JERUSALEM, Oct. 25. (JTA) -- The United States was disclosed today to have asked Israel and Syria to make special efforts to maintain peace on their border because of the American-Soviet Cuban crisis.

The envoy conferred for more than an hour yesterday with Prime Minister David Ben-Gurion. It was understood the talks concerned possible Middle East repercussions arising out of the Cuban crisis.

The call for prayer, issued by Rabbi Israel Mowshowitz, president of the Board, declared:

"In these times, filled with tension, anxiety and danger for all mankind, when the world's atmosphere is charged with misunderstanding, suspicion and hostility, we must lift our hearts in prayer to Him who is the Author of life and the source of all wisdom, that He may grant understanding and wisdom to the leaders of the world that they guide the nations of the world through these stormy and perilous days to the haven of peace with brotherhood for all mankind. We must pray for the United Nations, which is man's best hope. In these troubled days, we pray that its deliberations be conducted with a full awareness of the gravity of the issues and the humble and reverent realization that their decisions are to be made in the sight of God and under the aspect of eternity."

RABBI TELLS PRIESTS UNIFIED RELIGIOUS SPIRIT COULD AID WORLD PEACE

DETROIT, Oct. 25. (JTA) -- A New York rabbi told a gathering of 1,800 Catholic priests and lay leaders here today that if the world were spared from a catastrophe descending from the current Russian-American crisis over Cuba, there was "a prospect of one of the most exciting and potentially enriching spiritual eras since the emergence of Judaism and Christianity as established religious traditions."

The prediction was made by Rabbi Marc H. Tanenbaum, director of Interreligious affairs of the American Jewish Committee, in an address to the Quincentennial Congress of the Third Order of St. Francis. He told the Catholics that "the present tense situation, high almost raises in primitive form the ancient question of 'Who shall live and who shall die,' in tragic and ironic contrast with the enormously moving and prophetic appeal sued just five days ago by the Fathers of the Ecumenical Council" in Rome.

Rabbi Tanenbaum said that all religiously committed people should welcome the current Ecumenical Council in Rome, as many Protestants and Jews have done, "as a manifestation of the Divine Will at work in the world." He declared that the emergence of a strengthened Roman Catholicism that joins in, good faith with all other religions to overcome the threats of war "can only be a source of blessing to us all."

NAZI DOCUMENTS CLAIM COL. LINDBERGH AIDED HITLER AGAINST U.S. JEWS

WASHINGTON, Oct. 25, (JTA) -- The State Department today published captured German Foreign Ministry documents revealing that the Nazi Embassy in Washington claimed that it maintained contacts with Col. Friends of Col. Lindbergh, according to the Nazi communication, asked the German Embassy to have the Nazi press stop raising Lindbergh because it undermined his opposition to the "interventionist" policies of President Roosevelt. On April 27, 1941, Nazi Charge d'Affaires Hans Thomsen and Gen. Friedrich von Boetticher reported to Berlin, conveying the request. President Roosevelt had just denounced Lindbergh's "America First" agitation.

In a communication marked "most urgent and top secret," the Nazis told the German Foreign Ministry and the German chief of general staff that "Lindbergh represents the best of the Americans, who are most important for us now and in the future. The contacts with him are maintained through a group in the general staff which has the greatest importance as a counterweight against Jews and warmongers."

CHICAGO VOCATIONAL SERVICE, N.Y. FAMILY AGENCY GET CJFWF CITATIONS

NEW YORK, Oct. 25. (JTA) -- The Jewish Vocational Service of Chicago has been named to receive the 1962 William J. Shroder Memorial Award--American Jewish Yed's highest social welfare honor--it was announced today by Irving Kane, president of the Council of Jewish Federations and Welfare Funds which sponsors the award.

The JVS was cited for its development during the past five years of an off-hospital therapeutic work program for long-term psychiatric patients. In addition, the Jewish Family Service of New York was selected for honorable mention for its project in family diagnosis and therapy.

Last week, Mr. Kane announced that the Standing Conference on European Jewish Community Services, together with the American Jewish Joint Distribution Committee, had also won a 1962 Shroder Award. That award was given for an outstanding achievement in international welfare--the creation of a new overseas service organization.

This year's Shroder awards will be presented by the late Mr. Shroder's daughter, Mrs. Stanley Mayerson of Albany, at the CJFWF's 31st general assembly in Philadelphia, November 15-18. The awards, established in 1955 to honor the memory of William J. Shroder, a prominent Cincinnati civic and business leader who was a founder of the CJFWF and its first president, are intended as a "continuing living tribute to his ideals, with the goal of giving renewed force, year after year, to the humanitarian purposes which he personified." They are presented annually to Jewish community organizations or national and international agencies for "superior initiative and achievement in the advancement of social welfare."

Programs Deemed Citations Outlined; Each is Federation Agency

Chicago's JVS program was developed with the cooperation and aid of the Illinois Department of Mental Health and the Illinois Division of Vocational Rehabilitation. It was put into operation in 1957 as a ten-week pilot project for ex-patients, and in 1960 as a one-year test program for in-hospital patients. At present, the JVS operates two workshops located in the community which provide industrial sub-contract work on a paid basis. The workers receive up to one year of workshop experience, integrated with psychotherapy, casework and vocational counseling, including job placement. The success of the project, according to the CJFWF, has made it the prototype for at least a dozen others throughout the country.

Alvin Zimmerman is president of the Jewish Vocational Service of Chicago, and Dr. William Grulman, executive director. The agency is a member of the Jewish Federation of Metropolitan Chicago.

The Jewish Family Service of New York City will receive honorable mention for its contribution to "the practice, literature and theory of family therapy." Its Family Mental Health Clinic, started in 1957, grew from the agency's recognition that the prevailing community approach to emotional disturbance and behavior problems was "a fragmented, too individual-centered and too little appreciative of social and cultural factors."

The project is designed to bring together the best representatives of all the relevant disciplines and to develop "a theoretic base and practical approach to the family." The family is seen as "the link between the inner mind of the individual, his social and interpersonal relations, and the large social and cultural factors."

Mrs. Richard W. Dammann is president of the Jewish Family Service, and Mrs. Frances L. Beattie, is executive director. The agency is a member of the Federation of Jewish Philanthropies of New York.
