Independence Day

AMERICA is celebrating her national birthday. The greatest democracy in the world, notwithstanding its shortcomings and some of its backslidings from the original ideals and principles of the far-sighted founders of the United States of America, is a fortress of moral strength and an example of what a free people under a democracy can attain.

The economic distress through which this country, together with the rest of the world, has been passing, is the heritage of the blunders and the errors that were committed during the World War and its aftermath.

The European intrigues and age-old hatreds which culminated in the World War in history have become intensified now. In Germany insanity, gangsterism and race hatred reign supreme just now. Fear and greed and vengeance and war—madness, as expressed through a feverish armament race, are preparing the ground for a new and more terrible catastrophe.

This country is suffering chiefly as a result of the chaotic conditions abroad. To regain its material and moral strength, and to make greater progress as the world's foremost democracy, this country needs more, not less democracy, more social justice, more of the vision and the ideals and the freedom from prejudice, which characterized the builders of this nation.

The spirit of America should tower as a challenge to dictatorships conceived in crime, born in madness and living by the sword.

The Wooden German

In 1915 I saw the German people idolizing their war hero, General von Hindenburg. They erected a huge wooden figure of Hindenburg in Berlin and paid their tribute to their national hero by driving nails into the wooden image. Hindenburg was worshipped by the German masses to such an extent that the Lord Kaiser Wilhelm was overshadowed. The Kaiser frequently had himself photographed with Hindenburg, and had these photographs broadcast throughout Germany in order to profit by the glory of his most popular General.

Now President Hindenburg has grown old and decrepit. He has become a pathetic puppet in the hands of the charlatan

Revisionists' Policy Flayed In Measure

Lipsky Attack Bitter; Shubow Protest Brings Acrid Debate

(Jewish Telegraphic Agency)
ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., July 3.—A resolution offered by Carl Sherman, chairman of the resolutions committee, condemning any party or group within the World Zionist Organization which takes action threatening to undermine the World Zionist Executive, precipitated this afternoon the first full-dress debate at the thirty-seventh annual convention of the Zionist Organization of America.

In the bitter, if one-sided fight, which developed on this resolution, Louis Lipsky condemned the Revisionists in harsh terms for their "deliberate, concerted attack on the World Executive."

The resolution was adopted unanimously after all opposition to it, which had been half-hearted at best, had faded out.

The presentation and debate on the resolution followed a stormy session of the convention at which Louis Lipsky condemned the Revisionists in harsh terms for their "deliberate, concerted attack on the World Executive."

The resolution was adopted unanimously after all opposition to it, which had been half-hearted at best, had faded out.

Object to Speeches

The meeting voted objection to the speeches as presenting partisan points of view. Rabbi Shubow was unable to present the declaration to the convention until after debate and a vote on which the

Seven-Year Old Child Relates Tale of Nazi Brutality to Parents

A German-Jewish child of seven years delivered the most impressive anti-Nazi indictment of the eight witnesses who testified at yesterday's two sessions of the American Inquiry Commission probe into conditions in Nazi Germany.

Sitting composedly on the witness stand with his hands folded across his breast, the little child, whose name was given as Franz, testified to a session of the commission, answered in German questions put to him by Arthur Garfield Hays with a sincerity that several times drew the applause of an audience of 250.

Franz told how Jewish children in Germany were humiliated by having swastikas painted on their hands and pasted on their backs. Gentile school-children told the Jewish children, he said, that "Jews must perish."

"There were three Jewish children in my class," he told the Commission, "and the other forty-seven often beat us in the streets and did other things to them that I can't remember."

Hays questioned the boy: "Why didn't they hurt you in the street?"

"Because I walked with my father."

"Hilfer 'Sehr Stark' Q. 'Are you afraid of Hitler?' A. 'Hilfer himself.'" Franz's eyes opened wide, "Sehr stark!"

Flies To Sound Out Hindenburg; Anti-Semite Outbreaks Renewed

American Jew Assaulted by Nazis in Raid Storm Troops Break Into Jewish Cafe, Smash Furniture

(Jewish Telegraphic Agency)
BERLIN, July 3.—An American Jew visiting in Berlin was slightly injured last night when a group of storm troopers attacked the Trianon, popular Jewish cafe in the Bayerischer Platz here in the first anti-Jewish disorder reported among the developments which began Saturday with Chancellor Hitler's "housecleaning" of the opposition to his rule.

A special correspondent of the Jewish Telegraphic Agency was notified by a high-ranking Nazi last night by telephone that a group of storm troopers were planning a raid on the Jewish cafe at 11:30 P. M. The correspondent immediately proceeded there to sound a warning, arriving at 11:25 P. M., only to find the raid already in progress.

Sixteen S. A. men had arrived and while part of their number covered the guests and employees of the cafe, the remainder set about smashing furniture and dishes. The two American present were A. G. Duker and Michael Shapiro.

Police were called immediately but arrived only after twenty minutes. They asked the S. A. men to accompany them and the raiders left with the police. They returned, however, fifteen minutes later, when the place had been closed.

Survey Reveals No Change for German Jewry

J. T. A. Finds No Sign of Improvement as Result of Revolt

(Jewish Telegraphic Agency)
BERLIN, July 3.—There has been no change for the better thus far in the treatment of "non-Aryans"—Jews and non-Jews—in Germany as a result of the dramatic realignment of forces in the Reich during the past week, a survey by Jewish Telegraphy Agency correspondents revealed today.

Exhaustive inquiries in Jewish and non-Jewish quarters, including non-Jewish "non-Aryans," showed that there had been no improvement, the same persons responsible for the treatment of these classes still remaining in control. Dr. Paul Joseph Goebbels, Minister of Public Enlightenment and Propaganda, particularly, remains his important position from which most of the attacks on "non-Aryans" have been directed.

Assertions of the Polish newspaper Kurjer Codzienny, that Goebbels would be named envoy to Poland with the rank of ambassador were ridiculed here today.

As a result of the development, it was felt today that the Hitler government now exists legally independently of the storm troopers whose leader no longer is an official member of the Reich cabinet.

However, some relief was seen in the passage of a law against "legal blackmail"—meaning the practice of Nazis entering shops and homes with collection boxes for Nazi funds, a practice from

BULLETIN

(Jewish Telegraphic Agency)

BERLIN, July 3.—Adolf Hitler returned from Neudeck shortly before midnight after a conference with von Hindenburg. No statement was forthcoming tonight as to what decision had been reached, but it was believed that von Hindenburg had sanctioned von Papen's withdrawal from the cabinet. Von Papen's resignation was said to have been put into Hitler's hands this afternoon.

BERLIN, July 3.—The political fate of Vice Chancellor Franz von Papen hung in the balance this evening as Chancellor Hitler, after a day of conferences with members of his cabinet and an interview with von Papen, left Berlin by airplane to confer with President Paul von Hindenburg at his Neudeck estate.

Von Papen's dismissal or resignation from the vice chancellery, which had been confidently expected to become a matter of record today, with Prussian Premier Hermann Goerring as his successor, did not take place and semi-official sources, which yes-

Polish Police Destroy Anti-Semitic Press

(Jewish Telegraphic Agency)

WARSA, July 3.—A huge illegal mill for printing and distributing the government-banned Statfeta, organ of Nara hoodlums suppressed for incitement to atrocities against the Jews, was discovered and destroyed by police today on the business premises of one Lenzysky, tradesman and active Nara agitator, who was arrested.

Towering stacks of freshly-printed issues of the Statfeta and other anti-Semitic circulars and leaflets were found lining the walls and were burned. Some of them voiced threats of attacks against non-Jews who employed Jewish laborers.

