J. W. B. CONVENTION URGES JEWISH CENTERS TO BACK DEMANDS ON SOVIET JEWRY

NEW YORK, May 1. (JTA) -- Declaring that "token concessions" made by the Soviet Union to Soviet Jewry "do not meet the expectations of world opinion, especially those of the Jewish community in America," the National Jewish Welfare Board today unanimously adopted a resolution voicing its support of "minimal demands to restore the right of Soviet Jewry to live as Jews."

This action was taken by the delegates at the closing session of the JWB Jubilee biennial convention, where the year-long celebration of the organization's 50th anniversary was launched. In addition to the resolution on Soviet Jewry, the convention adopted resolutions dealing with the national shortage of professional social workers, the war on poverty, higher educational opportunities, disarmament, the Peace Corps and Viet Nam.

Urging its affiliated Jewish community centers throughout the United States "to continue to give leadership and to cooperate with local groups in the effort to reduce the injustice done to Soviet Jewry," JWB, which is a member of the American Jewish Conference on Soviet Jewry, stated that the minimal demands on behalf of Soviet Jewry are:

The restoration of Jewish schools and classes in Yiddish and Hebrew, which will make it possible for Soviet Jews to transmit their heritage to their children; the creation of unified central institutions to supervise the enhancement and expansion of Jewish educational and cultural life; the reunion of families dispersed during World War II and the Nazi occupation, and permission for thousands of Soviet Jews to rejoin their relatives in other countries; and the establishment of an institutional center to provide for the religious needs of Soviet Jews, including communication among congregations inside the USSR and between Soviet Jewry and Jewish communities abroad.

Louis Stern Re-elected J. W. B. President; Reports on Viet Nam Work

Louis Stern, of South Orange, N.J., was elected to a two-year term as president of the National Jewish Welfare Board at the convention. He had served as president since January 1966, to fill the vacancy created by the death of his predecessor Mrs. Florence G. Feller. Mr. Stern was president of the Council of Jewish Federations and Welfare Funds, and is now co-chairman of the Interreligious Committee Against Poverty.

Reporting to the 800 delegates on the impact of the Viet Nam war on JWB services, he said the organization was able to reassign staff and resources "almost automatically." He reported also that a new chaplaincy retention program will be started to attract Jewish career chaplains, and announced that a conference on the Jewish cultural arts will be held soon.

The new JWB president said that his organization has to move forward in helping to solve the manpower crisis, in strengthening services to the armed forces and veterans, in building an American Jewish culture, in conducting extensive research projects, and in setting priorities to assure that the most essential needs in its fields of service are met within the boundaries of its resources.

Ambassador Goldberg Warns on Danger of Loss of Jewish Identity

Arthur J. Goldberg, United States Ambassador to the United Nations, hailed last night the "dramatic progress" in the postwar era toward "the breakdown of anti-Semitic barriers" in "virtually every segment of American society," but added a warning that this gain posed the danger of loss of Jewish identity among American Jews.

Speaking at the banquet session of the convention, he said that the dropping of such barriers was "a wonderful historical trend" for which all America should rejoice and that he believed it would continue. Then he added the warning that "as this trend continues, it brings on another problem for American Jewry -- one which we have faced for a long time, but perhaps never on so large a scale: the danger of losing our identity as Jews, or of seeing that identity so watered down that we begin to forget who we are and whence we came."

Citing the concern of many Jewish organizations "about the support and involvement of Jewish intellectuals," the Ambassador suggested that the answer was probably not for the organizations to become less Jewish and more secular "but, on the contrary, in their reaffirming their Jewish heritage. Perhaps the way to make the Jewish intellectual feel at home in Jewish communal life is not to de-emphasize but rather to reaffirm that which is most universal in our heritage." He also declared that, if American Jewry "is a vital force, it must prove that vitality among the young people who are tomorrow's leaders. Perhaps too many of today's Jewish youth programs are aimed at making the young people grow up to be just like their parents -- instead of encouraging them to find their own style and their own modes of expression."

He cautioned the present American adult Jewish generation against setting itself up as a model "for the succeeding generation." "Our real message to them," he said, "is not in our own sterling virtues, nor in our activities but in something far deeper -- the Jewish heritage, whose prophetic tradition should be a model and inspiration for the idealist and the reformer of tomorrow."

