Hints Poland Will Bar Jews In Parliament

Reprisal for Protests by Dr. Thon, Polish Daily Reports

(Jewish Telegraphic Agency) WARSAW, Dec. 4.—Polish Jewry, 3,000,000 in number, may not have any representation in the next Polish parliament, it is dis-closed here by the well-informed Polish daily, Illustrowany Kurjer Codzienny.

This, it is understood, may be an act of revenge on the part of an act of revenge on the part of the Polish government against the strongly worded address delivered in the Polish parliament by Dr. Joshua Thon, in which he accused the Polish government before the entire world of mistreating the Jewish population and of reducing it to beggary.

To Lose Representation

According to the Polish paper, the electoral system in Poland will be changed in such a way that it will be impossible for the Jewish minority to return a single deputy to the Sejm. A special parliamen-tary session will be held, the journal asserted, and the constitution will be amended, abolishing pro-portional representation in the Sejm and in the Senate.

The present election ordinance, according to the paper, will be replaced by a system similar to the British constituency majority system. Because there is no constituency in the whole of Poland in which Jewish electors have an absolute majority, they will thus be deprived of representation in the parliament.

For printing the speech delivered by Dr. Thon in the parliament, in which he complained of the desperately difficult position of Polish Jewry, a Jewish weekly, Yiddishes Folksblat, which appears in Bielsk, Polish Upper Silesia, was confiscated today.

Reich Zionists Fear Nazi Ban On Movement

Attacks by Berlin Press Give Leaders Concern Over Future

(Jewish Telegraphic Agency)
BERLIN, Dec. 4.—Fears were expressed here today that the Zionist movement in Germany, which has hitherto been permitted by the Nazi government, may soon be prohibited.

A tense situation for Zionist activities in Germany has been precipitated by a series of anti-Zionist articles now running in the Voelkische Beobachter, the official organ of the Nazi party and of the German government. The articles are written by Dr. Alfred Rosenberg, Hitler's right hand man, and are prominently featured on the front page of the Beobachter.

Identifying Zionism of today with the "Protocols of the Elders of Zion," Rosenberg charges that the German Zionists betrayed Germany during the World War. He quotes speches of Zionist leaders and protocols of Zionist meetings in Germany, in London and in Carlsbad, aiming to show that the German Zionists weakened Ger many's allies during the World War by fighting Turkey to promote Zionist aims.

Flays Reich Pact on Saar As Worthless

Gives Nazis Six Months to Collapse Before Boycott Attack

A blistering denunciation of the League of Nations and a warning that no treaty Nazi Germany signs is worth the paper it is written on was oiced by Samuel Untermyer, American and world boycott leader who returned in triumph from London yesterday, where he was elected president of the World Non-Sectarian Anti-Nazi League Council to Champion Human Rights.

Mr. Untermyer expressed com-plete satisfaction with the progress of the anti-Nazi boycott movement and declared he was certain that before "six months are over the boycott organization will, I believe, startle the world will, I believe, startle the world by demonstrating that an economic boycott, concentrated against a nation that has outraged and de-fied civilization, can be made an effective substitute for war. That is the experiment we have em-barked on and in which fourteen nations have already joined. More are expected to join later."

Flays Saar Pact The boycott leader was vehement in his denunciation of the treaty between France and Germany on the Saar question. "It appears," he declared, "from inspired German press reports cabled from Rome that details of the agreement between France and Germany in the event that the Saar plebiscite favors Germany will not be available until tomor-row, when the committee of three reports to the Council of the

"Under no circumstance should the League consider the return of the Saar to Germany, unless mi-nority rights and racial and religious freedom are assured.

"The bully of Europe seems to have terrorized the League committee into the perpetration of one of the greatest wrongs of modern times. If that represents the views of the League, it will prove a curse instead of a protection. It a curse instead of a protection, it has destroyed every remnant of hope and respect in the League. In the future the League will be a lifeless thing fit only for world contempt."

