EDITORIAL NOTES

By HERMAN BERNSTEIN

The Servile Stenubites

THE resolution adopted at the Cleveland German American Congress, notwithstanding the information given by Steuben Society representatives, is the DAWA resolution. The resolution protests "against the high pressure propaganda undertaken in this country with the object of ruining German trade and creating a breach of friendship between two friendly nations" and states that "we are against all boycotts and that we recommend to all Americans that when they buy they should ask: 'Do you boycott German goods?' and then patronize and buy only from those merchants who do not proclaim boycotts." And the amendment to this resolution reads:

"Resolved that we earnestly request our Government at Washington to take effective steps to stop the boycott of German goods."

Notwithstanding that the German DAWA anti-Jewish counter-boycott organization was branded as "economically unsound with all the possibilities of becoming a racket," and that false reports were given out by Steubenites about the secret sessions of the German American Congress at Cleveland, the Steuben Society delegates voted for the anti-Jewish DAWA resolution.

It is hard to understand what the Steuben representatives had in mind when they received the representatives of the press by misleading and false information, since they must have known that the truth about their cowardly conduct would become known at the close of the session.

The Steuben Society, at one time regarded as a dignified and representative organization of German Americans who have made a splendid contribution to American life as Americans while retaining a sympathetic bond of friendship for the land of their origin, has degraded itself by its latest act in supporting the DAWA resolution. They protest "against the high pressure propaganda undertaken in this country with the object of ruining German trade." They proclaim that they are "against all boycotts," but they recommend a boycott against anti-German boycotters. This is the kind of boycott the Steubenites favor.

The Steubenite German Americans have not protested against the anti-Jewish boycott instituted by the government of their beloved fatherland. The Steubenites are not interested in not joined in the protest of all

Polish Jews Are Beaten By Peasants

Attack Groups at Bank of Vistula—Shops Are Raided

(Jewish Telegraphic Agency)

WARSAW, June 11.—Six Jewish residents in the township of Czerwinski, near Wyszogrod, were subjected to severe thrashings at the hands of anti-Semitic peasants at about midnight yesterday. One of them, Scholomo Mona, was rushed to the hospital.

A crowd of Jews were returning from the bank of the Vistula River after alighting from the ferry. They were surrounded by a larger group of hostile peasants, who proceeded to attack them in brutal fashion.

Later all Jewish shops in the township were targets for vandalism, who destroyed windows and doors.

In recent weeks raids on the Jewish population over Poland by Nara anti-Semitic mobs have increased in frequency and intensity. Police action against them has been of little avail, and the number of Jewish victims is mounting.

Today edition of Haint, Yiddish daily, was confiscated twice by authorities for unstated reasons.

'Aryan' Urges Ban On 'Mixed' Unions

Teach Youngsters of Great Wrong in Intermarriage, Says Reich Official

(Jewish Telegraphic Agency)

BERLIN, June 11.—A law forbidding "mixed marriages" between "Aryans" and "non-Aryans" was demanded by government councillor Schrauf, of the Nazi Department of Justice, in an address before the Berlin political College here.

"It is essential that we continue teaching our youngsters of the great wrong they will commit in intermarriage," he said. "It may also be necessary to introduce exceptionally severe clauses prohibiting race mixing without marriage."

Kosher Meat Shortage Looms As Union Weighs Strike Today

Jewish residents of Greater New York were faced with the possibility of a shortage of kosher meat today.

The executive board of the Hebrew Butcher Workers Union will decide at a meeting tonight whether 6,000 kosher butchers, members of the union, will go out on strike in sympathy with the city-wide walkout of butchers and help.

Although contracts with the union's proprietors forbid it to strike, Joseph Belsky, its secretary, pointed out yesterday that most of its members are delivered by distribution employees of packing houses, many of whom have joined the strike.

'Putzy' Locks Up Piano, Tucks Adolf In, Leaves for Harvard

Hanfstaengl Decides Not to Let Nasty People Spoil His Reunion

(Jewish Telegraphic Agency)

PARIS, June 11.—The mail man, who always delivers good things to Trans-Atlantic liners just before they leave Cherbourg to brave the perils of an ocean crossing, dumped a particularly delectable ditty aboard the Europa at the French port today, four hours before sailing time.

The surprise package was Ernst B. S. Hanfstaengl, Hitler's pet aide, who arrived in Cherbourg up to his ears in mail cosses on a plane which had left Cologne earlier in the day.

Hanfstaengl, who recently paid a personal touching tribute by offering to endow a Harvard scholarship in his own honor, said he planned to attend the reunion of his Harvard class, which was graduated from the Cambridge, Mass., institution in 1909.

The genteel-mannered "Putzy," as he was known to his Harvard classmates, found himself the center

Congress Lifts Certificate Ban On Revisionists

Brith Trumpelder Will Receive Share, Zion Body Rules

(Jewish Telegraphic Agency)

JERUSALEM, June 11.—The Brith Trumpelder, organization of Revisionist Zion, had its rights for obtaining immigration certificates restored, according to today's decision of the Congress Court, handed over for the benefit of the interested parties.

The court's decision declares that, in the first place, the Zionist Executive was justified at the time when it deprived the Revisionists, as members of Brith Trumpelder are known, of certificates; secondly, that the Revisionists did not have the right to attempt to

Raps Policy Of England In Palestine

Brodetkys Says Britain Ignores Important Large Class

(Jewish Telegraphic Agency)

LONDON, June 11.—Professor Selig Brodetzky, head of the political department of the Jewish Agency Executive in London, today voiced the belief that "something is radically wrong with the immigration system in Palestine."

A British ruling differentiating between immigrants possessing capital and those without it was criticized by Professor Brodetzky, who insisted that "a large group, 'intermediary class,' is ignored. The ruling, he declared, is not suited to conditions in Jewish life, particularly in Germany and Poland."

