

1987-1988

1987-1988

1987-1988

1987-1988

1987-1988

1987-1988

1987-1988

1987-1988

1987-1988

1987-1988

1987-1988

1987-1988

1987-1988

1987-1988

1987-1988

1987-1988

1987-1988

1987-1988

1987-1988

1987-1988

1987-1988

1987-1988

1987-1988

1987-1988

1987-1988

1987-1988

1987-1988

...of the

... ..

... ..

... ..

... ..

... ..

... ..

... ..

... ..

... ..

... ..

... ..

... ..

... ..

... ..

... ..

... ..

... ..

... ..

... ..

... ..

... ..

... ..

... ..

... ..

... ..

... ..

... ..

... ..

... ..

... ..

... ..

... ..

THE ECONOMIC POLICY OF THE GOVERNMENT OF INDIA

The Government of India has adopted a policy of economic liberalisation and growth. The policy is based on the principles of free enterprise, competition, and efficiency. The Government has taken several steps to implement this policy, including the abolition of the License Raj, the liberalisation of foreign exchange, and the promotion of private industry.

The Government has also taken steps to improve the infrastructure, including the construction of roads, bridges, and airports. It has also taken steps to improve the education and health care systems.

The Government has also taken steps to improve the financial system, including the liberalisation of interest rates and the introduction of new financial instruments.

The Government has also taken steps to improve the labour market, including the liberalisation of employment laws and the promotion of flexible labour contracts.

The Government has also taken steps to improve the tax system, including the liberalisation of tax rates and the introduction of new tax incentives.

The Government has also taken steps to improve the foreign trade system, including the liberalisation of import and export controls and the promotion of trade liberalisation.

The Government has also taken steps to improve the industrial system, including the liberalisation of industrial regulations and the promotion of private industry.

The Government has also taken steps to improve the agricultural system, including the liberalisation of agricultural regulations and the promotion of private industry.

The Government has also taken steps to improve the services sector, including the liberalisation of services regulations and the promotion of private industry.

THE ECONOMIC POLICY OF THE GOVERNMENT OF INDIA

The Government of India has adopted a policy of economic liberalisation and growth. The policy is based on the principles of free enterprise, competition, and efficiency. The Government has taken several steps to implement this policy, including the abolition of the License Raj, the liberalisation of foreign exchange, and the promotion of private industry.

The Government has also taken steps to improve the infrastructure, including the construction of roads, bridges, and airports. It has also taken steps to improve the education and health care systems.

The Government has also taken steps to improve the financial system, including the liberalisation of interest rates and the introduction of new financial instruments.

The Government has also taken steps to improve the labour market, including the liberalisation of employment laws and the promotion of flexible labour contracts.

The Government has also taken steps to improve the tax system, including the liberalisation of tax rates and the introduction of new tax incentives.

The Government has also taken steps to improve the foreign trade system, including the liberalisation of import and export controls and the promotion of trade liberalisation.

The Government has also taken steps to improve the industrial system, including the liberalisation of industrial regulations and the promotion of private industry.

According to the Government, the results of the liberalisation policy have been positive. The economy has grown at a rapid pace, and the standard of living has improved significantly.

The Government has also taken steps to improve the infrastructure, including the construction of roads, bridges, and airports. It has also taken steps to improve the education and health care systems.

The Government has also taken steps to improve the financial system, including the liberalisation of interest rates and the introduction of new financial instruments.

The Government has also taken steps to improve the labour market, including the liberalisation of employment laws and the promotion of flexible labour contracts.

The Government has also taken steps to improve the tax system, including the liberalisation of tax rates and the introduction of new tax incentives.

The Government has also taken steps to improve the foreign trade system, including the liberalisation of import and export controls and the promotion of trade liberalisation.

The Government has also taken steps to improve the industrial system, including the liberalisation of industrial regulations and the promotion of private industry.

The Government has also taken steps to improve the agricultural system, including the liberalisation of agricultural regulations and the promotion of private industry.

The Government has also taken steps to improve the services sector, including the liberalisation of services regulations and the promotion of private industry.

The Government has also taken steps to improve the infrastructure, including the construction of roads, bridges, and airports. It has also taken steps to improve the education and health care systems.

The Government has also taken steps to improve the financial system, including the liberalisation of interest rates and the introduction of new financial instruments.

The Government has also taken steps to improve the labour market, including the liberalisation of employment laws and the promotion of flexible labour contracts.

The Government has also taken steps to improve the tax system, including the liberalisation of tax rates and the introduction of new tax incentives.

The Government has also taken steps to improve the foreign trade system, including the liberalisation of import and export controls and the promotion of trade liberalisation.

The Government has also taken steps to improve the industrial system, including the liberalisation of industrial regulations and the promotion of private industry.

The Government has also taken steps to improve the agricultural system, including the liberalisation of agricultural regulations and the promotion of private industry.

The Government has also taken steps to improve the services sector, including the liberalisation of services regulations and the promotion of private industry.

The Government has also taken steps to improve the infrastructure, including the construction of roads, bridges, and airports. It has also taken steps to improve the education and health care systems.

The Government has also taken steps to improve the financial system, including the liberalisation of interest rates and the introduction of new financial instruments.