Frankfurt, Mar. 20—A Yemenite Jew was killed today by the Erez Precinct Police when he attempted to cross the Yemen frontier on his way to Palestine, the reported.

Thousands of Yemen Jews of have been harassed by the fanatic Jews of Erez, who are emigrating to Palestine as quickly as possible.

Alfred Michel, Yemenite police officer, has prohibited Yemenite Jews from establishing residences of the locals and even barred them from passing through the port on their way to Palestine.

At the Erez hospital, Yemenite Jews were denied entry even though they are of the local group.

In its complaint against the executive, the Zionists note that the present executive, under the leadership of Dr. Max Mark, has refused to facilitate the emigration of Jews from Erez.

The Zionist Federation of Austria has always supported the present executive of the World Zionist Organization. Therefore, it is felt that the present executive should be replaced by a new one that will facilitate the emigration of Jews from Erez.

Milwaukee Attorney Gives His News Prize to Talmud Torah

What do winners of The Jewish Daily Bulletin’s Biggest Jewish of the Week Contests do with their prize money? This question has been asked by many readers of The Bulletin and the answer is that not only are the winners of the two contests the most popular of the past winners if they would rather have the money than the award, but they also do share the $100 awarded weekly with others in the community.

A Milwaukee attorney, I. H. Paley, who won the $100 Biggest Jewish of the Week Contests, donated his first prize of $100 to the Talmud Torah. Mr. Paley wrote the following letter to the Contest Editor:

“At the outset permit me to thank you personally, and also the sum of twenty-five dollars, and may I state that I have donated this sum to the Talmud Torah. I really was surprised to notice my name as the winner of one of the contest prizes.”

One of the many readers of The Bulletin who have entered the Biggest News contest, won with his very first letter.

Winning Miss Boys Handbag

M. J. Waldman, of Milwaukee, N. Y., who was awarded a check for ten dollars for her collegiate division some time ago for her excellent letter, told The Bulletin that she was so surprised by the news that she felt the imperative urge to shout to the world.

“I saw a beautiful bag in one of the department stores that my allowance would not permit me to buy. I received prize money I went right over and bought the goods. It really was thrilling. This is the first money that I have ever won in my life. I thank the judge for her,” she wrote.

Miss Waftus is a student at Northwestern University, studying for the teaching profession. And, accordingly, she was not surprised to receive the prize. “I really has a nice taste in handbags.”

Student Takes Vacation

The energetic reporter called upon Leo Messmer, a student at Columbia University, and found that Mr. Messmer was using the money for a week’s vacation at an upstate winter resort.

“I had originally planned to do some college work before Christmas vacation, what with all the work I had missed and no dough, the union fund,” Messmer was the only place. However, when I had all the cash I received some prize prize of twenty-five dollars I immediately called my fraternity brothers and learned they were going upstate. The money certainly came in very handy and I wish to thank everybody on the judi- ciary board.

“You’ve got a splendid paper in The Bulletin and I think it would be a great service to the community. May I congratulate you personally, and also the sum of twenty-five dollars, and may I state that I have donated this sum to the Talmud Torah. I really was surprised to notice my name as the winner of one of the contest prizes.”

The Arthurian legend found its way into Hebrew literature as early as 1276.

Peter Freuchen, a Resurrected Viking, Is a Danish Jew by Birth

Eight Feet Tall, Weighing 330 Pounds, He Is a Unique Figure

By MICHEL KRAJE

Imagine a man eight feet tall, weighing close to 300 pounds, with a large head and a thick, square red beard, with a piercingly cold, twinkling gray-blue eyes and aered nose; a man who limbers his big, heavy body to sidestep the forests of dense and ruthless and cold... and you will have a picture of Peter Freuchen, the Danish explorer, trader among the Eskimos, former naval officer, and writer. He is a short man in Greenland; international adventurer, a man who epitomizes everything we associate with the Viking, is a man who is a Viking alive.

His fame is but recent. Despite a lifetime of exploration and adventure among the Eskimos in the Arctic, Captain Freuchen was for long known chiefly to explorers, scientists, anthropologists, and others interested in Arctic study. Then he came to America, where he has been on lecture engagement and managed to arouse interest in his book, "Eskimos," which had already appeared in several foreign languages. The book was translated and published here, but did not create a stir. Although Freuchen was considered too ethnographical for popular consumption. And then some Hollywood producer saw the opportunity to make a motion picture about the Eskimos. Freuchen's book was bought, and he was sent with the MGM expedition to Alaska, where he was to be filmed.

Becomes an Actor

Up to this time Freuchen had no idea he was an actor. But after he had had genuine Eskimos for various roles, he could see that a man who would look like the trader in his book so he played the villain's role himself. He was all in for an interesting scene picture history.

