

NOW— EDITORIAL NOTES by HERMAN BERNSTEIN Contributing Editor

Wandering Jews
A wireless report to the New York Times from Saloniki, Greece, which tells a story reported in full by the Jewish Telegraphic Agency on October 8, states that the steamer Velos, flying the British flag, although owned by a Greek, carried 318 young Jews, mostly under the age of twenty-four, to Istanbul, then to the Greek island of Syra, and then to Palestine, in quest of a new home and a new start in life. At Istanbul the Turkish authorities refused them permission to stay. At the Island of Syra they were allowed to remain for fifteen days. In Palestine they were barred by the authorities because of immigration restrictions. From Istanbul they proceeded to Saloniki, but they have not been allowed to land. They are obliged to remain aboard the Velos. The report adds: "The sunny days they spend in their pajamas on deck speaking of the time when they were in their money is exhausted. The cloudy days they spend in their cabins trying to think of a new destination."

These wandering Jews are described as "Czechoslovak and Polish men and women who chartered the Velos at Varna, Bulgaria." The strange plight of these passengers "testifies to the unsettled conditions of Europe." The tragedy of the wandering Jews sailing from port to port, in the hope of finding shelter and an opportunity to work, is accentuated by the fact that even the doors of Palestine were closed to them. The Jewish young men and women of Poland, Roumania, Austria and Hungary, and particularly the Jewries of Nazi Germany, are confronted with conditions that are their last straw. The Jewish communities in most of these countries are passing through a period of despair, degradation and economic distress such as the Jewish people have not experienced before throughout the ages. While the Jewries of America, England, France and Czechoslovakia have attained to the highest status that the Jewish people has ever attained in the diaspora, and while the millions of Jews under the Soviet regime are not discriminated against in Russia, where their Judaism is being uprooted in exchange for Christianity, with the rest of the proletarian population, the Jews of Germany live in an inferno of hate and humiliation and despair and want. In Poland their economic disaster is horrifying. Anti-Semitism in Roumania and in the bloody anti-Semitic riot in Balacerna, in the province of Bukovina, in 1930.

Creeds A Im At Good Will In Rally Plan

National Conference of Jews and Christians to Hold Parley

A Williamson Institute on Human Relations will be held at Williams College, Williamstown, Mass., in August, 1935, it was announced yesterday at a meeting of the executive committee of the National Conference of Jews and Christians.

The Institute, Dr. Everett R. Clinchy, director of the organization, stated, will include round-table discussions of the following topics: What can be learned from the situation in such countries as Mexico, Germany and Canada? What has been accomplished in co-operative programs of religious work in college and university campuses? Building appreciation of program of American cultural groups, and adult community programs to achieve cooperation in citizenship between Jews, Catholics and Protestants.

Short lectures will be offered by faculty members of various universities on four subjects: History—background for the study of inter-group relations; Psychology—group behavior in the light of social psychology; Economics—criticism of capitalism.

President of State Conference for 1935

(Special to the J.D.N.)
BUFFALO, Oct. 25.—Eugene Warner, president of the Jewish Federation for Social Service and the Buffalo Council of Social Agencies has been named president of the State Conference on Social Work for 1935, according to an announcement from Albany. Warner will succeed Victor F. Ridder, vice-president of the Staats-Herold Corporation of New York.

The conference, at the request of a special committee headed by Louis Shocket of the Jewish Community Building of Buffalo and Rev. Leo A. Geary of Catholic Charities, Inc., will meet in Buffalo in 1935.

Anti-Semite Warns Bankers New Head Is 'International Jew'

(Special to the J.D.N.)
WASHINGTON, Oct. 25.—Robert Edward Edmondson, "investment economist" who peddles anti-Semitism at a penny a pamphlet from his New York City office, sent every bank president in the country a circular warning against electing Rudolph S. Hecht of New Orleans, "a foreign-born notorious 'international Jew,' president of the American Bankers' Association.

Horthy Launches First Steamer For Hungary-Palestine Trade

Initial Cargo of Danube
Ship to Aid Jewish National Fund

(Jewish Telegraphic Agency)
BUDAPEST, Oct. 25.—Admiral Nicholas Horthy, Hungarian regent, today launched the first Danubian steamer intended for regular trade and traffic service between Hungary and Palestine.

In the presence of a large crowd, which included leading Hungarian Zionists, Admiral Horthy named the vessel "Budapest."

The first cargo the new ship will carry to Haifa, Palestine, will consist of Hungarian products. The money received for the cargo will be turned over to the Jewish National Fund. The Hungarian government has granted permission for transfer of funds collected for the Jewish National Fund in the country to Palestine in the form of Hungarian goods.

Hylan Petition Names Forged, Court Hears

ALBANY, Oct. 25.—Supreme Court Justice Schenck today ruled the Hylan petition invalid.

(Special to the J.D.N.)
ALBANY, Oct. 25.—Evidence of crime took its place alongside the taint of Nazi support here today in John F. Hylan's fight for a place on the ballot as candidate for the Governorship, when scores of affidavits from Sullivan County residents, swearing their signatures had been forged on Hylan's continuing petitions submitted before Supreme Court Justice Gilbert V. Schenck.

Testimony of three Orleans County residents that Joseph Cohen of New York City had hired them to obtain signatures to the petition at two cents apiece, and that he had signed certificates of identification in the absence of the signers, led to Cohen's being taken into custody as a material witness.

Famous Inventor Was National Fund's First President

(Jewish Telegraphic Agency)
VIENNA, Oct. 25.—Johann Kremetzky, scientist and inventor and close collaborator of Dr. Theodor Herzl, died here today. He was eighty-five years old.

