President Kalinin's Address

THE address delivered by President Kalinin of Soviet Russia to a delegation of Moscow workers and writers concerning Biro-Bidjan is a remarkable document.

"In the Soviet Union there are about three million Jews, but thus far there has been no Jewish state unit," he said. "The development of a Jewish autonomous region is creating a sound foundation for the Jewish nationality."

"I consider Biro-Bidjan from the viewpoint of great perspectives. By the fact of the establishment of a Jewish autonomous region the Jewish people become more consolidated and acquires all the signs of a nation. The creation of the Jewish autonomous region opens up opportunities for the further growth of Jewish nationality and for its socialistic content. Personally I believe that in about ten years Biro-Bidjan will be the fundamental culture-center of the Jewish world."

Whatever the prospects of Biro-Bidjan as an autonomous Jewish region may be, there is no doubt that the Soviet government's decision with regard to that region is of momentous significance and importance. President Kalinin's address, from which we quoted the opening paragraphs, is a unique declaration. No other head of a government in modern times has spoken as sympathetically of the Jewish nationality and of Jewish culture as the President of the Soviet Union has spoken. Palestine is in no way affected by the Biro-Bidjan scheme.

Hitler's Lieutenant

"Putzy" Hanfstaengl, the Hitler lieutenant and chief of the foreign press bureau in Berlin, now a visit at Harvard University, when asked by a reporter for his views on the Jewish question in Germany, replied:

"I do not think it is good to discuss that question. It doesn't help Germany and it doesn't help the Jews. But I will say this. The Jew's situation in Germany is going to be normal before long."

And when he was asked if he was conscious of any feeling against him among Americans because of his government's anti-Jew policy, Hanfstaengl answered:

"Americans are like children. You cannot please all of them all the time. Americans are like children in that they are good, too. And they are like children in that you can't fool them. But I didn't come to fool anybody. I came to fool around—there's a great difference, you know."

Hanfstaengl's assurance to the press that "the Jew's situation in Germany is going to be normal before long" may be construed as an admission that Hitler has seen and felt the error

Appeal for Stavsky Held Over to July

Samuel's Illness Forces Postponement; Valero Opinion Revealed

(Jewish Telegraphic Agency)

JERUSALEM, June 18.—The appeal of Abraham Stavsky from the sentence of death imposed on him by the Court of Assizes in the Alosoroff case will not be heard by the Court of Appeals before mid-July, it was reported today, in view of the illness of Horace Samuel, Stavsky's attorney.

Samuel is now recuperating from an appendicitis operation he underwent shortly after the Stavsky trial was completed.

The Court of Appeals will consist of four judges, two of them Arabs. Because of this, a group of special Arab translators are busy translating the records of the trial into Arabic.

The full text of the dissenting opinion of Judge Moshe Valero, Jewish member of the Court of Assizes, was made available for the acquittal of Stavsky as well as Zvi Rosenblatt, who was freed, was made public today. It follows:

The Text

After careful consideration of this case I make the following findings of fact.

Firstly, the assassins passed by and looked at the victim and his wife several times and one of them exposed himself in an indecent manner in their view before the attack took place.

Secondly, the crime was committed at such time and place when and where persons are known to, and in fact do, resort for immoral purposes.

Thirdly, the first description given by Mr. A. Alosoroff of the two assassins is totally different from the actual appearance of

Meat Shop Owners To Meet on Strike

Will Decide Tonight Whether to Close Shops—Workers Await Decision

Many hundreds of kosher butcher shop proprietors from every section of Greater New York are meeting at Webster Hall, 119 East Eleventh street, tonight to decide whether to close their shops in protest against high prices packers are forcing them to pay for their meats.

The meeting is being held under the auspices of the Federation of Kosher Shop Owners in Greater New York, of which Charles Cohen is president.

The Hebrew Butcher Workers Union, which also was to have met tonight to decide whether its 5,000 members would go out on strike in sympathy with the city-wide walk-out of meat trade workers, has postponed its session until Friday night, at 7 East Eleventh street.

Its action depends on what course the shop proprietors decide to follow at tonight's rally, Joseph Heller, secretary of the union, explained yesterday.

'Drive Nazi Butcher Out, Master Of Torture,' Greets Herr 'Putzy'

(Special to the J. D. B.)

BOSTON, June 18.—Anti-Nazi factions of this city today unfurled their first vigorous protest against the presence of Dr. Ernst F. Hanfstaengl, Hitler's plannumppling aide, who yesterday slipped into the Hub to participate in the twenty-fifth reunion of his Harvard class of 1900.

Overnight, scores of posters, printed in big, black type, sprouted all over the Harvard campus bitterly assailing the Nazi visitor.

"Drive the Nazi butcher out!" the posters screamed.

"Give him a degree. Make him Master of Torture," other ironical-

Poland Arrests Nara Leaders

Government Will Establish Three Concentration Camps to Hold Anti-Semite Terrorists; Radical Quarters Closed as Pieracki Is Buried

(Jewish Telegraphic Agency)

WARSAW, June 18.—Spurred on by the assassination of Col. Bronislav Pieracki, Minister of the Interior and one of the dominant figures in the government, Polish officials continued on a determined program of suppressing the anti-Jewish, anti-Piludski factions which have been responsible for the excesses of recent weeks.

The Polish government is determined on drastic measures to suppress criminal manifestations, Premier Kozlowski declared at the funeral services today for Col. Pieracki.

"Irrespective of who the criminal is or whence he comes, the moral blame for the murder falls on all preparing an atmosphere of terror," he declared.

"The arm of the State will reach all the guilty."

Arrests of Nara leaders continued today with most of the National Radical headquarters in Warsaw closed by the police. In the grey Nara uniforms common in the streets a week ago had practically disappeared from the streets today.

The Gazeta Warszawska, organ of the National Demokracja (Endeks), who, like the Naras, have been making their attack on the government through the medium of assaults on the Jews, complained today that Endeks also were being arrested in the round-up of Naras.

The government will establish three concentration camps in the neighborhood of Brest-Litovsk, Lonsie and Olkusz to hold the arrested Naras in line with its determination to root out subversive activities. A decree to this effect, signed by the state president and members of the cabinet, was issued today.

Editors of the Sinfato, the Nara paper whose plant was closed down by the authorities last week, unsuccessfully tried to find another press in Warsaw but were given the cold shoulder by the printers in the city. It was reported tonight that they were seeking a printer in the provinces.

Revisionist Trial To Conclude Today

Verdict in Case of Six Defendants Is Awaited by Jews Throughout Palestine

(Jewish Telegraphic Agency)

JERUSALEM, June 18.—The trial of the six remaining defendants in the Britit Blyrozin case was concluded today. The verdict is expected tomorrow morning.

The six defendants, all that remain under charges of the twenty-three Revisionists arrested last week on charges of being members in an illegal terrorist organization, stood trial in Jaffa District Court.

Dr. B. Yelvin, Revisionist editor and one of the defendants, was the principal witness today, having arisen from a sick-bed to testify. He was permitted to leave the court on charges of being unable to have completed his testimony.

Dr. Yelvin denied the existence

Duranty Does Not View Soviet Jewish State Too Optimistically

It's a Hard Country, Not Particularly Fertile, Journalist Says

Not too rose-colored are the glasses through which Walter Duranty views Biro-Bidjan.