Rabbis Sponsor Social Justice Seminar Here

Pick This City Because It Affords a 'Vast Laboratory'

The Seminar on Social Justice will be conducted in New York from July 9 to 20 under the joint auspices of the social service committees representing the orthodox, conservative and reform rabbis. It will deal primarily with the relationship of religion, the synagogue and the rabbi to the dominant social questions of the day.

Field work, consisting of visits to social agencies and institutions, will be done under supervision and guidance. A series of conferences will be held with the heads of religion and the social field. It has been announced that New York is the place for the seminar because it "constitutes a vast social laboratory with unequalled clinical material and the most modern methods of study and experimentation. In New York also is found the largest Jewish community in the world as well as the principal national and international social agencies of the Jewish people."

Course by Prof. Cronbach
A course on "Social Attitudes in Jewish Tradition" will be given by Professor Abraham Cronbach, department of social studies, Hebrew Union College, Cincinnati. It will be a background course discussing the development of Jewish thought concerning problems of charity, labor, rights of property, authority of government, and war and peace.

In the course on "Problems of Marriage and the Family," Leo Jung will discuss "The Traditional Jewish Family"; Louis M. Epstein, "Parental Control and the Jewish Family"; and Professor of Social Service Sidney E. Goldstein, of the Jewish Institute of Religion, "Parental Control and the Jewish Family." The seminar will also feature a symposium on birth control which will include Leo Jung, Robert Gordis and Sidney E. Goldstein.

Various phases of "Judaism and Current Social Philosophies" will be treated by David de Sola Pool, professor of "Judaism and Social Science"; Eugene Kohn, on "Judaism and Socialism"; Ben Zion Bokor, on "Judaism and Communism"; and Edward Israel, on the "Synagogue and Social Action." This course will consider the procedure of the rabbi and the congregation with regard to social issues that challenge the synagogue and religion. It will be based on case work studies.

To Study Aid Insurance
Another course, "Social Insurance and Social Justice," will be offered by Abraham Epstein, executive secretary of the American Association for Social Security. It will deal with the insecurity of old age, unemployment and different groups and the forms of social insurance, including Social Security.

old sister come here to answer questions today, Franz?"

A. "Because she's afraid of Hitler."

While the inquiry was going on, "Kid" Alphonse G. Koelbe, attorney for the Friends of New Germany, stood in the lobby distributing a mimeographed statement to reporters in which he branded the Commission as Jewish and communist.

In the statement he attacked all the witnesses of the previous day, particularly Dr. Kurt Rosenfeld, whom he termed a "German Jew" who is a striking example of the origin and depth of the feeling of the Germans against the Jews."

Koelbe expressed his own augur opinion "that such boards tend to increase the tension between the Jews in this country and the German-Americans who have suffered from the allegations against Germany."

An anonymous business man who returned from Germany two weeks ago testified that people looking like Jews are beaten up in Berlin streets, and that gates of many German towns bear signs reading: "Jews not permitted here."

Dr. Kurt Hymann, exiled German-Jewish journalist, related accounts of women being forced to parade in the streets, carrying humiliating signs.

Walker Orloff, American Jewish medical student, recounted how he had been imprisoned and beaten up while in Germany, and was only released through the intervention of the American consulate.

Dr. Franz Hoellering, exiled newspaper editor, declared that "there are no newspapers in Germany. What goes under the names of newspapers are sheets which carry only what Goebbels deems German People's Court."

"Even Hitler's speeches are censored for the press by Goebbels," Hoellering said, "because Hitler sometimes says things that Goebbels does not want printed."

The hearings closed yesterday without hearing all the witnesses, but have aroused the public who will be resumed in the near future.

A preliminary report was issued which scored the newly promulgated German People's Court as a travesty on justice. Little hope was expressed for Ernst Thaelmann, Communist leader, scheduled to be tried before the court.

"We are constrained to conclude from the documentary and personal testimony of authoritative sources," the report stated, "that the forthcoming political trials are wholly without force of law and may be fairly condemned in advance as a travesty of justice with a demand for the freeing of Thaelmann."

Inquiry Commission yesterday was Martin Pielti, German labor leader, who has been here some months lecturing on conditions under the Nazi regime.

Pielti, exile from his homeland and one of the few to escape from concentration camp, told of the horrors of Hitler's political prisons. These escapements, he said, are particularly bad for Jews.

"One of my colleagues in concentration camp," said Pielti, "was beaten by a twenty-year-old storm trooper."

"I remember one occasion when the storm trooper shook his fist under the Jew's nose and declared, 'You're lucky that Hitler, rather than Goebbels and Goering, is in power.'"

Others who testified yesterday included Walter Orloff, former American Jewish student in a German mad school, who had been arrested by Nazis; Aneurin Bevan, labor member of the British Parliament; Kurt Rosenfeld, former Prussian Minister of Justice; Emil Lengyel, a Jewish journalist, and Paul Gohert, who escaped from a concentration camp.

Bevan declared: "Workmen are all against the Hitler regime."

Lengyel said that Emil Ludwig and Elizabeth Bergner had been expelled from Germany because of their race rather than politics. He declared that sixty-five per cent of the exiles from Germany are Jews.

Nehov Kosher Case Adjoined to Aug. 15

Adjournment to August 15 was agreed to by contending parties when the case of the Nehov Kosher Provision Company and its president, Abraham Kaufman, was called in Special Sessions Court, in Brooklyn yesterday.

The defendants are charged with offering for sale four barrels of non-kosher tongues and four barrels of brisquets. Mrs. Christine Kafesaur appeared as counsel for the Department of Health, whose inspectors made the discovery of the non-kosher goods.

Adjusting Our Lives

By DR. HERMAN FRANK

The Jew in America seems to have an unwritten Children's Charter of his own, the preamble of which asserts the inalienable right of his sons and daughters to rise over the father's station.

Wherever free municipal colleges do not exist, great sacrifices are incurred by the parents in order that their children the highest educational advantages available. If already one out of every twelve youths in the country receives a college education, for the Jew the percentage is at least twice as great—one out of every six.

Tendencies Toward Group
Now, the Jew's intellectual curiosity is a rather odd phenomenon, while his leaning toward a professional career is proverbial. A deplorable fact is, however, the attitude of the majority group toward the preferences and predispositions of the Jewish minority.

In the natural tendency toward an occupational distribution according to capacity, interest, and opportunity, specific racial difficulties have appeared. In free professions, such as medicine and nursing, difficulties confront the Jew even before he has entered the career, for he is less and less welcome in the professional schools.

As his training is completed, he faces new and greater handicaps. Advertisements of employment offered to "Christians only" are found in many of our best professional journals, some of them published by organized professional groups themselves. As is well known, there is a growing discrimination against Jews as clerical workers.

Industrial work, too, is not entirely free from the virus of discrimination. Still more ominous is the fact that there is a general decrease in the industrial army through technological improvements. On the other hand, the white collar occupations of control, engineering, accounting, and professional research continue to grow. And just in these fields it is that the Jew finds the heaviest encumbrances.

Several Jewish sociologists look, therefore, upon agriculture as a possible outlet for the trained energies of the young Jew. In advanced agriculture, they claim, there are opportunities for people who have brains, energy, talent, and tact.

Problem of Intellectual Proletariat
In these circumstances American Jewry is likely to develop a growing class of intellectual proletarians. They may drift unhappily from one temporary occupation to another, most of them maladjusted and prone to direct their unused mental abilities to bitter criticism of society at large.

Already students and graduates, and not only college graduates, are "highly conscious" of their intellectual entanglements and economic values," as a college writer has put it. He pictures the gloomy occupational outlook and finds the last valid hope in a complete social change.