A queer, unconvincing man is presented to the movie-going public, who is used to see the real, say, the roperien tongues including English, had no trouble leaving the Eskimo dialect, and he was looking upon it as an "snag," a medicine man, with the divine spirit, who knows the past, and who knew through the cultures were great. Recognizing this fact, the present age pointed to a pure and real Eskimo, he discovered an Eskimo who knew the spirit of life that went far beyond the white man's ideas of life, who was given a life, who was given a life.

Until 1934 Freuchen continued to write about his experiences among the Eskimos on expeditions into the remote north of North America, Canada, and lived in the Eskimo dialects.

Weds Eskimo Girl

He married a Canadian Eskimo girl, Nuvangana, who bore him two children, who are both living in the Eskimo language. Their father assured them they were far happier as Eskimos than they would be as whites. Freuchen's wife is dead, but he still speaks her language.

Captain Freuchen is just fifty years old, but is amazingly naive. When he first met the wife of his friend, Rockwell Kent, she asked:

"What a wonderful beard!

"You like it?" and he cut off a great piece and gave it to her. In 1938 he gave up his various interests, including his extensive farm in Denmark, to lend his love and experience to the search for Raoul Amundsen, who was lost in the Nobile flight beyond Arctic Rocks.

Arrested in Germany

Between 1941 and the present day Captain Freuchen has traced around the world on the subject he knows best: the Eskimos. He was seen off the ship bound for Denmark, not so very long ago. He was returning to his second wife and his farm for a while.

Three weeks later I learned by cable that he had been temporarily arrested in Germany, his manuscripts and papers confiscated, his

U.S. AID TO JEWS
By MORRIS MARGULIES
(Secretary, Zionist Organization of America)

Ever since the United States attained its independence—long before the Jewish community gained its present size and importance—the national government represented and supported the friendship for the Jewish people all over the world and, wherever possible, has been actively and effectively intervened in behalf of the oppressed Jews of foreign countries.

In some cases, when the situation was grave enough, the government was ready to stretch a diplomatic point in order to come to the rescue of the "children of Abraham."

Often Aid Uncoordinated

Again, with the exception of Great Britain, whose policy closely parallels that of our own government in almost every respect, Jews in the U.S. have not done much, very often, uncoordinated, for the succoring of Jewish unfortunate wherever their cry of anguish might arise. In a great many cases, Jews have amply

Disatisfaction

The great dissatisfaction with the methods of distribution of Palestine immigration certificates is probably, more manifested recently in Poland than it ever before in Austria. The Austrian Zionist Federation has decided to lodge a protest with the Austrian Government. The Dismaintenance for the inadequate number of immigration certificates granted by it for Austrian Jews.

The Jews of Poland and Austria are demanding that they be right in their protests against the Zionist Executive, but the fact remains that the Zionist Organization of America in Austria have always supported the present Executive. Hence it must be assumed that their present dissatisfaction is probably based on solid arguments.

At a press conference in February, yesterday, members of the Executive explained that German Jews have brought into Poland certificates valued at not less than fifty million dollars. This cannot be halted since the capital in Austria.

The Jewish Refugee Council in Austria depend much more on immigration certificates from the Palestine Executive than the Jews from Germany.

That the miserable situation of the Jews in Austria and Poland, however, does not mean that Austrians and Poles, respectively, deserve more attention than the Jews from Germany.

Jews do not realize that the U.S. government understands and respects the wishes of the Jews from Germany and should not be regarded as a "Man's Land." The French government has provided passports to thousands of Polish Jews—albeit which aims at the destinations of foreign Jews from France.

This postponement will spell ruin to the movement of Jews—Polish and German—who have made their homes in France permanently. The French government is reluctant to obtain Jewish citizenship.

The solution of the "Men's Land" as emigrants immediate after the Soviet revolution. But now, the Polish emigrants, who made Parts of the Third Reich, have developed new business enterprises and definitely decided to remain in France permanently on their Nansen passports. Many of these children who were born in France.

These Jews of "No Man's Land" who could not return to Russia because of their social past would be in a serious position if they were not here.

The Polish Jews in France Not Forgotten

The Polish Jews in France are not forgotten. The situation of thousands of Polish Jews in France. These Jews are not forgotten by their fellow Jews. Jewish numbers from Poland to France, and by the end of the War, have built up new trades in France and have especially decided to settle in the provinces. They are not settled in Poland, a re-immigration to their native country could be done.