"Duranty said for Europe last night to resume its brief interrupted job of reporting news from the Soviet union for American consumption. He has been at it for thirteen years, yesterday being the end of a five weeks' vacation in this country.

"When one receives one's livelihood from a capitalist organization," he grinned, "it's well to get away from the Soviet for a while so that one may renew one's perspective.

"If I were working for the Pravda it would be all right never to leave. But as an employee of the New York Times I must make occasional jaunts into the realm of profit and loss, to maintain my realization of the fact that things are different over there—different from the conception of most Americans."

"But the Soviets are on the right track, Duranty feels, and he says so quite frankly.

Biro-Bidjan and Alaska
"Biro-Bidjan," Wall, let's see if we can draw an analogy to give you some idea of what the Jews are up against there.

"There is a Jewish bookkeeper here in New York City—not necessarily a Jewish bookkeeper, but a man of almost any racial origin. He's fallen on evil days and the United States government feels it'd like to help him out.

"We have some vacant land up in Alaska," the government feels, "and we don't want you and your family move up there?"

"You can easily understand the difficulties confronting upon such a proposal. Ordinary bookkeeper is undoubtedly a product of city life. Chances are he is fitted neither physically nor psychologically for the hardships he'd have to endure in winning sustenance from a country like Alaska. And then the distance would seem appalling to him. He'd be going to a place from which to him had been home."

The Japanese
Distances are even more appalling in the Soviet, Duranty said. And Biro-Bidjan, north or south, is a government venture to be directly in the line of a Japanese invasion, if there were one, he pointed out.

"In any event it's hard country," the reporter said. "I don't think it's particularly fertile country either. I do believe the Soviets thought it better country than it really is when they offered it to the Jews. I think they were sincerely altruistic in their purposes."

"That brought up the question of motivations. Why was Biro-Bidjan held forth as a sort of Hebrew land of promise? Was it

The Institutional Synagogue, 37-43 West 116th street, will convert its building into a home camp during the summer.

The camp will be under the direction of Rabbi Philip Goodman assisted by a staff of counsellors. Its aim will be to provide for boys and girls between the ages of six and fifteen who are unable to leave Harlem an organized recreational and educational program.

Summer home camps have been sponsored by the Jewish Welfare Board at Jewish Centers during the past few years. This project is based on the play schools created by the Child Study Association.

Camp Tia-a-noog, as the camp is known, will provide a complete program of camp activities.

Wednesdays will be devoted to all-day outings. Among the places visited during the summer will be Yankee Stadium, Tibbets Brook Park, Bronx Park Zoo, museums and Palisades Amusement Park.

Lunch will be served at mid-day under the director of a dietitian. The camp will be in session during July and August daily, except Saturdays, Sunday, from 9 A. M. to 5 P. M.

The Hebrew language will be studied.

The camp staff includes Rabbi Goodman, director; M. Uriel, head counsellor; Ben Borko, Milton Rosenberg, Herman Cohen, Herman Mizrahi, Mollie Gerstein, Ethel Gelfand, Edna Eidel, Edie Friedlander, Yeta Margulies, Rebecca Taitz and Barbara Rachunow.

Believes Soviet Sincere
Duranty answered the last two questions in the negative. "I honestly believe the Biro-Bidjan move was made without any desire to play the Jews a dirty trick," he said. "To understand what lay behind the offer you must get some idea of the make-up of the Soviet union."

"He proceeded then to expatiate on the diversity of races, creeds, blood strains and languages contained within the vast precincts of the country.

"The Soviet attitude," he said, "is this: 'We have plenty of land that needs development. We freely offer you a chunk of it, to do with more or less as you please, within certain limits. If there are enough of you with common ties of blood and language, you may populate this land, teach your own tongue in your schools and maintain our old traditions. We'll ask you, in return, also to teach Russian, of course, and to adhere to the basic rules we've set down for our governmental and economic system. Otherwise you're to be free as air. You can take up residence there or not, as you please.'"

"That Duranty believes, is how the Soviets feel about the Jews and Biro-Bidjan.

Competition With Palestine
Unquestionably, he said, the movement also entails a certain element of competition with Palestine and the recent rising tide of Zionism. But the latter question is more or less incidental in the minds of the Soviet chiefs, he thinks.

"How about Germany? Had he been there recently?"

"Not since February," he said. "I've been in and out of Germany frequently during the past thirteen years. Things really are very bad there."

Asked whether he believed reports of Reich brutality and widespread racial hatred, he answered in the affirmative.

"Most of the facts, so far as I have been able to observe," he said, "are true. I do think, though, that one has successfully answered the question of the entire situation: What is behind the anti-Semitic policies of the Hitler regime?"

He described, then, a luncheon about three years ago at a Berlin cafe, at which his companions had been Hermann Goering and "Putzy" Hanfstaengl—the same "Putzy" who now is attending his Harvard University class reunion.

"Curiously enough, on that occasion," Duranty said, "there was no mention of anti-Semitism. The three of us were speaking quite intimately and neither of his Nazi past was a bit accurate about his intentions.

"Nonetheless there wasn't a word about the Jews. Both these men were anti-things and anti-things but there was never a whisper of anti-Semitism.

Duranty himself has no satisfactory explanation for the race hate phenomena.

Serious theories have been advanced as to the source of them completely convince me. Undoubtedly there is some truth in the 'scapegoat' explanation.

"The thought is something too, in the thought that the Jews, forced to live harder lives than their 'Aryan' neighbors, have excited prejudice by their resultant greater abilities to accumulate capital of opportunistic situations."

Will Study Anti-Semitism
"But there's more behind it than that. I hope to look into the thing during my coming stay in Europe. I'll have more time than I formerly had."

In this connection he explained that in future he'll be reporting for the New York Times only four months of the year, with headquarters in Moscow, where he plans to go immediately after his arrival in Europe. He sailed aboard the Europa.

The remaining eight months of the year he'll be on roving assignment for the New York Times mission throughout Europe, doing work for the North American Newspaper Alliance and for weekly and monthly publications.

"I have a fine idea of a book," he said in parting. "It entails, among other things, interviewing Hitler, whom, incidentally, I have met. You know, I'm about the book later, though, I hope."

Educators Plan Boy Scout Body For Palestine

Will Unite Existing Units, Says Rabbi in Report

During the current school year active steps have been taken by the education department of the Jewish Community of Palestine—Knesseth Israel—for the establishment of a Jewish scouting organization, which aims to unite all existing groups, particularly those that are working more or less along the Baden-Powell lines, according to Rabbi A. M. Heller, chairman of the Knesseth Israel project sponsored by Young Judaea.

Scouting in Palestine, Rabbi Heller points out in his report, is intended not as "a romantic game" only, but as a preparation for life in and on the land. To avoid emphasis on difference of political opinion, the Palestine Scout Association has decided that only those activities that are common to all. The organization is divided in Boy Scouts and Girl Scouts.

Young Judaea has assumed financial responsibility for the project.

300 Youths Move To Push Boycott

Delegates Representing 10,000 Others to Rally Tonight to Plan Program

Three hundred delegates, representing leading Jewish fraternal, religious, cultural and social college fraternities and sororities, will meet this evening at the Central Jewish Institute to plan the participation of their membership in an active program of boycott against products made in Nazi Germany.

