recall two interesting things he said during that conversation. One was that he did not expect to obtain dividends on his art patronage. That is, if a man whom he was supporting did not write a great play, or a great book of poems, no harm was done, because if a man did achieve success, he might have achieved it in any event, perhaps without his help, and he did not seem to did very much whether or not he could say that his subsidy made possible the creation of a great work of art. The other thing he said was an attempt to reconcile his philosophy as a supporter of the capitalist system with his help to artists and to the cause of music. The reconciliation was put in something like these words: "If we give the masses music and art, give them opportunities for expression, they will not be so eager for revolution, for upsetting things." All of which sounded logical then and sounds logical now.

Jews in the New Deal

There is no guising the fact that there are Jews at the right hand of President Roosevelt, concerned disinterestedly in helping him to frame a workable New Deal for these United States. An able reporter and writer whose identity is concealed under the pen name of "Unofficial Observer" gives us a book about the president, his program, those who are assisting him in carrying it forward in its many details, and of the Jewish families at Washington in a book called "The New Dealers," just published.

Four important American Jews are discussed in "The New Dealers": Supreme Court Justice Louis D. Brandeis, Felix Frankfurter, under the heading of Privy Counsellors; Henry Morgenthau, Jr., under the general heading of Mad Money; and Bernard M. Baruch, under the head of Fallen Angels. The revelations of Mr. Baruch's innocuous deatutude will come as propagandasmashing shock to those professional anti-Semites who fondly believed, and proclaimed, that Mr. Baruch was the power behind the throne of N.R.A. Administrator, General Hugh S. Johnson.

Justice Brandeis's chief link with Roosevelt consists in the right of the chief justice to hold experimentum." As for Frankfurter, his specialty consists in "supplying the Administration with young liberal lawyers, sufficiently ingenious to justify the New Deal to the Courts and sufficiently radical to sympathize heartily with its purposes. The striking fact about Frankfurter is that although he might have had almost any job in the gift of Roosevelt, his preference is to continue to teach.

Unofficial Observer sums up the peculiar qualifications of Brandeis in the following paragraph: "If the country were ruled by an aristocracy of brains, he would be one of the members of the small central board of control. If we lived under a system of constitutional monarchy he would be one of the King's honored Privy Counsellors. As we live in a political democracy, which distrusts both brains and monarchial institutions, all that we can do with Brandeis is to give him a seat on the United States Supreme Court. It is a tribute to his power that, despite his handicaps of race, position and acute intelligence, he has given force and direction to American liberal politics for the last thirty years."

Of Felix Frankfurter, our extremely able Unofficial Observer writes:

"Mr. Brandeis is a prophet, Frankfurter is a trainer of prophets who has made the Harvard Law School a sort of racing stable for liberal lawyers. One of our greatest teachers of youth, he also has tact and ability to teach governors and Presidents. He has a keen mind and there are few men who can talk more astutely." Felix more than any other person is the legal master-mind of the New Deal, although he is in large part only the transmitter of the apostolic succession of Louis D. Brandeis." Elsewhere our reporter says that Felix, as he calls him, is another Brandeis who wears plus fours instead of conventional prophet's garb, which is a new way of stating a contrast.

THE REALM OF THE STAGE AND SCREEN

Critical Moments

By GEORGE JOEL

Perfect Week for Critics

This past week was perfect for the gentlemen who spend their evenings in theatres and their days wondering what to say about the plays they have seen. It was a perfect week because they neither had to spend any time in theatres nor say anything. I might have mentioned in the very first line that no new plays came to town last week and let it go at that, but I was afraid the shock would be too great.

Looking Backward

Being nothing brand new to find fault with and being imbued with the spirit of the Holidays it is perhaps fitting that a few kind words be scattered about concerning some of the theatrical and cinematic attractions that they may have missed. First on my list should be "The Shattered Lamp," the anti-Nazi play at the Maxine Elliott Theatre. You might even take the children to see the brutality of Hitlerism they will be less inclined to dismiss the trouble in Germany as something that cannot possibly affect them.

Next in line should be "The House of Rothschild" at the Astor with George Arliss in the leading role. Although the picture is a little over the top, the element there is still much that is both impressive and exhilarating.

"Men in White" is another attraction that is worth visiting and if it is the spirit of the Holidays is upon you there is "They Shall Not Die" at the Royale and "Yellow Jack" at the Martin Beck Theatre. For your critical moments I recommend "New Faces" and "The Loves Me Not" and if it is horror you want try "Tobacco Road." By the way, the Circus is in town, but the children have probably told you that.