Herr Kremetzky was born in Odessa on February 15, 1850. He was educated in Russian schools and later took the degree of engineer in the Charlotenburger Technical School in Germany. As a graduate engineer he assisted in the building of Tils-Bad railway line.

In 1880, he went to Paris where he became associated with the Russian inventor, Jablotchoff, who assisted him in the discovery of the electric arc light.

In Vienna, Herr Kremetzky introduced the arc light and established his own firm for the manufacture of electrical lights. Later his firm was absorbed by the Siemens-Schuckert firm and he became technical director for the German concern.

In 1908, the Siemens-Schuckert firm established a separate branch in Vienna with a factory which employed more than 2,000 workers. Herr Kremetzky headed the Vienna division of the Siemens-Schuckert company.

He was the inventor of hundreds of electrical devices for which he held patents and which are in use all over the world.

Herr Kremetzky was a lifelong Zionist and friend of Palestine. He was closely associated with Dr. Herzl in formulating the ideal of Zionism. He was one of the small group of five men associated with Dr. Herzl in the establishment of the Zionist movement. Dr. Herzl entrusted him with the task of organizing the Jewish National Fund to acquire land in Palestine. He was the first president of the Jewish National Fund.

Rhailis Hits Anti-Semites In Salonica

Denounces Efforts by Students to Create
'Year of Pogrom'

(Jewish Telegraphic Agency)
SALONICA, Oct. 25.—Governor General Priells Rhailis today issued a statement condemning the attempt of anti-Semitic elements to "create a pogrom atmosphere" in the city.

The governor was outspoken in his denunciation of the "criminal attempt to create a pogrom atmosphere" on the part of the Students League, and the reorganized EEEE (Greek Nazis) which are attempting to create a pogrom atmosphere similar to that of the Campbell affair in 1931.

Anti-Semitic agitation in Greece has been encouraged by the political party headed by former Premier Eleutherios Venizelos, which bitterly opposed the plan of Premier Tsaldaris' government to abolish the separate electoral college for Jews and the re-election of President Tsaldaris. This was the only question in which he was opposed to the Jews, M. Venizelos declared.

Since that time a deal has been concluded between the government forces providing for retention of the separate electoral college for Jews and the re-election of President Tsaldaris. This deal has been the result of Anti-Semitic agitation, however, continues.

Governor General Rhailis has on several occasions expressed his opposition to anti-Semitism. During the election campaign he threatened to shut down the Zionist press if it did not stop anti-Jewish incitement.

Peasants Help Jews to Repel Cuzist Attack

Rally to Their Rescue
When Students Raid
Village Homes

(Jewish Telegraphic Agency)
KISHINEFF, Rumania, Oct. 25.—Rumanian peasants today came to the rescue of a group of Jews who were being attacked by anti-Jewish student adherents of Professor Alexander Cuzna, leader of the Rumanian anti-Semitic coalition.

The hand attacked the Jewish inhabitants of the village of Straton in the district of Lepeni, smashing windows in Jewish homes and beating Jews on the streets. They also attempted to demolish the synagogue.

Peasant neighbors of the Jewish villagers rallied to the defense of the Jews and beat off the attackers.

Gendarmes were rushed to the scene and are investigating the unprompted attack on the Jews.

A Csernowitz court today acquitted two students and soldier accused of being the ringleaders in the bloody anti-Semitic riot in Balacerna, in the province of Bukovina, in 1930.

Czechoslovakia Records Drop In Reich Exiles

Only 100 of 350 Left in County Require Assistance

(J.T.A. Special Correspondence)
PRAHA, Oct. 14.—The number of German Jewish refugees in Czechoslovakia has decreased from 3,300 to 350, only 100 of whom, however, require assistance, said Marie Schmolkova, one of the leaders of the Jewish refugee work in this country, told the Jewish Telegraphic Agency here. Only fifty can be permanently assisted; the rest given help only from time to time. Of the fifty given assistance, thirty are able to work, leaving only twenty who will be obliged to depend on assistance.

The Jewish Refugee Aid Committee has stopped its relief activity, and the Praha Jewish Community has taken over the work of helping those who are in need, within the general limits of its own social and welfare work. The Refugee Committee is confining itself to lend assistance for the refugees and the representation of their interests to the authorities and the various institutions abroad. The work of the committee is re-training of the younger refugees has been taken over by the Czechoslovakian Hechaltz, Madame Schmorak declared two hundred and sixty refugees are now being trained in agricultural and technical schools.

Forty hundred and seventy refugees have so far been placed by the committee in various countries of settlement, the great majority in Palestine.

"It is, nevertheless, still impossible to think of liquidating the refugees aid work in Czechoslovakia in the near future, Mme. Schmolkova concluded. "The future of a considerable number of refugees is still doubtful. The stream of new refugees from Germany has indeed been stemmed, but has by no means stopped."

Jewish Lawyers Are Endek Targets

Polish Group Advises How to Cope With Jewish 'Inundation'

(J.T.A. Special Correspondence)
WARSAW, Oct. 13.—Warning against the "Jewish inundation" of the legal profession, the Gazeta Warszawska has launched an attack upon Jewish lawyers by issuing the following four guiding principles for handling the situation:

- 1) Poles should engage the services of Polish lawyers only.
- 2) Polish lawyers should not permit Jews to serve apprenticeships in their offices.
- 3) The government should forbid Jews to enter the legal profession until such time as the percentage of Jewish lawyers is proportional with the percentage of Jews in the general population;
- 4) Unless they wish the Jewish intellectuals of Poland to have the same fate as those of Germany, Jews should discourage their youth from entering the legal profession.

Bulgarian General Lauds Jews' Valor

War Hero Pays Tribute to Bravery Displayed by Soldiers

(J.T.A. Staff Correspondence)
SOFIA, Oct. 14.—General Jekoff, commander-in-chief of the Bulgarian army during the World War, paid a tribute to the valor of his Jewish soldiers at a memorial service held in the Great Synagogue here for Jewish war dead.