Mr. Untermyer was very optimistic regarding prospects of the boycott movement in the world, declaring that the movement was becoming stronger every day. Criticizes British Press

He was severely critical, how-ever, of the British press which, he claimed, had ignored the world boycott conference.

"I had always visualized Great Britain as the truest and greatest democracy on earth-most responsive to the will of the people—far more so than our own. I was mistaken. My recent experience has satisfied me that it is nothing of the kind.

"On the contrary, its newspapers are really less free and more sub-servient to the will of the government in power and its policies than any power on earth except Germany, where the press is the mere obedient servant of the State. The vaunted freedom of the British press is a delusion.

Quections Sincerity 'Let me illustrate! Our conference lasted four days, and was attended by eminent delegates and speakers from many countries. It culminated in a vast meeting, crowded to the doors by thousands of people, and was addressed by such men as Herbert Morrison, the Labor leader, Dr. Paul Hutchin-son of Chicago and others.

"There were dozens of reporters from leading British papers, but from leading British papers, but not a line in any of these speeches appeared in any paper of conse-quence. On inquiry, it was ascer-tained that this was through the influence of the German represeninnuence of the German represen-tatives in London who, of course, were kept fully informed, com-municated to British authorities. The two governments are trying The two governments are trying to negotiate one of these asinine agreements which, like others, Germany will keep or repudiate as her interests require. So the British press was instructed to boy-cott the boycotters. The radio broadcasting, being under government of the property of the sible with us."

Boycott Substitute for War The enternational Non-Sectar. ian conference held in London, resulting in the creation and organization of the World Non-Sectarian Anti-Nazi Council to Champion Human Rights, gives every promise of being a great world economic power. Before it is six months old it will, I believe, startle the world by demonstrating that an economic boycott, concentrated against a nation that has outraged and defied civilization, can be in an effective substitute for war. That is the experiment on which having been an active orga we have now embarked and in the dress trade in Chicago.

which fourteen nations have al-ready joined us Many more are expected to join.

"Germany will learn that this "Germany will learn that this "Ersatz" game can be played both ways. We already know of 510 articles formerly imported from Germany that are now, for the first time, being manufactured in America; the same is true of Great Britain. But that is a mere be-ginning. There is no reason why we cannot manufacture here practically all our needs that we have been getting from Germany.

Hitler Preparing For Conflict
"With this irresistible force from all classes and directions cooperating the world over, it will be a question of a short time only when this cruel medieval reign will crumble from economic starvation. In that way only can the war be averted for which Hitler is fever-ishly preparing, with the aid of countries which, like ours, are short-sightedly bartering with Ger-many for the exchange of our raw manufactured goods made by semimaterial, such as cotton, for the pauper German labor that will come into competition with our own manufactures, to the destruc-tion of the latter. We cannot compete against the 'dumping' methods, 'blocked' marks and in-numerable other tricks and devices to which Germany is being per-mitted to resort.

"We have no grievance against "We have no grievance against the German people; they have been caught like rats in a trap and are held like a vice in the terrorist grip of this despot."

Reception For Delegates

B. Levy Spurs Division Petitions Members of Legislature, Citing Other States

An appeal to secure relief from existing Sunday Law statutes for those observing the Sabbath on another day than Sunday was sent to all members of the New York State Legislature by the Jewish Sabbath Alliance of America. Em-bodied in the appeal is a report of a survey, just completed, which the Alliance took of all Sunday laws of the forty-eight States.

The Legislature will be asked, in the coming session, to permit those who religiously observe a seventh day as their Sabbath to attend to their vocations on Sun-days without police interference.

In its survey the Alliance points out that twenty States in the Union give better recognition to religious observers of other days than Sunday than does New York State. In seven of these States no laws whatsover regulate labor or business on Sunday, They merely require one day's rest in seven. In twelve States evention granted those observing any other day than Sunday. New York State, however, merely grants a sufficient defense for work only to those observing another day of the week as holy time and does not include business, as is done in twenty States.

