SUBSTANTIAL NUMBERS OF TERRORISTS HAVE RE-ENTERED S. LEBANON, WAITING FOR ISRAELI WITHDRAWAL JUNE 13

By Yitzhak Shargil

TEL AVIV, June 8 (JTA)--Substantial numbers of well armed terrorists have infiltrated south Lebanon and are hiding out pending the final withdrawal of Israeli forces next Tuesday, June 13, it was learned today. But some of them already have set up artillery positions in the eastern sector of south Lebanon known as Fatah land. The presence of about 150 terrorists in the area between the Litani River and the present Israeli lines has been confirmed.

They are lying low in orchards and groves and are assisted by leftist elements of the local population. The terrorists apparently evaded patrols of the United Nations Interim Force in Lebanon (UNIFIL) by avoiding the bridges and fording the Litani at its shallow points under cover of darkness. They are bringing in arms the same way, the reports say.

Plan To Rebuild Infrastructure

Israel, which now holds a six-mile-deep security belt along the Lebanese border, has promised the UN that all of its forces will be out of Lebanon by June 13. Security circles here are convinced that once Israeli troops are gone, the situation in south Lebanon will change. The terrorists are expected to re-enter villages and townships and begin to rebuild their infrastructure, including training centers, vehicle pools and arms caches which were destroyed when Israeli forces invaded south Lebanon last March.

Arms in large quantities are reported to be reaching the terrorists from Libya and Europe via the port of Tyre which they still hold. Supplies are also said to be coming in from Cyprus. Concentrations of terrorists reported in the Beaufort area are said to include hundreds of Iraqi soldiers disguised as members of the Arab Liberation Front.

Christian Villages Alarmed

The terrorists' movements have aroused alarm in Christian villages in south Lebanon. The Israeli army corps of engineers has built a network of roads to enable Christian forces to move between their various enclaves. (In New York today, a spokesman for the Israeli Mission to the United Nations confirmed that Israel is seeking assurances from the UN for the safety of the Christian minority after Israeli troops pull out. The spokesman said Israel was concerned that the Christian villagers will become a target for reprisals by Palestinian terrorists.) Negotiations over Israeli requests were reportedly underway in Jerusalem between UN representatives and Israeli officials.

Another question bothering Israel is the possibility of Syrian forces in Lebanon deploying along the banks of the Litani. The Syrians might check terrorist activities but Israeli strategists do not want to see the Syrians in control of the Litani River bridges which are the key to the movement of combat forces southward to the Israeli border.

OFFICIALS HOPE FOR CABINET UNITY ON REPLY TO U.S. QUESTIONS

By David Landau

JERUSALEM, June 8 (JTA)--Official circles here expressed hope for unanimity when the Cabinet meets Monday to decide on Israel's reply to questions posed by the United States regarding the future status of the West Bank. The desire for Cabinet unity on the response was voiced following a meeting yesterday between Premier Menachem Begin and Foreign Minister Moshe Dayan at which they drafted the reply to be presented to the full Cabinet.

Both men have denied rumors of differences between them on the issue. Dayan stressed that he stands by Begin's original peace plan offering "self rule" to the Palestinians on the West Bank. He denied any intention of proposing changes. He and Begin have given no hint of the possible content of the reply. Informed sources predicted today that it will be "phrased in positive terms" but will, in fact, not go much beyond the self-rule proposal which leaves the final question of status open.

DMC Uncertain Of Stand

That approach may not satisfy the four ministers of the Democratic Movement for Change who reportedly are considering whether to submit a draft reply of their own to the Cabinet. One of them, Transport Minister Meir Amit, has called for a reply that is "positive in content as well as in tone." Deputy Premier Yigael Yadin, leader of the DMC, said he and his colleagues would probably make their final decision during the Cabinet meeting Monday.

The questions posed by President Carter to Begin were: Is Israel prepared to say that in five years' time, a final decision can be taken on the status of the West Bank and Gaza? And what mechanism would Israel propose for the making of that decision? The second question is predicated on Israel's flat rejection of the American proposal for a "limited options referendum" after five years of self rule that would give the West Bank Arabs a choice of linkage to Jordan, linkage to Israel or continuation of the self rule arrangement.