He proposed "new forms of cooperation" in American Jewish life "to replace some of the competing efforts of today and to bring all of the doctrinal divisions of the Jewish community into a single national effort." While such a united approach would be hard to achieve, he asserted, "it might offer the most effective way to survey emerging needs, to set priorities, and to mobilize the necessary money and talent."

Establishment of Conference of Executives of Jewish Groups Urged

The establishment of a Conference of Executives of Major Jewish Organizations was proposed by Sanford Solender, executive vice-president of the National Jewish Welfare Board at the convention. The major deficiency in American Jewish life, he said, is that "most American Jews are without knowledge of their rich heritage, without appreciation of the contemporary relevancy of this heritage, and without significant Jewish experience."

"Serious though this situation is," he said, "Jewish organizations have given curiously little indication of a united response to the challenge which it poses. This is a problem which affects every Jewish institution committed to an affirmative Jewish life. The synagogue, the school, the Jewish Community Center or Y, the Federation, the national Jewish youth organizations and others are vitally related to it. Nonetheless, most travel an independent road in trying to cope with this situation, often without knowledge of or even regard for what the others are doing."

Mr. Solender said: "As a first step, the executive heads of each of the organizations should convene to consider avenues for joint activity. Out of such sober consultation by the distinguished professional leaders of our organizations can surely emerge the beginnings of a shared approach to this problem. There are several pressing needs which beg for such collective endeavor."

Rabbi Joseph E. Lookstein told the convention that, unless there will be one Jewish institution on whom the Jewish community can depend and from whom there can emanate a creative Jewish life, "little else that we do will matter." "That institution," he said, "is the Jewish school. Jewish education is not only for children, it is for adults, too. And this is where Jewish Community Centers and YM and YWEAs can do a job."

CONVENTION OF AMERICAN JEWISH CONGRESS URGES U.S. ACTION ON MID-EAST

GROSSINGER, N. Y., May 1. (JTA) -- A resolution urging the United States to take the lead in international efforts to bring all Middle East nations to the peace conference table, and suggesting that a joint American-Soviet parley be held for ending the arms race in the Middle East, was adopted here today at the closing session of the convention of the American Jewish Congress. Rabbi Arthur J. Lelyveld, of Cleveland, was elected president of the organization succeeding Dr. Joachim Prinz.

The convention also adopted a resolution condemning Soviet suppression of the "basic human rights" of Soviet Jewry. It pledged support to the local and national programs recommended by the American Jewish Conference on Soviet Jewry, to alert public opinion to the plight of Soviet Jewry.

The delegates called for suspension of United States bombing missions against North Viet Nam as an effort to move the Vietnamese struggle from the battlefield to the bargaining table. In voting the latter resolution, the convention expressed its wish to give international peace the same priority as the traditional concerns of the American Jewish Congress with church-state separation, Jewish education, civil rights and the plight of Soviet Jewry.

In a resolution in Jewish education, the convention urged that programs of Jewish education be given "a larger share" of Jewish communal and philanthropic funds, declaring that the needs of Jewish educational institutions "can and should be met without the use of tax-raised monies."

The convention warned of the "grave erosion" of the principle of separation of church and state from "the increasing use of government funds to support parochial schools," stating that those Jewish educational groups that seek Federal funds "ignore the lesson taught by Jewish history of the evils that flow when religion is made a tool of the state -- or the state the tool of religion."

Other resolutions pledged the American Jewish Congress to intensify efforts aimed at full implementation of Supreme Court decisions outlawing religious practices in public schools; pledged to continue the AJC's fight "to end the discrimination embedded in many state Sunday closing laws against those who observe Saturday as their Sabbath; and reaffirmed AJC opposition to the inclusion of any question concerning religious beliefs or affiliation in the Federal census, on the ground that "the government may not inquire into matters of religious belief."

Polier Warns Against Seeking Federal Aid for Religious Schools

In an address to the convention, Ehad Polier, who was reelected chairman of the AJC governing council, said that the use of Federal funds for church-related schools had "robbed the school system" of resources essential for preparing American children for an increasingly complex and technological society. He considered it "tragic" that "a handful of Jews concerned with their own parochial schools are willing to trade the guarantees of the First Amendment for a temporary advantage."

"We recognize," he continued, "the right of persons to provide private education for their children, but we deny the right of anyone to perpetuate either his racial prejudices of his religious obligations with the help of the public purse."