Copyrighted Jewish Daily Bulletin Inc. A Poor Job

The campaign which Alfred Rosenberg, Hitler's right hand man, has launched against the Zionist movement in Germany can be easily explained. It is directly connected with the trial of the "Protocols of the Elders of Zion" which is to resume soon in Berne. Herr Rosenberg is the translator of these "Protocols" into German. As a matter of fact, his entire political career was bailt up on the works which he published in connection with the "Protocols." Now that the court in Berne is to establish the spuriousness of this document, Herr Rosenberg feels that he must save his face by linking the Zionist movement to the "Protocols."

The series of articles which Herr Rosenberg is now run-ning in the Voelkische Beo-bachter, alleging that German Zionist leaders, acting as an integral part of the fictitious "Jewish international," be-trayed Germany during the war, will not be taken seriously international." by anyone who knows some thing about the role which the Jews played in the German army during the World War. The fact that not less than 12,000 Jews fell on the German front is the best argument against Herr Rosenberg's allegation.

Everybody knows that dur-ing the war, the small Zionist groups in Germany were totally isolated from the world Zionist movement. It is therefore absurd to state-as Rosenberg does—that the Zionist leaders of Germany helped the anti-German powers to win Pales-tine away from Turkey.

Nazi leaders have on many occasions emphasized the fact that Zioniśm, as a purely nationalistic movement, coincides with the nationalistic and rac-ial theories which National Socialism is preaching. It was on the strength of this theory that Zionist activities have so far not been prohibited in Germany.

Now Rosenberg comes and upsets this theory. Anxious to whitewash the "Protocols," he tries very hard to attach to the Zionist movement the idea that German Zionist leaders interfered in internal affairs and directly helped the allies against Germany. The job which Herr Rosenberg is now doing will, however, not influence any but the most preju-diced. It will certainly not influence the court in Berne.

Little Red Talmud Torah

By JACOB S. GOLUB

In The Bulletin of Sunday, No-vember 18, Rabbi Silver in his weekly column takes occasion to launch an attack against Jewish adventors Pahhi Silver states he had read in the Hadoar that among a group of young American Chalutzim there were no representatives of Talmud Torah students. He further asserts that most of the Talmud Torah graduates have gone over to the ranks of Com-munism. This serves the rabbi as an occasion for attacking the secularism and anti-religious char-acter of Talmud Torahs and Bu-reaus of Jewish Education.

Jewish educators, Rabbi Silver charges, are conducting institutions that resemble more Berlitz than religious schools. The average Talmud Torah represents an arid grind of language instruction unrelieved by any warmth of spirit-ual or ethical teaching, and calculated to repel young people from Judaism.

Calls Accusation A Slander

An accusation against the leadof our Talmud Torahs that they conduct dry language courses without including the classical re-ligious literature and without attempting in any way to move the pupils emotionally is intentionally or unintentionally a slander. Torah, our religious classic par excellence, our religious classic par excellence, is the basic study in every Talmud Torah and is the main criterion for graduation. The prophets, early and latter, are taught in their original powerful cadences only in the Talmud Torahs. Similarly, Mishnaic and Talmudic literature are only taught in the upper partments of the Talmud Torahs. Nor are customs, ceremonial worship omitted, as Rabbi Silver implies.
On the contrary, the Talmud

Torah has developed a program of festive observance that stirs the child far more profoundly than the traditionally inherited forms ever could. The Talmud Torahs, too, have brought Jewish music and have evolved a program of wor-ship that is far more beautiful than that carried on in adult synagogues. The Bureaus of Educa-tion have even originated the Keren Ami, a spiritual form of children's philanthropy. Human children's philanthropy. In a man in limitations of personnel often limit the degree of realization of the set ideals, and the wretched eco-nomic condition of our Bureaus has contributed to the loss of many able teachers. Like all human institutions, the realization often falls short of the goal. But then Rabbi Silver has a school of his own and he should understand.