The conference has been called under the auspices of the Youth Division of the American Jewish Congress. It is expected to enlist more than 10,000 young people in this city alone in the boycott program of the American Jewish Congress, which is being directed by a committee of which Dr. Joseph Tenenbaum is the chairman.

Speakers will include Rabbi William F. Rosenbloom of Temple Israel, Dr. Joseph Tenenbaum, I. Pomansky and Max Leive.

The formation of a vigilantes committee with branches in all sections of the city, for the purpose of checking on the importation and sales of Nazi-made goods, with a view to bringing about their elimination, will be one of the first objectives of the conference.

Palestine Pioneers To Hold Conference. At Hightstown Sunday

The Hechalutz Organization of America will hold a conference Sunday at the training farm at Hightstown, N. Fascism Peril To U.S., Wise Cautions Jews

Tells Them They Must Organize to Fight Against Menace

(Special to the J.D.B.)

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., June 18.—Pleading for a strong organization of American Jews as a means of warring against possible growth of the Fascist movement here, Rabbi Stephen S. Wise, in an address before an installation meeting of the Jewish workers Alliance in the Arch Street Theatre, declared that the tragedy in Germany and the growth of the movement in England and other countries should serve as a warning to the Jewish citizenry of the United States.

Such organization, Rabbi Wise said, can be attained through the American Jewish Congress, of which he is the honorary president.

He asked that greater interest be shown in the forthcoming election of officers for the congress. Other speakers included L. Segal, national secretary of the Congress, and Chaim Greenberg.

Women's Mizrahi Unit Chooses New Officers; Plans Many Activities

A wide variety of activities has been undertaken by the recently organized Women's Mizrahi Organization of Borough Park. The following newly-elected officers were installed by the Yeshivath Eltz Chaim Building, Fifth street and Thirteenth avenue: Miriam H. Ginsberg, president; Goldie H. Krasner, vice-president; Chaim Wechsler, recording secretary; Henrietta Lesser, financial secretary; Kate Hail, corresponding secretary, and Ray Murrin, treasurer.

Rabbi Joseph H. Lookstein of the Congregation Kehillath Jeshurun was the installing officer. He discussed Mizrahi aims and ideals.

Duty of Eastern Jews To Aid Reich Victims, Says Rabbi's Appeal

It is the duty of the Eastern Jews to extend a helping hand to the German Jews, who assisted the former during the Russian pogroms, according to an appeal issued yesterday by Rabbi Alexander Basel, president of the Council of Bronx Rabbis, and signed by twenty-two other rabbis.

The statement urges the Jewish Community of the Bronx to support the Dollar Week.

Junior Dance Successful

The sale of tickets to the marine sport dance held Saturday night by the Junior Federation of the Brooklyn Federation of Jewish Charities at the Half Acre Hotel, Coney Island, has been so successful that completion of the Juniors' quota of $7,500 in the Brooklyn Federation's $500,000 campaign is assured. It was declared yesterday by Samuel Weinberg, chairman of the event. More than $5,000 of the allotment has already been secured.

The dance was featured by stars in the amusement field, headed by Norman Brokenshire, master of ceremonies. There were also several bazaar features.

More than 400 women are co-operating with Miss Mary E. Dillon, chairman of the Ocean Front women's division of the Federation in plans for a dance and bazaar party Saturday night at the Half Moon Hotel in Coney Island. Proceeds will go towards the quota of the group in the campaign.

Assure Good Time To Working Girls

Bay House in L. I., Run by Federation, Opens Its Season next Week

Dramatic work, parties, concerts, dance hikes and bus trips are in store for the working girls who will spend "their vacations" at Bay House, Bellport, Long Island, on the Great South Bay. It is to open its season on June 26. The house is operated by the Jewish Working Girls' Vacation Society, one of the organizations of the Federation for the Support of Jewish Charities.

Girls who have always wanted to act will get their chance in the first production of the season, Oscar Wilde's "Birthday of the Infants." Costumes and all other work on the production will be done by the vacationing girls.

Those who play musical instruments will participate in weekly concerts. Parties of every description—kiddie, stunts, cabaret, beach, side-show, etc.—are on the social bill-of-fare. Registration is now going on, and girls are required to apply in person. Moderate rates prevail. The society also operates the Lehman House at Big Island, N. Y., where working girls may spend vacations at slightly higher rates.

which were sued for a total of $450,000 damages on the charge of illegally interfering with the business of the plaintiff by boycotting the Certified firm for selling German goods.

Filed a Year Ago
The original complaint was filed a year ago, when the suit was instituted as a result of alleged attacks in the Jewish Bakers Voice, Inc., intimidation of bakery owners dealing with the Certified also was claimed.

Abe Schwartz and Morris Greenberg, owners of the plaintiff concern, accused the three defendants of having "deliberately and maliciously attempted to prevent the plaintiff's customers and other Jewish bakers from purchasing the plaintiff's products, intending to destroy the good-will of the plaintiff."

Absolved in Probe

In August of last year the Certified invited the investigation of its merchandise by the American League for the Defense of Jewish Rights, Inc. Ezekiel Rabinowitz, secretary, then reported that the inquiry "has convinced us beyond a reasonable doubt that the Certified yeast sold by you is not of German origin and moreover does not contain any ingredients imported from Germany."

Last January the firm was absolved of the charge of dealing in German goods by the Jewish Court of Arbitration. The judges on that occasion were Bernard S. Delush, David Sarnoff and Dr. Israel Goldstein.

Palestine Capital Fettered by Labor Shortage, Shertok Says

Hitler Shows the Capitalists Around

(J.T.A. Special Correspondence)
JERUSALEM, June 3.—Moses Shertok, in charge of the political department of the Palestine Jewish Agency executive, has given an interview to the Jewish Telegraphic Agency here on the situation created by the restriction of Jewish immigration to Palestine, in the course of which he said:

"The times have gone when the pressure of labor immigration created openings for employment in Palestine. There is a demand for workers now in Palestine. The Zionist Executive and the Histadrut instead of having to find work for the labor immigrants, must try to find workers to meet the demand for labor. The shortage of Jewish labor, and the result, the economic improvement, due to the following causes: the development of the existing enterprises in Palestine; the large inflow of new Jewish capital from abroad; the collapse of German Jewry and the growing distress of Polish Jewry; the dangers confronting the Jews in other countries; the movement among Jews to save their possessions by investment in Palestine.

"Palestine is beginning to concentrate what may be described as the national capital of the whole Jewish people," Mr. Shertok said. "The money is, indeed, brought in by individuals, but Palestine becomes a capital, which creates a secure basis for a sound national existence.

"Unfortunately, there is no opportunity now for fully utilizing this capital, because there are not enough workers available. This shortage of workers leads to a stagnation of the economy. The Jews are going into better-paid branches of employment, and a concentration of workers in the building industry at the expense of other work.

"Jewish workers are deserting the orange plantations. They are leaving the police force and the railways. They are giving up all work in which the rate of pay is lower, which means that gradually, positions which were acquired with difficulty are slipping out of Jewish hands.