800 members of the Union of Jewish war veterans attended the service, together with representatives of the Jewish organizations and institutions in the country, and a number of military and civil leaders, including in addition to General Jekoff, Generals Lazoff and Todoroff; the Lord Mayor of Sofia, M. Ivanoff; the Secretary-General of the Ministry of Foreign Affairs, M. Radoff, and many military officers and representatives of old comrades associations.

"I can testify," said General Jekoff, "that in no country did the Jews at the front during the War show so much bravery as in Bulgaria."

The Chief Rabbi, Dr. Hanneel, said in his reply: "We appreciate your testimony, for you are certainly the man best qualified to know. We Bulgarian Jews did no more than our duty to the Fatherland."

Official Palestine Pays Arab Tribute

Hebrew Daily Criticizes Its Sponsorship of Faisal Memorial Fete

(J.T.A. Special Correspondence)
JERUSALEM, Oct. 10.—Criticism of the Palestine government for permitting an Arab nationalist demonstration under its own official auspices was voiced by Doar Hayom, Hebrew daily, which quoted excerpts of speeches delivered recently at the unveiling of a memorial to the late King Faisal at Haifa.

Present at the ceremony were Acting High Commissioner James Hutton Hall, Hassan Bey Shukri, Mayor of Haifa, and other government officials.

"The memorial as a whole, with its broken pot, is symbolic of the glorious work of King Faisal toward the independence and unification of the Arab countries," declared Ali Bey Tamimi, head of the Haifa Moslem Association.

Mayor Shukri referred to the "coming expansion of Arab civilization in these countries."

Acting High Commissioner Hall said he welcomed the fact that "Haifa, which is the link between the East and the West, Arabia and Europe, should erect a lasting memorial to this most illustrious King, Faisal."

One of the principal opponents of Faisalism in the ninth century was Archbishop Agobard of Lyons, France.

by the Jewish people as the land of their new hope and achievements, has solved the problems of those who have been fortunate enough to settle there. The opportunities for development and growth, for a much larger stream of Jewish immigration, are open, but the doors of Palestine are not sufficiently wide open to the Jewish youths who seek to save themselves from physical and spiritual doom in the lands of oppression. Chauvinism and selfish nationalism, intensified since the end of the World War, have shut the doors of hope and opportunity in lands that had grown prosperous and powerful through the work and the spiritual contributions of victims of religious and political persecution in backward European countries.

Jewish youths, workers without work and deprived of the possibility of ever finding employment in their native lands, tens of thousands of Jewish students, who could not go to the universities in their native lands and who completed their studies in foreign lands, are now scattered and stranded in various lands on the face of the globe, unable to apply their energies and their knowledge because of discriminatory laws.

The present form of relief for these refugee martyrs is wholly inadequate, however generous American, British and French Jewry may be. The tragedy of the wandering Jews constitutes one of the most urgent and challenging problems to the Jewish people.

The 315 young Jews sailing from port to port, in vain quest of a new home where they could live and work in peace, are tragic symbols of the hundreds of thousands of young Jews who are losing their faith in the civilization of which the world today is still boasting.

Every cream-producing Borden's Golden Crest Milk is examined at frequent intervals for more than 100 diseases required by Federal, State and Municipal health regulations. Another step in the line of Borden's leadership.

Pour out a brimming glass of Borden's Golden Crest. You'll notice at once how much better it tastes—how creamy-rich this new milk is!

Several thousand extra "cream-producing" cows have been added to the special dairy herds that supply Golden Crest Milk. The farmers are paid an extra premium for it. Borden's Veterinarians supervise all Golden Crest farms and examine the entire herd at frequent intervals. And for added safety, every Golden Crest cow has also been tuberculin-tested.

The result is a milk that is not only far better-tasting—but a milk that can do more for every member of your family. For the extra cream that makes Borden's Golden Crest a more popular drink, also makes it a more healthful one. Yes Golden Crest costs you no more than regular Grade A. Ask your neighbors what they think of Golden Crest. Many of them have been giving their families this creamier milk ever since it was introduced last June.

Brazen Effrontery

It has been a long time since New York has witnessed such a display of brazen effrontery as that furnished by the German-American Conference in its ultimatum to the Zeitung, the German-language daily, to dismiss Jewish employees, including its editor-in-chief who has been with the paper for forty years. The only similar case in recent record was the visit the unsavory Spanknebel made to the Evening newspaper office, to demand that henceforth they would have to take his orders.

If any doubt remains at all as to the complete Nazification of the German-American Conference, this ultimatum must completely eradicate it.

The spectacle of an agency dominated by foreign elements daring to dictate to an American newspaper would give food for thought to those American journalists who fear the Nazi system admirable. It is a pity that the Kiddier brothers, so long the dominant figures in the German-American Conference until their ouster by the Nazis, have not been granted the opportunity to administer the telling rebuke that the ultimatum offered them. By so doing they would have upheld the American tradition of a free and independent press and reminded these Nazis again that Hitlerite gangster methods are out of place on these shores.

Austria Again

It was but two days ago that Chancellor Schuschnigg had solemnly reiterated his pledge that the Jews would be granted full equality and all the rights of citizens in Austria. His government will make no distinction between citizens on the basis of race or religion, he assured a Jewish delegation.

Recently, at Geneva, Dr. Schuschnigg made a statement to this same effect. Within a few days the Austrian government promulgated the decree establishing ghetto schools for Jewish pupils.

Now, on the heels of his second pledge, comes the report that eighty Jewish officials and twenty-six Jewish physicians have been summarily dismissed.