WEIZMAN BACK FROM MYSTERY TRIP, MYSTERY REMAINS

By Yitzhak Shargil

TEL AVIV, June 8 (JTA)--Defense Minister Ezer Weizman returned from an overnight trip to London this evening aboard an El Al flight from Zurich, ending speculation as to where he had been but not the mystery that shrouded his activities.

Weizman jumped into his car at Ben Gurion Airport and left without making a statement. His trip to London, which was announced before his departure yesterday, gave rise to speculation that he would meet with some prominent Arab figure, possibly in connection with the resumption of Israeli-Egyptian peace talks. That possibility was given credence by the fact that he was accompanied by his military aide de camp, Ilan Tehila. The Defense Ministry insisted it was a private visit to meet with Anglo-Jewish leaders.

The mystery deepened today when Weizman left London for an unknown destination aboard a non-Israeli aircraft. It is now known that he was in Zurich, or at least at Zurich airport, where he boarded an

El Al flight home. But sources here said he may well have stopped off somewhere else in Europe for a secret meeting before emplaning at Zurich. (The Jewish Telegraphic Agency correspondent in London reported today that Weizman apparently did not dine with Marcus Sieff and Lord Rothschild last night, although the Israeli Embassy there said he did. Sieff was out of the country and Rothschild's secretary said his Lordship did not meet with Weizman, the JTA reported.)

HIAS CHIEF REPLIES TO DULZIN ON 'DROP-OUT' ISSUE

NEW YORK, June 8 (JTA)--Carl Glick, president of HIAS, responded today to recent statements by Leon Dulzin, chairman of the World Zionist Organization Executive, who urged world Jewry not to extend aid, directly or indirectly, to Jewish emigrants from the Soviet Union who opt to go to countries other than Israel after arriving in Vienna from the USSR.

"It is the essence of Jewish morality that all Jews who need help are provided with such help by their fellow Jews," Glick declared in a statement released by HIAS world headquarters here. Dulzin, who is also acting chairman of the Jewish Agency, expressed alarm over the high rate of "drop outs" among Soviet Jews reaching Vienna and contended that it jeopardized the existence of the emigration movement in the Soviet Union. HIAS and the Joint Distribution Committee (JDC) are the principle organizations assisting Soviet Jews after they reach Vienna or Rome.

Glick's statement said: "The Jews of the Soviet Union are in great danger. Newspaper articles and eyewitness reports document an alarming increase in anti-Semitism and problems inherent in being a Jew. It is critical that all USSR Jews who wish to leave be enabled to leave whatever their destination. It is the essence of Jewish morality that all Jews who need help are provided with such help by their fellow Jews. Modern history in the form of the Holocaust has provided a lesson on the need to provide help without question. We do not agree with Mr. Dulzin that the choice should be to stay in Russia or to go to Israel."

Stresses Family Re-Unification

Apparently referring to charges that HIAS, by rendering assistance, influences Soviet Jews reaching Vienna to go to countries other than Israel, Glick observed that "Almost all Jews exiting the Soviet Union have decided on their destination before leaving. Over 80 percent of the Soviet Jews who come to the United States or Canada are being reunited with their families. The major rationale for permitting Jews to leave the Soviet Union is for the purpose of family reunion."

Glick also noted that if the HIAS and JDC closed down in Vienna, "their activities would be taken over immediately by other American voluntary agencies authorized and funded by the United States Government to provide help and assistance to refugees. In the opinion of the Board of Directors of HIAS and the American Jewish communities, it would be immoral to force Jewish refugees to seek and obtain help from non-Jewish agencies," Glick said.

IRAQ, AT UN, CALLS FOR ARMS EMBARGO AGAINST ISRAEL

By Yitzhak Rabi

UNITED NATIONS, June 8 (JTA)--A draft resolution calling for an arms embargo against Israel was introduced last night by Iraq in the Ad Hoc Committee of the General Assembly special session on disarmament. The draft resolution, which is co-sponsored by 26 other nations, called on all states, the United States in particular, to cooperate in an arms embargo against Israel. It called also for an end to the transfer of all nuclear equipment or fissionable material or technology to Israel. The Iraqi draft called on the Security Council to impose the arms embargo on Israel.

Diplomats at the United Nations said today that the majority of the United Nations membership would like to remove the Iraqi proposal from the disarmament discussions and possibly put it off until the regular session of the General Assembly, scheduled to open here in September. The diplomats also expressed the view that the Iraqi resolution does not have a chance to be approved by the Security Council since the United States is most likely to veto it.

