STUDENTS DEMONSTRATE IN JERUSALEM AGAINST ADENAUER; 18 WOUNDED

JERUSALEM, May 5. (JTA) -- More than 1,000 Hebrew University students, protesting a visit by former West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer to the university, clashed with police today as the ex-Chancellor, who is visiting Israel as a guest of the Israel Government, arrived on the campus.

About 18 of the demonstrators were wounded and several arrested as some 500 police, wearing steel helmets, battled the rioting students to clear a path for Dr. Adenauer and his party. The demonstration started early this morning and reached a peak when the former Chancellor's cavalcade entered the campus through a side entrance. The students, carrying posters and shouting "Adenauer Raus," managed to reach the central building where the former Chancellor's group was entertained by University president Eliahu Elath and faculty members.

The noise of the clash did not penetrate Mr. Elath's soundproofed office but the visitors could clearly see through the windows the battle between the students and the police. Throughout the clash on campus, Dr. Adenauer calmly continued to examine books and to discuss cultural matters with his faculty hosts.

When he first learned of the plans for the demonstration, Dr. Adenauer told his hosts: "I have experienced many demonstrations and I am not afraid of them. Let us go. I am even prepared to meet with a student delegation."

Protest in Front of Eshkol's Office Against 'Police Brutality'

After Dr. Adenauer left the campus, 1,000 students assembled before Premier Levi Eshkol's office in Jerusalem to protest against "police brutality." The students sang songs against the police and against the Premier, and called through loudspeakers to the Premier to receive them. Officials said the Premier was "unfindable."

Dr. Adenauer's visit to the University was cut short because the police appeared to be in danger of losing control of the situation. Several hundred police surrounded the 90-year-old German statesman as he left the campus. He reportedly said "I can understand their feelings. It is all so sad." It was reported that among the injured students one was in serious condition with a fractured skull. Several policemen also were hurt.

The demonstrators started assembling on the campus early in the morning and before noon, there were several hundred students with almost as many police present. Shortly before Dr. Adenauer arrived, a number of fights erupted and when the cavalcade entered the grounds, the fighting began in earnest, the police wielding clubs and the students using banners and sticks.

Dr. Adenauer concluded his visit to Jerusalem with a "thank you to the Jewish people who helped us Germans wash off the shame and the dirt of the past, which has helped us become once again members of the family of nations." He spoke at a luncheon tendered by the Conference on Material Claims Against Germany. "I spoke only briefly," he added, "only a few words for what else can I say but thank you."

He recalled his association with Dr. Nahum Goldmann, "a man who was prepared to seek, together with us, a new future. I must also thank him." Dr. Goldmann, as president of the Claims Conference, had a key role in arranging for West German reparations to Israel and restitution payments to Jewish victims of Nazism. Dr. Adenauer disclosed that West Germany has paid out about $40,000,000 in reparations and restitution, of which nearly $10,000,000 has been paid to Jews. He said "we never counted, as some say we did. Our only wish and desire was to try to make up as far as humanly possible for the terrible past."

Adenauer Assures the Past Cannot Repeat Itself in Germany

The German elder statesman assured his audience, made up of Cabinet Ministers, judges, scholars and other public figures, that "the past cannot repeat itself in Germany, if for no other reason than because the Germans have learned that nothing good can come out of injustice." He asserted that rightwing political groups in West Germany were small, consisting mainly of persons over 45 and that "our youth is healthy and Germany will never again be what it was."

Dr. Goldmann, speaking as Claims Conference president, paid tribute to Dr. Adenauer as "the greatest figure in contemporary Germany without whom nothing of what has been done in German-Jewish relations could have been achieved." Dr. Goldmann also said that "normalization does not mean forgetfulness, for nations can never forget either their victories or their shames, their bravery or their cowardice."

Adenauer Calls on Israel President; Says Israel Is 'Beautiful'

The problem now, Dr. Goldmann added, is no longer material reparations, "which is relatively easier to settle, but moral reparations." He called West Germany's legislation on indemnification and restitution "a unique phenomenon" in that "there is practically no precedent where a new government has paid indemnification to victims of a past regime who are not citizens of its country. This legislation has created a new and important precedent in international legislation."

Earlier in the day, Dr. Adenauer called on President Shazar at the President's home for a 30-minute meeting. He also visited the Jerusalem Town Hall, where he was presented with a city pin by Mayor Theodore Kollek. Dr. Adenauer, who served for many years as mayor of Cologne, remarked "here in this house I feel at home in a place which I am used to and like."

He attended a dinner last night tendered by Foreign Minister Abba Eban. There he said: "When I return home, it will be with a feeling of deep satisfaction with all I have seen here. It is a beautiful and strong country and I wish it a blessed and peaceful future."

PRESIDENT JOHNSON RECEIVES ISRAEL'S CHIEF RABBI IN WHITE HOUSE

WASHINGTON, May 5. (JTA) -- President Johnson today was blessed by Ashkenazi Chief Rabbi Issar Yehuda Unterman of Israel, who recited the traditional blessing for a great ruler at the White House.

Rabbi Unterman told President Johnson that he brought the greetings "of the people of Israel and the blessings from Zion." He presented the President with a menorah which he said was selected not only because of its religious symbolism but as a reminder of King David's prayers for divine guidance.

The chief rabbi said he was aware of President Johnson's efforts against poverty and hunger. He said he hoped for success of the President's pursuit of peace. President Johnson expressed appreciation for the blessing and honor conferred upon him.