"In addition, existing enterprises are unable to expand because of the shortage of labor. Jewish orange plantations are neglected, industry is retarded and cannot satisfy the demand, let alone find new markets. The article of war which is the result of the shortage of labor, even imperils those enterprises which pay higher rates of wages, because they cannot produce as much as Jewish industrial enterprises have not been started because they would not be able to compete with the high wages paid in the building industry. The general result is a dangerous change in the economic structure of Jewish Palestine."

The Problem of Arab Labor
The difference between the number of Jewish workers needed and the number available keeps growing. Arabs come in and occupy Jewish labor positions. Not only Arabs from Palestine, but also from the adjoining countries.

"I want to make it clear," said Mr. Shertok, that we do not view with hostility the development of the Arab Community, or the benefits which the Arabs derive, both direct from the Jews, and indirectly from the Jewish funds which come to the Arabs through the Government. In the first place, it cannot be avoided. We are coming later to the Jewish funds, which army or a foreign occupational power, seeking to seize everything by force. We pay for everything with good money. Our entire development in Palestine is a long series of payments to the Arabs. The Jews are interested in raising the standard of life of the Arabs, firstly, so that the Arabs should be content, and should not have any ground for grievances and embitterment; secondly, because we are building up a Jewish industry, which will develop better the larger the number of purchasers in the country; and thirdly, because the less employed there are among the Arabs, the easier it will be to carry through the principle of Jewish labor in Jewish enterprises.

"The executive is very far, therefore, from opposing what the Government is doing to help the Arabs. It will, however, fight against the attitude of the Government that it is its sole task to help the Arabs. This policy on the part of the Government is unjust, not only because under the mandate it has definite obligations towards the Jews, but also because the Government has obligations to the whole country, and its future.

"If the Palestine government finds itself now in such a precarious financial position, with a surplus which has increased by a million pounds in one year, and a revenue of £2,000,000, in the last financial year to £600,000 more than the Government estimated, it is due to the Jews, Mr. Shertok said. The fact that the revenue from taxpayers alone was not £1,200,000, as the Government estimated, but £1,800,000, and the Government is now able to take a loan of £2,000,000, is due only to the Jewish factor in the country. It is not in the interests of the whole country, therefore, that the Government should assist this factor, for it bases its financial position?"

Vigorous Action
"There can be no doubt about the need of a vigorous political action against the present immigration policy of the Government. We repudiate the revisionist trend, which thinks that demonstrations and threats against Britain can bring any political achievements. The Jewish factor in the Government must be the same that it would have been years ago. We have now a quarter of a million Jews in Palestine. We are now fighting not for the rights of the Jews, but for the vital interests of Jewish immigration. These vital interests must now find expression in a bold political struggle. We must organize the resistance of the Jewish and not submit to a system which deprives us of the opportunity of doing our work with our own labor, and compels us to utilize Arab labor."

"Unfortunately, not everything has been done that is possible in this direction. Our front has been broken. There are elements among the Jewish 'lancers' who have already emancipated themselves from Zionism. They must be made aware of the danger which faces them. Our land is on the edge of the desert. It is not the first time in history that the desert annihilated the developed adjacent lands. Now our ourselves are creating the economic attraction for the desert, which may sweep down and overwhelm us. We have not the political will to prevent it. On the other hand, we have the opportunity to exercise national discipline and to organize resistance, to build a wall of Jewish labor to protect the Jewish national light for extended immigration will be successful only if we have the firm ground of an organized Yishub under our feet."

Clan of Turko-Jewish Exiles Discovered in Northern Syria

(J.T.A. Special Correspondence)
DAMASCUS, May 26.—M. Silver, head of the Alliance Israélite School here, has reported the existence of the hitherto unknown community of Kamechli, founded in 1926 by Jewish refugees from Turkey, in the northern part of Syria.

The community proclaimed its existence by asking that the Alliance establish a school where its children might study French. M. Silver visited Kamechli and his report appears in the Paix et Droit, organ of the Alliance.

"The Jewish community numbers 2,000, all from Nishin, while the population of the town of Kamechli itself, non-existent before 1926, has grown to 15,000, following new arrivals of refugees as a result of the massacre of Assyrian Christians by Kurds in 1930, and by Iraqis in 1933. There is a nomad Bedouin population of several tens of thousands.

Jewish Institutions Forced to Close by Warsaw School Head

(Jewish Telegraphic Agency)
WARSAW, June 15.—The closing of thirty private schools, most of them Jewish, has been ordered by the local school curatorium. Regardless of the new ruling, all private schools must apply to the curatorium before the end of this month if they wish licenses for the new school year. Schools not granted such licenses will not be permitted to continue.

Zion Office in Switzerland Established Groups Cooperate

(Jewish Telegraphic Agency)
GENEVA, June 18.—A Palestine Office for Switzerland has been established here. The bureau includes representatives of various Zionist groups, including the General Zionists, the Mizrahi, the Poale Zion, the Revisionists and the Women's International Zionist Organization (WIZO). There is also a representative of the Hechalutz, pioneer organization.

"The Jews have no representatives among the municipal officials, but have a member on the Town Council and Administrative Council. Their mode of life is almost patriarchal. Illiteracy is general; the languages spoken are Turkish and Arabic, while a few speak Chaldean. The majority are entirely ignorant of Hebrew. Nevertheless, they possess, besides their synagogue, a small Hebrew and religion class.

According to their reports there remain only 150 Jews in Nishin, within an hour's journey are 800 Jews who live with the Bedouins and lead a nomad life. At Diarbekir, in Turkey, are 1,000 Jews. The Jews of Kamechli consider that the foundation of a school will centralize this Jewish population. On the advice of M. Silver, a Communal Council has already been formed.

"Near Kamechli is the tomb of Rabbi Yehouda ben Batara, one of the authors of the Mishna, every year, four days before Shavuot, a pilgrimage is made to it by all the Jews of the region."

Reich Jews Resent Press Libel Stand

Zionist Paper Raps the German Newspapers on Ritual Charges

(Jewish Telegraphic Agency)
BERLIN, June 18.—The Judische Rundschau, periodical representing the sentiment of the German Zionists, today expressed regret that only two newspapers in all of the German press came out openly against the ritual murder issue published recently by Julius Streicher's organ, Der Stuermer. The two newspapers referred to were the Frankfurter Zeitung and the Deutsche Zeitung.

"We imagined that the entire German press would, in the interests of Germany's foreign prestige, express feelings of millions of Germans, including good Nazis, against this publication," wrote Judische Rundschau.

Der Stuermer had charged the Jewish people with plotting murders of the most gruesome sort.

The Ghor District in Palestine reports both tomato and banana plantations suffered from the cold spell in the month of March.

Zionism Approved by Prophecy, Says Pastor at Jewish Service

(Special to the J.D.B.)
ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., June 18.—"The miraculous is happening, and Israel is going home at last."

This was said by the Rev. Dr. Henry Merle Mellen, pastor of the First Presbyterian church here, in an address at the services of Beth Israel Temple. Dr. Mellen recently returned from a winter spent in foreign travel, and was invited in as guest speaker.

"The Zionist movement," he said, "is receiving the approval of prophecy, the counsel of great Jewish minds and the spiritual support of all who wish Israel well. Theodor Herzl was a real modern prophet and deserves honorable mention in the future history of all the nationalized Jewry."

"From all parts of Europe, excited Jews are re-echoing his splendid vision of a positive and definite country and government. Anti-Semitic movements are causing the wrath of man to praise God."