Israel's Ambassador to the United Nations, Michael Comay, addressed last night's convention banquet, which was held in honor of Dr. Prinz, who had relinquished his presidential post after eight years. The Israeli envoy said that Arab-Israel relations has turned into "sterile, polemical exercises." He told the convention that the Arab-Israel dispute can be resolved only by bringing the parties to a conference table. The key to the issue, he said, is Arab acceptance of Israel's statehood.

The best guarantee against renewed hostilities, Mr. Comay said, is Israel's deterrent capability and maintenance of a proper balance of military strength between the Arabs and Israel. "As to the Arab refugee problem, he stated, "the only constructive solution" lies in the absorption of the refugees into the life and economy of the Arab world, "just as Israel has taken in and absorbed most of the Jewish minorities from Arab countries."

ISRAEL CABINET INSTRUCTS DELEGATION TO CONTINUE TALKS IN BONN

JERUSALEM, May 1. (JTA) -- The Cabinet today instructed the Israeli delegation to the economic talks with the West German Government to continue their negotiations in Bonn on the basis of the proposals made by West Germany last week.

The details of the proposals remained undisclosed. However, it was indicated in informed circles here today that the Israel Government considers the Bonn offer not bad enough to reject and not good enough to accept. Several members of the Cabinet expressed disappointment at the German offer which is seen here as a bare minimum making the continuation of negotiations possible.

Both West German diplomats here and Israeli officials hope the talks will be concluded tomorrow before the arrival here of former Chancellor Konrad Adenauer who will make an eight-day visit. The invitation was extended by then Premier David Ben-Gurion and taken up by the Eshkol Government. The Weizmann Institute will confer an honorary fellowship on Dr. Adenauer during his stay.

Ex-Chancellor Adenauer Leaves Today for a Visit to Israel

BONN, May 1. (JTA) -- Former Chancellor Konrad Adenauer will leave tomorrow for an eight-day visit to Israel. He will be accompanied by Israeli Ambassador Asher Ben-Nathan to Frankfurt, where the former Chancellor will board an El Al plane for Tel Aviv. Many West German journalists will accompany Dr. Adenauer to cover the visit. West German Television is sending a special crew to film Dr. Adenauer's visit and will prepare a special program for West German television audiences.

The current issue of neo-Nazi National-Und-Soldaten Zeitung denounces former Chancellor Adenauer's "secret treaty with Israel" and the payment in restitution funds of "2,000 million from the pockets of the German taxpayer." The newspaper, which has been widely and severely criticized in West Germany tries to give the impression that West German payments to Israel were "gratuitous presents" and is violently opposed to any West German aid to Israel in the future.

At a mass meeting in Bremen of the neo-Nazi National Democratic Party, vice-chairman Adolf Von Thadden criticized Chancellor Ludwig Erhard for supporting West German aid to Israel, accused the United States of allowing Communism to triumph in Asia and assailed the Social Democratic Party. As the speech proceeded, the booing and applauding became so loud that the neo-Nazi could not be heard. When fighting broke out between the younger and older listeners, police were called.

FRENCH MAN SENTENCED TO DEATH FOR AIDING NAZIS TO MURDER JEWS

PARIS, May 1. (JTA) -- The State Security Court sentenced to death Jean Barbier, a French national who was a Gestapo official during the occupation of France and who was charged with torture and murder of hundreds of Jews and anti-Nazis. Condemned to death in absentia after France's liberation, Barbier lived peacefully for years in Marseilles under an assumed name.

In 1961 a police probe of charges of brutality a 13-year-old girl filed against him disclosed his identity but a Marseilles military tribunal accorded him "provisional liberty." Apparently fearing that survivors might kill him, Barbier asked for and received imprisonment in Marseilles.

ISRAEL CABINET HEARS REPORT ON ARAB TERRORIST INFILTRATIONS

JERUSALEM, May 1. (JTA) -- Israel's Cabinet heard a report at its weekly session here today about the recent spate of El Fatah terrorist infiltrations into Israel which resulted, this weekend, in two Israeli reprisal raids into Jordan. Despite the fact that the recent El Fatah raids showed they had originated in Jordan, the Cabinet was informed that the enemy attacks had been "guided and inspired" by Syria "who is the main trouble maker against Israel."

The report to the Cabinet, made by the military authorities, stated at the same time that "Israel cannot absolve from responsibility the countries who lend their territories to gangs that carry out raids into Israel."