Israel denounced the draft as a "disruptive and divisive" resolution filled with "lies and distortions." The Israeli representative to the Ad Hoc Committee, Ambassador Shammai Kahana, said that Iraq "rounded up" a group of countries that would "like nothing better than to see Israel deprived of defense while they build up their arsenals."

YADIN PLEDGES GOVT. COOPERATION IN SOCIAL IMPROVEMENT PROJECT

JERUSALEM, July 8 (JTA)--Deputy Premier Yigael Yadin has pledged the government's full cooperation with the Jewish Agency in a project to improve the housing situation and overall living standards for 45,000 disadvantaged families in Israel. Yadin expressed his support in a letter to Leon Dulzin, chairman of the World Zionist Organization Executive and acting chairman of the Jewish Agency who left for the U.S. today on a mission connected with the project.

Yadin, leader of the Democratic Movement for Change (DMC), coordinates social policy on the Cabinet level. He asked Dulzin to appoint Jewish Agency representatives to the joint government-agency group that will supervise the project which originated with Premier Menachem Begin. Yadin stressed that what was envisaged was "the social rehabilitation of problem neighborhoods through a coordinated program of community development which will include all the social and cultural services, physical rehabilitation, housing and in particular, the development of a community spirit of citizen participation in the planning and execution of the program." He referred to the "complete partnership" that has evolved between himself and Dulzin in their discussions of the project. (David Landau)

GAMASSY SAYS SADAT PEACE INITIATIVE HAS NOT FAILED

By David Ettinger

WASHINGTON (June 8 (JTA)--Egyptian War Minister Abdel Gamassy said here today that President Anwar Sadat's peace initiative has not failed. But he ruled out a separate peace agreement with Israel and denied that Egypt is seeking additional arms from the U.S. beyond the 50 F-5E fighters recently approved by the Senate.

Gamassy, who met with Defense Secretary Harold Brown yesterday, said, in reply to reporters questions, that President Sadat "did not threaten war" when he told Egyptian troops this week to be prepared for battle if Israel does not respond satisfactorily to his peace initiative. "President Sadat's goal is to work with Israel with an open mind. The peace initiative has not failed yet in order to seek other possibilities," he said. He added that "In case the peace initiative fails, I assure you that President Sadat will be ready to take the hard decisions at the time."

Gamassy said there could be no separate peace between Israel and Egypt because as long as the Palestinian issue is not settled "trouble in the Middle East would persist."

EX-WHITE HOUSE AIDE

BLASTS CARTER MIDEAST POLICIES.

NEW YORK, June 8 (JTA)--Mark Siegel, former deputy assistant to President Carter, declared last night that "support for President Carter in the American Jewish Community has crumbled." He said Jews and friends of Israel in the U.S. detect a strong tilt towards the Arabs in the Carter Administration.

Addressing several hundred persons at the Jerusalem Award Founders Dinner of the American Committee for Shaare Zedek Hospital at the Hilton Hotel here, Siegel said that by approving the sale of jet fighters to Saudi Arabia and Egypt, the Senate "has failed to uphold the national integrity." He said that the confrontation between the Administration and Israel's supporters has created "the worst crisis of Israel-U.S. relations in 30 years."

Siegel, who resigned from the Carter Administration recently because of disagreement with the Administration's Mideast policy, charged that Carter violated his promise made during the election campaign to support Israel totally. In 1976, American Jewry had every reason to believe that the Carter Administration would be a close friend of Israel, he said, citing the strong pro-Israel plank adopted at the Democratic Party convention.

... SO DOES SEN. MOYNIHAN

NEW YORK, June 8 (JTA)--Sen. Daniel P. Moynihan (D, N.Y.) lashed out at President Carter's reference to the "shared concerns" of the United States and the Soviet Union in the President's speech at the Naval Academy commencement yesterday. Moynihan noted that the Soviets seek to destroy Israel, since it blocks their access to the Persian Gulf and the strategic Middle East area as a whole. The United States, on the other hand, has a special obligation to continue its support for the democratic state of Israel, he said.

