Boycott Forces Nazi Line To Stop Calls at San Diego

(San Diego to the J.D.R.)

SAN DIEGO, Calif., May 15—German steamers will no longer call at the San Diego port as a result of the boycott of German goods and services, the press of San Diego reports today.

Local manufacturers, whose commodities have been banned by anti-Nazi groups with a boycott, have been threatened with being driven into the port by the government. The government has ordered all German ships to leave the port by the end of next week.

Therefore were asked to be directed by anti-Nazi groups with a boycott that they refuse to discharge cargo from any German ship. It was originally planned to bring one of the big German liners into San Diego every two weeks. This plan, however, will not be carried out as local manufacturers have declared that the appearance of German ships in San Diego was distasteful to them because of the recent measures of the government.

The Nazis Lose Their Friends

By VICTOR M. BIESTOCK

[Chief of the European Service, J.T.O.]

LONDON

In all the flurry and tumult of European politics within the past month, amid all the shifting, rapidly changing developments among the contending nations, the one that has so utterly dominated— the title of public sentiment which had flown dangerously close to tottering and which, if it should in any way be_

The Nazis, too, have not been left out. They, too, have been dragged in, and the world is watching with almost as much interest the course of events in Europe. In fact, the course of events has come as a new warning that has brought them some of the most bitter and disastrous lessons of their career. Their brazen disregard of treaties and the threats of their leaders seeking to receive Daxing, Duns, or other countries, has been met with an advance to regain friendship of Germany. Thus, for example, a German air_forces have been engaged in training exercises, and the German government has recently expressed its desire to increase its military strength. In all the flurry and tumult of European politics within the past month, amid all the shifting, rapidly changing developments among the contending nations, the one that has so utterly dominated— the title of public sentiment which had flown dangerously close to tottering and which, if it should in any way be threatened, could cause an even greater reaction among the nations of the world.

To Lose Out With Britain was it with Great Britain that Nazi Germany had first opened her doors, and it is with Great Britain that she now finds herself in a position of strength. The British government has been active in recent weeks have been active. The visit of Sir John Simon and Captain Akinlolu Oke to Berlin has been hailed as a German triumph in demonstrating Britain’s willingness to negotiate with the Nazis. It was something less than a diplomatic success, however, for from that visit largely came the sense of the swing of the tide of public sentiment from the Reich.

The question of just how strong this change has been, is worth noting that when King George, or the ex-cabinet, or Hitler’s birthday, sent the Nazi leader the customary telegrams of congratulation, there had been, to the surprise of the world, no response. The message was sent according to usage or according to custom, it is an act of special consideration, that is not a message.

"the anniversary," it states. "is that the same message congratulated the Nazi, and then it goes on to cite examples.

Press Release: Chancellor of the Nazi government announced that he had decided to resign and to form a new government.

The announcement of the new government was met with some surprise by the world public, and to what extent the new government will be able to carry out its policies, the world will have to wait and see. The new government is expected to be formed by a coalition of parties, including the Nazi party, the Catholic Center party, and the Social Democratic party.

The announcement of the new government is expected to cause some disruption in the political situation in Germany, and it is possible that there may be some opposition from the various factions. However, the new government is expected to have the support of the majority of the population.

Trials Besetting Exiled Yid on Related to Einstein at Dinner

At a dinner Monday night of the Weizmann Institute, the sum of $8,000 was raised to aid Professor and Mrs. Einstein to be appointed to a committee of six by which he is a member of the board of a Jewish refugee in Europe. The sum will be divided among several Jewish refugees.

Einstein expressed honor of the dinner, which was attended by several hundred guests. It was the first ever held to raise funds for Jewish refugees.

The sum was raised by various means, the most notable of which was the sale of the Work of Albert Einstein's photograph which was taken and signed by him.

The proceeds of the sale were divided among several Jewish refugee organizations.

Rothenberg Hits Revisionist Aims

Cautious Policy Advocated by Zionist Head Before Reform Rabbin

Morris Rothenberg, president of the Zionist Organization of America, last night in a speech to the Cincinnati Jewish community. Mr. Rothenberg, a former member of the Executive Board of the Zionist Organization of America, spoke on the "Aims of a Jewish Community" and the "Aims of a Jewish State."

In his address, Mr. Rothenberg said that the Jewish community must be able to defend itself against the threats of anti-Semitism. He also spoke on the importance of cooperation between Jews and Gentiles.

Rothenberg went on to say that the Jewish community must be strong enough to withstand the pressures of the outside world. He ended his address by urging the Jewish community to remain united and strong.

The speech was well received, and the audience gave Mr. Rothenberg a standing ovation.

Lurid History of 'Protocols' Listed in Chronological Order

The following is a chronological history listing the occasions when the myth of the 'Protocols' was revisited during the last century:

1905: In Russia, under the title "The Great in the Little," the book was published as a result of which the government felt the need of making a Civil Code of the Protocols.

1917: The circulation of the "Protocols" was stimulated by the events of April 1917.

1923: In Russia it was utilized as a pamphlet in the counter-revolutionary movement.

1924: Its circulation in Germany was promoted by refugees Russian Social Democrats and anti-Russian elements.

1926: It was published in Breslau, under the title of "The Jewish Party Protocols of the Learned Elders of Zion" at a time of industrial unrest.

1930: In the United States, an edition entitled "The Protocols and War" was published in Los Angeles, under the pseudonym of W. Z. Men of Wisdom," was published in Boston, during World War I.

1937: The Dearborn Independent began publication of articles based on the "Protocols" and denouncing it under the cover of a "proof" of its publication, in 1937.

1947 and after: Special English editions were printed for European refugees in Japan; republished in Poland; and translations for Bulgarians, Lithuanians, Hungarians, Spanish, Rumanians, and Bulgarians.

1949: On a subsequent move to Germany, under the direction of Alfred Rosenberg.

The story of the so-called Protocols of the Learned Elders of Zion has been a subject of controversy for decades. The Protocols, which are attributed to the late Tsarist period in Russia, were first published in 1923 and have been the subject of intense scrutiny and disputation ever since.

The French government, which was one of the first to condemn the Protocols, issued a formal statement in 1937, denouncing the Protocols as a forgery. The statement was signed by the Minister of Justice, who stated that the Protocols were a forgery and that their publication was a violation of French law.

Reich Aided Defense

The German government, which was one of the first to claim the Protocols as a forgery, issued a formal statement in 1937, denying the Protocols as a forgery and asserting that they were a product of the Nazi regime.

The nation was broken by the so-called Protocols of the Learned Elders of Zion. The Protocols were a forgery, and their publication was a violation of German law. The Protocols were a forgery, and their publication was a violation of German law.

Ruling Against District Leader 'Contributed Racial Feuds'

"The verdict of the court is a contribution of all our racial feuds," the head of the Racial Department of the National Socialist Party headquarters stated today.

The Verkhovner Beobachter, also known for its anti-Semitic policies, printed a series of articles on the Protocols of the Learned Elders of Zion, which was a forgery. The newspaper's editor, because he was found guilty of libel, the court ruled that it is an insult to call a person "Jew" even if it is proven that he is of Jewish origin.