Disputes Hall Dictum

A statement from the report of John Hatcher Hall, Palestine government secretary a few days ago to the mandates commission of the League of Nations at Geneva was disputed by Dr. Brodetzky. (Hall explained Britain's immigration policies in Palestine, saying in substance that there are too many young people to meet employment and that the study, and that a considerable number are preparing for professions. Newcomers, he said, would obtain only temporary employment.)

Dr. Brodetzky said the question of temporary employment was settled three years ago. Experience has taught, he stated, that every ten dunams of land used in orange raising require at least one worker on a permanent basis. The industrial development of the country, he said, as well as building construction will provide employment for a large number of individuals for a long time to come.

In connection with an ordinance prohibiting picketing of employers who use non-Jewish help, passed a few weeks ago by the Palestine government, Dr. Brodetzky said authorities are mistaken if they think the ordinance has done anything for the situation. It has caused much bitterness, he added.

Stavsky Seeks Solace in Jail With Prayer

Asks for Phylacteries; Rosenblatt Is in Jerusalem

(Jewish Telegraphic Agency)

JERUSALEM, June 11.—Abraham Stavsky, condemned to hang for complicity in the murder of Dr. Chaim Arlosoroff, according to a court decision last Friday, yesterday asked that phylacteries be brought to jail for him in order that he may pray.

Zvi Rosenblatt, who was set free, is in Jerusalem incognito. He visited Chief Rabbi Kook and thanked him for his support during the trial.

It was learned here that Rosenblatt is planning to go abroad in the near future.

Jersey National Guard On Lookout for Nazis Who Seek Enlistment

(Special to the J.D.B.)

NEWARK, N. J., June 11.—Lieut. Col. Clyde E. Winterton, commanding the 113th Infantry Regiment, New Jersey State National Guard, announced today that any attempts by Nazis to enroll in his outfit will be forestalled by strict examination of candidates who apply for admission.

"I am confident," he said, "that our precautions prevented the development of a radical group in our organization a year ago when they tried to obtain use of the Armory. Since that time we have watched enlistment with great care. Most of our recruits are young men. We bar no nationality, but we always investigate to learn whether men are members of secret groups."

Minorities Feel Effect Of Proposed Labor Law

(Jewish Telegraphic Agency)

BUCHAREST, June 11.—German minorities in Rumania and Hungary are feeling the effect of a law which, if passed by the two countries, will deprive them from employment on the ground that they are not nationals.

German protests are loud and long, but true to form they make no mention of the Jews in their protests.

Like private factories, acting in the spirit of the proposed law, are not hesitating to remove Jewish employees and replace them with "pure Rumanians." Applicants for the new positions which are sometimes open in these factories are turned away if they are Jewish.

Yiddish Press Exhibit Covers Life of North American Jewry

By EVA DORBIN

One of the most absorbing chapters in the history of the cultural development of North American Jewry is that describing the growth and mutations of the Yiddish press on this continent.

For there is scarcely a phase in the life of the American Jewish immigrant and his children which the Yiddish press has not touched upon in the brief sixty-four years of its existence. In that short space of time the American Yiddish press has made astonishingly rapid strides from its simple beginnings in 1870, when the first known Yiddish daily appeared, to its potent, influential present.

The dimensions of these strides will be apparent even to the uninitiated visitor to 149 Second avenue, where the Yiddish Culture Society has placed on view the first exhibit of the American Yiddish press ever to be arranged. Some 600 examples have been collected from publishers' files and private archives and have been used to show the ramifications and diversity of the Yiddish language press here since its very inception.

Leaps Mark Progress

Like every press in its beginnings, the Yiddish press here was somewhat naive in its approach to the reader, yet at the same time dogmatic, telling him how to live, how to vote, how to spell and what to think. But whereas the English press, for example, required centuries to reach its present-day maturity, the American Yiddish press has reached the heights of modernity by leaps and bounds, by learning well and rapidly what the English has learned about modern newspaper publishing. Modern newspapers published in North America compare more favorably with their English-language counterparts than do the Yiddish ones, not only their special field of Jewish news but also the general news of all the world. And in addition, they supply their readers daily with articles, fiction and poetry.

Pioneers Were Hardly Men

The first publishers and editors of Yiddish newspapers here, I. K. Eudenberg, Zvi Hirsch Bernstein (uncle of Herman Bernstein, first editor of the Day and present editor of the Jewish Daily Bulletin), Aaron Scharf, Scharfstein must have been intrepid men to face the prediction that within a generation or two at the most Yiddish as a cultural implement would disappear from the continent. Today, in the third generation, their successors can point to a combined circulation which seems to indicate that one of every four or Jewish souls on this continent reads a Yiddish publication.

Diversified Interests

The Yiddish Culture Society's collection is not limited to news dailies and weeklies. There are on view hundreds of dailies, weeklies, monthlies, quarterlies and extraordinary publications arranged to show the many channels of interest prevailing among American Jewry.

There are the specialized trade and professional magazines (only one of which is now published in Yiddish), literary, art and music publications, health and science magazines and many others, including local issues.

The sections devoted to the religious, political and organizational magazines are large and bear witness that religion, Zionism, Socialism, Communism and Anarchism as manifested among American Jews of one particular press can Jewry were all shaped each. It might be interesting to note that Dos Yiddische Licht, an orthodox newspaper published in New York for many years, never permitted the word "Gott" to be spelled out in its pages, but used the letter "giml" instead.

Moslems Included

In view of the fact that American immigrant Jewry is famous for its neglect and lack of reverence for cultural data, comparatively little of which has been preserved among the Yiddish Culture Society's collection is indeed impressive. It is not limited to publications which appeared in the Yiddish press, but many Jewish resorts, but covers smaller communities and a host of other places, including Mexico.