Animals and Other Pictures

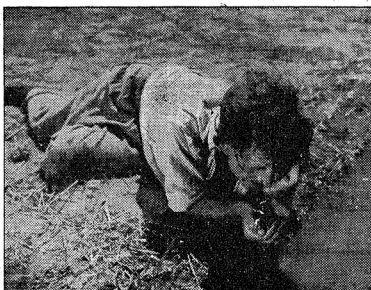

While school is out there will be time this week to take the youngsters to see the new Frank Buck picture "The Tiger in the Cage" at the Music Hall. Mr. Buck is the fellow who goes off to the jungle, any jungle, and returns with boxes filled with all sorts of wild animals. His latest picture shows how Mr. Buck goes about the business of enticing wild beasts into cages.

Spring has come to the New York Paramount. In that sizeable house, the picture shown is a picture called "Melody in Spring" in which an ex-radio tenor, Lanny Ross, plays and sings the lead. Very catchy stuff, but palatable. Charles Ruggles and Mary Deland supply the comedy relief and that team is always amusing. On the stage, George Arliss, the boy with the immense appeal, may be seen and heard in person.

"Riptide" or "A Woman's Conflicting Emotions" starring Norma Shearer and Robert Montgomery is the very serious offering at the Capitol. The main attraction

Almost Omitted

"Peace On Earth" started a Broadway run yesterday at the 44th Street Theatre. The producers very cleverly sold all their interests in the play and will collect a royalty, if any. . . . When a revival of "The Mikado" opens at the Majestic tomorrow evening the cast will include William Danforth, Hilda Koyke, Roy Cropper, Vivian Hart, Herbert Waterous, Vera Ross, Allen Waterous and Laura Ferguson.

New Film Group

An attempt is being made, according to Jack Skumlick, to form and develop a movie group which will be to the cinema what the little theatre movement has been to the stage. This new group is desirous of making experimental films. They need about $2,000 to get started and to that end they are holding tonight at 7:15 and 9:30 a performance of various films at the New School for Social Research, 66 West 12th street. The money collected will go to the fund. Among the pictures that will be shown are "Tabu," a Walter Disney cartoon, Ralph Steiner's "H-0-0" and "Bugs," a Soviet animated picture.

'As the Moon Rises'

"As the Moon Rises," an operetta with music by Franz Lehár and lyrics by Kay Kenyon, will be presented by Messrs. Shubert at the Shubert Theatre, Boston, during the week of April 9. The operetta is based upon the music of "Gypsy Love" by Lehár.

The Chorus, which is under the direction of Karl Salomon, formerly of Berlin, will present Handel's "Solomon's Judgment," "Carissimi's 'Jephthah,' and J. S. Bach's Cantata 196, based on Psalm 118. The Jerusalem Chamber Orchestra, which will be assisted by four soloists. By LAWRENCE H. LIPSKIN

A Birthday

Anyone with a propensity for profound searchings-between-the-lines could discover all manner of mystic significance in Toscanini's choice of a program with which to celebrate his sixty-seventh birthday.

Those given to metaphysical subtleties might in all seriousness tell you that the predominant gaiety of the Sixth Symphony of Beethoven and the all-persuasive tragedy of the only symphony Cesar Franck gave the world found their way into this Philharmonic-Symphony Orchestra program because Toscanini meant to convey a "message," a sermon or other inanity.

I can tell only of the wondrous propriety of the proceedings. And of how full, of a vitality belying his years, keen and sensitive and mentally unwavering, the Maestro appeared on this occasion amid thunderous applause and rising tributes by orchestra and audience.

He gave to the Franck symphony, easily the most eloquent and stirring musical work in an epic form ever to come out of French culture, a performance I will never forget.

He poured into it lavishly his own understanding of the grave and tender genius of the Belgian-turned-Frenchman. He toyed with the theatre implicit in the score. He sought out its nuances so he might embellish them with his own sensitiveness. He built again its dramatic structures. It breathed with the breath of life.

Before that, in the Beethoven composition, there was a forecast of the grandeur of the Franck. The orchestra played as though some transfiguration had been wrought in it.

A Note or Two
Unquestionably the most important event of the music season, and it may be, of many seasons, will be the American premiere of Richard Strauss' "Elektron" (Sacred Service) Wednesday evening, April 11, at Carnegie Hall.