Even while the Cabinet was meeting, information was received that two charges of explosives were discovered today at the Israeli settlement of Kfar Giladi, in the north, near the Lebanese border. The explosives were of the type used by El Fatah. Israeli police took apart the explosives, and traced tracks from the site where these had been found leading to the Lebanese border. A complaint was filed by Israel with the United Nations Israel-Lebanese Mixed Armistice Commission.

The reprisal raids this weekend were carried out by two Israeli military units who had crossed into Jordan shortly before Friday midnight. After evacuating the persons living in homes marked as targets, the Israelis blew up 14 houses believed to have served as bases for some of the recent El Fatah raiders into Israel.

Three of the Israeli soldiers suffered minor wounds in the raids against Kalayat and Hirbeit from which the Fatah commandoes had operated in recent days. The first Israeli unit crossed the Jordan river near Bet Shaanan, and blew up four houses in Kalayat, including the home of the mayor. The troops concentrated their efforts on houses whose inhabitants were known to have aided the El Fatah raiders. Israeli officials said that saboteurs who recently blew up houses in Beit Yosef village came from Kalayat.

The second unit moved into Firbeit, south of Mount Hebron, and ran into fire from Jordanian police stations which was silenced by Israeli mortars.

Israel's Chief of Staff Wants Jordan to Check Raiders

At a press conference here, Chief of Staff Yitzhak Rabin said that civil guards in the Jordanian villages resisted and suffered a number of losses. He added that, despite the resistance, "our forces scrupulously observed directives to evacuate civilians and even distributed sweets to the children."

He said Israel had no desire to raise tensions in the Middle East, but did not want Jordan to take effective measures against the El Fatah raiders. He said Syria was "the only Arab nation openly supporting this terrorist organization, but our principle remains that the country from which terrorists operate is responsible for their actions. This does not lessen Syrian responsibility, however."

The Israeli communique noted that El Fatah raiders committed during the past three weeks two acts of sabotage in the Negev and Mount Hebron and one act at Bet Shaanan in Galilee. In one of the El Fatah actions, near the Rock of Masada, which is visited daily by hundreds of tourists, a truck carrying a load of children narrowly escaped hitting a mine. A lorry with Israeli soldiers ran over the mine, but no one was hurt.

The regular Israeli convoy to Mount Scopus, the Israeli enclave in Jordanian territory in the Jerusalem area, was halted this weekend by Jordanian border guards. The guards contended that the convoy included an "unwanted member." Under the Israeli-Jordanian armistice agreement, Israel is entitled to change the police guard and to send supplies to the enclave, which contains the abandoned buildings of the old Hebrew University campus and Hadassah Hospital. The issue was referred to United Nations truce officers and it was hoped the convoy would leave for Mount Scopus next week.

In a related development today, Mahmoud Hidjazi, an Arab infiltrator captured in 1965, once sentenced to death and this year given a new trial, was found guilty by an Israeli military court of shooting at Israeli forces, being a member of an El Fatah gang of saboteurs, and carrying arms. However, the court acquitted him, for lack of proof, of a charge of throwing a hand grenade at Israeli forces. The man had been captured after an unsuccessful El Fatah raid near the Jordanian border. In the last trial, the prosecutor demanded a sentence of life imprisonment. After finding the man guilty on the three counts, the court stated it would hand down its sentence next Tuesday.

ISRAELI FLAG RIPPED DOWN BY VANDALS FROM BUILDING IN JERUSALEM

JERUSALEM, May 1. (JTA) -- Jerusalem police reported that unknown vandals, believed to be members of the ultra-Orthodox Neturei Karta, ripped down an Israeli flag from a home in the Mea Shearim quarter here.

The vandals tore the flag to shreds and wrote on the door of the home "Zionists, Go Home," and "Down with the State of Israel." Police said they still had not found the vandals.

PROF. DEUTSCH, EXPERT ON COMPENSATION, RELEASED FROM GERMAN PRISON

BONN, May 1. (JTA) -- Prof. Hans Deutsch, an internationally known expert on West German compensation to Nazi victims, was released from prison this weekend and immediately entered a sanatorium to await trial.

Dr. Deutsch, who holds both Austrian and Israeli citizenship, was arrested in Bonn in November, 1964 on charges of "inciting people to make claims for compensation to which they were not entitled." He was released after providing an additional 250,000 marks ($62,500) toward the required bail of 2,000,000 marks ($500,000) he has now provided in various forms of surety.

Officials here indicated that the trial will be held during the summer at a date to be announced later. Despite illness, he had been held in prison for 21 months.