Added to the Russian and Polish Jews, there are thousands from Germany who would find themselves in a precarious position if France were to be expelled from under the protection of the League of Nations. These refugees could not return to Germany because of the Hitlery. The refusal of any one of these refugees is to be arrested and deported. The present French Government proves that he has not engaged in anti-Semitic propaganda abroad. It is to be noted that this is underestimated.

It is estimated that there are in France today no less than 300,000 Polish Jews, a large part of them are of Jewish ancestry, who would find their way into other countries, but a good number of them are people who live in the provinces which benefit upon relief. As a matter of fact, they are being sustained by the Jewish charitable organizations.

The Birth of the "Alien Bill"

The anti-ali bill, though it is long overdue, though it would affect hundreds of thousands of Jews, has been hailed by the Jewish community as a possible step in the right direction. The bill is expected to be made into law in the near future. It is expected to do away with the "Alien Bill."

Incentive for the bill arises from the strained relations now existing between the United States and the other countries of the world. There are tens of thousands of Jews in Poland, France, employed chiefly in mines and in agriculture. As long as the bill is not passed, the Jews in the U.S. and France, the French Jews are not entirely satisfied. In fact, many of them believe that all of the Polish laborers are employed in French industries. The French commercial interests are not pleased with the new political climate, as it hampers the sizable number of French Jews who have remained in the land. The situation will be improved if the bill is passed.

New York Jewry: Ancestors of Refugees

How many New Yorkers are dealing with the problem of helping Jewish refugees from former Soviet countries? One of the most prominent is Rabbi Jacob Neumann, president of the Central Synagogue in New York City, who is also head of UJA-Federation, the Jewish community federation that raises money for Jewish causes. Rabbi Neumann and other leaders of the Jewish community are working to provide assistance to the new arrivals, who are facing a difficult transition period.

Knowledge Essential To a Complete Life

The need for Jewish education for the younger generation is emphasized in an appeal to The Jewish Welfare Board of Vancouver, Canada. The appeal points out:

"Never before in the history of modern Jewish life had there been a greater need to instill into the minds and character of the younger generation the essential values of Jewish culture. In this age of rapid social change, education is more important than ever, and the need for Jewish education is greater than ever." The appeal emphasizes the importance of Jewish education for the future of the Jewish community.

Opposing Viewpoints On Herzl, Baron Hirsch

The American Jewish Outlook, a publication in Pittsburgh, comments on the recent positive view of the Soviet government to liquidate the Jewish autonomy in the Ukraine. The author suggests that this move is part of a broader strategy to suppress Jewish culture and identity in the region. The author also criticizes the recent positive view of the Soviet government to liquidate the Jewish autonomy in the Ukraine.

"The Sky's the Limit," with Joseph Smith and Charles Dale, which will have a very limited run at the Fulton Theatre, was a very snappy little one-act play.

I was overcome with a slight, piercing nostalgia for my bygone days when the week was not complete unless I had seen at least one vaudeville show. In those seemingly distant days the Avon Comedy Hour (you remember—"One glass of milk. It shouldn't make you nervous") was one of my favorite shows and in that quarter, Joseph Smith and Charles Dale were to me excruciatingly funny. After sitting through the above-men- tioned play and witnessing the antics of those not-so-wonderful comedians, I feared that this was happening to my sense of humor, for I could not laugh at all.

Perhaps it was the play itself, which excessively concerned itself with a satire on radio advertising and told what the public is publicized to think about a comic book. I hope, very soberly, that my feelings about "The Sky's the Limit" were caused by my personal rights rather than a perifilization of my sense of humor.

The statement says that:

We recognize that honest differences of opinion exist on major problems and we respect a healthy difference when it is seeking the truth. To this end we will lend our columns so that agreements can be reached by means of open and free discussion.

We feel that prejudices are frequent barriers to the development of intelligence and that information can do much to eliminate it.

The book, which is fine and hopeful in Jewish life that does not realize as much attention of the series of sad occurrences which usually fill the news.

We invite the readers to share our obligation with us by giving a voice to some of the quibbles in the world thereby making this paper an organ of better understanding.

In an editor’s note ‘The American Jewish Outlook’ says: “It is happy and proud to be able to offer to its readers the exclusive services of the family famous and highly efficient Jewish Telegraphic Agency Service, which ranks with other great news services of the world.”

- In LET'S TAKE STOCK! Mr. Borden presents a penetrating, realistic report on aspects of American Jewish life.
- Here are no maudlin, sentimentalized self-probing and high-sounding generalizations.
- The writer deals in FACTS. He has marshalled an astounding array of revealing information about the failings of Jews. Some of them are amazing enough to warrant inclusion in a "believe-it-or-not" volume.
- The articles, presenting as they do a vivid, truthful (even if it hurts) picture of our own fumbles and foibles, are intensely constructive.