'May Well Be Proud'

The Yiddish Culture Society's exhibit concludes that the Yiddish press, which is largely the contribution of the East European Jew to American Jewish life, is one of which every American Jew may well be proud, even though he had never seen a Yiddish newspaper. From it one can read the life of all Jews here, past and present, and the philosophy and involutions. It bears evidence of Jewish sincerity done out of a desire for progress and the spreading of culture, both Jewish and American. The Jewish press has nurtured most of the best Yiddish writers, whether novelists, poets or journalists, and has enriched the Yiddish language and Yiddish literature.

The exhibit, originally scheduled to run a month, has been extended to July 15.

Teachers to Hold Anti-War Session

Will Score Fascists Also at Central Opera House on Saturday

A mass meeting against Fascism will be held by the Teachers Anti-War Committee and affiliated organizations Saturday evening at the Central Opera House, 205 East Fifty-seventh street.

Speakers will include LeRoy E. Bowman, member of the Executive Board of the Teachers Union, and director of the Child Study Association; Dr. S. Margoshes, editor of the American Jewish Talente; League Against War and Fascism; Maria Halberstadt, exiled German teacher, and Harold Farmer, of the Marine Vectors Industrial Union. Dr. Adler, secretary of the Teachers Anti-War Committee, will preside.

In the announcement of the meeting, addressed to teachers, parents and students, the Committee says:

"In 1917, school assemblies, parades and lessons were used to whip up war hounds. Thousands of students were dressed up in uniforms and sent to the trenches in France. Loyalty pledges were imposed upon teachers. Results: 1,000,000 lives and 122,000,000 dollars for the business; $12,000,000 for every soldier killed."

Contemporaries Laud Schulman At Fitting Farewell Reception

Rabbi Samuel Schulman, rabbi emeritus of Temple Emanuel, and president of the Synagogue Council, was tendered a farewell reception yesterday afternoon by the New York Board of Jewish Ministers prior to his departure abroad. The reception took place at the Temple.

Many of his contemporaries attended the gathering. High tribute was paid the rabbi, who had held the post of spiritual leader of Temple Emanuel for many years. His successor, Rabbi Samuel Goldenson, lauded him, his work and his ideals.

The aged and revered Rabbi de Sola Pool, leader of the Spanish and Portuguese congregation, paid his respects. He said in part: "It has been a pleasure to differ with Dr. Schulman. He never wavered, never straddled. One always knew where he stood."

Rabbi Max Drob, president of the New York Board of Jewish Ministers, declared of Dr. Schulman: "Through his work he glorified God. As president of the Synagogue Council he has the world still before him."

It remained for Dr. Goldenson to deliver the final words of homage:

"It is always pleasant to be called upon to pay tribute to another man," he said. "I have been associated with Dr. Schulman for many years, particularly through his work in the Central Conference of American Rabbis, and I have found him to be one of the most helpful and powerful men. If I was asked the question why, I should say that it is because he is a man capable of philosophic thought that is reinforced by a real learning. But even more so it is his courage, his outspokenness, that has made him the leader he is. He has always been, it is courage, in the last analysis, that makes philosophy and learning of value to the human race. Under no pleasure I hope he puts in writing some of his thoughts so that future generations may benefit, as have his contemporaries."

Dr. Schulman, final speaker, replied:

"This has all been very delightful. One of the speakers referred to my sense of duty. That is the thing I prize most highly. "At the time of my final sermon I said it was both the happiest and sorriest day of my life. I was happy to turn over my pulpit to a man such as Rabbi Goldenson, a man from whom I expect big things. When a man is really interested in his work, he is happy to know his successor will be as fine a man as Dr. Goldenson. I still hope to do the best work of my career."

Rabbis Moses Hyamson and Barnett A. Blass, former Board presidents, were among those at the reception.

Rabbi Nathan Stern acted as chairman.

Rafferty Bill Hit In Radio Broadcast By Judge Rutherford

Protests against the New Jersey Rafferty Bill, which prohibits the dissemination of news that would discriminate against religious sects and hold them up to ridicule was voiced in a broadcast over Stations WEBR and WREB by Edward Koller, secretary to Judge Rutherford.

Fourteen men and women were arrested Saturday while distributing leaflets herding this broadcast in Jersey City, Plainfield and Nutley, N. J. According to the Peoples' Pulpit Association, the fourteen distributors merely called at homes and offered leaflets to the one answering the door.

Rothenberg Calls on Jews of the World To Aid Reich Victims

Failure of world Jewry to stand loyally by the Jewish victims of the Hitler terror would be interfering with the greatest encouragement possible to the Nazi program of annihilation of Jews, Morris Rothenberg, president of the Zionist Organization of America, last night told members of the Theodore Herzl Society at a meeting at the Central Jewish Institute, 125 East Eighty-fifth street.

Calling on world Jewry to exert itself with the utmost energy and vigor on behalf of the "German Jews," Mr. Rothenberg gave a detailed statement of the steps that have been taken for integrating German refugees into the Jewish life of Palestine.

The Theodore Herzl Society was recently formed and is comprised of German-speaking Zionists.

McFadden's Attacks on Jews Not Based on Religion, He Says

Makes Statement in Fight on Wire and Radio Censorship Bill

(Special to the J.D.B.)
WASHINGTON, June 11.—When Representative Louis T. McFadden of Pennsylvania makes a radio and public address against the Jews, it is not an attack upon them because of their religion. This was made clear by the Congressman in a debate on the floor of the House in reply to a question propounded by Representative Herman P. Koppelman of Connecticut.

The House had under consideration a bill for government regulation of interstate and foreign communications by wire and radio and Representative McFadden argued against the proposal on the ground that its enactment would mean censorship of radio and wire communication.

Koppelman Replies
Representative McFadden charged that at present, without such a regulatory law in effect relative to radio, "there is no fair distribution of time in opposition to the various doctrines that are disseminated throughout the country today, and much of this kind of radio is conducted with no opportunity to answer. The air is full of it."