SOVIET PUBLICATION PRINTS 18th CENTURY ANTI-JEWISH MANUSCRIPT

LONDON, May 1. (JTA) -- A Soviet journal arriving here was found to contain a grossly anti-Semitic document extracted from 18th century writings of Byelorussian writers.

Polymia, a monthly periodical published in Minsk, contains an article on the discovery of ancient manuscripts, including one entitled "Concio Ruthenia," describing how representatives of various nationalities tried to save Christ from being tortured by the Jews.

The issue contains an introduction to the article, written by S. Misko, senior scientific worker of the Byelorussian Ministry of Culture. Misko describes the material as being of an "obviously anti-religious character." His comments, however, make no mention of the open anti-Semitism of "Concio Ruthenia," which includes a reference to Jews as "Zhydy," a popular anti-Semitic slur, rather than the usual term, "Yevrey."

INDIA DENIES SNUBBING ISRAEL PRESIDENT; SENDS LETTER TO Z. O. A.

NEW YORK, May 1. (JTA) -- Shri Dinesh Singh, India's Minister of State for External Affairs, assured the Zionist Organization of America, in a letter made public here today, that the New Delhi Government had intended no discourtesy to Israel's President Zalman Shazar, and had promptly arrested Arab students who had staged a demonstration against Mr. Shazar recently.

Mr. Singh's letter, transmitted to the ZOA by India's consulate-general here, was read to the meeting held today by the ZOA's national executive committee by Jacques Torczyner, president of the ZOA. The Indian leader's statement, issued at New Delhi, was in reply to a protest made by the ZOA last month, when Mr. Shazar had evidently been snubbed as he stopped in India on the way to and from a state visit to Nepal. Mr. Singh declared categorically that no discourtesy was intended and that the Arab students who demonstrated when the Israeli president was at an Indian airport had been "promptly arrested."

Today's session of the ZOA executive was addressed by S. Z. Abramov, a member of Israel's parliament; and Rabbi Armond E. Cohen, spiritual leader of Park Synagogue in Cleveland. The executive voted to hold the next ZOA convention in Israel, in July, 1967, to coincide with the celebration there of the 70th anniversary of the founding of the World Zionist Organization by the late Dr. Theodor Herzl.

ISRAELI COLONEL SENTENCED AS SPY FOR FOREIGN LAND, DIES IN PRISON

TEL AVIV, May 1. (JTA) -- Dr. Israel Beer, a former lieutenant colonel in Israel's army reserve, and a noted military analyst, who had been sentenced in 1962 to seven years' imprisonment as a convicted spy for an unidentified foreign Communist power, died today of a heart attack at Shata Prison. He was 54.

Dr. Beer's arrest, in 1961, on charges of espionage and contact with a foreign agent, created a sensation in this country. At the time of his arrest, he was at work on a history of Israel's war of liberation under a personal commission for the then Prime Minister, David Ben-Gurion, who was also Minister of Defense. The trial, which lasted six months, had been held almost entirely behind closed doors.

The three-man Tel Aviv District Court which had found Dr. Beer guilty of some counts in the indictment against him, but innocent of others, gave him credit during sentencing as an important factor in Hagana, the pre-State Israel defense corps, and as a man who "thought he could achieve a new mutual relationship with the foreign power that would benefit the State of Israel." "But the accused," added the court, "lost control of his intentions and became enmeshed in a foreign network, unable either to resist or retreat."

It was charged that he had passed on some Israeli plans to a foreign power which, in turn, transmitted plans for the Sinai campaign of 1956 to Egypt. Egypt, however, disregarded the secrets supposedly passed on by Dr. Beer, thinking they were false.

YIVO HOLDS 40th ANNIVERSARY CONFERENCE; REPORTS EXPANDED PLANS

NEW YORK, May 1. (JTA) -- The 40th Anniversary Conference of the YIVO Institute for Jewish Research opened here last night with a review of its achievements during the 40 years of its existence presented by Dr. Joshua A. Fishman, member of the YIVO planning committee, who presided at the opening session, held at Hunter College. Delegates from numerous communities throughout the country are attending the conference, which will last six days.

Dr. Fishman reported that the YIVO has embarked upon an extensive and diversified program of research, publication and community service for its next decade. Among the projects carried out in 1965 was an in-service course on "Antecedents in American Jewish Life" for teachers in the New York public school system. The course was presented in 15 sessions. Another course, in 10 sessions, was given on standardized Yiddish orthography. A concise Yiddish-English, English-Yiddish dictionary by Prof. Uriel Weinreich, of Columbia University, will be published by the YIVO this year.