The chorus of the Schola Cantorum (250 voices), Friedrick Schorr, baritone of the Metropolitan Opera, and eighty members of the Philharmonic-Symphony will perform the work, with the composer conducting.

Armand Tokatyán, tenor, was received with enthusiasm by a large audience in Town Hall a week ago today at his sole recital of the season. Miss Nelson was at the piano.

The Yiddish Cultural Society Chorus, assisted by Odal Salek, cellist, and conducted by Lassa Weiner, gave a concert at City College Auditorium the night before.

Stadium Concerts, Inc., announces a significant new departure for its eight-week season, beginning June 28 and ending August 20. Each Friday and Saturday evening complete operas will be given. The other five nights will be devoted to the traditional orchestral concert.

Conductors will include Jose Hurst, Eugene Ormandy and William Van Hoogstraaten, with Alexander Smalens directing the operatic shows. Special performances of Beethoven's Ninth Symphony and Miss Solomons and of the Bloch Sacred Service already mentioned will be featured. Hugh Ross, director of the Schola Cantorum, will conduct the choral programs.

Miss Manner to Give Drama Recital April 7

Miss Jane Manner, interpreter of drama, will present a recital with readings from her new volume of program prose and verse, "The Silver Treasury," next Saturday at the lower home of Mrs. Henry Willis Phelps, Hotel Waldorf Astoria.

The recital will be for the Civil Federation Hotel Benefit.

Among the Literati

Edward Weeks of the Institute of Arts and Sciences of Columbia University has been digging in the grave of book publishing. After getting in good and deep he has come up for fresh air and announced a list of best sellers from 1878 to 1915. The latter date was decided upon because since then no one title has sold in excess of 500,000 copies.

When his findings were made public many authors suffered from severe pains in the abdominal region.

What Americans Read

Sixty-five fiction titles were listed by Mr. Weeks. The leader was "The Sign of the Cross" by Charles Monroe Shelton's novel which sold 5,000,000 copies. The list is brought to a close with W. Somerset Maugham's "Of Human Bondage" which has done about 500,000.

In the opinion of this column only 12 of these 65 titles are worth reading today; the remainder are nothing more than the most insipid kind of trivial pieces of "junk," as they are called in the trade, such as "The Sheik" (500,000), "Freckles" (2,000,000), "The Winning of Barbara Worth" (1,500,000), "Tarzan of the Apes" (700,000), etc. Certainly such a record is an indictment against the reading intelligence of the country. Today this type of fiction does not sell as well only because its place has been taken by the confession type of magazine, the tabloid and moving pictures.

Of these best sellers the only ones which have any sale at present are Mark Twain's works.

Gossip

Vera Caspary, who was about to start work on a new novel, has given up the idea for the present. She accepted a Hollywood contract. . . . Mike Simmons, who once had ambitions to be a biographer, is back in New York. After nine months in Hollywood. His stay here is limited to enough time to see the folks and sell a play.

The Story of a German Rebel

ERNEST TOLLER's autobiography, "I Was a German," is one of the most consistently interesting human documents I have read. It is the record of a human being who suffered and risked many varieties of human experience, and it is the record also of a generation, the generation that was young when the war broke out, but not too young to fight, the generation also that fought in the post-war revolutions and grew grey in jails.

Ernst Toller represents that generation of Germany, being one of its most intense and poetic manifestations, for he was not only fighter, but he was poet, dramatist and student. He fought in causes that he honestly believed were good, and at the present writing we must list him among the temporarily vanquished, for a one suffering from the double stigma of being Jew and Communist, he is a refugee whose books were burned and for whom the only possible fate, within Germany, would be, short of death, prison torture.

Here Toller begins his story with his childhood in the little town of Smoltsch, near the Polish border, in which Frederick the Great allowed his maternal great-grandfather to settle, and ends in 1923, with his release from the prison in which he was confined for his part in the post-war rebellion of Bavaria. When he was liberated he was but thirty, but he had by that time had more escapes from death, on the front, in the civil war, before the court martial and even in the prison yard, than fall to the lot of most adventurers. Remaining serenely objective for the most part, Herr Toller makes us keenly aware of the rare poetic quality at the root of his decisions, judgments and acts. He is, in essence, the dreamer in action.