Now, of late the educated non-Jewish groups also tend to form a sort of intellectual proletariat. Common problems, in the teeth of the menacing unemployment upon graduation, bind them to the laboring classes.

Who knows? The adversity, the quality of jobs, the plight of the high school and college graduate, Jew or non-Jew, may ultimately create a tie of solidarity and mutual understanding between the two groups!

Opportunities in a Machine Age
Even before the prolonged economic depression, Jewish boys and girls were occasionally thrown out of employment by corporations, particularly if their policy was to give jobs to Jews in times of great distress only. In the competitive struggle for jobs in a time of chronic unemployment, as in our day, the Jew surely will be, now and then, discriminated against as the struggle grows keener.

Thus the Jew is threatened by the scourge of unemployment on a double score: as a citizen of the greater industrial society and as

Polish Zionists Protest Jew's Employment of Arab Labor in Palestine

(Jewish Telegraphic Agency)
WARSAW, July 3.—What Zionist workers regarded as a wealthy Warsaw Jew's treason against his own race in far-off Palestine brought forth demonstrations of protest today.

The Zionists charge that Moishe Borowski, a fur merchant who owns a house and villa in Polish towns, is employing Arab labor in Haifa, where he is building a home.

In expression of disapproval of his failure to hire Jews, the protesting group assembled outside Borowski's fur warehouse in Diaga street here and raised a hostile outcry.

Young Judaea Parley Weighs Youth Problem

Program for Cincinnati Convention Friday Announced

(Special to the J.D.B.)
CINCINNATI, July 3.—Jewish youth problems will occupy the limelight at the national convention of Young Judaea, opening here Friday. The program has just been made public by Rabbi David Polish, a national vice-president and general chairman of the local convention committee.

The convention will open with a tour of Cincinnati's points of interest. Friday night the Young Judaea will hear Mayor Russell Wilson deliver an address of welcome. Rabbi Samuel David Polish, M. Wise temple, will be principal speaker.

On Saturday morning there will be a special convention religious service in the chapel of the Hotel Netherland Plaza. Mordecai Brill, of Indianapolis, will conduct the services, and Paul Brownstein, of Cincinnati, will officiate as cantor. The Saturday afternoon program consists of a series of cultural meetings. Dr. Jacob S. Golub, director of the Bureau of Jewish Education, Cincinnati, and Dr. Emanuel Gamoran, director of the Department of Synagogue and School Extension of the Union of American Hebrew Congregations will participate.

Business Scheduled
A convention dance for the delegates, visitors and local participants is scheduled for Saturday night.

Business sessions are scheduled for Sunday. Special sessions will be devoted to Palestine and the Palestine youth movement. The annual election of officers will be held in the afternoon.

In the evening the visitors and local committee will assemble for the convention banquet during which the newly-elected officers will be installed. I. A. Abrahams, of Cincinnati, will be the toastmaster, and Rabbi Samuel Blumenfeld, of Chicago, will be the principal speaker.

Business sessions will be resumed Monday. The convention will be brought to a close with an Ohio River boat ride to Cincinnati's Coney Island.

Sunday Closing Enforced
(J.T.A. Special Correspondent)
RIGA, June 25.—Compulsory Sunday closing has been enforced in a number of towns, including Dvinsk, Krasnaya and Glumanka. Jews who observe the Sabbath are thus compelled in these towns to keep closed for two days in the week.

who seized the reins of government in Germany by fanning the flames of race hatred and by making false promises. Within the past ten days President Hindenburg congratulated his "dear comrade," von Papen, the Vice Chancellor, on his Marburg speech criticizing the Hitler regime. Von Papen's speech and President Hindenburg's telegram were suppressed by order of Goebbels, Hitler's Minister of Propaganda and Enlightenment. And now that Hitler has ordered the shooting of Hindenburg's comrade, General von Schleicher, a former Chancellor, and many of the comrades of Hitler who had helped Hitler to power by resorting to the most heinous crimes, the aged von Hindenburg has telegraphed to Hitler and to Goering that by crushing "traitorous machinations" they "rescued the German people from a great danger" and he thanked them for their "energetic and successful action in suppressing the attempt at high treason."

These telegrams were published conspicuously in every German newspaper.

Has President Hindenburg actually sent those telegrams? Or has Hitler dictated these telegrams to be signed by the aged President? How can the Hindenburg telegrams to von Papen and to Hitler be explained?

The wooden image of Hindenburg, once the idol of the German people, has had a few long nails driven into it by Adolf Hitler, the dictator who, by fire and sword, is devastating Germany while rapidly digging his own grave.

Comes Above Repeal Measures; Rothenberg Reelect ZOA Head

Locker Sees Danger to Freedom in Zion in Revisionist Policy

dissenting Zionists had been beaten.

The centrist group had been deeply aroused by the two attacks on the Revisionists, feeling that the discussion was harmful to the cause of peace within Zionist ranks, much sentiment favorable to the point of view expressed by Fishman was evident in the lobby discussion and later, in the convention proper.

With this resolution, the crucial and most stirring moments of the convention were reached. The general discussion was limited by Lipky and others who identified the Revisionists by name as the group against which the resolution was directed. While a number of delegates present were of the opinion that the Z.O.A. should stand aside from both extremes within the Zionist movement, according to given situations, and not endorsing any specific group, the administration seemed to have adopted the Revisionist view on the basis of Revisionist opposition to the world executive and creaches of disunion among the groups. Every administration leader and Locker stressed.

The administration leaders decried the resolution as they were not taking sides with the Revisionists but were opposed to the Revisionists who, Lipky charged, were trying to wipe out the work of thirty years in the name of the World Zionist Movement.

The session was the liveliest of the convention.

Among the resolutions adopted this afternoon was one expressing approval of acts of the World Zionist Executive; approving unanimously the boycott of Nazi Germany until persecution of the Jews is ended; emphasizing the priority of Palestine over temporary relief measures; and asking the opening of Transjordan for Jewish settlement.

A surprise resolution was introduced, asking the incoming Z.O.A. administration to initiate steps leading to granting Russian Jewry the right to carry on Zionist work.

Another resolution was introduced, revealing that Rothenberg had been carrying on unofficial conversations with Soviet representatives here and was encouraging the States Ambassador Bullitt, envoy to the Soviet, was present at the conversations and promised an investigation into the Russian-Jew situation.

The resolution was adopted unanimously.

The organization committee proposed a series of resolutions implementing Rothenberg's report of Zionist activities by enabling the enrollment of Zionist endorses from the floor by delegates holding a different opinion. After a prolonged debate, the resolution was

Violent Elements Must Be Eliminated, World Executive Holds

ity with the neutrality that impartially examines both sides of the question and makes its decisions on the basis of its findings.

"An element of violence and double dealing has been introduced in Revisionist tactics that seeks to undermine the progress of the rebuilding of Palestine. There is no leading man in Zionism, whether it be Dr. Weizmann or Sokolow or Ussishkin, that has not been subjected to attacks of a vicious and scurrilous nature.

Previent Labor Disorder

"It is untrue that the Histadruth does not permit non-members of its organization to obtain employment. Our struggle has been solely that of preventing disorder in labor. The Histadruth has always cooperated with other groups and has always maintained a sincere willingness to work in harmony with them.

Many Americans who understand the recognition of labor for America do not understand it for Palestine. It is not because of our Jews cooperated with other groups that we do not follow the Revisionist policy which they seek to destroy the Histadruth organization.

Robert Rothenberg received a warm ovation.

Morris Margulies was reelected secretary; Harry P. Pierst, treasurer; Louis Locker, chairman of the finance committee. Vice-presidents elected were Judge William Lewis, Philadelphia; Nathan Straus Jr.; Elihu D. Stone, of Boston; Robert Solod and Harry Friedberg.