Won't Shut Eyes

To Progress But if the Talmud Torah makes an effort to save as much as is possible of Jewish tradition, the possible of Jewish tradition, the leaders in Jewish education refuse to close their eyes to serious changes in belief and outlook outlook which the modern age has brought about. Rabbi Silver pleads that our children need "not only Jew-ish nationalism, but Judaism, the strong simple faith of their fathers, its colors, its warmth and its glowing mystery." One cannot but glowing mystery." One cannot out restrain a smile at the source of this plea. One wonders when the magnificent Reform temple in which Rabbi Silvers ministers has lost its sophistication and has returned to the strong simple faith of the fathers. Memory is short and even intelligent persons, it seems, cannot overcome their nostalgia for yesterday, with its grime and slime

How quickly we have forgotten that the generation which is today between twenty-five and forty-five was brought up on this old simple faith; that the Russian Commufaith; that the Russian Commu-nists who are destroying religion drives for money. A corporation November 26, 1934.

Dr. Golub, director of the Bureau of Jewish Education of Cincinnati, wrote this open letter in reply to an article by Dr.
Abba Hillel Silver in the Bulletin November 18. Dr. Silver's article attracted attention of Hebrew educators in all parts of the country, several taking strong exception to his conclueione.

-that the Jewish Bundists in Eastern Europe, to whom every-thing Jewish is an anathema, received the precise upbringing which ceived the precise upbringing which Rabbi Sliver would now restore. That strong simple faith is already so much of the past that it has already become the romantic po-etry of some of our brethren, and it is humanly understandable how sometimes romance is taken for reality.

Holds Educators Are Earnest Group

Jewish educators as a group are very earnest seekers after spiritual truth, and for that reason cannot find it in supernatural theology or in turbid self-mystification seek a_realistic religion that can sincerely express us as moderns and Jews, and if we have not yet found it we refuse to drape our uncertainty with the patriotic mantle of the fathers.

And what the accusation in the Hadoar that, among a group of young Chalutzim planning to leave for Palestine, not one knew Hebrew. The writer is witness to an-other group where the opposite was the fact. The writer spent several days at a Hachsharah farm in Earlton, N. Y. In conjunction with the farm there was also conducted a camp of the Hashomer Hatzair. All the members of the Hachsharah farm spoke Hebrew and conducted most of their ac-tivities in Hebrew. A large portion of the camp, too, represented boys and girls of the Hebrew schools who knew Hebrew and could speak the language.

Scoffs at Charge Of Communism

ly, Rabbi Silver charges them with being breeding places of Communism. Poor, weak Talmud Torahs, what burdens they are made to bear! Red bait can apparently be invoked, even in a private Jewish quarrel. Rabbi Silver knows very well why it is that young New York Jews turn Communist and that the reason has nothing to go with their Tewish schooling Intelligent young people caught in the double vise of depression and double vise of depression and severe anti-Jewish discrimination naturally rebel at the circum-stances which limit them. Hunger has always made rebels. Have not our young people sufficient provocation to resent a social order in which they are already pariahs and outcasts at the very beginning of their careers? Can they readily forgive their own people for failing to batter down the exceptional discriminations which rise up against them as Jews? A Jewish community that so betrays it young people may expect only bit-

"Cruel Jest" On Young Minds

Rabbi Silver's graduates, fortun-ately, are not faced with similar difficulties. But these young Jews of New York who are face to face with the struggle of existence can-not be fed on religious soothing not be fed on religious scothing syrup, on promises of bilss in the hereafter, or on abstract social idealism which they may never translate into conduct. And it is a cruel jest upon these young people to ascribe their state of mind to their Jewish schooling.

