Nuremberg Traders Are Warned Not to Buy From Jews

(Javaa Telegraph Agency)

BERLIN, April 4—The cattle market at Frankfurter-am-Main has been divided into two sections. On the right side is the 'Aryan' section, on the left hand, the 'non-Aryan' division. As a consequence of this division, a Nazi municipal councilor of Nuremberg demanded that the Nuremberg market be divided in a similar fashion.

Although the Nuremberg market has not yet been divided between 'Aryan' and 'non-Aryan' plots, plans have been put forth for reading: 'I warn you for the last time. Don't buy from Jews. All Those Continuing to Buy From Jews Will Have to Take the Consequences.'

The Nuremberg councilor demanded the division of the cattle market in order to prevent 'Aryan' from buying from Jews. He declared that this would result in a condition where sixty-five per cent of the Nuremberg meat trade was in the hands of the Jews.

The Bulletin's Day Book

The British Ambassador at Berlin, so the story goes, once called upon PremierGroening to urge that latter to release from his concentration camps certain persons whose only crime was that of being intellectually superior to the ruling party's policies. "What would His Britannic Majesty say," parsley Goering after the interview, "if he were to learn that the British police have refused to accept several unsatisfactory reasons why the camps could not be done away with?"

If you demanded these men back as a matter of course.

Chancellor Hitler, it is reported, in Berlin, no longer attends the movies. It is said he became interested in old-time theatrical pastimes—"Larry CHANNELER, have you a program?"

Recent dispatches from Germany report notable developments in the Wannsee Zeitung, one of the oldest of the anti-Semitic periodicals. The weekly has declined from its recent position of leadership in the world of jour- nalism by making a determined effort to publicize the Nazi regime's starvation policy and by publishing articles attacking the Chinese government. The paper is said to have entered a new era in its history.

Dr. George Bernard Shaw was the last of the prominent people to resign from the Wannsee Zeitung before that institution bowed to factors beyond its control. He had been a member of the editorial board for twenty years, resigning on Hitler's order.

Now editor of the Frankfurter Zeitung, a newspaper in exile published in the United States, he submitted to the editorial board an article which was printed in the February edition. The article was silent on the question of whether or not publishing it was advisable.

Reading habits have changed in Germany, according to the latest statistics. The number of daily newspapers, in fact, has increased. Out of the four New York dailies, the southern one, the New York Post, has the largest circulation. The number of Sunday papers, however, has decreased. Early Struggles of Civil Rights

The basic and heart-breaking struggles of the early settlers of the United States, who were the first to establish the new nation, are vividly and dramatically set forth in "Chalutzim." This newly translated Yiddish play opened in Paris last week and has now opened in New York. It is a faithful and well-researched account of the early days in the New World.

THE HAHNIM PLAYERS

The Hahnim Players, whose plays in Hebrew were produced in the United States, have now produced a play in Hebrew. The play, written by Moshe Finkel and.AppSettings A. Z., is a faithful and well-researched account of the early days in the New World.

The language used in the dialogue is Hebrew, Polish and Arabic. The play is based on the work of the Chalutzim, and it is a faithful and well-researched account of the early days in the New World.

"Lissistrata," the widely-discussed work of Ariolip, which created a furor when it was first produced in the United States, is to be pictured by Hal Roach, with an all-star cast. The musical story which deals, in a humorous way, with the attempt of the Greeks to win back their part of the mainland, is to be produced on the stage. The music and the atmosphere are unusual and entertaining. The dance is the most sensational feature of the play. The music and the atmosphere are unusual and entertaining. Hannibal Goodfellow, of the Danville Post, in an article appearing in the Champaign Daily News, on May 3rd, 1934, states: "The legal profession is not as glamorous as it is often pictured. Many lawyers are so engrossed in their work that they have little time for social activities."

UNOFFICIAL Observer, the man who wrote "The New Deal," and whose "New Deal" ideas have become the basic philosophy of the Democratic Party, visited the United States Supreme Court today. The Court is hearing arguments in a case involving the constitutionality of the National Labor Relations Act.

The court, consisting of nine justices, heard arguments on whether the act is constitutional. The justices, who are divided on the issue, are expected to reach a decision within the next few weeks.

The case involves a labor dispute between the United Mine Workers and the United States Steel Corporation.

In his opening argument, the plaintiff's attorney stated that the act was unconstitutional because it violated the right of free speech.

The government's attorney countered that the act was necessary to prevent strikes and to protect the rights of workers.

The case has attracted widespread attention, and is expected to have far-reaching implications for labor relations in America.

The Supreme Court's decision is expected to be announced in the next few weeks.
School Board Hit for Ruling On Lunch Hour

Jewish Students Are Deprived of Right to Buy Kosher Edibles

Jewish high school students who during the lunch hour would like to eat Edibles, which are leafy greens, have no opportunity to do so because of the Board of Education's policy of keeping stores in the buildings throughout the school day. The association is up in arms against the Board of Education, charging that they are trying to deprive the students of their right to buy Edibles. The students, however, have no means of protecting themselves against the charge that they are not permitted to buy Edibles.