The opening session was also addressed by Dr. Salo Baron, of Columbia University, noted Jewish historian, and by Dr. Max Weinreich, vice-chairman of the executive committee of the YIVO. The sessions will discuss various studies on American-Jewish life, including a study on the East European Jewish community's contribution to the shaping of the American Jewish community, a study on Israeli students in the United States; and a study on contrasting minorities: Mexicans and Jews in the United States.

FEDERATION OF JEWISH MEN'S CLUBS OPENS 37th ANNUAL CONVENTION

GROSSINGERS, N. Y., May 1. (JTA) -- Manny London, of Chicago, president of the National Federation of Jewish Men's Clubs, called on more than 725 delegates from 350 clubs of the Conservative organization in the United States and Canada to intensify their work "for peace and a world free from prejudice, poverty and hunger." He was the keynote speaker at the opening session of the organization's 37th annual convention, which assembled here for four days of sessions to be devoted principally to religion's role in world affairs and Judaism's special role in the issues of war and peace.

The organization's peace award was presented here tonight to Norman Cousins, editor of The Saturday Review, who discussed the Viet Nam war in his major address. Another speaker at the opening session was Ambassador Michael Comay, Israel's permanent representative at the United Nations. The opening session was declared by S. David Rosenberg, of Philadelphia, honorary president of the Federation and the convention chairman, a salute to Israel upon the Jewish State's attainment of the 18th anniversary of its rebirth in 1948.

RICHARD KORN ELECTED PRESIDENT OF AMERICAN COUNCIL FOR JUDAISM

CHICAGO, May 1. (JTA) -- Richard Korn, of New York, was elected president of the American Council for Judaism at the conclusion of the anti-Zionist organization's three-day national convention here yesterday, and reiterated the Council's insistence on its major theme, to the effect that "nationality and religion are separate and distinct."

Mr. Korn, who reported that he has recently visited Israel, said he was "impressed with Israel's remarkable people and development." However, he said, Jews must reject "publicly and completely" what he said were Israel's claims to be "the capital of all the world's Jews."

Mr. Korn succeeded Clarence L. Coleman, Jr., of Glencoe, Ill., who was elected as chairman of the Council's board of directors. Lessing J. Rosenwald, of Jenkintown, Pa., one of the Council's founders and its president from 1943 to 1955, was made honorary chairman of the board.

GROUND BROKEN FOR 10-STORY ROSE F. KENNEDY CENTER AT EINSTEIN COLLEGE

NEW YORK, May 1. (JTA) -- Contributions of more than $4,000,000 to the $120,000,000, 10-year development and expansion program of the Albert Einstein College of Medicine of Yeshiva University were announced here tonight. The announcements were made at a dinner held by the college as the culmination of a series of events begun in the morning, when ground was broken for a 10-story facility, entitled the Rose Fitzgerald Kennedy Center for research in mental retardation and human development, to be erected on a site adjacent to the Einstein College campus in The Bronx. Mrs. Kennedy is the mother of the late President Kennedy.

Albert Parker, vice-chairman of the college overseers, announced the contributions totaling more than $4,000,000. Former New York State Attorney-General Nathaniel Goldstein, chairman emeritus of the board of overseers, announced a gift of $1,000,000 by the estate of Louis and Ida Katz toward the establishment of the Rose Kennedy center. A gift of $1,000,000 was also announced by the family of the late Siegfried Ullmann, to supplement $2,000,000 previously given by Mr. Ullmann for the Ullmann Research Center for Health Sciences on the college campus. Speakers at the various ceremonies included Mrs. Rose F. Kennedy, U.S. Senator Robert F. Kennedy and New York Mayor John V. Lindsay.

RABBI NOVOSELLER DIES IN PHILADELPHIA; REMAINS TO BE BURIED IN ISRAEL

PHILADELPHIA, May 1. (JTA) -- Funeral services were held here for Rabbi David Novoseller, spiritual leader of Congregation B'nai Joshua, and head of the Orthodox rabbinic of Philadelphia, who died here at the age of 88. He was a vice-president of the Union of Orthodox Rabbis of the United States and Canada and a member of the Vaad Hakashrut here. Temporary interment was at a suburban cemetery here pending burial in Israel.