Finally, one may ask Rabbi Silver how complete his own success has been with a program that is all dedicated to religion and good deeds? Has he raised a generation of practical idealists, of men and women who are ready to devote themselves to the welfare of their community? How many of the hundreds of confirmants who have received his benediction have found their place in the ranks of workers for the Hebrew renascence or within the Zionist movement? have drives for funds in his city failed so consistently? Is it com-pletely the fault of the other

"Equality for Jews" in the Saar The agreement between the French and the German governments which provides "equality" for the Jews in the Saar for the limited period of one year is nothing but a betraval of the Jews by the French government.

agreement is another This proof that when it comes to in-ternational interests the Jews are used merely as a tool in the hands of one government against the other.
It was the French government which stimulated various Jewish grouns to send memorandums to the League of Nations asking that the Saar should not be turned over to Germany unless Jewish equality is fully guaranteed there. It was the French Foreign Office that wanted to see as many Jewish petitions to the League as possible. Jews Sold Out

The Jews were used by the French government as a medium to create more sentiment against turning the Saar over to Ger-many. In exchange the French government promised the Jewish leaders that everything would be done to protect the Jews in the Saar.

What has happened to this promise now?

As soon as Germany agreed to pay sixty million dollars com-pensation to France for the French mines in the Saar, the Jewish interest were practically sold out by the French. A bargain was struck to leave the Jews in the Saar for another year on their present status. What will happen to them after the year is over nobody seems to care.

French Guilty Conscience This shameful betrayal is in This snameriu betrayal is in itself an acknowledgement that the French government had serious obligations towards the Jews. The paragraph providing equality for the Jews for one year is a perfect reflection of the French guilty conscience.

It can be stated unequivocally that if not for the Jewish issue the French government would not have had much chance to obtain even the sixty million obtain even the sixty million dollars which she is to get from Germany for its share in the Saar. Of all the issues which France was ready to raise against Germany with regard to the Saar, the problem of Jewish with relative to the Saar, the problem of Jewish minority rights was to be the strongest.

The Jews of Vienna

the Editor, Jewish Daily Bulletin: I have read the correspondence f A. Abramsohn describing the sad plight of the Jews of Vienna who are selling out their belongines in order to raise sums to anable them to go to Eretz Yisrael. The tragedy of this matter is that there are no buyers for these Jewish belongings.

The heart of every Jew with some Jewish feelings is bleeding to see one of the most cultural and most hearty and brotherly parts of European Jewry at the edge of oblivion. Especially are these sorry tidings nerve-shocking for all those who, like me, have had the good fortune to live in Vienna of yore when sunshine resided in every Jewish home

The Viennese Jew had a heart for every Jewish brother who asked for a helping hand, no matter from what clime or part of the globe he came.

And all we Jews who are so for-tunate as to live in this haven of liberty, the United States of Amerinerty, the United States of Amer-ica, and in other countries where the word liberty is not a mock-word, should take the plight of our Viennese brethren to our hearts and souls.

could be organized to buy from them their belongings at fair prices. This corporation could again resell these things in Austria or in other countries. The American Jewish Congress and the Zionist Organization should take the lead in such a scheme.

On William B. Ziff

To the Editor, Jewish Daily Bulletin: The Jewish Daily Bulletin need not worry. It will not lose too many readers as a result of Wil-liam B. Ziff's articles. On the contrary, I believe the Bulletin will gain readers. I myself have rec-ommended the Bulletin to at least four of my friends, mainly and chiefly for the sake of his articles. And so, I believe, will many others.

It is not my habit to write letters to editors, but I do wish to tell Mr. Ziff that he is a real Jew -and a 100 per cent Zionist. His articles prove it. For the sake articles prove it. For the same of our people, may he continue to write his articles in the same spirit. Eventually we might land some place. God help him! ISRAEL KOTLIAREVSKY.

A Lesson for Jewish Leaders The bargain which France has now struck with Germany at the expense of the Jews will no doubt serve as a lesson to those who are conducting Jewish politics. It will teach them to be more diplomatic in the future and not to sell Jewish interests for a not of lentils.

As to the assurances given by the representative of the League of Nations that "there is no ground for excessive pessimism concerning the fate of Saar Jewry," it can only be stated that this assurance simply empha-sizes that when the year is over, the Jews in the Saar will face a situation which warrants pessimism even though not "excessive."