Is Dr. Schuschnigg to be believed? Or does he hope to fool the world at large by doing one thing and saying another?

MCDONALD—A YEAR

By Dr. MORRIS BRAUN

By DR. MORRIS BRAUN
A year's work by James G. McDonald as High Commissioner for refugees from Germany is a year's moral support by the League of Nations in the fight for Jewish rights.

When the League of Nations decided last year to establish a special High Commission to deal with the problem of the German refugees, it was expected that this Commission would also be financed by the League. It was expected that it would at least be financed by the twelve countries whose representatives were invited as members of the Governing Body of the Commission.

This has not been the case. The work done by Mr. McDonald during the year has been carried on with funds provided almost exclusively by Jewish organizations. The 25,000 Jewish refugees from Germany who were assisted by Mr. McDonald's office were able to receive their money only because five million dollars have been collected by private Jewish organizations in America and in Europe for carrying on relief activities for German Jews.

Original Plan
A loan of 25,000 Swiss francs was granted by the League to Mr. McDonald's office, but this loan was soon repaid. The League of Nations has made it clear that the original plan to have Mr. McDonald's office become an organ of the League of Nations, responsible to the Council of the League and financed by the League, has been abandoned. The office which Mr. McDonald was set up as an autonomous body and has been functioning since largely because of the active interest of several Jewish organizations which are providing the necessary means for its activities.

This state of affairs, with the burden of supporting Mr. McDonald's office falling upon Jewish organizations solely, has recently provoked much comment in the Jewish press. It has been pointed out that the League has taken more concrete interest in settling the Assyrians from Iraq than in helping the emigration of Jewish refugees from Germany. It has been emphasized that half of the 25,000 German refugees have been settled in Palestine without any assistance on the part of the League or of Mr. McDonald's office.

His Work Appreciated
The criticism voiced by the Jewish press has nevertheless not prevented the press from appreciating the special efforts made by Mr. McDonald in obtaining passports and travel documents for Jewish refugees from Germany. It has been recognized by all that one of the most difficult problems upon which the High Commissioner has concentrated his activities was the problem of securing adequate identity documents for thousands of Jewish refugees from Germany who had been uprooted by circumstances which did not permit them to fulfill the official requirements with regard to passports.

There were four main classes of Jewish refugees for whom Mr. McDonald's office had to make provision:

- (1) Jews who held a German passport but cannot obtain its renewal from the German authorities;
- (2) Jews who have no passports at all but are still German citizens.

(3) Jews who were deprived of their German nationality after leaving Germany and thus remain stateless;

(4) Jews who have been holding so-called "stateless" identity papers issued by the German government, mostly to persons who escaped from Soviet Russia.

Passport Problem Solved
At first it was suggested that there be a new document for German refugees similar to the Nansen passport issued for Russian and Armenian refugees. But a simpler solution was found. The permanent committee of the Governing Body of Mr. McDonald's office considered it better to recommend that the countries in which the refugees were resident should issue to applicants who were not holding valid passport an "identity and travelling document" adopted (for persons without a national passport) by a conference of the League of Nations on Communication and Transit, held in 1927.

As a result of this recommendation, a number of governments have now agreed to issue such documents of identity and travel to enable refugees without valid passports to move freely from one country to another.

The Governing Body of the League of Nations adopted a further recommendation that the document be recognized by all States for the purpose of visas and travel. It was a national passport. Also, that the States should grant visas to refugees free of charge.

Legal Barriers Overcome
The difficult problem of supplying refugees with proper documents of identity has thus been solved in the most practical way by Mr. McDonald's office. The legal barriers which are issued by nearly all governments of the countries bordering on Germany are now available to Jewish refugees from Germany. This legal division of labor has been thus handled by Mr. McDonald in a most efficient manner.

Less efficient, however, is the migration work of facilitating migration of refugees into different countries. Of the more than 60,000 refugees from Germany, only one-third have been enabled to settle permanently in various countries. The other two-thirds still have the status of exiles. They are now scattered in France, Czechoslovakia, Poland, Czechoslovakia, England, Switzerland and other countries, and many of them are in a state of despair, without shelter, food, or money for work.

Situation Grows Worse
The situation of these unfortunate grows worse from day to day because the various committees of local relief committees have been exhausted and relief can no longer be granted by them to the refugees. Their situation may be described in serious view of the fact that Mr. McDonald's office, not receiving any financial assistance from the League, must also limit its activities.

Steps are now being taken in London and in New York to form organizations for the purpose of speeding up emigration and settlement of the refugees in order to establish them on an economic basis. These steps have, however, nothing to do with the High Commission established by the League.

A year's work by Mr. McDonald represents a year's moral support by the League of Nations to Jewish refugees. This work, however, also needs financial support. This support

The "Protocols on Trilla . . .

A sensational trial in connection with the notorious "Protocols of the Elders of Zion" opens Monday in Bern, Switzerland, and will attract world-wide attention.

The trial is the result of a libel suit lodged by the association of Jewish communal leaders in Switzerland through its president, Dr. J. Dreyfus-Brodsky, against Dr. A. Zander, editor of the Swiss anti-Semitic publication, Eltern. It is also the result of a suit against the same anti-Semitic editor lodged by Dr. Marcus Cohn, president of the Zionist Federation of Switzerland.

The Eltern Bern, which is the organ of the Nazis in Switzerland, acting apparently upon orders from Germany, picked up the "Protocols of the Elders of Zion" and alleged that the "Protocols of the Elders of Zion" are nothing else but a record of the first Zionist Congress held in Basle in 1897. The court has already decided that the Jews should rule the world.

A Jewish Challenge . . .