There are only incidental glimpses at the business of Hitlerism in this record which, we hope, may be followed by a continuation up to the present day. One day the guards at the prison are strengthened; it is the day of the abortive Hitler-Ludendorff beer-cellar revolt, and spokesmen for those gentlemen had threatened to make mince-meat of the political prisoners. There is another glimpse of Hitler, through a non-commissioned officer in the Medical Corps, who told Toller's informant that when Hitler returned from the front, shell-shocked, he was quite blind, but then recovered his eyesight. Toller comments:

"That nervous blinding made me thoughtful. A man who can deliberately go blind in face of things he does not want to see, must possess extraordinary strength of mind."

Although Ernst Toller is a Jew, he has been a Jew only technically and incidentally. As a child he had little awareness of his Jewishness, until a servant called away an "Aryan" playmate because Ernst was a Jew. But in the war he was so intensely German that he actually wrote from the front to have his name stricken from the Jewish community. He confesses that it gave him pleasure to be mistaken for a non-Jew. But of course all that is behind. H. S.

Dr. Manning Talks On Sports Before B'nai B'rith Lodge

Dr. G. Randolph Manning, member of the American Olympic Association, will speak tonight at the monthly forum hour meeting of the Rehoboth Lodge No. 38, B'nai B'rith, which will be held at Vasa Castle Hall, 138 East 149th street. Dr. Manning will discuss "Sports As a Powerful Medium in International Amity," illustrating his talk with pictures of the Olympic Games of 1932. Dr. Samuel Adams Cohen will act as chairman.

Dr. Manning is convinced that Jewish athletes are entitled to a fair deal in the Olympic games scheduled for Berlin in 1936. He has for some time been lecturing throughout the East in an attempt to eradicate anti-Jewish prejudice in the forthcoming games. The prowess of Jewish athletes will do much to help this stand, Dr. Manning contends.

All the news concerning Jews appears daily in the Jewish Daily Bulletin.

Eight P. M. The moon has already begun to set in the sky, the flowers have released their perfume, night and a romance have budded. To be in harmony with this love-life, beauty advisors declare that this season your evening make-up must change. Your face must be pale, eyes mystic, lips vivid red and soft; your skin must have that petal finish, that white effect like the reflection of moon upon water. For years a beauty specialist I know has experimented with a product which would give your skin that finish, and today he offers you it as a liquid cream, appropriately named "Eight P. M." Simply apply to your face, neck, back and arms and use your powder right off. The result will be a soft alluring finish. Write for address.

The striking personality of Mme. Bronie Horn adds a delightful note of originality to her hats. Every thing she designs, Madame Horn, gives her hats a touch of modern thought and distinction. The entire spring hat story is at the tips of her dexterous fingers. Her designs are extremely original. She studies your face and follows her own well-trained line of thought with the result that her style captivate and above all else breathe life, variety and vitality that give a certain thrill and pleasant surprise. Each hat is made to order; it her salon, 218 West 4th Street, in all these seasons in your wardrobe will make your Easter an occasion.

Dodging rioting caps, cabmen, rain and rain, we made our way to Milgrim, to smile heartily on their feature coat for this week of "April Chic." Provided for in imported wool pique and in dour for spring crops, it a gem of beauty for Spring, early Spring and advanced Spring. The colors are navy and black emphasized with a dramatic buckle and silver buttons and finich. It is dated Spring, 1934, and the "five star final" in Milgrim style leadership.

It isn't really mysterious that makes you so triumphant and serene after you have had an Elizabeth Arden facial. It's the knowledge that you were "mark enough" that makes you feel like a queen, rejuvenating your face and erasing those tell-tale lines that come from too much party or just plain neglect. It is acknowledged by multitudes that there is no better way of acquiring beauty; you can go to Elizabeth Arden or Elizabeth Arden can come to you. Her preparations are made by her personally, a power to every problem your skin presents and her creams, lotions and make-up accessories can be applied at home with sure results.

THE WEEK IN REVIEW

Germany

Hitler's Berlin Reich appears to be heading straight for an economic debacle. All the news available indicates that despite their seeming contempt for the anti-Nazi boycott in progress throughout the world, Nazi leaders have at last come to the realization that their persecution of the Jews and the German trade with the Jewish labor organizations has led to the ruin of their foreign trade.

For the first time since the Nazis came to power, Adolf Hitler, despite his almost pathological hatred for everything Jewish, intervened and told a meeting of Nazi governors of the various states that he would not permit local groups to engage in individual campaigns against the Jews.

Other national leaders have also spoken out against the actions of local groups and warned the "150 per cent Nazis" that they were ruining the German economic structure.