The League of Nations, like the French government, has not justified the hopes laid upon them by world Jewry. Their action has only proven that the interests of national minorities count very little nowadays when it comes to "big business." not for nothing that many countries in Europe are now considering their national minority obligations mere scraps of paper.

The right to be radical, enjoyed by all other races, must not be denied to the Jews.

The activities of a Jew-ish Socialist prove e m barrassing to a Jewish banker or a Jewish Republican. For that matter, the activities of Jewish

The stalwart pride in race which insists that Jews may engage in any trade and hold any political little silly if it stops short in fright beyond the frontiers of able" political opinion.

It is quite true that the prominence of Jews among leaders of finance provides the raw material for anti-Semitic inventions. Our enemies seek to put all the blunders and crimes of high finance at doors of Jewish bankers. Are we, for that reason, to call upon Jews to abstain from banking?

It is no less true that the excesses and mistakes of the amusement industries are blamed upon Jewish film men and theatrical producers who happen to be prominent in those fields. Are we, therefore, in defense of the Jew-ish race, to call upon these businessmen to abandon their callings?

In the same way, Jewish leadership in unpopular political and eco-nomic movements is misused by Jew-haters to brand those movements as Jewish. Are we for that reason to exhort Jews to boycott radical thought and organization?

The same Jews who accept with composure the prominence of Jewry in the judiciary, in finance, in politics, in the arts and sciences, in publishing and education—who are not alarmed by Jewish participation in Tammany Hall and other unsavory political bands—stand unsavory political bands—stand aghast at the fact that in the subversive movements, too, Jews who enter attain leadership.

JEWISH DAILY BULLETIN

Strikes Optimistic Note on Saar

The New York Times comments editorially on the agreement reached between France and Germany or the Saar Basin. The editorial apparently was written be-fore it became known that this agreement provides equality for the Jews in the Saar for one year only. The editorial, therefore, strikes an optimistic note and says:

An incidental feature of the agreement is that Germany un-dertakes to accord full protection to the minorities in the Saar, including the Jews, of whom the number in that region is comparatively small.

If this German promise is lived up to in good faith, the volume of refugees from the Saar, whether Jews or Catholics, may not be so great as had been feared.

Sees Loophole

The Herald Tribune emphasizes the fact that the Franco-German agreement on the Saar provides equality for the Jews which is to last not longer than one year. The paper states:

Details of the accord were not available today, pending its presentation to the League Council. But it is understood that Germany guarantees that residents of the Saar who do not vote in the plebiscite, as well as those who do vote, will receive full official protection and be as-sured of freedom from molestation during an entire year fol-lowing the vote, regardless of race, religion or language.

This is considered the most important feature of the agree-ment; but it is said that Germany makes a reservation as regards length of residence in the Saar which will exclude from the guaranty exiles from Germany who have settled in the Saar recently.

Scrap of Paper

The New York Post terms the paragraph of the agreement protecting Jewish rights in the Saar for a year a "scrap of paper." paper comments editorially:

That the agreement "safe-guards" the rights of all Saar-landers, regardless of language, race and religion, will fool nobody.

Similar "safeguards" were included in the peace treaties, but they have proved to be worth less than the paper they were written on.

How much protection have these safeguards been to Germans, Ukrainians, White Russians or Jews in Poland? To Germans in Polish Silesia? Poles in German Silesia? Yugo-Croats or Slovenes in Yugo-slavia? To any of the minori-ties in defeated states and the new states which came out of the war?

None at all.
And these safeguards will mean nothing at all to the same religious, racial and political elements in the Saar who have been the objects of discrimination and persecution in the Third

Wants Explanation

The New York Sun demands an explanation of now Germany will carry out its promise with regard to the Jews in the Saar. The paper states in an editorial:

The settlement is said to in-volve a threefold pledge by Germany that it will guarantee to non-voters the same status given to voters, that it will grant equal rights to all in respect of state assistance, social insurance and the like and that it will not account of race, language or religion.

There are many Jews in the Saar; how it is proposed to fit this promise into the anti-Semitic policies of Nazi Germany is not yet clear. Doubtless further light on this will appear after the settlement has been submit-ted to the league's council on Wednesday.