"Peace Be Unto You"

"Let the highest Jews throughout the world give serious thought to Zionism lest Israel fail of what may be one of its greatest opportunities since the Dispersion. To that end, may both Jewish and Gentile Zionists unite in prayer and effort. Here will East and West meet indeed. Here, if nowhere else, Jew and Gentile may stand together and repeat the simple but historic greeting and blessing: 'Peace be unto you. Unto you Peace.'"

Dr. Mellen offered a vivid picture of contrast in modern Rome. "From the Palatine Hill in Rome imperial dominion," he said, "the observant tourist beholds a panoramic picture of 'the glory that was Rome.'"

"Conspicuous in the picture are the Coliseum and the Arch of Titus. And almost as conspicuous is the modern synagogue of the Jews. The guide who conducted us over the historic mound, after pointing out the Coliseum and the Arch of Titus, simply said, referring to the synagogue, 'voilà La Juif.'"

Glory That Was Rome

"There was prophetic poetry in that simple statement. The Coliseum built under the Emperor Vespasian by 100,000 Jews brought as captive slaves to Rome was eight years in erection. It was intended to commemorate Rome and dishonor the Jews."

"The Arch of Titus still carries the stone pictures of the seven-armed candlestick and the table of shewbread, intended likewise to signalize the passing of the Jewish nation in the destruction of Jerusalem."

"But both Coliseum and Arch are passing monuments of an imperialism once believed to be invincible. They stand but testimony of forgotten glory. The synagogue is living side by side with the ruins of ancient Rome. Recall the synagogue. Nesting there is the Jewish faith and religion that will not die!"

"It is a fine picture of Israel's Perpetuity in history. The synagogue of Rome is an imperial testimony to the right of the Jew to be, and influence the world." He said the gossy ruins of ancient

Komlos Wins $1,000 Scholarship Award

(Special to the J.D.B.)
ATLANTIC CITY, June 18.—Emery Herman Komlos is winner of the $1,000 seventh annual scholarship award of the Avoda Club, one of the most cherished prizes open to Jewish youth.

Abraham Levin has been designated as alternate.

The award is made each year to a Jewish member of the graduating class of Atlantic City High School, and is paid out in yearly installments to the winner while he attends college.

Belber Dies at 58 From Heart Attack

One of Founders of Trunk and Bag Co. Passes Away at Atlantic City

(Special to the J.D.B.)
ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., June 18.—Henry Selig Belber, 58, one of the founders of the Belber Trunk & Bag Co. of Philadelphia, and long active there in welfare and charitable work, died suddenly from a heart attack early yesterday at his home, 128 South Ridgeway avenue, here.

Mr. Belber was born in Yassy, Rumania, and came with his parents to America at the age of ten. His father, Selig L. Belber, with his sons, founded the luggage concern. It has grown since then to a national concern, with factories in Woodbury, N. J. and Oakbrook, Wis. Mr. Belber was active as chairman of the board. His death came unexpectedly at the end of a busy week which he had finished in excellent spirit.

Funeral services will be conducted by Rabbi William H. Fine-sher at eleven o'clock Monday morning at the Memorial Chapel of Morris Rosenberg's Son, 3009 North Broad street, Philadelphia. They will be followed by interment in Mt. Sinai Cemetery here.

Some of the chief products imported into Palestine during the fourth quarter of 1933 were barley, durrh and maize, rice, wheat flour, eggs, sugar, potatoes, hides, sunflower seeds, fuel oil, hides, tins, etc.

Maryland Jews Will Remember Great Liberal

Man Who Won Equality for Race to Be Honored in Memorial

(Special to the J.D.B.)
BALTIMORE, June 18.—Jews throughout the State have been called on to take part in a pilgrimage to the grave of Thomas Kennedy, located in Hagerstown, on Sunday, June 24. They will be asked to participate in the observance of the tercentenary of Maryland.

Macabean Post, American Legion, is sponsoring the ceremonies commemorating the man who fought twenty years in the Maryland Legislature to remove all proscriptions from Jews and Catholics.

Kennedy was a Protestant, but endeared himself to Jews and Catholics when he started his fight to gain for them the right to hold public office.

For more than a century his body lay in the old Presbyterian burying ground at Hagerstown. In 1918, the Independent Order of Brith Shalom, recognizing him as a great defender of the Jew, led the campaign to erect a monument over his new grave in Rose Hill Cemetery, Hagerstown.

Among the speakers at ceremonies will be Governor Ritchie and Representative William J. Randolph of West Virginia.

Buffalo Elects Officers For Hadassah Group

(Special to the J.D.B.)
BUFFALO, N. Y., June 18.—Officers for the coming term were elected by the local chapter of Senior Hadassah at the final meeting of the season.

They include Mrs. Isador Setel, president; Mrs. Israel Efron, first vice president; Mr. Philip Sang, second vice president; Mrs. Alex Weiss, recording secretary; Mrs. David Goldstein, financial secretary; and Miss Nettie Morris, treasurer.

Egelman Elected

(Special to the J.D.B.)
BUFFALO, N. Y., June 18.—Uriah Z. Egelman, local Zionist worker, was elected chairman of the local branch of the League for Labor Palestine. Miss Rebecca H. Cohen was elected secretary. Isaac Hamlin, national secretary of the league, was guest speaker.

Syracuse Zionists Pick 6 Delegates to Parley

(Special to the J.D.B.)
SYRACUSE, N. Y., June 18.—The Syracuse district of the Zionist Organization of America closed its season's activity until fall with the election of six delegates, who will represent the local chapter at the thirty-seventh annual national convention of the organization in Atlantic City June 30.

The newly formed district, organized last year with Benjamin G. Rudolph as president and with a membership of 330, named the following six delegates: Rabbi Benjamin Friedman of Temple Society, New York; Dr. Aaron Burman, president of the Jewish National Fund Council, Benjamin G. Rudolph, T. Aaron Levy, Alexander H. Hirsch, Dr. Aaron D. Solomon. Alternates are Dr. Ephraim Goldman, Felix Jacobs, Henry Wilson, Leon Reider, Harold Greenstein and Ralph Shulman.

Levinat Is Presented With Medal by Lodge For 50 Years Service

(Special to the J.D.B.)
MONROE, Wis., June 18.—In commemoration of his fifty years of membership, Solomon Levinat, of Madison, former state treasurer, has been presented with a gold medal by Concordia lodge, No. 124, of the Odd Fellows of this city. Levinat joined the lodge in 1884.

Milwaukee Chooses Delegates for Parley

(Special to the J.D.B.)
MILWAUKEE, June 18.—Local delegates to the annual convention of the Poale Zion-Zairion Zion to be held in Chicago beginning June 27 have been selected.

Representing units of the Poale Zion, Pioneer Women for Palestine and allied organizations, they include Nathan Band, M. Weintraub, I. Tuchman, N. Gendelman, Peter Ottenstein, M. Melrood, Hayim Himmelfarb, Mae L. Horwitz and Fannie Chetok.

Rabbi Refutes Professor's Glorification of Hitler's Reich

BUFFALO, N. Y., June 18.—J. W. Richard Lindemann's statement published in the Buffalo Evening News that the people of Germany regard Hitler as their nation's savior and denying any Jewish atrocities in Germany was challenged by Rabbi Joseph L. Fink of Temple Beth Zion in a signed article printed in the same paper. Lindemann is an instructor of English at the University of Buffalo and has spent the last four summers touring Germany.