A governing council composed of Louis Lipky, Abraham Goldberg, Carl Sherman, B. G. Richards, Jacob de Haas, Stephen S. Wise, Jacob Fishman, Rabbi Israel Goldstein, Dr. S. Margoshes, Charles Cowan and Leo Wolfson was also named.

Locker Hits Revisionists

Berl Locker, speaking last night in the name of the World Zionist Executive, greeted the Zionist Organization of America, extolled success of Zionism and warned against the dangers facing the movement in immigration restriction and land speculation in Palestine.

He foresaw the greatest danger in Revisionism, attacking it for "political hysteria and threat to democratic principles of Zionism."

"The democratic character of the Zionist organization," Mr. Locker declared, "must be carefully guarded and strengthened. Any attempt of a minority to challenge the authority of the Zionist organization is to violate its policies of discipline must be met with prompt and vigorous action. Every element of violence and every act of disturbance must be eliminated by constructive organization. The World Zionist Executive maintains a policy of cooperation with the mandatory power and is opposed to any political hysteria.

Speaks Openly

"This executive has shown that to the time demands it, it can speak frankly and fearlessly against the mandatory attitude in order to strengthen our position and the mandatory power, as a strong and more university active Zionist organization or Histadruth, and the Revisionist party is one to which the General Zionists cannot remain indifferent. We must at any time confuse the indifference that is sometimes labeled neutral-

Herzl Hailed As True Prophet By Steinberg

Father of Zionism Saw Basic Human Needs, Rabbi Declares

(Special to the J.D.B.)

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., July 3.—A tribute to the memory of Dr. Theodor Herzl, father of modern Zionism, was delivered at the afternoon session of the Zionist convention here by Rabbi Milton Steinberg of the Park Avenue Synagogue.

"The leadership of Theodor Herzl is one instance of true prophetic guidance," he declared.

"The greatness of the prophet lies not in his personality but in the timeless and eternally true concept which he developed. The true leader of man is one who fulfills three qualifications:

"He must in the first place recognize a basic human need, a problem which is common to all relations. He must then present an ideal solution for the problem which he has recognized and must, in all his actions, be guided by which this solution can be effected.

A Prophetic Leader

"In all three senses Theodor Herzl was a prophetic leader of the Jewish people. He sensed in the Jewish people a need which was fated to a permanent maladjustment, the emancipation from the Jewish conditions which began in the French Revolution and never run a complete course and the Jew would never be fully recognized by Western society.

He recognized that assimilation was not the answer and that for no other reason, the Jews of the Western world would be compelled to remain Jews because of the pressure of the non-Jewish world.

Having diagnosed the problem of the Jew in the modern world, he then proceeded to a solution. He indicated that the Jew would attain normality only if he possessed a homeland of his own. He built the instruments by which this project could be attained.

Prophet Vindicated

"Theodor Herzl died twenty years ago today. In the course of the last three decades his idea has been fully vindicated. The status of the Jewish people in the world is less Jew than it has been at any time during the past century. There is no haven either for the Jewish people in assimilation and Palestine stands today as the sole refuge of the persecuted. Jews of the world and as the sole Jewish community in the world are today in a renaissance of Jewish culture.

"Not least of the great merits to Theodor Herzl was the fact that he was not a fatalist. He had a pessimistic and pessimistic and he refused to recognize any impossibility in the way of its attainment.

"If You Will" It

"He has been vindicated by history. Every impossibility which confronted him is now a reality. He has been either completely or partially overcome and those difficulties which face us are by no means insurmountable."

The Jewish world must recognize that Zionism is not a mere nationalist caprice. It is the logical inevitability of Jewish life today.

he told the delegates in simple language and with frequent historical allusions why he favored Zionism.

The Histadruth Fifth is holding four sessions here, which will close Sunday. Fifty delegates are attending. Menachem Ribalow, editor of Hadoar, reported striking progress in the growth of the organization in the United States.

Dr. Solomon Goldman was re-elected president of the group.

Isaac Imber, president of Masada, reported the existence of fifty-two chapters in thirty-nine cities at the opening meeting. The adoption of a resolution calling for a strong policy of Zionist education of Jewish youth was hailed as a complete acceptance of the Rothenberg program. The resolution was passed unanimously by the vote, after a short discussion in which de Haas opposed the administration.

NRA for Palestine

Principles which underlie the NRA could be well applied in Palestine to develop Nathan Straus Jr., New York State director of the National Emergency Council and treasurer of the United Jewish Appeal, in discussing the social and economic program in Palestine. He said:

"As one who is officially identified with and personally sympathetic to the program and the purpose of the New Deal in America, I can have no patience with any effort in Palestine to follow practices which are in direct and rapid discarding in this country.

Labor First Consideration

"Under the New Deal these outward practices are being displaced by the principle of cooperative effort, in which the importance of the dignity of labor have very first consideration. There is no place in the Jewish national home either for the chauvinist or economic and social reactionary. All that must be left behind by those who are to Palestine to create the 'New Deal' for the Jewish people."

Jews should learn to recognize, he said, that non-Jewish government was the seeds of every type of intolerance. He pointed out that other religious groups besides Jews are being persecuted by Nazi Germany. Mr. Straus made known that the Jewish people had raised in this country toward the quota of $3,000,000 set for the United States in the United Jewish Appeal drive to aid German Jews.

19 Jewish Reich Mills Will Move to England

(Jewish Telegraphic Agency)

London, July 3.—A declaration that German Jewry expects little benefit from the recent upheaval in the Nazi regime was seen in a statement here today by the Jewish Secretary that his department has just issued permits to nineteen Jewish-owned German textile mills to move to Great Britain.

Approximately 100 permits had been made three months ago. The firms that will move to England from Germany have been averaging about $5,000,000 in export trade yearly.

Peace Advocate Sees Events Heralding Monarchy in Reich

Goering Having Time of His Life, Says
Levinson

(Special to the J.D.B.)
CHICAGO, July 3.—"Germany today is in the throes of a coming reign of terror and Goering is having the time of his life as he revels in blood." In this manner Salmon O. Levinson, world-famous advocate for peace, ally of war and chairman of the Chicago Committee for the Defense of Human Rights Against Nazism, characterizes the unsettled condition of Germany today.

"If there is any amount of substance at all left in the great German people," he declared, "this type of 'murderous government' cannot last. In any event, it is far better for the world—and I say this more in sorrow than in anger—that the German people should be fighting among themselves than involving other nations of the world in war."

"There were many previous indications that trouble was brewing for Hitler," Mr. Levinson continued. "One of these signs was the fact that the 'god' Hitler had visited the 'mad' government. Another was the visit of Hitler's special disarmament commissioner to France, von Papen's speech, his arrest and quiet visit of the American and German Ambassadors to Germany. All of these point to and are virtual advertisements of the return of a monarchy to Germany."

"The real truth today is in the hands only of the Nazis," Mr. Levinson went on to point out. "The big question, however, is the fact that Nazi brutality now is being used on Nazis as it has been used on other groups. Anyone who has been visited by this brutality knows it is impossible within the Nazi ranks themselves today," Mr. Levinson explained that the "suicides" reported by Nazis to the press are only "alternative forms of assassination." Their motto today, he said is "Not only shall all traitors die, but not a witness shall live."

Laud Milwaukee Jew For Effort in Settling 5-Day Utility Strike

(Special to the J.D.B.)
MILWAUKEE, July 3.—Much of the credit for settling Milwaukee's five-day utility strike is being given today to Joseph J. Hell, prominent local Jewish manufacturer.