Nothing can be done on these allegations when they are made in Nazi Germany. But in free countries the Jewish leaders took prompt action against the Nazi publication where these statements appeared. They brought charges against Dr. Zander, finally to prevent him from repeating the same allegations in the future, and secondly—which is more important—to bring out to the world through the trial that the document is an absolute forgery.

The trial opening on Monday will, therefore, be as important to the Jewish people as the trial. The entire anti-Semitic theory built up by the Nazis about the existence of an alleged secret "Jewish international" hinges on the verdict which the court in Bern will now issue. Once the "Protocols" are termed falsifications by the court, the entire anti-Jewish philosophy of the Nazis loses its basis.

Forgery Established

It was in 1921 that the London Times caused a sensation by revealing that the "Protocols" which the anti-Semites have been using since the first Zionist Congress are nothing but a copy of a book written in 1864—thirty years before the first Zionist Congress took place. This discovery by the Times left no doubt that the "Protocols" are a falsification, anti-Semitic propaganda concocted in different countries for the purpose of being based chiefly upon this forged document.

This trial will again expose the falsification. It will prove that not only have these "Protocols" been copied from a book which appeared thirty years before the first Zionist Congress, but also that the anti-Semitic propaganda published in 1905 by an unknown Russian under the pseudonym "Nikolai" is a forgery. It is strengthening the anti-Semitic arguments of the Czarist regime.

should come not from the Jews alone. The refugee problem is not a Jewish problem. It is the problem of the 60,000 refugees from Germany fifteen per cent. are non-Jews. This is what ought to be taken into consideration now as Mr. McDonald's office enters its second year of existence and activities.

The Ziff Articles

To the Editor, Jewish Daily Bulletin:
Mr. William B. Ziff's second series of articles is a stimulating analysis which, while not convincing in all its details, yet is helpful towards clarifying the situation in which Jewry finds itself at the present. However, the impetuosity of his style tends to make Mr. Ziff's most surprising self-contradictions. Thus in the second article in the series he inveighs against "orthodox adherents to from time immemorial made Mr. Ziff's point. But a few lines later on he tells us that Judaism "is encumbered with a festive tradition grown soft and lovely with time." What is this festive tradition? Is it the traditional ceremonialism of Judaism?

Half a dozen lines further on Mr. Ziff reverts to his attack on Jewish ceremonialism with the statement that the Jewish life "has developed from the simple, free creed of a noble desert people into mummified aberrations." If Mr. Ziff is to his own mind, then the nobility of his desert ancestors was so mitigated by human failings that it caused Moses the utmost difficulties and many a headache, and he will find no other than his desert ancestors, so far from having a simple, free creed, had a most complicated ritual which fills chapter after chapter of Exodus, Leviticus, Numbers and Deuteronomy.

In a subsequent paragraph Mr. Ziff states that at times in the past "Judaism has been cleared from its obsolete formalism and reborn into complete harmony with every day life." In illustration of this he refers to the golden age of the Spanish Jews and the great Maimonides and the immortal code of Jewish ritual and ceremonialism which he calls "the Middle Ages produced, and if he will read Al Hazari of Judah Halevy he will find that Judah Halevy also was a steadfast and devoted adherent of Jewish ritual and ceremonialism.

Through these palpably absurd contradictions, Mr. Ziff himself reveals how unjustified is his onslaught on the sacred traditions of Jewish ritual and ceremonialism. RABBI D. DE SOLA POOL.

Ickes Strikes Blow At Race Prejudice

Tells Detroit Club Constitution Was Intended as Minorities Guard

(Special to the J.D.B.)

DETROIT, Oct. 25.—Harold I. Ickes, Secretary of the Interior, addressing the Men's Club of Temple Beth El here, condemned religious and race prejudice and pointed out that the Constitution of the United States was written as a bulwark for minorities.

"Minority groups in this country have been victims of a crass racial prejudice," stated, "men have been discriminated against on account of the color of their skins or because of their religion. In the final analysis the Constitution was set up by those who wrote it as a bulwark for minorities. It is the minority that needs protection from the mob spirit of the majority."

TEL AVIV, Oct. 10.—This all-Jewish city now has more than 105,000 inhabitants, it was announced here. From October, 1933, to October, 1934, building permits were issued for 19,175 rooms and 375 stores covering an area of 44,805 square metres.

Envoy Protests Ban On 'Jud Suss' Film

British Ambassador Acts After Vienna Revokes Permit

(Jewish Telegraphic Agency)

VIENNA, Oct. 25.—The British Ambassador here intervened with the Austrian government protesting the ban on the British-produced film, "Jud Suss," it was reported in British circles here today. The British representative acted on complaints submitted by Gaumont-British, the concern which produced the film. The producers' complaint was based on the fact that the Austrian censorship board passed the film and then suddenly withdrew permission after an anti-Semitic campaign was begun by the Christian Socialist party press.

The Reichspost, official government organ, and the semi-official government papers threatened anti-Semitic disturbances if the film was shown in Vienna. The film is filled "with pro-Jewish propaganda and blasphemy," the Reichspost declared.

"Jud Suss" is based on Lion Feuchtwanger's novel of the same name.

Zionists Meet With Palestine Official

British Federation Delegates Received by Wauchop in London

(Jewish Telegraphic Agency)

LONDON, Oct. 25.—High Commissioner Sir Arthur Grenfell Wauchop, Palestine chief executive, today received a delegation representing the British Zionist Federation and informally discussed their present position in the Holy Land according to an official statement by the federation today.

Sir Arthur has been here for some time on his annual leave, and is reported to be advising the Colonial Office on the final draft of the ordinance creating a legislative council in Palestine.

"The first task of the High Commissioner, who returns to his post early in November, will be to set up the legislative council. All sections of Jewish opinion in Palestine have expressed opposition to the measure."