Iewish Frontier Analyzes Bias

An analysis of anti-Jewish dis-criminations in the United States is given in the Jawish Frontier by I. M. Rubinow. The author de-

Discrimination is not limited to the economic field. It is probably stronger in the field of social relationships. To mention its obvious manifestations, there is the exclusion of Jews from ordinary private social life, ex-clusion of Jews from clubs, fraternities, summer hotels, certain high - grade apartment houses, etc. Occasionally this form of exclusion calls forth articulate protests, private or public—it has even led to efforts at special legislation—but on the whole American Jewry accepts the situation not very graciously, not very philosophically, but accepts it all the same, and endeavors to adjust its own social and recreational life to existing conditions. Obviously economic discrimination strikes at a very much more vital interest. The Jew finds such discrimination in the field of commercial, industrial, field of commercial, industrial, or even professional employ-ment, and as the vast majority of people are forced to earn their living through employment contract, the possibility of dis-crimination presents a danger for nearly every Jew; even disregarding any specific rumors and charges sometimes denied, sometimes explained, sometimes admitted, by individual firms, it is nevertheless fairly well known that in certain important branches of office and clerical work, the door to the Jew is almost absolutely closed.

Syrian Suspension May Effect Council

That the suspension of the Syrian parliament may indirectly affect the creation of the proposed legislative council in Falestine is predicted in the Near East and India, semi-official organ of the Colonial Office. The paper writes: The suspension of the Syrian parliament will not pass without comment in Palestine, where attention is now being directed to the prospect of the establish-ment of a legislative council.

The inability of Syria, in common with many other countries, to make a success of parliamentary institutions has little bear-ing, however, on the proposed experiment in Palestine. In the latter country the council will be brought into being less with the idea that a more democratic tinge is required for the administration than for the purpose of providing the Jews and the Arabs with a conference cham-ber, where they can meet and come to understand one another It is not to be expected that the two sections of the com-munity will at once settle down to work in complete harmony or will show from the first day a full sense of their responsibil-ities. If they profit by the ex-perience of Syria, they will decide that it is better to acquire by degrees a voice in the regulation of their own affairs than to dispense with it altogether, because they hanker after a fuller measure of independence from the outset.

Another Jew of genius opened ew scientific and philosophical new scientific and philosophical vistas by his theory of relativity. Shall we as Jews therefore have no truck with Einstein's ideas?

And a Jew of genius, similarly, provided the scientific groundwork for Socialist and Communist thought. That seems to me a very inadequate reason why Jews should keep away from Marxist move-

In the Bussian revolution Jews unquestionably played a role out of proportion to their numbers. Their position as a persecuted minority, their higher literacy and wider acquaintance with Wes thought, made that inevitable. The Georgians, being likewise a suppressed minority race under Tsar-ism, took a share not justified by their numerical strength Both Georgians and Jews still hold more power in revolutionary Russia than a strict numerical accounting can

The Judaism which is rassed by such historical facts is a timorous compromise. Jews who oppose radicalism have every right to attack it, but when they argue that Jews as Jews must steep clear of radicalism, there is reason to suspect that their real motive is fear for the safety of the economic status-quo rather than fear for the Jewish race.

Last week we picked a Jewish all-American which Benny Fried-man called "a perfect combina-tion." "It would be a pleasure to coach such a formidable array of grid talent," said Friedman. hind a fast-charging line as you picked, a backfield foursome composed of Cooper, Weinstock, Smukler, and Mintz could travel from New York to the Rose Bowl. a natural."