At this point Representative Koppelman called the Pennsylvania's attention to the fact that several weeks ago over station WOL in Washington, Representative McFadden "found no difficulty in conducting his radio address over the radio, which had for its purpose an attack upon a defenseless and innocent people on account of their religion. Did the gentleman have any difficulty in voicing his mean statements?"

Representative Koppelman asked McFadden.

In reply, the Pennsylvania said, "I will say to the gentleman in reply, regardless of the motive, that I was invited to deliver that address to which the gentleman refers. It was not, however, an attack upon the Jews because of their religion."

Representative Koppelman is interested in finding out how it was that radio station WOL permitted Representative McFadden to broadcast a talk, the text of which, he believes, could arouse racial hatred. The Connecticut member of the House has communicated with the radio station in an effort to get at the facts of the incident.

Talks Being Probed

Representative McFadden previously had delivered several similar talks. Some of these are in the hands of the Congressional committee investigating propaganda activities in the United States. Representative John W. McCormack, committee chairman, has had his personal attention called to the most recent radio talk by Representative McFadden and it is expected that the committee will try to find out why McFadden chooses to level attacks against the Jews. The committee chairman has repeatedly stated his opposition to all forms of activities which tend to promote racial and religious hatred and bitterness.

Judge Levy Sees Education As Child Delinquency Cure

Educational guidance can do much to curb juvenile delinquency, Justice Samuel D. Levy of Children's Court said in a talk over Station WMCA in behalf of the Children's Welfare Foundation.

In all his experiences as judge, Justice Levy said, there have been only two or three occasions on which Boy Scouts have been brought before him, and then only on minor charges.

Zionists to Aid Palestine Entry For Supporters

Contributors, Workers Will Be Preferred as Immigrants

Contributors to the Zionist funds, the Jewish National Fund and the Keren Hayesod, and workers for the Zionist cause will henceforth be granted preferential treatment in the distribution of Palestine immigration certificates, it was announced by the Immigration and Labor Department of the Jewish Agency for Palestine, according to the Jewish National Fund of America.

This ruling, issued in accordance with a decision of the Zionist General Council at its last session at Jerusalem, approves the principle of preferential treatment to candidates who had worked for the Palestine funds.

The Department, however, declares that "it goes without saying that Eretz Israel is open to all Jews. This does not mean, however," the statement continues, "that we should treat in exactly the same manner the man who has devoted time and money to our cause, and the man who never made any effort to assist us in our task."

Three Key Questions

The Palestine offices of the Jewish Agency will insert the following questions on their immigration forms, which must be answered by all applicants for Labor immigration certificates:

1—Have you contributed to the Keren Hayesod—if so, when and how much?

2—Have you worked for the Keren Kayemeth—if so, in what capacity?

3—Have you taken part in any other Zionist work?

After replies by the applicant to the usual questions are found satisfactory, answers to the above three questions will determine the preference to be accorded, the announcement says.

Renegade Jew Exhibits Pride Over Conversions in Poland

(J.T.A. Special Correspondence)
LONDON, May 25.—An amazing story of the activities of British missionaries working among Jews in Poland, is told in the current issue of the London publication, Record. It deals with the activities of the Berdian Mission, one of whose prime movers is the Rev. P. Gorodish, renegade Jew. The Record reports the annual meeting held at Church House, Westminster, with the introduction:

"Upon every Christian there rests the obligation to send the Gospel to the Jew, one of the most through the Jew to the world. At the annual meeting in the Church House, Westminster, the note of gratitude to God was sounded for many opportunities He had given to the workers of reaching the Jewish people with the Gospel."

Conversions Increase
The report of the meeting continues:

"The forty-fifth annual conference, presented by the Rev. I. B. Davidson, commenced on this note of gratitude to God. One of the finest years we have experienced in the history of the mission," he declared; there had been more conversions than in any former year. With the growth of the work and rapid extension difficulties had inevitably to be anticipated, but that was God. They had great cause to thank God in regard to the work in Poland."

"Mr. Davidson touched upon one particular branch of the work, that of Poland; there had been 850-odd services and Bible classes with an attendance of something like 140,000 Jews; and eighty cities had been reached by missionaries of the Gospel vans. Conversions had been reported, not only in London, but also on the Continent, and a large number of Jews had definitely accepted Christ as Saviour. Thirty-seven baptisms took place in London, Poland and Jugoslavia. It was always a joy to hear of those who despite persecution, had the strength and courage to confess the Lord Jesus Christ."

Gorodish Reports
"At the afternoon meeting the chair was taken by A. S. Carver in the place of Admiral B. Curry who was absent through illness. The Rev. P. Gorodish, the speaker, acting as interpreter, told a most encouraging story of the work that was being carried on in Poland. Their work, he said, did not merely touch the orthodox district in that land, but it reached the whole of Poland; there was not a single part of the country where the Berdian Mission did not exerting its influence. The Jews in Poland had preserved much of their Jewish tradition. There were to be found there the strictly orthodox Jews, the Jews who followed the teachings of Lenin and Karl Marx. 'We are here to preach the Gospel both to the orthodox Jew and to those who call themselves Free-thinkers,' said the speaker. Both classes were bitterly opposed to the Christian missionary, yet they were thousands of Jews who were thirsting for the truth. There was hardly a field in all the world that was more accessible to the Gospel message than that in Poland. At least ninety per cent of the Christianity in Poland was represented by the Roman Catholic Church. The Jews had not only retained the power of the Gospel. There was not a Jew, he orthodox or not, who was a Socialist, who could not be reached by the preaching of the Gospel. During the year there had been conversions of Jews representative of all classes."