JERUSALEM, Oct. 10.—Dr. David Yellin, principal of the Hebrew Teachers Seminary at Beth Hakeren, has returned from his annual trip abroad.

During his trip Dr. Yellin was able to secure enough funds to complete construction of the seminary, which has prepared several generations of Hebrew teachers in Palestine.

Cinema Version of 'Loyalties' Depicts Jewish Social Problem

By HENRY W. LEVY

The cinematic version of one of John Galsworthy's greatest plays, "Loyalties," is England's latest contribution to the American movie scene. As displayed at the Mayfair Theatre, it is of particular interest to Jewish audiences by reason of its story of a young English Jew who innocently becomes involved in a plot against British loyalties. Because of it, the latent anti-Semitism of the group is brought out.

Throughout his entire writing career, the late Mr. Galsworthy was interested in such fine distinctions. In "Escape," for instance, Mr. Galsworthy concerned himself with the question of loyalties as regards an escapee prisoner who went to jail although essentially innocent.

An impartial writer, Mr. Galsworthy in his plays and novels always presented a problem, developed it and then left the answer for his readers or spectators to decide for themselves. A controversial writer, he was always the probing reporter, never the indignant editorialist.

"Loyalties" is another point in case. The play, when it was first produced, caused quite a stir. There were some Jews who held it a notable contribution to the literature of good-will, a contribution to better understanding by reason of its objectivity and by its fairness in the presentation of a Jewish character in a Jewish situation. Others thought it unfortunate that it brought up the race question. No one, however, as is so often the case in such plays, denounced its author as an anti-Semite. Mr. Galsworthy, superior craftsman that he was, had perceived a problem and presented it to the jury. Then, quite carefully, he withdrew before he committed himself.

Same Reaction to Films

The picture, undoubtedly, will bring similar reactions as its director, Basil Devis, who also directed the play, has produced a faithful transcript. The story is told of De Levis, a wealthy Jew whose greatest sin was his social climbing proclivities and his desire for Gentile approval.

He is conscious that his Jewishness is held against him; nevertheless he persists in attempting to break down the barrier. This is all shown in a scene where he is a house guest at a party attended by groups of London aristocrats. After he leaves, a character says of him, after his losing a wager: "Losing that tenner must have cost him a pain." It was "sure-things" wagers which he had been forced into on the guise of it being the "sporting thing to do."

De Levis is robbed that night. He develops a quite positive circumstantial case against Captain Dancy, one of the guests. The others, all Gentiles, resent the fact that some of them feel certain that Dancy is guilty. But loyalty to a fellow officer, a fellow Gentile, and a fellow sportsman cause them to stick with Dancy. They resent De Levis' legitimate right to make an effort to get his money back.

De Levis accuses Dancy to his face. The matter is taken to libel court. De Levis is ostracized. But Dancy is found guilty. It is here that the play ends. The implication, of course, is that Dancy is the winner he has lost any position he may ever have had in society or would ever have had. It brings up the question of the "white Jew," the Jew who wouldn't cause his Gentile friends any trouble; it skirts on the "some of my best friends are Jews" sobriquet so often heard of.

Though no new problems are presented in the picture, it is of interest to the Jew by reason of the objective restatement of some old problems. To many Jews, the whole philosophy of Jewish-Gentile relationship will be awakened. Is self respect for one's own race or the respect of Gentile friends more important? Galsworthy seems to say that "self respect" is more important, though that has gained many more followers in the last ten years than there were in the day when Galsworthy first wrote the play.

"Loyalties" shows the gradual awakening of a Jewish consciousness to De Levis as his path be-

Attempt to Kill
Poultry Case Is Told by SpatsWitness Says Jewish
Public Is Now Buying
Dressed Poultry

Because dressed poultry is cheaper and cleaner than live poultry, the Jewish public is buying it in preference to fresh-killed fowl, commission merchants testified yesterday in the trial of the four Schechters for conspiracy to violate the NRA live poultry code.

Louis Spats of the West Washington Market, testifying for the defense, denied the government's contention that the live poultry industry which, in normal times averaged a gross turnover of $60,000,000, and has now shrunk to $20,000,000 because of evil competitive practices in the industry.

Answering assertions of Special Assistant U. S. Attorney Rice that New York City is the dumping ground for diseased poultry, Spats asserted that New York City is the dumping ground for surplus poultry but not for diseased fowl. He denied that there were unfair practices within the industry.

Under cross examination Spats admitted that he and two other commission merchants approached Leroy Peterson, supervisor of the live poultry code, and asked him to quash the case against the Schechters. He caused a flurry of excitement when he quoted Peterson as saying that he would convict the Schechter brothers in order to help the industry.

Earlier in the afternoon Herbert Funkel, another commission merchant at the West Washington Court, declared that only one-tenth of one per cent of the poultry brought into this city is unfit for consumption and not two per cent as charged by Rice. He admitted, however, that he did not know that in the year of 1933, 290,000 pounds of poultry was destroyed because it was diseased.

Albert Garlick, another commission merchant, attributed the shrinkage in the industry to the fact that the younger Jewish element has switched to dressed poultry. He also charged that bad publicity has damaged the industry.

He denied that there is any diseased poultry in the city. "I can't see how poultry can be diseased unless the government inspection is no good," he said.

All three merchants declared that the code was ruining their business and all said they were against it. The trial will be resumed this morning.

SLANTS ON SPORTS

By MORRIS WEINER

Friday Football Fancies Violet Vagaries

The grid gossip on University Heights has the N. Y. U. boys all primed to take their formidable Georgetown opponent in stride. However, there is more faith in the team than form. Despite the fact that the lads from Washington have not been defeated or even scored upon this season, Morris Weiner Violet makes it free.