Hell succeeded, where others failed, in bringing J. B. Wey president of the electric company, and trade union leaders together around the round-table. With that gesture, the long history of the strike came to its short end.

During the walkout mobs of as high as 30,000 attacked street cars and tore down the poles of the electric company, bringing the city close to anarchy and virtually forcing the utility to accede to the strikers' demands.

(J.D.B. Special Correspondence)
MILWAUKEE, July 2.—Local Nazi sympathizers were in the cold when the Federation of German Societies held its annual "German Day" celebration here yesterday.

Scores of German organizations participated, but put a single pro-Hitler group was admitted. Neither the Friends of New Germany, the local Stahlhelm unit nor the German League of Honor, took part.

"German Day," biggest event of the year for Milwaukee's German population, drew thousands to its picnic and parade. Among the speakers were Governor Schmiedeman and Mayor Hoan. No pro-

Encyclopedia Defies Affront To Greek Jews

Reference to Salonica Brings Censure and Retraction

(Special to the J.D.B.)
DETROIT, July 3.—Compton's "Encyclopedia" has informed M. Benadette of 3435 Calvert avenue that it will delete a phrase in the article dealing with Salonica which has been declared offensive to Jews.

Athol E. Rollins, editor of the encyclopedia, writing to Mr. Benadette, states:

"I want to say that I can thoroughly sympathize with you in your feeling. However true this statement may be to the personal observations of the author of the article, nevertheless it is a general admission which can hardly be defended."

"It is the settled policy of Compton's to avoid statements which might give offense to any group or creed. This principle was emphasized so strongly in instructions to all our writers that I am surprised that such a phrase as the one you cite in the Salonica article could have escaped our editorial examination. I suppose it was inevitable, however, in preparing so many thousands of articles, some unfortunate phrases as this should have slipped through."

"I have made a note to have the phrase deleted from our encyclopedia."

The reference to which Mr. Benadette took exception reads as follows:

"Near its eastern end this street is spanned by a triumphal arch erected in the days of the Roman Empire. All day long Roman streetcars rumble back and forth beneath it. The dignified fathers of Israel in grayish fur-lined gaudy robes with knitted Greek peasants in tight white trousers tasseled under the knees, or booted Montenegros with hanging sleeves. Arrogant Bulgars, in brown homespun and opinkish round sandals of untanned leather, are at all times in view, or black rice and white skull caps over one ear."

Reich Revolt Was Socialistic, Brown Claims

Rebel S. A. Men Took Original Program
Seriously

(Special to the J.D.B.)
CHICAGO, July 3.—"Rational factors will play a very small part in the present German situation and therefore an exact prophesy of immediate developments is extremely difficult whether one is on the spot or observing from a distance." G. Harrison Brown, European representative of the Chicago Committee for Defense of Human Rights Against Nazism, declared just before leaving to return to his post in London.

"Several things stand out despite Goebbels' myth of a Germany that is unified behind Hitler," Mr. Brown explained. "This myth has exploded once and for all. It is now only a question of time—short time—before the mass of the German people will realize that the self-proclaimed 'god' Hitler and his regime are solely 'fronts' for the armaments magnates of the Reich."

"The 'revolt,' which may be suppressed temporarily," Mr. Brown continued, "was a 'revolt' of those who are not in favor of national socialism seriously."

"Thyssen will not let his newly-installed industrial feudalism go so easily. He seemed to have had in mind a complete change of front from Hitlerism to a monarchy. Now that Hitler and Goering have taken back national socialism, they probably will remain as Thyssen's front."

More Trouble Seen

"Von Papen has exposed himself to be a stupid political agent of Thyssen and is likely to be sacrificed in the tussle."

"Looking chances to have suppressed the revolt of S. A. leaders. Those leaders, however, were being pressed by the mass tendency towards the left of the S. A. Thyssen and Hitler had the choice of trying to quell this drift to the left either by scaring the rank through the murder of their leaders or by turning the machine guns on the rank and file itself."

"It is interesting to note that Goebbels, the 'snake' who was notorious for his reaction to Hitler left extremists, has once more trimmed his sails to suit the circumstances and sided with Hitler. He has reacted to Hitler's emergence factor. This matter of the five time in which this arch cynic has been on the side of infidelity against Hitler, but has scrambled back to Hitler when he saw Hitler would win out.

"In my opinion," Mr. Brown said in conclusion, "Hitler's own chances of setting up a new regime are not too good. Goering appears to his seat and it may yet come to another 'bumping off' match between these two."

The Bulletin's Day Book

It is an Ancient Mariner,
And he stoppeth one of three.
By thy long gray beard and glittering eye,
Now wherefore stopp'st thou me?

—From a poem by Edmund Spenser, Coleridge

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., July 2.—
Dr. Ernst F. S. "Putzy" Hanstaengl, suffering from the heat and slumping under the weight of three busts which he had placed on his shoulders, refused to give to Harvard University, remained a deserted campus today in a fruitless search for his proffered gifts.

—From a news dispatch.

A hot sun beat down on a deserted Harvard campus. Blank windows stared slyly at the seer, dusty grass.

A lone, perplexing figure, heavily laden with some unrecognizable but obviously oppressive burden, staggered aimlessly across the dry turf, muttering guttural impressions to himself through cracked lips.

From a basement portal issued three shabbily dressed, elderly women, their faces drawn and furrowed with the ravages of time, poverty and toll. They were members of Harvard's crew of cham-bermaids.

Prodding their rheumatic legs to unaccustomed haste, they appeared to be endeavoring to keep some momentary appointment.

The bedraggled, unhappy-looking man ran after them and accused the room member of the troop with a timid pat on the shoulder.

"Glorry be!" she exclaimed. "You gave me a statue! I'm stopped and turned around, for a better look.
Her lip curled in stern disapproval.

"Hey, listen," she said, "Can't you read the signs? No peddlers allowed. Better sit, or I want any of them day statues. I can't be wasting my money on junk like that."

"Peddler?" The man was bewildered. "Oh, but you are mistaken. I am no peddler. I wish to GIVE these busts away!"

"Ye-a-a-ah!" the woman snorted derisively. "I heard that talk before. Give 'em away, huh? Well, I'll give 'em space in my little magazines for five years or so and I get 'em for nothing. Ain't that it?"

She turned and began to trot after her companions, who were fast disappearing in the distance.

"Hey, Clotio! Hey, Lachesia!"
she screamed. "Wait for me!"

"But you must listen to me!" he demanded. "I'm not a salesman."
"Now, looka here," the woman stormed indignantly, "I can't leave me alone I'll call a cop. Go peddle your statues some place else. I'm on my way to a wedding."

"The word 'wedding' seemed to strike an answering chord in the man.

"Wedding," he said. "Ah, yes. I went to a wedding myself a few days ago. See? I still have my full dress on."

"Yeah," sneered the woman.
"I can see your age. All those oughts be ashamed. A lot of those young college skirts stays out all night some times and goes to class the next day. Lookes like that. But you oughta be too grown-up to get kinda bustins."

"Please listen to me a moment," the man pleaded. "I have more important things to discuss than weddings. I have here three very fine busts." He bowed low, with great ceremony, and held forth the objects in a gesture of adoration. "I present them to you now, as an employee of Harvard University," he said solemnly, a tear glistening in his eye, "to be cherished eternally by my dear Alma Mater as a gift from their distinguished son, Dr. Ernst F. S.

Hanstaengl." His mouth was dry. "You," he whispered, "may call me
"Putzy."

The woman drew back disad-vantageously.

"Please don't use language like that in front of a lady," she said indignantly. "I'll have you know you can't pull that stuff on me, even if I'm a Jew. Besides, how many times must I tell you I don't want them statues. Filthy old dust collectors!" she sniffed.