But at the same time the national leaders are attempting to halt the agitation of the Jews, local groups, particularly in the Nuremberg region, where Julius Streicher, notorious anti-semitic agitator, is shipping up sentiment for new attacks on the Jews.

In Guzenhausen, which is forty miles from Nuremberg, a pogrom broke out. One Jew was so brutally beaten he died and himself in desperation, while another Jewish resident was found with four knife wounds in his heart. The excuse for the pogrom was that a Jew had expected on a storm troopers' uniform. The Jewish residents of the town were so terrorized that they refused to give any information on the pogrom.

German Jews are fearful that as the economic situation in Germany grows more desperate, they will be the sufferers for it. They fear pogroms and capital levees on the grounds that they are responsible for the anti-Nazi boycott.

Palestine

Jerusalem was the center of interest for the Zionists of the world last week. The Actions Committee of the World Zionist Organization met there to discuss present-day Zionist problems. The sessions of the Actions Committee were featured by sharp criticism against the immigration and criticism against the factionalism in the Zionist movement, which has led to open conflicts in the streets of Palestinian Arab towns. All the speakers pleaded for unity in the Zionist movement.

The municipality of Tel Aviv appointed a special committee to confer with the Zionists and attempt to work out a plan whereby all clashes among them would be avoided. The Tel Aviv city council applied to the population to keep cool.

Austria

Acting on a report submitted by a special committee, the city of Vienna decided to eliminate from Austro libraries the works of noted Jewish writers, including Schmitzer, Werfel, Feuchtwanger, Wasserman and a number of others.

The new Fascist constitution for Austria will include vast dictatorial powers for the head of the corporative Austrian state, it was announced. Prince von Starhemberg once more led American newspapermen that "force will not solve the Jewish problem in Austria." He also expressed his dislike for numerous clauses against the Jews.

However, the movement to eliminate Jews from professions or to reduce their numbers to the proportion of Jews in the general population continues unchecked.

The Rest of Europe

The Polish Jewish economic organization issued a declaration stating that the signing of the Polish-German trade treaty was no reason for the cessation of the anti-Nazi boycott. They called attention to the tragic situation of the German Jews and called for the energetic prosecution of the boycott.

The World Revisionist Union in Paris announced that it had ordered Palestine adherents to withdraw from the Vaad Leumi, the Jewish National Council of Palestine, because the organization, it was alleged, was "dominated by a section practicing violence."

A provisional committee met in the home of Lady Asquith in London to discuss plans for establishing Jewish trade links and other European cities for the works of the German authors whose books were burned in the Nazi bonfire in Berlin.

The United States

From Washington comes the news that a number of important conferences are going on at the State Department on the subject of German trade with the Jews. The United States has refused to allow the Ambassador Dodd is in Washington participating in the conferences.

It is thought that a trade treaty may be negotiated between the United States and Germany and that the American government will seek the Germans to end their persecutions of the Jews. The German movement in order that the boycott against German goods might end.

A special committee of forty-eight prominent American men and women, appointed by Secre-

WOMEN'S NEWS

A series of forty tests, given simultaneously Tuesday afternoon at the homes of as many members of the Jewish section of the National Council of Jewish Women, was united through a radio speech over Station WMCA by Mrs. Mary Schenberg, executive secretary of the Council.

Mrs. Schenberg described the work of the organization in detail, outlining the problems confronting the Jewish women of the National Council of Jewish Women. She called upon the women of America to unite and to further a program designed to bring world security to the peace.

"We represent the outstanding Jewish women's organization in America which has intelligently and effectively cooperated in the program for peace and disarmament," Mrs. Schenberg declared. She also called upon the Jewish women to fight against all manifestations of anti-Semitism.

World Consciousness

As a feature of the Women's Radio Review, Mrs. Arthur Brin of Minneapolis, president of the Council, will speak on "The World Consciousness and Anti-Semitism" over Station WEAP on April 9, at 8:30 P. M.

Mrs. Brin, along with fifty other Jewish women leaders of the nation, will be in Newark for the meeting of the board of directors of the Council that is to take place at the American Women's Association from April 10 to April 13. The program of the Triennial Convention, to be held in March, 1934, is to be discussed.

At the meeting a report will be presented by the senior and junior presidents of the Council, along with the problems of the Juniors. The report will be prepared at a conference on April 9, under the guidance of the senior advisors, Misses Mortimer Bromberg, Brooklyn, Hyde Smith of Worcester, and Leonard Schloss of Washington, D. C.