"Another interesting address was given by the Rev. P. Gorodish at the evening meeting. It was, he said, eleven years since they started to sow the seed amongst the Jews in Poland; now the time had come for them to gather in the fruit, and sometimes was gathered under difficult circumstances. What the Lord had showed them during the year of His power was simply wonderful. When a Jew was really converted, when he had really found Christ, and he became in Christ a new creature, when through grace he was regenerated, he was bound to be a missionary; he was bound to be a missionary, he was bound to be a missionary. They had in Poland an Inquirers' Home, and what glorious experiences they had there! The atmosphere in that home was such that when it had to yield to Christ; the Christian atmosphere by which they were surrounded compelled them to seek Him for themselves. The workers out there had to face many difficulties, but none of them carried on in their own strength. Mr. Gorodish invited his hearers to visit Poland and to see for themselves the work that was being done. 'Every citizen of Great Britain,' he said, 'in welcome in Poland.' Those who do not forth obedience to the command of the Lord, and cast in the net drew it in full of fishes. Their immediate task was to do something for the converted Jews, for those whom they had baptized, and who had to suffer such great persecution. What the Lord could do was to give the converted Jew an opportunity to work on the land, and thus to earn his daily bread. Such help was much to break down the Jewish opposition against Christ and against the Hebrew Christians."

Reich War on Jews

Hits Innocent, Says Expelled Englishman

(Jewish Telegraphic Agency)

LONDON, June 11.—The merciless way of extermination against the Jews has in Germany become a war against innocent women and children, declared Pembroke Stephens in the Daily Express yesterday. Stephens, recently expelled from Germany because of his articles in the newspaper, says in part:

"The world revolts against the merciless war of extermination against the Jews, a war which is no longer a vendetta against the guilty Jews of Germany—the Jews of the Reich—who are corrupt—but a war against innocent women and children who have done nothing wrong but who were born Jews."

Ruling Tightens Grip On Escaping Refugees With Tax On Property

(J.T.A. Special Correspondence)

BERLIN, May 19.—The Reich government has decided to extend the Reich flight tax law, says the Juedische Rundschau, German Zionist organ. The text of the new law has not yet been announced but the official press statements give a preliminary view which is of importance especially to Palestine emigrants, the paper reports.

The free margin has been reduced from 200,000 marks to 50,000 marks, the paper says, and those who on January 1, 1928, or January 1, 1931, possessed real estate property exceeding 50,000 marks will become liable to payment of flight tax.

"Please see to it that in our next issue of Der Stuermer we have thirty-four more Jewish crimes and new plots and two more pages of advertising."

Soviet Foresaw Six Years Ago Formation of a Jewish State

(J.T.A. Special Correspondence)

MOSCOW, May 27.—M. Peter Smidlovitch, Vice-President of the Soviet Union, has replied in writing in the name of the President of the Union, M. Kalinin, to a number of questions addressed to the President by the J.T.A. representative with regard to the Jewish autonomous region in Bureya.

"On the instructions of President Kalinin, I reply as follows," wrote M. Smidlovitch.

"The principles of the Soviet national policy lead to every national opportunity obtaining an autonomous state formation in order to avoid national conflicts. The rise of national feeling and the activity of the workers of each nation to the economic and cultural uplifting within the frontiers of each autonomous national Union proceed at an accelerated pace. The Soviet national policy has already fully demonstrated its vitality. Jews have till now had such national formation which has placed them in a particular position in comparison with other nations."

"As far back as 1928, in allocating the Bureya region in the Far East for Jewish trans-settlement, the government foresaw the possibility of establishing there a Jewish national autonomous region. At the present moment the Jews who have settled there are playing a leading part in the whole economic and cultural reconstruction of the region. These circumstances made it advisable to publish the Government decision of May 10. The settlement of Jews in Bureya, which is bound up with preparing the soil, etc., can develop more quickly and better if the district will have its autonomy."

"The proportion of the Jewish population will with autonomy and with new conditions grow more rapidly than hitherto. In a word, the development of the Jewish State system will be handed over to the working Jews themselves. Jews will thus obtain what other nationalities already have—the possibility of developing by their own united forces their culture, national in form and Socialist in content, consolidating their economy, have their representatives in the highest legislative bodies, take their place in the Socialist construction of the country among other nations, and with the assistance of the whole Soviet Union dominate the sparsely settled territory."

"From all this," the statement concludes, "it becomes clear in what sense it is desirable to have the transmigration of working Jews from other countries. We can absorb people who are healthy, able to work, who will strive to take part in Socialist construction, people with professions in which there is a shortage in the Soviet Union, builders, carpenters, masons, skilled workers in various branches of agriculture, skilled metal workers, motorists, etc. In addition, the traveling expenses and the cost of their settlement and equipment must not lie on the budget of the Soviet Union."

Vienna Temple Bombed; Stunted in Nazi Section

(Jewish Telegraphic Agency)

VIENNA, June 11.—Anti-Semitic demonstrations took an alarming turn here when the Neudergasse Temple, a beautiful structure and one of the religious show places of the city, was partly destroyed by a bomb explosion.

Consul Rouses Ire Of Salonica Jews

Community Indignant Over Briton's Refusal to Group on Zion Entry Protest

(Jewish Telegraphic Agency)

Salonica, June 11.—The Jewish community here is indignant over the refusal of the British consul of this city to receive a delegation which intended to submit to him a resolution adopted by the General Council of the Zionist Federation of Greece against the British government's immigration policies to Palestine.

A letter was directed to the consul today, repeating the request in writing, and asking that the delegation be received. The communication expressed surprise at the consul's attitude, which was without precedent. Relations between Zionist organizations in Greece and British consulates have always been amiable, the letter stated, and this change of attitude is unjustified.

Assault on Castoria

Jew Under Arrest; Safety Steps Taken

(Jewish Telegraphic Agency)

Salonica, Greece, June 11.—Apostol Papazoglu, principal assistant of Isaac Eliass, son of the president of the Jewish community of Castoria, in the town against the Jews about a week ago, is under arrest, it was learned today. The police prefect of Florina, in a telephone conversation with H. H. secretary of the Governor of Macedonia, declared that measures have been taken for maintaining order, and that a careful inquiry is being made.

He expressed the view that the Jews exaggerated the importance of the incidents.