Rabbi Fink declared that "If the author were a paid writer of Herr Goebbels, the prophet of swastika culture and Nazi enlightenment of the German administration, his article could not have been more adroitly written to present the picture of a progressive government and conceal the oppression and cruelties instigated against a large proportion of its former citizens now proscribed by that government."

"There are no refugees from civilized countries," Rabbi Fink wrote. "The very presence of these thousands of refugees in Germany is proof enough of the tyranny, cruelty and terror that now stalk through the once beautiful land."

The Human Touch

By HARRY SALPETER

THE fat two-volume abridged (1) New Oxford dictionary, which was obtained by barter, the full procedure of which was described fully in last Sunday's Bulletin, has been installed in one of the most accessible bookshelves, displacing from five to six others, and, in other, transitory, works. It may possibly interest some of my readers to know that the first word looked up in this copy of the New Oxford was—linguist—labbie, a word I never knew existed, a word I have never before had occasion to use and shall never have occasion to use. Whenever I shall have the need to communicate the idea looked up in the word labbie, I shall use the smaller words in this copy of the New Oxford was—linguist—labbie, a word I never knew existed, a word I have never before had occasion to use and shall never have occasion to use.

Harry Salpeter

Another Jewish atrocity DER STURMER, edited by Julius Streicher, editor, exploiter of non-existent Jewish crimes, the man who recently attempted to whip Germany's post-war flagging hate of the Jew into refreshed frenzy by publishing the ritual murder libel, must be getting to the bottom of his anti-Semitic trunk. In the latest issue of Der Sturmer, under the heading, "The Jew in the East," we learn of the latest crime which world Jewry undoubtedly will have to expiate. And that is that Alexander Kats, pere and his, had Negro-Jewish blood in their veins, and that they were thus and so, if not much worse, and that they were plagiarists, tearing up the law of potatoes now, and that among the authors from whom they plagiarized were Goethe and Schiller.

But that is not all. Streicher is being entirely too kind. It forgot to launch the real charge against the Dumas boys. Their real offense is that they were—frenchmen. I think that Jews may take comfort in Der Sturmer's charge. I don't mean that Jews should be in a hurry to take away from the Crimean Tatars the title of Jew and the glory of fathering and mothering two of the most colorful figures in literary history. The Dumas belong to the Jew no less than Pushkin, who also had a touch of the tar-brush in his blood, belongs to the Russians. The touch of communism is that Der Sturmer must be washed up, or nearly so, on its anti-Semitic material.

It isn't difficult to imagine Herr Streicher tearing his hair, while his underling editor brought the proof sheets of the Dumas accusation, "Mein Gott!" yelled Streicher, "that's the worst we can say about the Juden!" He was celebrating the Jews in the next issue. It will be interesting to discover what men of letters, or science or art, Der Sturmer gives the Jews in its next issue.

Compensations of Drink A SOBER friend of mine who drinks anything stronger than broken glass took a wee drop too much the other day in the middle of the afternoon, and a hot afternoon at that, and had to be guided home. He was celebrating in anticipation of a wedding. When he reached home, about three, he stretched out and in no time was snoring. When he awoke the light was still in the sky, but he thought it was very odd that he should awake in the morning with his clothes on, he being too relaxed to think, he fell asleep again and awoke at six the following morning, refreshed, and persuaded that sweet can be the uses of liquor when it can give you a sixteen-hour sleep.

The other day I was asked whether I had attended such and such a wedding. No, I replied, I had not, and added that I didn't usually attend weddings and funerals and things like that, whereupon the party of the first part, to my amazement, doubled up in soundless, helpless laughter as if I had said something really funny. There's no being serious with some people.

The Chelmer Are In Again

THE pleasant recollection I still have of the Maurice Schwartz presentation of "The Wise Men of Chelm," which I saw early last season, clothes in specific local color this rather silly Solomonic story which I have just read in Jacob Richman's collection, "Laughs from Jewish Lore," to which one Max Levy called my attention recently. I quote:

"The Jewish Chelm was on the verge of a civil war. A public bath was in the course of construction. It was being built by Jews, for Jews, and with Jewish money. . . . The town was divided into two hostile camps; one demanded to have the floors made of smoothly planned boards so there would not be any splinters; the other maintained that a smooth floor would constitute a source of danger—it would be slippery and people might fall and be injured. 'The matter was brought before the rabbi. 'My decision is,' he said, 'that the boards should be planed flat.' But he continued the case, turning to the rough-board champions, 'in order to remove the danger that might ensue from rough boards, I shall direct the carpenters to lay the boards with the smooth sides downward.'"

Rich in Roubles

I MET a Japanese rich in roubles the other day. But despite his roubles he's as poor as a church mouse. He is a painter who has never been to Russia. But some of his pictures were sold here and one of them was sold for one thousand roubles, which would mean, if it were ever translated into American money, five hundred dollars. But that sum will never go through that process of translation. If friend Artists want his thousand roubles he'll have to come and get them, and when he's here, spend them all in the good old U.S.S.R.

Abuse of Boycott

To the Editor, Jewish Daily Bulletin: May I call attention to an abuse that has surreptitiously crept into the boycott movement against German-made goods? I feel that this injustice may give rise to serious repercussions.

There are a great number of German Gentiles, both in Germany and in the United States, who are completely opposed to the Nazi ideology. Nevertheless, many are being publicly insulted and discriminated against by unthinking people whose emotional reaction against the despicable Nazi persecutions exposes them to an indiscriminate loathing of anything German. The United States, in particular, has specific instances of young men and women who were discharged by their Jewish employers simply because of

CRITICAL MOMENTS

By GEORGE JOEL

Poe Horror Story At the Mayfair

The latest English film importation sent over by Clifton-Hurst is a macabre and thoroughly frightening production based on Edgar Allan Poe's "The Tell-Tale Heart." It may be seen at the Mayfair Theatre.

In presenting this tale of the homicidal maniac the English company have followed the sequence and spirit of Poe's rather faithfully. It was a difficult task but one which has been intelligently executed both in the pictorialization and acting. Norman Dridley who plays the very exciting role of a madman has given a performance, the excellency of which cannot be denied.

If you remember your Poe tale you will recall that "The Tell-Tale Heart" is a psychological story which traces a man's reaction to a brutal murder he has committed. Having buried the body under the floor of his room he feels secure until the doctor enters his mind that he can hear the heart beats of his victim—unpleasantly the poundings of this dead heart re-echo in his brain until unable to contain his emotions, he screams out a confession.

Nothing could be easier than to over-play a theme of this sort, but the English company under the direction of Desmond Hurst, has their racial origin; this, despite their repudiations of the Hitler dogmas. I know personally of an instance in which a patient of mine was ordered out of a retail store with the epithet "dirty Nazi" because she was heard to speak in the German language to her small son.

Our abhorrence of German terrorism abroad should not lead us to an unwarranted persecution of blameless Germans. The tag "Nazi" applied indiscriminately to anything German is fraught with danger and may eventually alienate a group of people who have no sympathy with the Nazi movement; they may turn to anti-Semitism as a retaliating measure.