Mrs. Jacobs Broadcasting

Mrs. Edward Jacobs, former president of Hadassah, will be the speaker on a Passover program to be broadcast under the auspices of the Women's Radio Review over station WEAP on April 8, at 8:30 P. M. Mrs. Jacobs' subject will be "Palestine Gathers in the Elixir." She will describe what she has seen in Palestine during the German wave of immigration.

Teachers' Division Organizes

A teachers' group of the Women's Division of the American Jewish Congress has been organized by Mrs. Rebecca Schlesinger, chairman of the division. Mrs. Edith Gann Kulberg is chairman and Mrs. Ruth Melrich Ruffman is secretary. The group has been actively interested in the German Jewish situation, but has shown special concern with regard to the educational future of German Jewish youth. The teachers have voted for an immediate fund-raising project, the proceeds of which will go toward the education of two or three young German Jewish refugees.

N. J. Hadassah Active

At a recent meeting of the executive board of the Northern New Jersey Regional of Hadassah, executive plans were made for spring activity. Novel birthday parties are being arranged for the Junior Hadassah Bath Mitzvah celebration on its thirtieth anniversary. The regional group also decided to sponsor a series of courses to prepare members for the Cultural Fellowship, which will be awarded at the National Conference. Plans were formulated at the meeting for the annual conference to be held in Newark late in May, at which the Orange unit will act as hostesses.

Ivriah "Springtime Breakfast"

Ivriah has completed plans for its annual "Springtime Breakfast" to be held at the Waldorf Astoria on May 8. U. S. Stumbles On Nazi Nest Here in Probe

Search for Spanknoebel Leads to Evidence of 19 'Cells'

Revelations that United States government agents have been involved in the economic paralysis of Germany have been followed by agents engaged in subversive propaganda in this country where they have established numerous key cities as outposts for drilling recruits. News today by United States Attorney Martin Conboy. The announcement came in a comment on the first of a series of articles published in Today, weekly news magazine edited by Professor Raymond Moley.

"In an endeavor to find Heinz Spanknoebel," said Mr. Conboy, "the government was compelled to investigate other activities in the hope of finding a clue to his whereabouts."

(Heinz Spanknoebel, former self-styled chieftain of Nazis in this country, disappeared when a warrant was issued for his arrest on October 27. He was the creator and leader of the League of Friends of Germany.)

The article in Today, written by Samuel Duff McCoy, former member of the World staff, says that the Nazi organization is springing up affiliates and that more than 200 new members are being enrolled every week.

Dr. Hans Borchers, German consul general in New York, denied the charges made in Today.

Dr. H. H. Luther, German ambassador in the United States, said:

"I cannot attempt to answer every criticism which is launched against my government and have no thought of trying."

The article says in part:

"Weekly propaganda meetings are held in New York City, and in the course of the last two weeks the meetings there in Manhattan have grown too small to hold the crowds."

"From Kroutzer Hall, at 228 East Eighty-sixth street, holding 1,000 people, they were moved to the 'New' Hall, at Eighty-fifth street and Lexington avenue, holding 1,800; next to the Yorkville Casino, 210 East Eighty-sixth street, holding 2,500; finally to the Central Opera House, with a capacity of 3,000."

"At the first two weekly meetings in March, hundreds of people were turned away by the uniformed Nazi guards, but not even standing room was left."

"These meetings were publicly advertised as 'propaganda meetings.'"

"Storm troops in uniform guard these meetings, using tactics customary to Nazi meetings."

Hebrew Teachers Seek Organization; To Hold Meeting

A call for a general mass meeting of Hebrew teachers, to be held Tuesday evening at the Central Jewish Institute, 125 East Ninety-third street, was issued by the Central Committee of the Hebrew Teachers' Union.

"The meeting will be the first step in the process of organizing the Hebrew Teachers' Union," the union claims that the situation existing in H-brook schools is chaotic; that many of the teachers have not been paid for months, and the very existence of the Hebrew Schools is endangered."

Among the groups who will attend are the Hebrew Teachers' Union, the Union of Jewish Teachers, the Jewish Teachers' Union and the Jewish Teachers' Association.

Hitler's Test Of Power Near

ism, particularly the feature of persecution, is forcing Germany into a state of economic paralysis.

Observers in Washington who have recently had the opportunity of first-hand observation of what is going on in Germany are of the opinion that Hitler's test of power is yet to come.