The man appeared to be losing patience.

"These," he shouted, "Are NOT statues! They are BUSTS! Have you never seen a bust?"

The woman tittered.

"Sure," she said, "plenty of them." "I'm looking at one right now." She stared meaningly at the

"Aw, gee, whiz," he whined, "take these busts, will you? They don't take up much room on a man's place and they come all the way from Germany."

"Nothing doing," the woman declared determinedly.

"Well, what can I do with them then?"

The chambermaid looked at the man with an appraising eye. Then she mentally measured the busts and decided. "I'll take them," she said slowly, "make a suggestion, but as I told you before, 'Tm a lady.'"

She turned then in the direction of her companions and discovered them waiting for her some distance off, at the other end of the campus.

"Hey, Clotio! Hey, Lachesia!"
she called. "Here I come now! I'm having a tough time getting rid of this guy! I hope we're not late for that wedding."

She ran off, refusing to heed the departing plea of the perspiring man.

"Ye gods, Atropos," her comrade groaned, when she finally caught up with them. "What kept you so long? Who is that freak, anyway?"

"He reminds me of," Atropos snickered. "He reminds me of this follow Joe Penner on the radio. You know who I mean? The one who keeps saying, 'Wanna buy a tick?'"

CRITICAL MOMENTS

By GEORGE JOEL

Movie Babies a Great Boomer

There is trouble enough when a picture director finds himself himself with a child actor before him and he has to make the youngster follow a script, but the trouble involved in such jobs is secondary to the complications that arise when a film concern decides to hire a minor.

Not, of course, that any one would want to hurt a baby, but motion picture producers must convince authorities of their good will before they are even allowed to bring a baby into a studio. In addition to guarding the physical well-being of the infants of the movies, the authorities are also very careful that no six-months-old has his other morals corrupted.

At the Astoria Studios, in Long Island, where Educational Pictures is making a considerable part of its program, the studio manager will tell you that using a baby in a picture involves more detail than any other kind of extended film.
There is the problem of finding the right baby, which is far from a simple task, and many sources, including churches, institutions, etc., are tapped before a selection is made. When the right baby is found, an application for a permit is made to the Children's Society, which is a considerable part of the child's history is made. A script of the picture in which the child is to be used must be submitted and is carefully read and passed by the authorities only if they are convinced that making the picture will in no way harm the baby.
Finally, the regulation that the child is not to be dangerously exposed to weather and other elements. Producers are subject to a very heavy penalty if the script is in any way contrary to what is okayed.

Satisfied with the script, the Children's Society issues a permit which is then turned over to the Mayor's office on the very day on which the child is to be brought to work. This, of course, entails last-minute changes for Educational Pictures, for it is not always easy on studio workers' blood pressure.

Hold Up Picture

It happens that Ernest Truax's two latest movies for Educational Pictures—"The Expectant Father" and "Love and Babies," the latter now in production—feature a very young child, a child, and the studio manager although a great lover of babies, hopes they'll refrain for a while.
Truax is now at a studio on location at Flushing Park, L. I. production had to be held up several hours before a man, waiting for the Mayor's office to open, could get permits for five babies, whereupon he dashed back to location where the cameras couldn't start grinding until the permits were in the lot.

Cinema Notes

ment, according to recent studio of the last-named will include Wynne Lord, who will play Mrs.

Wiggs; W. C. Fields, and Zane

the insane Miss Hazy. . . .
H. G. Wells' novel, "The Shape of Things to Come," will be turned into a picture by London Films under the title, "100 Years From tists. . . .

M. P. Sees Second Bible Written In Palestine, Raps British Policy

(J. A. Special Correspondent)

LONDON, June 23.—A second Bible is being written in Palestine, declared Major Proctor, M. P., upon his return here from Holy Land, where he conducted an exhaustive private inquiry.

Scoring British bans on Jewish entry and the belief that Jews own a great deal of the land, Major Proctor said, "The policy of restricting immigration into Palestine is retarding the progress of the land, and the Jews and Christians are capable of sustaining a population of 18-20,000,000. Only one thing can excuse this policy of restriction.
The lurking fear that progress is too rapid, the Arabs will rise up and there may be disorders," declared Major Proctor, affirming his belief that the Jews should be let hasten for the oppressed and suffering Jews of Germany and other countries.

Major Proctor holds, as a land in which a people are animated with hope and religious idealism have driven out three great religions, the Jews, the Christians and the Muslims. To assure these people security, the English government must decide if it will carry out the Mandate to the spirit.

SLANTS ON SPORTS

By MORRIS WEINER

Pick Your Favorite

Who, in your estimation, is the greatest Jewish prizefighter of all times? The sports department of the Jewish Daily Bulletin starts a contest today to determine the best Jewish boxer ever to step into the ring and blaze his way with punches to the pinnacle of success, fame and fortune.

Morris Weiner

Do you think Maxie Baer, king of the heavyweights, is a greater clown than Slapsie Maxie Rosenbloom? Or do you believe that Barney Ross could teach the two playboys a lesson in the art of ring technique? Is it true that Benny Leonard, one of the lightest weights of the world, must bow to the even greater triple champion, the younger but not as yet more popular Barney Ross?

No matter who your choice may be, write a letter to your sports commentator stating your views in one hundred words. The first prize will be two ringside tickets to the next Canned-Ross battle, which takes place early in September. The next prizes will be two tickets to the ringside of the New York Coliseum and two tickets to the Coney Island Velodrome. For people living out of town, two tickets to your favorite sports arena will be granted free.

For the Old Times

For the oldtimers who still have glamorous notions about the halcyon days of Joe Bonomo, the original Eddie Levinsky, and Jimmy Pollack, if you can prove to the mind of the judges that you were greater pugilist gladiators than the ring warriors of today, why, so much the better. Many people seem to feel that boxing, after the heyday of Benny Leonard, suffered a remarkable decline, equal only to the Wall Street crash of October, 1929.

With the retirement of Benny Leonard several years ago as the world's lightweight champion, a host of Jewish boxers tried to fill the great Benny's shoes. Many tried but only Barney Ross succeeded. There were a few who actually ascended to the 135-pound championship, but in popular opinion they were just fighters, not great men of the ring. Al Singer, Sid Terris, Joe Glick, Kid Berg, Ruby Goldstein, Sid Kaplan and Freddy Levine, all tried desperately to achieve ring laurels, but Jimmy McLarin, poison Jimmy himself, handed these Jewish pugilists a crown of thorns. Jimmy sent nearly all of them to the land of ring oblivion with a well-timed punch from his devastating right.

Four Men Most Popular Today

From the Jewish angle of boxing there are four men who are champions to the mind of the boxing fans at large. They are Maxie Baer, the Livermore Lothario; "Slapsie" Maxie Rosenbloom, lightweight champ; Barney Ross, king of the welter and lightweight; and Benny Leonard, who will live in the glory of his past ring achievements for years to come. Even now Benny is one of the glamorous ring idols of another day who seems to have reached ring immortality.

Baer has a killing right hand punch, and if you have seen him any of his fights you'd have noticed his nonchalance, his clowning antics and his song and dance prancing while in the ring. Maxie Rosenbloom was a champion but at present is all washed up. Baer is at the peak of his career. Rosenbloom used to be on top. However, we are not taking these fighters at their present worth, but rather considering them from a viewpoint of topnotch performance. Which of the two do you prefer?

It's Benny Leonard a greater boxer and fighter than Barney Ross today? The reasons for and against may be numerous as well as amusing, and this is why we are trying to decide who is the greatest Jewish boxer of all time.