Joe Mandell, one of the many star Jewish footballers on the Hall of Fame's roster, staged a strong bid for a starting assignment all week long and the chances are that he'll be in on the opening kickoff. Charlie Siegal, the diminutive quarterback who hurt his knee two weeks ago, has not been very active during the last few days and will probably see no action tomorrow.

Mandell, who played on the same team at James Monroe High school as Nat Machlowitz, successfully quarterbacked the Violets last week-end. He is a clever passer and a good runner and may prove a barrier to the Georgetown machine.

Levi Fischer, who is getting his first break in four years of ball at the Heights, was praised along with Nat Machlowitz when Coach Mal Stevens spoke to your sports scribe. He also said, "Any team that is unscathed on and undefeated must be a smart and tough combination. It should not be taken too lightly by any opponent."

And, Alan Cohen, first-string Jewish guard from Boro Park, is one of the reasons why Georgetown has had such a successful year.

We'll string along with Cohen and look on Georgetown to win once again.

Beaver Bunter

Although Benny Friedman called C. C. N. Y.'s next opponent a tough nut to crack, he believes City will win tomorrow.

At an informal gathering the other night, at the Hotel President, Benny told those whom he chooses to call his "football friends" that Drexel isn't the Navy, nor is it St. Mary's, but still he considers the Philadelphia team a problem.

"They're tough," Friedman said of Drexel, as well he may, Saturday's visitors having won three of four games played this season. "It has been no let down at the Lewishohn Stadium these October afternoons as Friedman and his players prepare for the battle ahead. The attack, built around Adolph Cooper, is being geared to a faster pace, this capable back having demonstrated marked ability to pass and run in recent games."

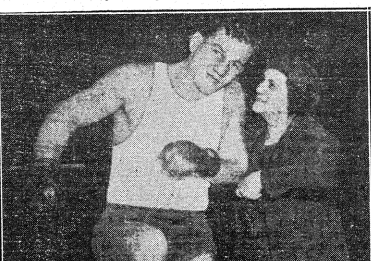

Lester Rosner, all-American lacrosse man, will start at end tomorrow in place of Dwyer. Lou Pincowitz, Hyman Volpert, Milton Levin, and Cooper, all starters in the Drexel game tomorrow, reveal their thing at least, haven't changed under the Friedman regime at City. The boys may be good and better than ever but the names are still kohler.

We place our dough on the line for City.

Maccabi Moves

Alec Matelon, the representative of the World Maccabi Union and a member of the Palestine Olympic Committee, who came to America six weeks ago for an intensive drive for new members, sails today aboard the Berengaria for London. In an exclusive interview with the Jewish Daily Bulletin,

Remember, Keed, No More Fan Dancers

"Leaping Lena" Levinsky, sister of the well known Kingfish Levinsky, is telling her "keed bruder" to lay off fan dancers and keep his mind on training in order to beat Art Lasky next month in Chicago.

"Leaping Lena" Levinsky, sister of the well known Kingfish Levinsky, is telling her "keed bruder" to lay off fan dancers and keep his mind on training in order to beat Art Lasky next month in Chicago.

Matelon said, "The most characteristic feature of the Maccabi movement is that it stands for all things that affect our honor as men; it develops among its members rigid and uncompromising attitude when a question of honor arises. This quality has always been our due, but our race has been deprived of this for no apparent reason. We threw away that noble character during the course of a very short period immediately after the destruction of the second Temple. Ever since, our independence has been ignored. And, although the free spirit of the old Jewish prophets and warriors has from time to time played a very prominent role in our history, we have been suffering from what might be called an inferiority complex."

"This feeling of inferiority has been thrust upon us, but we are a race that has surmounted greater difficulties. In the past our rights have been ignored, our sensibilities overlooked and our culture and religion denied to us. The Maccabi movement is the upbuilding of a self-conscious and socially independent Jewish youth."

"All through our history we have believed in a sound mind, in a sound body and the Maccabi movement has shown and will show the world that we, as Jews, are both mentally and physically fit. The Second Maccabed, the Palestine World Jewish Athletic Games, is the means whereby we can reveal our excellence in the world of sports. My advice to all Jewish youth in America is to get into the Maccabi movement. It has become part of the new Jewish athletic renaissance."

"The Rodeo Has Three More Days

The Garden has been turning them away from its doors ever since the Rodeo hopped into town on the back of those rip-martin bronses. The people like it because there's no chance of a raw decision. Once a guy is thrown he's hooked. There are no judges who can disagree or a referee who can stop the fight.

The Rodeo remains in town until Sunday night and the bronses are leading the cowboys by a 750 percent for their batting average.

American Soccer League

Two local rivals, the Brooklins and the Brooklyn Celtics, will clash in an American League Soccer game at Starlight Park on Sunday afternoon. In another league contest, also on Sunday, the Brooklyn Hispanos will meet the Newark Germans at Commercial Field, Brooklyn.

Bronx "Y" Plans

Ambitious Fall Program

The basketball team at the 92nd street "Y" is fast rounding into shape and looms as the strongest quintet that has represented the "Y" in the last decade. Tubby Raskin, the coach, has developed a fast moving five that is a sure-fire combination on the court.

Likewise, the boxing and wrestling teams are rounding into shape under the guidance of Jackie Falke, Joe Thomas, and Joe Glick.

At the same time, we learn that there is a wealth of material available for the Women's varsity basketball squad.

Also, according to the arrangements made by the gym instructors and the various athletic managers of the councils, the basketball tournaments which will begin in the early part of November, will be followed later in the season with indoor baseball, handball, and volleyball.

Lasky, Levinsky, and 'Leaping Lena' Levky

When Art Lasky knocked King Levinsky into the lap of Leaping Lena Levky last August, the Kingfish declared that it was high time he married.