Speaking before an estimated 2,000 people at the commencement exercises of Yeshiva University, Moynihan sharply criticized the American failure to pursue "good faith negotiations with an ally." While Israel has honored its part in the Sinai II Agreement, the United States has made aid for Israel conditional upon Israeli concessions in the stalled Mideast peace talks, he said. The Senator was referring specifically to the terms of the controversial Middle East arms sale package recently passed by Congress.

LIKUD MK PROPOSES LABOR BE INCLUDED IN PEACE DECISIONS

has called on Premier Menachem Begin to include leaders of the opposition Labor Party in the decision-making aspects of the peace process. Katz, regarded as a "dove" by Likud standards, made his proposal in an open letter to Begin and a similar one to Labor Alignment chairman Shimon Peres, suggesting that he participate.

There was no reaction yet from Begin to Katz's idea and political observers are waiting to see what repercussions this move may have in the Likud-led coalition. Some pundits claim there is a good deal more dove-ish sentiment among the Liberals, and even among the National Religious Party coalition partners, than coalition leaders care to admit.

Katz said he offered his ideas because Israel faces tough times ahead in its relations with the U.S. which calls for maximum solidarity on the home front. He also contended that a consensus exists between the government and Labor on key foreign policy issues. (David Landau)

KOLLEK ENDING PARIS VISIT, INVITES CHIRAC TO JERUSALEM

By Edwin Eytan

PARIS, June 8 (JTA)--Paris Mayor and Gaullist Party leader Jacques Chirac has been invited to Jerusalem by that city's Mayor, Teddy Kollek, who completed today a three-day official visit to Paris. Chirac has not yet fixed a date for his trip to Jerusalem but political circles believe the visit will take place before the 1981 French Presidential elections when Chirac is expected to challenge President Valéry Giscard D'Estaing.

Kollek, who addressed a press conference at the end of his official visit, said he attached considerable political importance to the visit because France does not recognize the unified status of Jerusalem nor its status as the capital of Israel. When asked whether the visit would improve political relations between France and Israel, Kollek said: "I just would not know. I have no opinion on this subject." He added with a touch of dry humor: "There is a clear distinction between the Foreign Ministry and the City Hall. They are in charge of foreign affairs and we in charge of the garbage collection and each of us thinks that the other is doing a lousy job."

Stresses Jerusalem Is United City

Kollek stressed that he hoped his visit made it clear that there was only one single and unified Jerusalem. "There is no western or eastern Jerusalem, there only is a unified city." The Jerusalem Mayor said there was some terrorism but that it was of the "imported variety." He explained that the Arabs wanted to have a sound economy and "you just cannot have tourism and terrorism at the same time." They just don't go together.

Throughout his stay in Paris, Kollek was warmly welcomed by the city fathers and by the large Jewish community. The French government diplomatically avoided being represented at the banquets and receptions given by Chirac in his honor. Even Jewish junior ministers, such as the Deputy Secretary for Labor Lionel Stoleru and the Deputy Secretary of State Olivier Stirn, stayed away from the reception which they had been invited to attend in "a personal capacity." Health Minister Simone Veil also stayed away in spite of the fact that her husband, Antoine Veil, a former Jewish deportee, is a personal friend and political associate of Chirac. Kollek's visit had political implications because of Chirac's challenge to Giscard in the next election.

HOLOCAUST LIBRARY SERIES INTRODUCED

By Lisa Schiffman

NEW YORK, June 8 (JTA)--The first five volumes of the Holocaust Library, a series of books created and selected by survivors of the Holocaust, were introduced at a private reception here last week.

Alexander Donat, chairman of the Advisory Board which manages the non-profit organization, explained that with the first five volumes now published, four paperback reprints of classics in Holocaust history and one original hardcover autobiography have now been made available to the public.

The members of the Board were handpicked by Donat to share the responsibility of choosing books for the Library. Those members, "whose intention it is to have started a circle of books that will continue indefinitely," according to Donat, are Sam E. Bloch, Secretary General of the Federation of Bergen Belsen Associations; Hadassah Rosensaft, who by the management of the Central Committee of the British occupational Zone of Germany, saved hundreds of children after World War II; William H. Donat, child survivor of the Holocaust; Leon G. Wells, author of "The Death Brigade," one of the first five volumes reprinted in the series; and author-lecturer Elie Wiesel, survivor of the Holocaust.