Rules of the Contest

The contest to determine the greatest Jewish boxer of all time begins today. It will close Friday, July 27. All you have to do is clip the heading of this column—"Slants on Sports" and send your letter of one hundred words to your sports commentator. Winners will be announced Wednesday, July 31.

Remember, the winner of first prize will receive two ringside tickets to the next Ross-Cannizzari fight. Winners of the next four prizes will receive ringside tickets to the Coliseum and the Velodrome. Those who receive honorable mention will get autographed copies of the greatest Jewish prizefighter of all time.

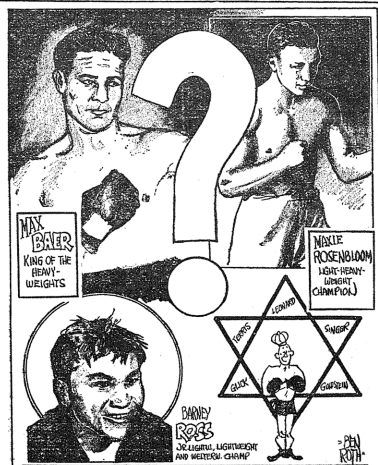

The Story of Sammy Mandell

Sammy Mandell, nee Sam Mando, an Albanian-Italian from the Mid-West, who came to New York as a team boxer and changed his name to capitalize on a Jewish following, is just about through, if not already finished.

Early in April we carried the story of how Mandell was left a bleeding, battered hulk, after being stopped in the fourth round by a conservative Italian named horse town. The story also said that only in flashes did this former lightweight king of the world show his old form. However, last Saturday, Frank Graham of the Sun carried another flash from Oakland, stating the same thing he had said in April. Only this time Graham was talking about another fight, which said almost the same thing as the last Mandell flash:

"Mandell came out strong and showed a flash of his old fire in the fourth and the fifth. Bernal came out stronger in the sixth and

"Pick Your Favorite Boxer" Contest Starts Today

Is Maxie Baer, "Slapsie" Maxie Rosenbloom, Barney Ross, Benny Leonard or Rottling Levinsky the greatest Jewish prizefighter of all time? Pick your favorite and enter the contest that starts today. Prizes will be awarded for the five best letters.

500 New Certificates Granted by England For Palestine Entry

(Jewish Telegraphic Agency)

LONDON, July 3.—A somewhat optimistic note appeared in the Palestine immigration situation today when it was learned that the British government has granted 500 additional certificates of entry to the Holy Land to the Jewish Agency for Palestine.

The provision is made that the certificates are to be given only to Jewish arrivals with not less than £250 in capital.

They will be allotted as follows: 200 to Poland, 200 to Germany and 100 to German Jewish refugees now temporarily residing in various countries.

Scranton Ends Successful UJA Drive, Office Reports

One of the most ably directed campaigns for German-Jewish relief ended Thursday night in Scranton, Pa., according to announcement from the local offices of the United Jewish Appeal.

The drive, for $7,800, was headed by I. E. Oppenheim, honorary chairman; A. B. Cohen, chairman; Meyer Davidson, honorary vice-chairman; George Phillips, president; Finkelshten and Leon M. Levy, vice-chairman.

slaggered the former champion with lefts and rights. Mandell then walked over to a neutral corner and dropped his hands. The referee awarded the fight to Bernal."

It's just too bad for a fighter who doesn't know when to quit or when he has had enough. Barney Ross said the other day, "I saw Sammy Mandell in Chicago a little while ago and I never felt so sorry for anybody in my life." This tells the entire story.

Nazis Storm Jewish Schools

Hitler Triumvir Loses Ground To Right Wing in Papen Feud

terday declared von Papen's elimination from the cabinet to be but a matter of hours, guardedly stated today that this may not take place at all.

Hindenburg Backing Seen

The apparent indecision on the part of Hitler and his cabinet gave credence to reports yesterday that von Hindenburg, in warning Hitler that the Reichswehr was being held directly responsible for the safety of von Papen (a report which the Propaganda Ministry promptly denied), had indicated that he would stand by his intimate friend and adviser.

Informed circles here today believed that the aged President would exert his full authority in behalf of von Papen and that as a result the Hitler-Göingeböckels triumvirate, instead of dictating the course of the Reich, would have to adopt a moderate course close to that demanded by the conservative elements in the Reich than to the Nazi political and economic program. This is all about the likelihood that Hindenburg adopts a firm stand because of Hitler's dependence on the Reichswehr to remain in power since the documents released last week established defections in the ranks of his private storm troop army.

Chancellor Hitler today acted to end the reign of terror prevailing in Germany since Saturday when he announced the termination of special measures to quell the storm troops' rampage, and directed the summary courts which had sat in judgment in the executions of the storm troop leaders and others would give way to civil courts.

Less Than Ten Died

The official death toll made public today, declared that the total was "less than sixty" although unofficial estimates still put the figure in excess of 200.

Munich, seat of the Nazi Party and locale for the storm troops' outbreaks, was quiet today, with an undetermined number of its S. S. men and leaders reported still under arrest. The storm troops, morale shaken and influence dealt a body blow, were still further humiliated today by the abolition of their "great department," which had attacked the Stahlheim after Hitler had specifically ordered attacks on the veterans to cease.

The quietest day since Hitler's dramatic appearance at Munich and Wiennese Saturday, the day gave an opportunity for taking inventory of the whirling and powerful elements which have whipped Germany into a ferment and shaken the Hitler regime to its foundations.

Action Poorly Planned

There was almost general acknowledgement that the government's excuse for the strong action against the SA and SS was poorly planned. It is felt it breaks the whole aura carefully laid around the leadership of the Nazi party and the SA and SS. It is felt the government should have come out openly with the explanation that the reign of terror was a political expedient to restore the confidence of the people, nothing should have been said about sex corruption.

Be that as it may, mixed feelings are held today.

ings are held toward the government today among those formerly unquestionably its supporters. There is a sense of relief at the elimination of such men from power as Roehm, Heines, Ernst and others, nevertheless, the ruthlessness of the government and the situation it creates revealed have profoundly stirred the general population. The strict censorship enforced and the inability of the population to learn just what has happened in Germany have given wing to hundreds of rumors which have had the effect of intensifying uncertainty and unrest.

Nazis Attack American Jewry

of the presence outside the doors of a mob of over 150 storm troops, many of whom carrying bludgeons and other weapons, were awaiting a signal from the raiding squad.

The Jews came in for strong denunciations at the hands of the Volkischer Beobachter, Hitler's own newspaper, today, as well as in the Deutsche Zeitung and other organs of the radical Nazis, as the alleged source of "imagined" reports and "misstatements" about current developments in Germany in the foreign press. These reports were said to be "Jewish influence," the papers asserted.

Johannes von Leers, author of the anti-Semitic pamphlet "Jews Looking At You," in which such men as Stalin are mentioned, accuses the Jews today of being the prime movers in the "conspiracy" against Hitler, discovery of which led to repressive measures of the past few days.

Von Leers reproduces for the edification of his readers a copy of a leaflet allegedly found in the Western Road Synagogue at Port Elizabeth, South Africa, in which the announcement of the coming of world Jewish domination is attributed to none other than the South African Nazi greyhounds leader is now under indictment for forgery in connection with this alleged document.

Moss "Plot"

The Deutsche Zeitung also reproduced a copy of a letter from a Jewish physician in Haifa, Palestine, to an acquaintance in Germany, in which he outlined plans and forecasts of impending developments in the Reich are allegedly veiled under medical terms.