Don't you think it is important to emphasize the distinction between just German and German-Nazi?

been able to control the situations and keep them within the bounds of plausibility. The other members of the cast, and especially John Kelt, the kindly old man whose days are numbered, are likewise excellent.

How American audiences brought up the sugar will take to this experiment in psychological realism is hard to guess but this is a picture far above the usual run of cinema entertainment.

Huge Musical Film Now in Preparation

What is threatened to be "the most lavish musical play ever screened" has been announced by Metro for fall production. It will be called "Tipotes" and is said to be based on an original story by Vicki Baum. The story will deal with the times when the German Imperial Ballet was in its prime. Oscar Hammerstein will write the libretto and screen story.

Rugby Picture For Sport Lovers

Rugby, English counterpart of American football will be the subject of a film which will soon be released. Said by the film company to be the world's oldest sport a picture has been planned which will trace its development from 500 B.C. to the present time. Pete Smith, sport's authority, will be the narrator. Rugby may well be an old sport but lacrosse, a form of basketball and polo can be traced to a much earlier date.

The Bulletin's Day Book

Talk of the exploited and the oppressed of the earth, the writer discovered the other day at the annual conference of the Jewish Ministers Cantors' Association that among the greatest sufferers from and victims of this economic system are the Hasidim. And as one listened to the eloquent plea on the cantorate's behalf, made by Louis J. Gribetz, their counsel, one felt that this ancient profession, trade, or "industry," as the speaker put it, should have marched in the ranks of the downtrodden on May Day last.

Among the things that the cantors' public demands of him are pleasing appearance, artistic delivery, fine dress and too many others for enumeration here. That's what Mr. Gribetz said and his audience enthusiastically stuck alone will be carried out is another story.

Not were the assembled cantors backward about taking drastic measures to remedy their economic plight, which was vividly described by many who took the floor that day. The unfair practices of a number of synagogues and others who deal with the Hasidim were brought out.

Consequently there was surprising unanimity on the numerous resolutions brought forth from the floor and designed to introduce a New Deal into their ranks. The set of resolutions as a whole bears a resemblance to the one adopted by the American Cantorate. Just how soon or how faithfully its provisions will be carried out will be carried out is another story.

But there is a glimmer of hope, for their resolutions are to be administered through the Hasidim, and the whole matter is largely the question of how powerful they make their association.

That, in turn, depends on how strong solidarity and collective spirit will be evinced by members of this semi-artistic calling, who in the past, like many other artists and professionals, showed unbecomingly signs of rugged individualism.

However, the 350 or so of those present indicated by their conduct that they learned their lesson from the economic depression and gave every evidence of having realized that there is a strong identity of interest and that in union there is power, which they need to effect their aims.

Shirley Temple, latest of the child movie stars, is not a stranger to the stage. Both of her parents were vaudeville actors.

Hollywood is expected to produce a writer who has made his way in the world of letters. It has however been responsible for causing many famous literary men to give up the art of writing novels.

The hilarious story of an unassuming girl who married the right man and became a social success is old.

Roosevelt, Johnson and NRA Receive Brith Sholom Tribute

(Special to the J.D.B.)
ATLANTIC CITY, June 18.—The work of President Franklin D. Roosevelt and General Hugh S. Johnson in administering the NRA, received a tribute today from the Independent Order of Edith Sholom, one of the largest Jewish fraternal organizations, meeting at its twenty-ninth annual convention here.

A number of resolutions were passed, including one calling for continued support of the boycott against Nazi-manufactured goods "so long as Hitler remains in power."

Cooperation with the American Jewish Congress was pledged, and the work of the Jewish National Fund in the upbuilding of the Jewish National Homeland was praised.

Praise Hebrew University
The Hebrew University in Palestine was described as "the highest cultural achievement of the Jewish people." The delegates commended the national organization to establish a number of fellowships in the Hebrew University "whereby young scientists of prominence may be enabled to continue their pioneering and research." Other fellowships will be established for exiled German Jewish professors.

Subordinate lodges will be urged to make communications to raise funds for the establishment of these fellowships in their own names.

Continued active support and cooperation was promised the Zionist Organization of America in its work of rebuilding Palestine.

A resolution was adopted soundings a scathing attack on the Nazi repressive measures against the Jews in Germany.

"By continuing its oppressive policies of discrimination and cruel persecution against our Jewish brethren, liberals, Catholics and other minorities, it has forfeited its status in the family of civilized nations trading with each other in amity and friendship."

Nazi Means War
"It is employing the advantages of its foreign trade to bolster up a machinery of war and bigoted propaganda which threatens to undermine the status of Jewry outside of Germany and to deliver a deadly blow to the principles of democracy in which the Government of the United States rests."

"Therefore we solemnly reaffirm our adherence to the boycott of all goods, articles and services made in Nazi Germany and its colonies and shipping under the Nazi control. We call upon all constituent lodges to select a member in opposition to anti-Nazi activities, work with vigilance committees for strict enforcement."

The NRA resolution pointed out that the National Jewish Congress "under the inspiring guidance of President Roosevelt, and the able administration of General Johnson, is the only Jewish body in the conquest of the depression."

"Since Brith Sholom has for one of its principal purposes patriotic devotion to the advancement and glory of the United States, we endorse the principles and purposes of the National Recovery Act."

Jew Will Resign
In Hospital Strike

The 'Patriots' Supports Strike
The local French Initiative reported that the Federation Labor Party (F.L.P.) French Canadian organizations were ready to support the striking internes, which also have the sympathy of the French Canadian lawyers, pharmacists and notaries.

More physicians declined to join the strike when patients actually refused to receive treatment from the Jewish doctors.

The Montreal Gazette, on the other hand, condemns the young physicians as deserters, and says that their dismissal was eminently justified, declaring "the situation occurred to satisfy an unworthy prejudice." The English dailies here uphold this view, and "that the situation calls for resolute action of all hospitals concerned, which should, the newspapers recommend, dismiss all anti-Semitic internes."

Praises Dismissal Of Anti-Jewish Internes
Commendation of the dismissal of anti-Semitic internes at the Notre Dame Hospital in Montreal, where they went on strike because a Jewish physician was added to the staff, was expressed in a telegram sent yesterday to the president of the hospital by Dr. Benjamin Jablons, chairman of the physicians' division, American Jewish Congress here.

"Greatly admire your stand and appreciate your attitude," the telegram stated. "If we can be of any help, please communicate with me."

Dr. Jablons' action was the result of the publication in the Jewish Daily Bulletin of a dispatch from Montreal, which told of the internets' walkout when Dr. Sam Rabinovitch was engaged by the hospital. Internes at another French Canadian hospital also struck out of sympathy, and there is a threat that other institutions will come involved.

300 Persons at Rally
For United Drive Fund

Three hundred persons yesterday attended a rally conducted by the women's division of the Washington Heights group, United Jewish Appeal, at Paramount Theatre.

The life of the anti-Hanfstaengl broadsheets, however, was short. Shortly after their discovery an emergency call for men was put in by Major Charles R. Aften, superintendent of the Harvard Yard, and they were torn down in the hope that "Hanfy" or "Putzy" as he is being greeted by the more intimate of his classmates, would not leave a trace.