Reich Takes Further Steps Against Jewish Youth Employment

(Jewish Telegraphic Agency)

Berlin, June 11.—Opportunities for employment of Jewish youth in Germany have been further restricted by a new announcement from the president of the Reich labor exchange for public insurance and unemployment.

The president of the exchange has made it known that henceforth Jewish youths will not be admitted into the so-called Landhilfe which provides temporary agricultural occupations for those who have completed their studies but have not yet been employed as apprentices.

The 'Bulletin's' Day Book

As the greatest "other-god" of the age we give you George Sylvester Viereck.

Either he is a tragically misunderstood soul whose every energy is directed toward the eventual betterment of the Jewish race, or he is the most diabolical, the cleverest, the subtiest, the most Machiavellian and the "architect" of such enormities of Jewishry.

That this man, who not only Jews but impartial Christian observers as well have characterized as "Hitler's chief apologist propagandist" in this country, about the Jewish race is readily understandable and may be attributed to defects in the original Viereck pattern.

Viereck, research in the yellowish scholastic records at City College for the year 1906 reveals, was pretty rotten student; while he achieved the distinction of class poet during his collegiate career, he won his arts degree by an eye-brawl. He threatened through with a low C average.

The man of mystery, as a student, used to experience his greatest headaches in the logic and his greatest joys in the records. If the records are correct, these were his poorest subjects. He flunked history once. And logic was so tough for him that he flunked it twice, but several times. His fellow students recall him as a pimply-faced individual with a somewhat morbid interest in sex.

In the light of this record, it becomes understandable that a man who couldn't digest college logic should be incapable of making himself clearly understood by the public. In his life, Viereck tried to cope with logic may, indeed, even be traced to an "accident of birth." Viereck, the undisciplined, the untrained, the unlearned, the unrooted in the Hohenzollern tree, a tree in which logic reached its highest flower in such thoughts as "Deutschland Über Alles," "Germania Über Alles," "Deutschland Treue und Gerechtigkeit," "German Kultur," "The Kaiser can do no wrong," and the most logical of all on the side of the Germans.

Perhaps, with Viereck, the misunderstanding goes even deeper. It may be with George that his left hand doesn't know what his right hand is doing and that his fertile brain, which produced such works as "My First Two Thousand Dollars" and "Salute to the Jewish People," which he recently pointed to as sufficient evidence to "save me from the reproach of anti-Semitism," doesn't know what else is in it.

Among the sensational evidence adduced at the recent Congressional hearings into Nazi propaganda activities, it was revealed that Viereck was on the payroll of Carl Byoir and Associates to the extent of $1,750 monthly. While Viereck and others associated with him in the past have been the object of attack between Byoir and the German railroads specifically prohibited anti-Jewish propaganda, it is an undoubted fact that the Byoir office there was disseminating virulently anti-Semitic literature to the South.

In this connection, it is interesting to note that as class poet Viereck wrote a poem which appeared in the publication Microcosm and in which he solemnly said in justification of his attitude against the heinousness of terrorism's own convictions for gold.

Perhaps, with his congenial weakness in logic, George Sylvester Viereck has reached the conclusion that $1,750 a month is not gold.

Still another indication of how Viereck is in the present may be seen in the following story.

At the recent Madison Square garden rally of the League of Friends of New Germany, which was held for the sole purpose of launching DAWA, the anti-Jewish boycott movement in this country, he declared his open admiration for "the astonishing achievements of Adolf Hitler." Last week, in explaining his connection with the Byoir firm, he recalled this statement and pointed out that he had qualified it by saying that he did not embrace "every article of his faith."

"Pro myself," he said, "I emphatically repudiated anti-Semitism. I protested vigorously against the attempts to fight out the German-Jewish problem on American soil. While the full truth is known it will appear that no one labored harder than I to discover the way out of the German-Jewish dilemma."

That statement was made on June 6, 1934. Four days later, George Sylvester being in New York as the chief subject of Representative Samuel Dickstein's secret hearing into Nazi intrigues here, a Bulletin reporter called him at his home.

Viereck was asked if it was true that he had ever belonged to Phil Espinon FI, known as a Jewish college fraternity.

He replied that he had been persuaded to join that fraternity at college under the impression that it was non-sectarian. When he learned it was Jewish, he said, he severed his connection with it and has since not been identified with any of its activities.

Consultation with one of the founders of Phil Espinon FI, revealed that the fraternity was there and always has been non-sectarian, but is largely composed of Jews.

Perhaps George Sylvester thought he could best help solve the German-Jewish problem by dissociating himself with Jews.

Or, another "perhaps" that suggests itself is this: Since Viereck is employed by Carl Byoir, who is a Jew himself. Since he is associated, at least indirectly, with David Gross, a Byoir associate who is the brother of the Brooklyn rabbi and editor. And since he has collaborated with Paul Eldridge, a Jew, in his various literary ventures.

Since Viereck has differentiated in the matter of associating himself with the Jews, he may mistakenly think it is Jewish propaganda and Jews in purely business ventures, the impression is inescapable that perhaps he doesn't mind being connected with Jews who can help him make some of the gold his poetic mind didn't fancy in the long ago.

CRITICAL MOMENTS

By GEORGE JOEL

The Art of Barricading

No fewer than forty-five pieces of household furniture go into the barricade which is erected each night on the stage of the Civic Repertory Theatre by the embattled Negroes in "Stevadora," the play by George S. Kaufman and Paul Peters which is still one of the hits of the season.

The erection of the barricade takes only four minutes of the scene, and everything has to be timed perfectly in order to get it done in time for the attack of "Mitch's gang." Furthermore, the barricade has to be sturdy enough to hold a man. The scene climaxes over it twice at every performance and since it is built up higher than a man's head, he has to find a foothold.