Hitler Finds Opposition

In the first place, they say, Hitler's cabinet is not entirely in sympathy with the idea of persecuting Jews and on at least one occasion cabinet member threatened to resign, but was persuaded to remain. Hitler is still the man of power in Germany and with Minister of Propaganda Goebbels, the two men would never be expected to resign, but was persuaded to remain. Hitler is still the man of power in Germany and with Minister of Propaganda Goebbels, the two men would never be expected to resign, but was persuaded to remain.

Surprising as it may seem, one prominent Washington official who knows the German situation said that he expected "to see Hitler surrender his powers." This gentleman did not say how soon this was to happen, but he did say that Hitler's government was in a critical period and that the high officials were not in accord with major policies.

Germany needs more a export trade, and is casting longing eyes to the United States. She has no money, and is casting longing eyes to the United States. She has no money, and is casting longing eyes to the United States.

Trade Pact Considered

It was stated by an official that a trade agreement between the United States and Germany is in the air, and in the event one could be negotiated, Germany would have to give a favorable balance of trade.

This official stated that a favorable balance of trade for Germany would mean a large export trade, and in the event one could be negotiated, Germany would have to give a favorable balance of trade.

It was admitted that Germany may be forced to do this through her own economic condition. It probably would be the only act which would make it possible for her to build up trade in this country and dispose of large quantities of goods.

In the meantime, persecutions continue in Germany, but with somewhat less fervor than originally, it was stated. Economic life is forcing a relaxation of efforts. But the German government will not admit any relaxation on its drive against Jews and certain classes of non-Jews. Pride stands in the way.

Jewish Problem Aacute

The Jewish problem in Germany is acute. It was reported that work that James G. McDonald, High Commissioner for German Refugees, is doing, is accomplishing much to alleviate the conditions. But it was pointed out that the problem is one that will cover a long period of time—perhaps ten years.

Palestine Increases Money in Circulation

(J.T.A. Special Correspondence)

JERUSALEM, March 16.—The sum of $3,578,000 in Palestine currency and coinage is in circulation here, it is reported. A quarter of a million pounds' worth of paper money and gold coins were issued during the quarter ending December, 1933, owing to the greater demand for legal tender.

It is expected that the Palestine government will raise the sum of £100,000 this year from its currency operations.

Christian Group For Nazi Refugees Is Being Formed

Dr. S. Parkes Cadman to Be Temporary Head of Organization

The American Christian Committee for German Refugees, temporarily headed by the Rev. Dr. S. Parkes Cadman, is now in process of formation, according to a statement to the Jewish Daily Bulletin yesterday by Dr. Robert A. Ashworth, executive secretary.

The committee, which will be formally formed within the next two weeks, will seek to "arouse among Protestants and Catholics a sense of responsibility toward the situation of German refugees," Dr. Ashworth said.

A fund of $500,000 will be raised among the non-Jews, to be used in the relief of refugees from the Hitler regime.

Winstate Reserves Decision on Will his disapproval of the will. "My present state of mind is to grant the motion of Mr. Feldbaum," he declared, "but I will reserve my decision until I give the matter further consideration and hear the testimony of witnesses to be placed on the stand by Counselor Feldbaum."

Joseph Freison, a retired tailor of 1268 Fifth street, Borough Park, New York, who was personally for fourteen years, took the witness stand Friday. The witness told of a visit to Chinsky some time before his death from Rabbi Simon Glaser, who was appointed executor of the will. Freison declared that he took Rabbi Glaser into the parlor and told him that he was called "Chinsky." When he told Chinsky the visit, he said, Chinsky became excited and shouted, "I don't want to see that swindler!"

Three weeks later, Chinsky was taken to Israel Zion Hospital, Freison said. He was permitted to see his friend for a few minutes, after some trouble in gaining admission, although he was known to be an old friend of Chinsky's, he testified.

Austrian Jews Are Alarmed

anti-Jewish campaign is an attempt by the government parties to drive the Jews to give up political and citizenship quality through blackmail.

Die Neue Welt, Revisionist Zionist paper edited by Robert S. Slater, declared that Austrian Jewish leaders had attempted to confer with government officials on the declaration of Prince von Starhemberg, leader of the Fascist movement, "that Jewish Jews," but that their efforts were unsuccessful.

In the course of an interview with American newspapermen on March 20, Prince von Starhemberg said that the Jewish problem in Austria could not be solved through force. He characterized the Austrian situation as "a horror" and declared that "worthy Jews should be maintained in the Austrian state."