Threaten Harvard Boycott
While these posters were giving debate Cambridge something to think about, a slashing attack against the stranger within John Harvard's gates came from another source. This took the form of a lengthy telegram to President James B. Conant, and the Board of Overseers of Harvard, bitterly protesting the reception to Hanfstaengl and intimating that Harvard's "accidental" loss of "blood-money" to establish a scholarship will place the university definitely on the blacklist of the international boycott movement, and that it will cost her "innumerable incomes from trust funds, bequests from wills and future endowments."

Goldenson Heads Rabbis' Group

ports closed at the opening of the final day's session and adopted by the conference hailed evidence of increasing unity in Jewish life as symbolized by the activities of the United Jewish Appeal.

The conference reaffirmed approval of the Joint Consultative Council to protect the rights of their brethren now persecuted by the Nazis in Germany and other lands of oppression. Support was pledged the United Jewish Appeal's "United Jewish Appeal" engaged in the upbuilding of Palestine as a national Jewish homeland.

The conference, in another resolution, expressed its "profound joy" at the economic, cultural and social progress in Palestine. The resolution "replied to note that Palestine was proved to be a haven for many Jews, and urged the Mandatory power in these days of stress and crisis for Israel, to facilitate every possible means of settlement of an increasing number of Jews in Palestine in accordance with the program of the Jewish Agency."

Jews Singled Out
Another resolution adopted by the rabbis declared that the Jews have shared with every other group the brunt of the fanatical assault upon individuals, group cultures and opinions. Anti-Semitism has been intensified.

"The Bible and the Jewish people have been singled out for especially bitter attacks," the conference noted, "and the manner in which non-Jewish leaders have public opinion the world over, especially in the religious field, have cooperated in meeting these attacks is praiseworthy."

"The present assault on civilization, if combated with vigor and statesmanship will, with God's help, be overcome."

of a semi-terrorist organization as alleged by the prosecution and declared the defendants were believers in a maximalist Zionist program within the Jewish community and organization. He denied they constituted a separate body and likewise denied that they propagated terror.

Dr. Vladimir Rabinovitch-Kopp, founder and leader of the Revisionist movement, also testified today. He declared he had been an auditor of the speech of Aba Achmeier, one of the defendants, delivered at Haifa to a group of university students, and did not find it inciting or inflammatory. The speech had been described by the prosecution as an exhortation to violence.

Belah Kohut, called for cooperation. Other speakers included Magistrate Benjamin Greenspan, Rabbi J. L. Hahn, president of the American Jewish Congress, and S. J. Rosenberg, Mrs. Miriam Fatt presided.

against the stranger within John Harvard's gates came from another source. This took the form of a lengthy telegram to President James B. Conant, and the Board of Overseers of Harvard, bitterly protesting the reception to Hanfstaengl and intimating that Harvard's "accidental" loss of "blood-money" to establish a scholarship will place the university definitely on the blacklist of the international boycott movement, and that it will cost her "innumerable incomes from trust funds, bequests from wills and future endowments."

The telegram was sent from the New York office of Coudert Brothers, attorneys, and was signed by Major Frank Pease (U. S. A.) and his wife, the former Isabelle Foster Abbott, a 1909 graduate of Radcliffe. Mrs. Pease recently charged that Hanfstaengl, while in the United States, had committed indignities and injuries she received at the hands of Nazis in Germany, exhibited callous indifference and even gave the former Hanfstaengl "Putzy" in "Big Five."

The message, which describes Hanfstaengl as "the Nazi cutthroat," declared: "that the Hitler cult cannot be separated from the murderous Nazi party he has helped to create and of which he is now one of the Big Five."

"If Hanfstaengl continues," "you cannot accept what he represents. If you honor Hanfstaengl, you endorse what he officially represents. He is a Nazi in thirty pieces, his blood-money for crucifixion of the humanities, you are betraying the freedom for which America and Harvard were established."

On Propaganda Mission
The message further charges that Hanfstaengl is in this country "to establish a propaganda mission among American colleges and to give prestige to his murderous cult of Germanic tyrannies throughout America." He accuses Hanfstaengl's endorsement of "his first step" and charges the Nazi propagandist is here "to convey Hitler's orders to 'The Friends of New Germany' and to 'The Friends of the Jewish People' and to convey personally secret commands to the Nazi party's chief commander in America, H. Kopp, in the New York City German Consulate."

"Once Hanfstaengl is received and honored by Harvard," the telegram continues, "America will know that Harvard's leader leads no longer."

Stavsky Appeal Held to July

either Stavsky or Rosenblatt except as far as Stavsky's figure is concerned.

Fourthly, Mrs. Arlosoroff is mistaken, though in good faith, in her evidence of identification of the accused.

Fifthly, the alibi of the accused is sufficiently established.

Sixthly, the prosecution failed to prove any relevant connection between Stavsky and Rosenblatt.

Seventhly, the motive suggested by the prosecution is not proved.

Under these circumstances, looking at the case broadly, I arrived at the following conclusions:

Firstly, the crime was not political but most probably a banal attack for sexual purposes.

Secondly, none of the accused had any connection with the murder.

Socialists Determined Stavsky Must Not Hang

Expressing complete faith in the legality and impartiality of the Stavsky verdict, the United Jewish Socialist Party, Polish-American Zion, in a statement declared that Stavsky must not be considered guilty until all legal recourse is exhausted and that, in any event, the death sentence must not be executed. Charges that the Revisionists are engaged in harmful propaganda were also contained in the statement.

Saying that only the haked truth can clear the air in the Palestine political life, the statement says that the verdict came as a shock but that the question of justice must not be condemned as a result nor must the verdict of guilty should it be upheld, be considered a blot on the national honor of the Jewish nation.

"As long as the defense has not yet exhausted every legal recourse under the law, the national statement reads, and as long as there is even the faintest ray of tives of Jewish communal institutions, particularly the Chassidic honorific, "Piaclak, whose boot," dressed in the uniform of a general, the rank to which he was posthumously promoted, lay in state in the cathedral here.

The rabbinite ordered Jewish shops to close during the funeral. The presidents and vice-presidents of all the largest Jewish communities in Poland met in Warsaw to honor the slain statesman and decided to march in the funeral procession.

Community leaders also paid tribute to the memory of Jechesiel Delman, who died as a result of wounds inflicted when a gang of Nazis attacked him in the Prowozki district of Warsaw.

Cardinal Kakowski, Archbishop of Warsaw, who rebuffed a delegation of rabbis who urged him to use his influence to prevent anti-Jewish excesses, yesterday preached in the Prowozki church and exhorted the Poles to live in peaceful cooperation with their Jewish neighbors.

The whole Jewish community cannot, be held responsible for those Jews who defected to this religion, he declared. Prowozki was the center of excesses which reached a pogrom state in the last ten days.

of his ways and that he is to abandon his anti-Jewish policy before long. Hitlerism is synonymous with anti-Semitism. Hanfstaengl's mission may also be construed as meaning that anti-Semitism in Germany will end before long with the collapse of Hitlerism.

The Hitlerite propagandist was right when he said that Americans can't be fooled all the time. They can't be fooled by Nazi propaganda, but they can be fooled by American vast will have been worth while.

But Hanfstaengl should also realize that the American people are not fools. They will not be fooled by the anti-Semitic propaganda of the Hitlerite in this country.