Today we are selecting the out-standing Jewish scholastic football players for the Bulletin all-metropolitan eleven. With this as a precedent we shall choose such a team each near. Our first team selections follow:

Reasons for Our Choice

Gottlieb, of Boys' High, was picked for left end because of the almost flawless brand of ball he has played at his school for the past two seasons. He won his varsity post last season. He has varsity post has season. He has been rated with the best scholas-tic ends of the past. This year he has proved himself an A-1 end by his ability on the receiving end of

Handler at tackle was one of the rainder at tackle was one or the chief cogs in the Madison offense and defense during the year. He is big, heavy, fast, and a tower of strength on the line. This year he was called out of the line on seasons. His 240 pounds of beef and brawn have made him an almost impassable barrier on the de-fense. He is six feet tall and uses his height to advantage. Despite his tremendous weight, he is a fast youngster.

Jerry Stein, the 165-pound center, has made up in speed, flawless passing, and deadly tackling what he lacked in weight and height. His expert backing-up of the line His expert backing-up of the line as roving center stopped many an enemy attack shortly after it had been started. It was Stein's snaring of that forward pass for a touchdown which put the Rossevelt game on ice for the Madison men. Though he weighs but 165 pounds, his tackles rock the opposition. 210 guards in scholastic football. He is a splendid biolocy, an excellent defensive man and a fine tackler. Bert Levine, the giant tackle from Madison, has displayed real ability on the forward wall and used his weight and height to the best ends. He weighs 215 pounds and stands six feet tall. Expert on diagnosing opposition's plays. No team has made a considerable gain through his position this year.

Kurch, of Commerce High, has shown himself to be one of the deadliest tacklers under kicks. He deatnest tackiers under kicks. He is off like a whippet and hits like a ton of bricks. Snares forwards with dexterity. Hard to ride out on an end play.

Four Aces in Backfield

Marty Glickman, a senior at Madison, is the outstanding foot-ball player in this stellar aggrega-tion. He is destined for big things on collegiate gridirons. For the sec-ond year he has been quarterback of the Golden Tornadoes. He is a or the Golden Tornadoes. He is a brilliant field general, a good line bucker, a perfect passer, and at the same time is the fastest sprinter in the city. He can step 100 yards in 10:2 while in football

Arty Rosenbloom, of Madison, rates as one of the best line buckers in the city. Is very deft at off-tackle shoots. Can pass. Splendid defensive back. Powerful ally to Glickman on the offensive.

Sid Luckman was the Brooklyn scholastic hero a year ago. His ability to romp over a gridiron and ability to romp over a gridinon and tear an opposing team to shreds has stamped him a scholastic great. This year, though, ham-pered by severe physical injuries, he has revealed the flash, form and speed which have made him such a threat in scholastic circles

Mike Morgan as Coach

Early this season, Mike Torgan, coach of the Black and Gold men, who recently won the city cham-pionship, said to your scribe: "We should come through this year in the same fashion as 1929."

After the Erasmus game, in which Madison trampled the Buff and Blue contingent by a score of 25-0, Torgan said: "It took us four years but it looks like we're in." I task Schulzele." in." Last Saturday proved the truth of his words when Madison Roosevelt to the tune of

The reason why Torgan could say these things and get away with them was the fact that his wingmen, tackles, guards and centers averaged over 200 pounds from end to end to make up the heftiest squad of linesmen, scholastic or collegiate, in New York City.

Torgan is an expert coach when it comes to creating fast, shifty backfield men. He has developed such stars as Jack and Nat Grosssuch stars as Jack and Nat Gross-man, Leo Lynn, Sonny Balber and Irv Resnick. Melchett Lauds Maccabi Move As Unity Force

Developing Rapidly in England, He Tells London Meeting

(Jewish Telegraphic Agency) LONDON.—The Maccabi movement differs considerably from other Jewish movements, in the view of Lord Melchett, president of the Maccabi World Union. Speaking at a meeting of the Maccabi Association at Woburn House, Lord Melchett said the movement had come to England comparatively late but was developing at a rapid pace.

"The Maccabi conveys such an essentially English message," the Jewish peer asserted, naming it as sewish peer asserted, naming it as the idea that one could work and play with those who hold differing political views. "In that lies part of England's great strength. Jewry can well learn this lesson, for we are inclined to hold strong views and to be demonstrative in the expression of them."