It became 1-own yesterday that critical storm troops leaders had planned widespread attacks on the Jews in order to embarrass the government by putting it in the position of having to protect them. The government was "aware of this plan in advance, it was learned, and in order to show that anti-Semitism was not limited to just a part of the Nazi party, Prussian Premier Goering gave utterance to anti-Semitic expressions in a speech at Hamburg last week.

A survey by a Jewish organization here which sent messengers out to all Jewish communities in the Reich, revealed that up until yesterday there had been no attacks on Jews. The messengers reported, however, that in some districts, that no Jews had been arrested in connection with them and that Jews had no part in the current anti-Semitic campaign. The report also disclosed that members of the Reichswehr, the regular army, and of the Stahlheim, the SA, had patrolled Jewish districts where attacks on the Jews had been anticipated.

State Department Unaware of Attack

(Jewish Telegraphic Agency)

WASHINGTON, July 3.—The Department of State had no information today on the attack in Berlin last night by storm troops on a Jewish café during which an American Jew was slightly injured.

Officials of the State Department have consented to no comment today on information received by them on current developments in Germany.

No Change for German Jewry

which the Jews suffered heavily since they had to continue or take the consequences of drawing upon themselves the ire of the storm troops.

Meanwhile, the incitement to boycott the Jews continues apace. The Frankische Tageszeitung, an anti-Jewish paper, has urged restaurant owners admitting Jews. It cites the case of Herr Ramold of Herrieden who "previously was a German and a sincere follower of Dr. Pflüger. Therefore, Germans frequented his place where the spirit of the new times prevailed. Suddenly, he became a turncoat, and therefore the Germans now boycott him."

Dr. Preck, chief of the organization of physicians, complains in the "Bayerische Volkszeitung" of pure-blooded Teutons employing Jewish physicians who are increasing their practice and calls for some step to stop this.

Dr. Preck, a Jewish physician, enjoys the same rights as Aryans," he declares, "but the law does not oblige the people to go to them." Dr. Preck explains, in addition to the fact that they are not doctors but that they are at the disposal of the people at all times of the day or night. He therefore

Too Many Jewish Organizations, Declares Loss at Tannersville

(Special to the J.D.B.)

TANNERSVILLE, N. Y., July 3.—Jewish life in the United States is afflicted with a "plethora of organizations," many of which might better fade out of the picture, Louis J. Moss of New York City, president of the United Synagogue of America, declared in the opening address before the thirty-third annual convention of the Rabbinical Assembly of the Jewish Theological Seminary here today. Rabbits from every section of the country comprised the gathering.

Moss expressed outspoken disapproval of what he regards as the tendency of American Jewry in expanding its activities through the machinery of a mass of organizations.

He declared the fact that "the synagogue has been relegated to a position of secondary influence."

Hope that the "regimentation" of forces in Germany will once more lead Germany back to civilization and sanity" was expressed today by Dr. Elias Margolis of Mount Vernon, N. Y., in his presidential message.

Dr. Margolis said that despite the fact that the situation of Jews in Germany appeared to be even worse than it was some time ago today, the prospects were, nevertheless, a shade brighter.

"In this optimism," he said, "I do not base the news which I come daily from Germany or the rift between the left and right wings of the Nazi group. Past experience, hindsight and common sense lead me to believe that the future will be wary and to place no confidence

Hitler Sold Out Storm Troops For Armaments

London Sees Negotiations With France as Cause of Dismissals

(Jewish Telegraphic Agency)

LONDON, July 3.—The view that Adolf Hitler has sold out his storm troop army in return for armament favors, is expressed by the Daily Herald today. The trade resulted from negotiations by Count von Ribbentrop, Hitler's personal armaments envoy, with Foreign Affairs Minister Barthou of France, who agreed to partial disarmament for Germany if the storm troops were abandoned, the Herald asserts.

The Daily Express sees in President von Hindenburg's congratulatory messages to Hitler and Goering yesterday a turning against his comrades, Vice-Chancellor Franz von Papen, by the aged Reichspresident, and anticipates the former's dismissal from office.

The Times, in a pessimistic editorial, weighs the future of Hitler. "No one is able to estimate the probable consequences and repercussions of the present move to have consolidated his position for the moment, killing off every one capable of exploiting the disunity of the Reich," it predicts. "Large sections of the storm troops. However, his chosen method seems likely to drive this disunity underground than prevent its spreading."

demands that "Aryan" doctors make similar arrangements "to end the present intolerable situation."

In rumors and in what may turn out to be wish hope. On the subject of unity among American Jews, Dr. Margolis urged the perfection of a "single and unified organization which will be the will of the American Jew."

Declaring that uniformity of American Jewish opinion was obstructed by the refusal of the movement by "fat or resolution," he maintained that united action, despite diversity of opinion, was still possible. He pointed out that such action had already been initiated in the union of forces of the Joint Distribution Committee of Palestine Campaigning.

Unless unified action was forthcoming, Dr. Margolis warned, "the synagogue in America, through its rabbinical and lay leaders working through its units in every Jewish community, will proceed to create and stimulate a Jewish public opinion which will in turn call for being a unified Democratic Jewish body which will speak and act for American Israel."

The Secretary, Dr. Adler, president of the Synagogue, in a message expressing regret that his European trip prevents his presence at the conference, abjured the Jews in protesting declared that of such selves overly much about the anti-Jewish feeling in America, at least not to the extent of engaging in "hatred and denunciation."

"This inhuman Nazi assault is fast bringing its own nemesis," his message said in part.

Another portion of Dr. Adler's message declared that the greater contribution that Jews of America

Dr. Ottolenghi, Jewish Savant, Dies in Italy

Disciple of Lombroso, He Was a Foremost Criminologist

(Jewish Telegraphic Agency)

ROME, July 3.—Italian criminology lost its outstanding exponent today with the death of Salvatore Ottolenghi, Jewish physician and disciple of another Jew, the great Cesare Lombroso, whose successor he became after the internationally renowned scientist's death in 1909.

Born in Asti in 1861, Ottolenghi studied in his native town and at the University of Turin, from which he received an M. D. degree in 1884.

Two years later he formed his first association with Lombroso, which was to last twenty-three years, until the master's death.

In 1893 he became professor of medicine and chief of the medical department at the University of Siena, posts which he held until 1903, when he went to the University of Rome. In the same year he received an honorary degree for his outstanding contribution to the cause of law and order when he founded the School for Scientific Police Education in the Italian capital. He held a directorate in the institution until his death, which also ended his incumbency in the Italian legal medicine at the University of Rome.

He attacked the problem of crime from the tri-fold point of view of the physician, the psychologist and the psychiatrist and wrote innumerable tracts, essays, monographs and books on his favorite subject. Many of them were regarded as among the world's most important scientific contributions in their field.

He made toward promoting good among all citizens in this country is that they themselves should set an example of living a complete and perfect life, according to Jewish religion and Jewish ethics.

"Nothing else," he continued, "will take the place of this and so I urge that the great part of your deliberations be devoted to the strengthening of the synagogue and of the religious school."

"I would also urge that you support in every way in your power all worthy movements which are intended to stamp out immorality in the United States. I urge you should not hesitate to join those of Roman Catholic and Protestant faiths who are doing valiant work for the same end."

He also appealed to the members to cooperate with the Synagogue Council and the Seminar.

Moss, in his opening address, declared:

"Of the numerous ills which afflict Jewish life in America, one of the most aggravating is the plethora of organizations with which we are beset. It is our responsibility to give expression to the so-called Jewish point of view. Each professes superior wisdom and often strives through innuendo seeks to disparage and minimize or even overthrow the other."

"I hold to the view that we have enough organizations already to meet our needs and requirements, and that there certainly is no need for any new ones."

"Moreover, I think if some of those now in existence were to fade out of the scene, Jewry would suffer no great loss."