Lasky, a Jewish boxer from the Coast, immediately came East for a fight with Steve Hannas, the Prize of Pennsylvania. Levinsky, the fish peddler from Chicago, immediately flew to Chicago and met Sophie Glickstein, the fan dancer who was doing a Sally Rand at the World's Fair.

Lasky lost to Hannas and Levinsky married Sophie. Maury Lasky, brother manager of Art, appealed the decision that the judges had awarded to Hannas, lost, and started back to Los Angeles by car. He intended to stop off at Chicago.

"Leaping Lena" Levky, sister-manager of the Chicago Windbag, better known as the Windy City Terror, tried to win her "keed bruder" back to her side. She pictured glowing details of the heavy-weight championship that the King would win some day and she insisted the fact that a world's champion couldn't be a fan dancer's husband. Levinsky, soaked Sophie, Sophie said, "Leaping Lena" signed the King and Maury Lasky pulled into Chicago.

Everybody's happy. The King is to fight Lasky next month in the Windy City and 'Leaping Lena' will once again be in the corner of the Fish Market Asasasin.

Nashashibi Seeks Appointive Council

Moslem Opposition Against Elections for Legislative Body

(I.T.A. Special Correspondence)

JAFFA, Oct. 11.—Arab leaders will not oppose a Legislative Council to which the members are appointed, and not elected, in the event that the Moslems learned after a meeting of Moslem opposition chieftains who swear allegiance to Ragheb Bey Nashashibi, defeated Mayor of Jerusalem.

It was agreed that the proposal for appointed members be supported and that the government should be asked not to hold elections for the council, but to name members on the basis of its own selection or nomination by Arab parties.

This policy, it is contended here, is evidently intended to ensure a seat, if not the presidency, in the Council for Raskin. It is believed unwilling to try his chances in further elections after his recent defeat.

Whether it's local, domestic or foreign, if it's news about Jewish life you'd find it in the Jewish Daily Bulletin.

M. Shein Weds Rodriguez Kin In Mexico City

Former New Yorker to Sister-in-Law of President

(Jewish Telegraphic Agency)
MEXICO, D. F., Oct. 25.—One of the most important events in the current social season took place here today when Max M. Shein, local Jewish business man and a former New Yorker, married Senorita Maria Amparo Viderique, sister-in-law of President Abelardo Rodriguez.

The ceremony was held in the Presidential residence, Chapultepec Castle. The President and the Minister of National Economy, Primo Villa Michel, were witnesses for the bride, while Gerson Pappo and engineer Jose Yakovlev were the bridegroom's witnesses.

After the ceremony dinner was served, with Madame Alda S. de Rodriguez, wife of the President and sister of the bride, as hostesses.

The event is drawing attention because of its political significance, uniting as it does a Jew and one of the leading Mexican families. Shein came here from New York about nine years ago. He is active in the "Bnai B'rith and is widely known in local Jewish circles because of his many contributions to Jewish charities. He is thirty years old and owns a doll factory. His mother resides in New York.

Local friends declare his mother first opposed the marriage, but later gave her consent.

106 Jews Dismissed From Vienna Posts

Discharge of Jewish Officials Continues Relentlessly, Praha Press Reports

(Jewish Telegraphic Agency)
PRAHA, Oct. 25.—Eighty Jewish officials were discharged from the Vienna municipal government, and twenty-six Jewish doctors in the service of the city were also dismissed, the Prager Press, organ of Foreign Minister Eduard Benes, reported today in a dispatch from Vienna.

Dismissal of Jewish employees in the service of the municipality is continuing, the Prager Press reported, adding that Vienna officials have announced that Jewish women doctors will soon be ousted from posts in the schools' clinics for dental diseases.

cal economic situations and the relation of religion to them; Sociology—an introduction to the study of group cultures and processes.

Evening lectures, open to the general public, will deal with the issues having to do with the relations of church and state, under the following heads: Church and state in the United States, presented by a Catholic, a Jew and a Protestant on successive evenings; popular movements fostering intolerance; religious liberty in the United States, and racial theories and propaganda.

President Tyler Dennett of Williams College in a letter to the committee, which was read by chairman Newton D. Baker, who presided, reported the action of the board of trustees of Williams College to the effect that the program for the institute will be formulated by a committee including leaders of the National Conference and representatives of the college faculty.

In announcing the institute, Mr. Baker said:

"We must know one another as we are all members of the crew of the same ship. Our cooperation is necessary for the safety of the ship and every ignorance and every prejudice among us is a danger. The Williamstown Institute we are organizing will be as free as a college campus and we hope as productive of loyalty to and sympathy for high things." Co-chairmen with Mr. Baker are Roger W. Straus and Professor Carlton J. H. Hayes.

Three hundred communities in this country are now engaged in experimentation on social educational procedures and demonstrations of the technique for improving inter-group relations, the co-chairmen reported.

Let's find out why Turkish tobacco is so important to a good cigarette

On the sunny slopes of Smyrna . . . in the fertile fields of Macedonia . . . along the shores of the Black Sea . . . grows a kind of tobacco that is different from any other tobacco in the world.

THESE Turkish tobaccos are the only tobaccos of foreign cultivation that are used to any great extent in making American cigarettes. Turkish tobaccos are famous for their spicy aroma, and a blend of the right kinds of Turkish tobacco with our own home-grown tobaccos is better than any one kind used alone.

In Chesterfield we balance mild, ripe tobaccos grown in this country with just the right amounts of the right kinds of Turkish.

It is by blending and cross-blending these different tobaccos that we make Chesterfield the cigarette that's milder, the cigarette that tastes better.

Native tobacco grows telling American tourists how Turkish tobacco is cured.