Engineering Feat

This scene was a bit of an engineering feat for Michael Blankfort, director of "Stevadora." He worked out an ingenious scheme which worked so well that very little rehearsal was necessary to "set" the placing of forty-five separate props. The plan was to build the barricade backwards. Mr. Blankfort and the stage hands assembled all the furniture—which had been gathered enthusiastically from Harlem homes by members of the colored company. Then they constructed the great pile, using the peddler's wagon, the sewing machine and a heavy chair as key pieces. They numbered each piece in the order in which they laid it down. Then they called the company in and took the barricade apart, assigning the last bedstead first to the actor who thereafter was to put it in place just before the battle started, after that it was only a question of setting the cues for each piece to enter.

In the total number of properties in the last scene is 145. They were gathered from junk stores, friends' cellars, pawn shops and back yards in Harlem. The weapons used by both sides are accordingly theirs. "Old Betsy," the "hose pistol" which Alonzo Fenderson is sent scurrying to borrow, and with which George's Harry, as "Blanche" shoots the "red-headed blank blank blank" in the high moment of the play, has quite a history. A "hose pistol" is one of such size that only a giant could hold it in his belt, but straps it to his saddle instead. Since they were most popular in Indian fighting years in the West, it was not surprising to learn in New York City Miss Myers finally discovered a descript example on Second avenue, which everyone agreed would probably destroy anyone who tried to fire it. Patient grinding and welding finally restored the weapon.

An old shot-gun barrel was superimposed. It takes special shells but it barks loudly without fail eight times a week. However, the property man is beginning to worry. This show has lasted much longer than the producers thought it would and the old descript piece doesn't look as though it could stand the pace.

More Historical Pictures

Elisa Lanchester, who in private life is the wife of Charles Laughlin and who played one of the wives in Laughlin's picture, "The Private Life of Henry VIII," will make her American screen debut in the M-G-M production of "Marie Antoinette," a "colorful historical document," as the film company calls it.

Both Sides of the Fence

The following note is too beautiful to touch. In all its simplicity it set it down for your edification, to show you how picture concerns gingerly handle anything that might possibly be classified as being over the heads of people with a mental age of six.

"We Live Again" was announced in Hollywood by Samuel Goldwyn as the new title for Anna Sten's second American picture, in which Fredric March will be costarred. Based on Tolstoy's famous "Resurrection," the new screen version has nothing in common with the two earlier picturizations of the novel.

"Goldwyn feels that since his new title is fairly anonymous with Tolstoy's original, it will offend no admirer of the great Russian novelist and humanitarian."

"At the same time, the rousing, optimistic tone of the new title emphasizes that the story has none of the gloom and despair often considered characteristic of Russian fiction, and that it is a joyous and jubilant love story."

Whether it's local, domestic or foreign, it's news about Jewish life you'll find it in the Jewish Daily Bulletin.

Dark Brown Taste Is Left As Souvenir

Ohio City Disgusted by Lies and Attempts to Stir Up Hate

By PAT MCGRADY
(J.D.B. Staff Correspondent)
CLEVELAND, June 11.—Cleveland like the one that ended yesterday.

The consensus among the German-American element here today, as the last of the visiting delegations left the scene of the German-American Congress, was that the convention had left an unpleasant after-taste with the city because of the character of its sessions and the distorted versions of developments that did come to light; with leaders in local German-American society because it was felt New Yorkers had made Cleveland a battleground for misguided racial, economic and political theories; and with the citizens in general because it was feared that heretofore peaceful Cleveland might become here to prejudicially and violently fostered in almost every city east of the Mississippi.

DAWA Appeal Strong
While the city is still trying to straighten out the inaccurate accounts of the convention proceedings, as given out by the convention "diplomats" a few things are clear. It is certain that the DAWA, the German American Protective Alliance, appeals to the majority of German-Americans who were represented here.

The desire for the DAWA sympathy resolution by a single vote, cast by the doorman-delegate, was held to the intense rivalry of the Steuben Society and the desire of the Cleveland delegates to keep the city clear of prejudice. The Steuben Society delegates, incidentally, made no effort to correct early reports that the DAWA resolution had been swamped.

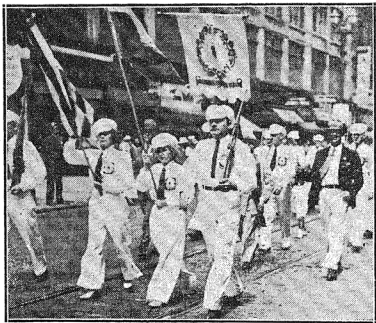

Another item clarified in the post-mortems is the Steubenite compromise with Nazi policies. Theodore Hoffmann, Steuben head, pleaded that his measure was purely a defense and against prejudice. The preachings of Carl Nicolai, leader of the DAWA forces, were on identical grounds. Why William M. Mason, New York Steuben Society representative, gave out a false report regarding deletion of the important clause that the Hoffmann resolution calling on all German-Americans to ask when buying "Do you boycott German goods?" and buy from German merchants, no one except himself knows. Perhaps he had hoped to fool the public with regard to the real intention of the resolution.

Steuben Society on Fence
The Steuben Society maneuvers are regarded in some channels as the result of that organization's growing unpopularity during recent years. It has been regarded as being on the fence on major political issues and at present is being forced from the American side by the tide of New York sentiment against which it is too weak to fight, yet which it cannot completely whittle away.

It is noted that the Steuben Society resolution counts for little, except as an attempt to justify the freedom of a faction, and that the Steuben Society is being asked to establish a board for German-American sentiment.

and Froelich—lost some face and may never recover from this first defeat after its conquest over and expansion into circles of wide influence.

Steuben Society representatives, trading on the honorable name of their organization, called the Nazi DAWA a possible weapon of racketeers.

Only time will tell whether the DAWA will survive this brand, along with the severe inroads being made against it by the McCormack committee.