Books Out Of Print

Four of the five volumes first published for the series were chosen, Donat explained, because they were out of print and the "urgent demand for them" in schools and universities was not being met. The first original work in the series, "Ghetto Diary" by Janusz Korczak, was chosen to coincide with the 100th anniversary of his birth, presently being celebrated by the United Nations Educational, Social and Cultural Organization (UNESCO). Korczak, a Warsaw pediatrician, revealed in his diary his dedication to the children of an orphanage in the Warsaw Ghetto. Hadassah Rosensaft, who introduced his book at the reception, explained that Korczak chose to die with the children at Treblinka rather than leave Poland. "He became a symbol of great courage, great love for children," she explained. "He spared them the fear, agony and knowledge of death."

Gideon Hausner, Attorney General of Israel at the time Adolf Eichmann was captured, in his book "Justice in Jerusalem" related not only the story of the Eichmann trial but "the whole history of the Holocaust," said Donat. "We feel," he added, "that it should be made required reading" in schools. "The Death Brigade" by Leon G. Wells is his autobiographical account of two escapes from German captivity, once from the group whose job it was to obliterate traces of the mass executions of inmates of concentration camps and whose name has been lent to the title of the volume.

In "Their Brothers' Keepers," Philip Friedman gives an account of Christian rescues of Jews during World War II. Friedman documents the acts of "Christians who put their lives on the line to allow a handful of Jews to survive," explained William Donat, son of Alexander, who was saved from extermination in that way. His father's book, "The Holocaust Kingdom," also introduced into the series, relates the survival of his Polish-Jewish family in the Warsaw Ghetto and describes the circumstances which led the elder Donat to give up his son to a non-Jewish family not knowing they would someday be reunited.

Five More Volumes Planned

The Holocaust Library was established "to offer to the reading public authentic material not readily available, and to preserve the memory of our martyrs and heroes untainted by arbitrary or inadvertent distortions," reads the inside cover of each volume. It has been financed with funds left by Benjamin and Stefa Wald, set up in a trust, with additional funds coming from organizations, donations, the sales of the books, and the first-printing royalties all of the authors have agreed to donate to the Library.

The series is being distributed by Schocken Books to bookstores and trade channels and also through many Jewish organizations, according to Donat. The Advisory Board is currently planning a series of five other titles, including volumes on the Warsaw Ghetto and Jewish resistance, some of which will be reprinted works and others originals.

ANTI-BOYCOTT ACTIVISTS BEATEN

AMSTERDAM, June 8 (JTA)--Two members of the recently established Dutch Anti-Arab Boycott Committee were beaten up last week after they asked questions about compliance with Arab boycott demands at a shareholders meeting of a company doing business in Saudi Arabia. The assault occurred after the two men left the meeting where their questions drew an angry reaction from some of the shareholders. The assailants were not identified.

The anti-boycott group recently purchased small amounts of stock in Dutch firms with contracts in Arab countries. This permits them to ask questions relating to the firms' treatment of boycott demands. Two weeks ago, they attended a meeting of the Ballast Nedam Co. The men who were assaulted last week had attended a shareholders' meeting of the Ogem Co. which has contracts for major construction work in Saudi Arabia.

THREE COUNTRIES SEEK WAGNER EXTRADITION

VIENNA, June 8 (JTA)--Austria, Poland and West Germany have requested the extradition from Brazil of Gustav Franz Wagner, 67, identified as the former deputy commander of the notorious Treblinka and Sobibor concentration camps in Poland. The Brazilian Supreme Court is expected to examine the requests later this month.

Wagner, allegedly responsible for the extermination of more than 150,000 Jews during World War II, has been living in Sao Paulo. Some reports from there said he was detained by the Brazilian authorities, others that he was under surveillance. He was identified by Simon Wiesenthal, head of the Vienna-based Nazi war crimes documentation center and by a Polish writer after his photograph appeared in a Brazilian newspaper.

JERUSALEM (JTA)--A survey conducted by the Jerusalem Brookdale Institute for Social Research discovered that 45 per cent of Israeli wage-earners would like to change their jobs but do not for fear of losing their pension rights. The results of the survey were cited by Minister for Social Betterment Israel Katz, who is seeking reforms of the general pension law that would allow workers to carry over their pension rights when they change jobs in order to facilitate mobility within the work force. He also wants to extend pensions to the 350,000 Israeli workers presently without a pension plan.