(Jewish Telegraphic Agency)

Criticizes Gov't Prison Ruling

of Passover food. Rabbi Charles Mantinband, chaplain of the prison, has been active for the past few weeks in an effort to maintain the custom of allowing outside groups to send in food prepared in traditional manner.

Attacks Federal Stand

"There is no justification whatsoever," Mr. Fortner declared, "for the arbitrary action taken by the federal government. Past experience has proven conclusively that Jewish religious ceremonies have a wholesome effect on Jewish inmates in penitentiary institutions."

"Our custom in the past has been to give Jewish prisoners in our jurisdiction matzos and food prepared in accordance with orthodox practices for Passover throughout the week of the holidays."

"This served to create a wholesome sobering atmosphere which inevitably left its mark upon inmates. We have always recognized the religious and spiritual aspects of life and these have been a tremendous help."

We in Philadelphia have been doing the same thing since the late thirties years and the federal authorities might have given this subject a more thorough study before issuing prohibitive orders."

Mantnband on Institution

"Dinner at the institution at Lewisburg is concerned, the incident becomes all the more regrettable since a person in charge of the kitchen at the institution, Mantnband, is not only the government's representative there, but what is more important, is a man fully competent to handle the situation."

"Prior to his coming to Lewisburg, Rabbi Mantnband rendered valuable service at the federal prison in Leavenworth."

If the federal authorities were disposed to have the idea that they prepared for Passover purposes was being brought into the penal institutions from outside, they might have arranged to furnish food prepared in accordance with the Jewish requirements from their own commissaries."

"To eliminate the entire practice was certainly unwarranted. There is no law which dictated the matter with Rabbi Mantnband. I am quite sure the government would have received wholehearted cooperation from him, had they been prepared to furnish food to provide Passover food from their own commissaries."

George Z. Medalle, president of the Jewish Board of Guardians, said that he had been informed by being of Jewish prisoners, was optimistic regarding the reports of an impending two-day hunger strike of Jewish inmates of the Federal Reformatory. The strike was characterized by Mr. Medalle as ill-advised and unnecessary. Mr. Medalle was in touch with the Federal Reformatory, and said that while no food would be allowed from outside, Passover supplies would be provided from regular maintenance funds."

Poland Finishes Probe on Attack Of Jewish Dean

Five Endeks Charged With 'Mishandling a State Official'

(Jewish Telegraphic Agency)

WARSAW, March 30.—Polish judicial authorities today concluded their investigation of the attack on Professor Hercul Han, a Jewish dean of the history faculty of the University of Warsaw. The five Endek students, who were arrested, members of the National Democrats, anti-Semitic anti-government party, are charged with "mishandling a state official." The punishment for this offense is two years in jail. The men are out on bail pending trial.

Professor Handelsman was beaten on two attempts at the University of Warsaw as he was returning from a student meeting where he had vigorously opposed proposals by Endek students for anti-Semitic measures in the University.

Boycott Strong In Nuremberg

would in his heart. Although the authorities promised a strict investigation, the pogrom victims were buried Tuesday. No attempt was made to punish the riotous. The authorities said that the boycott was so terror-stricken that they refused to furnish information on the pogrom.

The anti-Jewish boycott was planned by two groups, the Hago, Nazi organization for fighting Jews in trade and industry, and headed by Streicher. The boycott was to have commenced on April 1, but was postponed until April 7. Even before the date on which the boycott was to have begun, a survey made by the Jewish Telegraphic Agency in a number of German cities showed that the boycott was already in full swing, especially in Franconia, where the anti-Jewish agitation directed by Streicher reached an unbelievable pitch.

Nazi leaders in Berlin, alarmed at the progress of the boycott movement, which they feared would ruin the German economic structure, intervened to check the carrying out of the boycott. They also issued strict orders forbidding local Nazi leaders and groups from initiating their own boycotts, and from interfering with Chancellor Hitler warned a series of Nazi governors of the various states that he would not permit local Nazis to exceed orders issued from the Berlin center.

Polish Immigrants Organize New Body For Palestine Self-Aid

(J.T.A. Special Correspondence)

TEL AVIV, March 17.—A new organization of Polish Jews, Irgun Yehudei Polonia or Organizacja Żydów Polskich, has been established in Poland. It has many persons who profess themselves dissatisfied with the alleged inactivity of the existing Polish Settlement Association. Assistance of newcomers at the port, evading taxes in Hebrew, an improvement of establishment of trade guilds, legal and social aid are among the objects of the new group.