Hoffmann Resolution
The resolution introduced by Theodore Hoffmann, head of the Steuben Society, and adopted by the German-American Congress states in part:

"Be it resolved that while we do not desire to support the 'New Germany,' and while we are Americans and stand for American policies and American justice and take issue for no other country, Germany not excepted, wherein the people have the right to determine their own form of government, we here protest against the high-pressure propaganda undertaken in this country with the object of ruining Germany's trade and creating a breach of friendship between two friendly nations; and be it further resolved that we are against all boycotts and that we recommend to all Americans that when they buy they should ask: 'Do you boycott German goods?' and then patronize and buy only from those merchants who do not proclaim boycotts."

The amendment to this resolution follows:

"Resolved that we earnestly request our government at Washington to take effective steps to stop the boycott of German goods."

Scores Inertia Jews Show to Hitler Boycott

Syme Hits Indifference Before Vanguard Meeting

(Special to the J.D.B.)
PHILADELPHIA, June 11.—Apathy in the furtherance of the boycott of German-made goods in Philadelphia was deplored last night by Herbert Syme, associated with the United Hebrew Trades, at a meeting arranged by the Vanguard, a Philadelphia branch of the Non-Sectarian Anti-Nazi League.

"Every time a Jew buys German products he is doing injury to the cause of Jewish self-respect," Syme declared. "Let German know that we will have nothing to do with them until Hitler and his anti-Semitic policies are ousted. Our means of conveying this information to him under the present circumstances are by retraining from purchasing German-made goods and by calling upon our friends, Jews and Christians alike, to join us in this peaceful means of protest."

Rabbi S. Bouskovic, representative of the Philadelphia Federation of Churches, expressed disapproval of Hitler's anti-Semitic government and wished the league were in its endeavor. Other speakers were Warren D. Mullin, Socialist leader and economist, and Rabbi J. Gerson Brenner, who presided.

Abraham Norden, vice-chairman of the league, outlined the organization program of the boycott movement in Philadelphia, and drew up a resolution addressed to Samuel Untermyer, New York lawyer, to address a mass meeting of the organization later this month.

Laski Explains His Rebuff to German Envoy

Says "Older and Wiser" Men Advised Him Before Attempt

(Jewish Telegraphic Agency)
LONDON, June 11.—New York, June 11.—The British Jewish League, president of the Board of Jewish Affairs, yesterday before a meeting of the board that he had been advised "by older and wiser men" before attempting to interview with the German Ambassador here. He had been rebuffed in his attempts.

According to Mr. Laski, Rabbi Stephen S. Wise, and Dr. Leo Baeck, an enthusiastic letter to him expressing delight at the idea of a meeting between the Reich envoy and the British Jewish leader.

Leonard Montefiore, president of the Anglo-Israelite Association, another speaker at the meeting, urged the board to make use of public opinion as a means of strengthening the concerted protest on the part of Jews here against England's policies in Palestine. He said that isolated Jewish protests have a limited effect.

"Generally," he continued, "the average Englishman hates all forms of persecution, including anti-Semitism. He is influenced by the masses working against this national feeling, representing in the main German anti-Jewish movements. He is constantly to refute such Nazi propaganda."

"Anti-Semitism Based on Lies" "Directed in two directions," insisted the speaker, "Germany must realize that Jew-baiting does not pay and leads to isolation. The Germans themselves are beginning to feel that the fabric of Nazi anti-Semitism is based upon lies."

Even after the last Jew has been counted out of public life, it is still necessary to campaign against grumblers. This in itself is indication that the Germans are beginning to realize that the stories about the Jews are responsible for their misfortunes, and are false."

The Palestine committee reported that it is hopeful of its plans to hold amiable discussions with Sir Philip Cunliffe-Lister, Colonial Secretary, regarding the limitation on immigration into Palestine. The committee claims to have a specifically "Anglo-Jewish viewpoint" on the matter and feels it can serve a useful purpose in meeting with the Secretary.

Stavsky Committee Seeks Favor for Struggle
A statement urging a nationwide organization of committees to facilitate fund-raising on behalf of Abraham Stavsky, condemned to hang for the murder of Dr. Aaron Arlosoroff, has been issued by the Non-Partisan Committee, signed by Jacob de Haas, Professor Chaim Tchernowitz and Rabbi Louis I. Newman.

Mr. Haas, in a personal statement, sounds a plea to avoid "a struggle within Israel at this critical hour." Financing the defense is the most urgent need at present, his statement emphasizes.

The committee's appeal follows in part:

"The officers of the Stavsky Non-Partisan Defense Committee having rendered the verdict rendered by a majority of the Jerusalem court, have decided to continue to cooperate with Rabbi Kook in raising the means necessary to provide adequately for the appeal against the verdict which is entitled. The Committee feels that every fair minded person will agree that Stavsky is entitled to every advantage that the law provides. To clear himself of a charge of which he protests his innocence, the more so that the case against him has been based on a lie."

"In order to strengthen the Non-Partisan Committee, and to facilitate the raising of funds a committee has been formed in New York City. The committee at the same time urges on the tens of thousands of Jews outside of New York who are loyally interested in the case to establish local committees for the purpose of raising funds which we shall be glad to transmit to Jerusalem."

The statement from Mr. Haas reads:

"As the senior in the service of Zionism, I feel that I have never hesitated to discuss publicly problems affecting the Jewish people. I cannot well be accused of adopting a sh-sh-sh policy if I have publicly pleaded that those who are naturally wrought up by the decision in the Stavsky case by what that spilling of hot blood which has caused such bitter emotions and excitement aroused by protest meetings demonstrations, and other forms of dramatic action."

"Unfortunately ample provocation is consciously and unconsciously being provided for an outbreak of emotion, and there are not a few who are willing to fan a flame that may lead to physical strife and bloodshed in Palestine. Nothing will serve the cause of Zionism better than the struggle within Israel at this juncture; nothing will serve Israel better than that justice shall prevail. The decision is one that demands action not words, and the action, however trifling the contribution is to help finance the Stavsky defense."