The delegation included a number of American religious leaders who associated themselves with the chief rabbi's expressions. They included Moses I. Feinstein, president of the Union of Orthodox Jewish Congregations, and Rabbi Israel Miller, president of the Rabbinical Council of America. Israel Ambassador Abraham Harman, and Rep. Abraham J. Multer, New York Democrat, were also present.

JORDANIAN RAIDER SENTENCED IN ISRAEL TO 30 YEARS' IMPRISONMENT

TEL AVIV, May 5. (JTA) -- Mahmoud Hijazi, a Jordanian captured on a raid into Israel in 1965, was sentenced today to 30 years' imprisonment by a military court which heard his appeal from a death sentence imposed on him previously.

In imposing the sentence, the military court said that those who penetrate Israel should know they face severe punishment, and that Israel's borders were not open for penetration. The sentence on Hijazi, an admitted member of an El Fatah commando unit, was imposed for sabotage, shooting at Israeli troops and carrying unlicensed weapons during his incursion.

SOVIET EMBASSY IN WASHINGTON REJECTS PETITION ON JEWS IN RUSSIA

WASHINGTON, May 5. (JTA) -- First Secretary Anatole Myskov, of the Soviet Embassy, today rejected a petition asking that the USSR extend "the full measure of equality" to Jews. He told a delegation from Lancaster, Pa., that the charges were false and that such allegations were anti-Soviet propaganda. He said the petitioners were not aware of the true situation.

The group was made up of students from Franklin and Marshall College and others. They picketed near the Embassy with signs stating "reunite victims of Nazi holocaust" and bearing other slogans on behalf of Soviet Jewry.

BRITISH PARLIAMENT GETS MOTION ON PROSECUTING INCITEMENT TO HATRED

LONDON, May 5. (JTA) -- An all-party motion to amend the British Race Relations Act to permit prosecution of organizations and individuals inciting to racial hatred was placed before the House of Commons last night.

The action followed a sharp debate in which various members of Parliament challenged Solicitor General Sir Dingle Foot for his statement in debate yesterday that there was insufficient evidence to prosecute members of the British National Socialist movement under the Act. Specific reference was made in the challenges to a recent wave of arson attacks on London synagogues and confessions by neo-Nazis of involvement in such activities.

N.Y.A.N.A. AIDED SETTLEMENT OF 4,500 JEWISH IMMIGRANTS IN 1965

NEW YORK, May 5. (JTA) -- More than 4,500 Jewish newcomers to the United States were aided to settle in New York City in 1965 by the New York Association for New Americans, a beneficiary agency of the United Jewish Appeal, it was announced by Martin Kleinbard, president, at the agency's annual meeting today. Mr. Kleinbard, who was reelected to a third term as president of NYANA, reported that the agency expended $685,000 in 1965 for its wide array of settlement services.

In his report, Mr. Kleinbard said that the newcomers came from 30 different countries, including a number from Eastern Europe arriving to rejoin relatives. The average cost of resettling a family of four, he said, was $1,250 and 75 percent actually received less than $1,250 as the total financial help from NYANA. Many families, he pointed out, are self-supporting within a few weeks after arrival.

A total of 1,450 newcomers were assisted in finding jobs by the agency, which also provides vocational training, retraining for professionals and a sheltered workshop for the aged. In 1965, 71 persons were employed in the sheltered workshop. The Youth Services Division aided 200 young people between the ages of 14 and 23 through a special counseling and educational service. Recognizing the need for higher education for children from marginal income families, NYANA sought college and university scholarships for qualified newcomers and provided partial help for expenses.

Jewish Refugees from Cuba Reported Making Rapid Adjustment

Philip Soskis, executive director of the NYANA, reported that the agency resettled 600 families from Cuba between 1961 and 1965. Representing some 1,700 persons, 144 were children unaccompanied by their parents who were cared for by the agency until the families could be reunited. Only 21 are still waiting for their parents' arrival. It is estimated that there are some 2,500 Jews still left in Cuba of an original 10,000.

In a survey conducted last month, the agency interviewed 100 of the resettled families -- one-sixth of the total. All except three have made remarkable strides in the short span of four years or less. These three are elderly persons in ill health who are not able to be self-supporting. More than half of the families were Nazi victims who, once again, were forced to leave everything behind them and start anew. Most had worked in the professions and small businesses in Cuba, with a few owning large businesses employing up to one hundred persons. None reported anti-Semitism in Cuba, but stated that they did not want to live under an authoritarian Communist regime. They valued freedom above their material possessions.

On arrival, most of the employable persons went into unskilled, low-paying jobs because of lack of English or skills not immediately transferable. Information from 86 of the one hundred families who were able to remember specific starting salaries showed that 46 began at less than $60 a week and 22 earned between $80 and $100. Today, they have moved up the income scale. Two-thirds of the families are earning between $100 and $200 a week, and only 15 are in the $80-$100 bracket. Nine reported incomes of over $200.

Thirteen former businessmen have already established themselves in some business venture -- small retail shops, shoe shop, costume jewelry shop and manufacturing on a small scale such items as men's shirts and other clothing. Three of them are already employing other persons. Some of the occupations of families surveyed are salesman, export manager, insurance auditor, draftsman, laboratory technician, machinist, knitter and college professor.

Another factor pointing toward the upward mobility of the Cuban group is the continued improvement in living quarters. Rentals are now over $100 a month and three are already home owners. Seventeen of the families own cars. Twenty young people in the group are attending institutions of higher learning, some through scholarships and government loans and others through part-time work. Almost all of the adults attended adult education classes in English conducted by the Board of Education.
